THE LORD REJECTS SAUL.

LESSON VII, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 18.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xv, 10-23—Commit Verses 22, 23—Golden Text, I Sam. xv, 23—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helps Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

The intervening chapters between this lesson and the last one are chiefly occupied with Saul's first victories over the Philistines, and also over the Moabites, Ammonites and Edomites; but there is a sad statement concerning Saul, and a precious one concerning Jonathan, his son, to each of which we ought to give good heed for our own profit. The first refers to Saul's foolish conduct and disobedience in the matter of the sacrifice (chap. xiii, 8-14), which brought from Samuel the message, "Now thy kingdom shall not continue; the Lord hath sought Him a man after his own heart;" the second is the noble conduct of Jonathan and his armor bearer and the good word, "There is no restraint to the Lord to save by many or by few." We may, if we will, be men and women after God's own heart, and daily profit by the good word of Jonathan. The lesson today is the story of Saul's disobedience in the matter of the Amalekites.

10. "Then came the word of the Lord unto Samuel." Saul's orders were, "Go and smite Amalek, and utterly destroy all that they have" (v. 3); but he saved Agag the king alive, and spared the best of the sheep and oxen (v. 9). Thus, as in the matter of the sacrifice already referred to, he did what seemed right to himself, acting upon his own judgment rather than the express command of God.

11. "It repenteth me that I have set up Saul to be king." So in verse 35 "the Lord repented that He had made Saul king over Israel," and yet in verse 29 it is written, "The strength of Israel will not lie or repent, for He is not a man that He should repent." Compare also Num. xxiii, 19; Ps. cx, 4. Now the question is how to reconcile these apparent contradictions, for the contradiction is only seeming, not real. We must first get firm ground on which to stand, and we have it in the fact that a God of Truth (Isa. lxv, 16) cannot lie; and a God to whom all His works are known from the beginning of the world (Acts xv, 18) cannot possibly make a mistake or be sorry for anything He has done. Even the treatment of Jesus by Herod, Pilate, the Gentiles and Israel was only what God had determined before to be done (Acts iv, 27, 28), but that did not lessen the guilt of Herod and the others. God certainly knew beforehand just how Saul would turn out, how long He would have to bear with him, and just when He would set him aside and put David in his place. When God in His infinite wisdom, doing what He always knew that He would do, seems to us to change His mind and do a new thing, He is said in Scripture to repent; man, on the other hand, repents when he actually does change his mind, and does what he had not intended before to do.

"It grieved Samuel, and he cried unto the Lord all night." Moses and Samuel stand before us in the Scriptures as two men whose hearts are one with God on behalf of Israel, and the power of their pleading is referred to in Jer. xv, 1. Let us remember that God has His mark upon those who sigh and cry because of the sins and abominations of Christians. (Ezek. ix, 4.)

12. "Saul came to Carmel, and, behold, he set him up a place." The Revised Version says he set up a monument. It seems to have been, like Absalom's place (II Sam. xviii, 18), a pillar rather for his own glory than the glory of God, rather to commemorate his own name than the name of Jehovah.

13. "Blessed be thou of the Lord: I have performed the commandment of the Lord." This was Saul's greeting when Samuel came to him: if in the previous verse we see his vanity, surely here we see hypocrisy. This is a covering of sin which cannot prosper, reminding us of the people pure in their own eyes, yet not washed from their filthiness.

14. "What meaneth then this bleating of the sheep, * * * and the lowing of the oxen?" All things are naked and open to the eyes of Him with whom we have to do; and from Him who searcheth heart and veins no secrets can be hid. All sin will be sure to find us out sooner or later, unless confessed, forsaken or forgiven (Heb. iv, 13; Num. xxxii, 23).

15. "The people spared the best of the sheep and of the oxen, to sacrifice unto the Lord thy God." Being cornered, as we say, he now puts the blame on the people, yet seeks to justify them by saying it was for the Lord, but his heart is somewhat shown in his saying, the Lord thy God, instead of "the Lord our God." It is evident that Saul did not know the Lord, he did not understand that the Lord wants nothing that belongs to His enemies.

16. "Stay, and I will tell thee what the Lord hath said to me this night." Blessed Samuel who talked with God and with whom God talked, who sought only to know the mind of God and do it; when he came to die it would not be a very great change for him, for he had from his youth lived with God and served Him. Why should we not in our daily life thus walk with God, careful above all things to know what He hath said, that we may believe it and do it.

17. "When little in thine own sight, * * * the Lord anointed thee king over Israel." Had Saul only continued little in his own sight and sought to be great in the eyes of the Lord who had exalted him, all would have been well, but he forgot the Lord and thought more of Saul and his deeds.

18. "The Lord sent thee on a journey, and said, Go, and utterly destroy the sinners the Amalekites." Saul was not required to give his opinion, or make any suggestions, but only to do as he was told. Jesus, who loved to say that the Father sent him, could also say, "I do always those things that please Him" (John viii, 16, 18, 26, 29); and He says to the Father concerning us: "As Thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world" (John xvii, 18); but our commission instead of being, "Go, destroy, fight against," is "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." (Mark xvi, 15.)

19. "Thou didst not obey the voice of the Lord, * * * but didst evil in the sight of the Lord." It seems hard for some people to realize that God sees all their actions, and even the motives for their actions, and notices all things; yet it is written that "The ways of man are before the eyes of the Lord, and He pondereth all his goings;" and again: "The eyes of the Lord are in every place, beholding the evil and the good."

20. "Yea, I have obeyed the voice of the Lord and have gone the way which the Lord sent me." Still justifying himself, and refusing to humble himself before God; making out that Samuel was wrong and that God was mistaken, and that he alone was right; insisting that his view of the case was the correct one, and that in doing as he did he had indeed obeyed God.

21. "The people took of the spoil, * * * things which should have been utterly destroyed." It is sometimes easier to see the sins of others than to see our own. He had previously said that it was the people who spared the best of the sheep and oxen, but that they had spared them for a good end, making the end to justify the deed; now he confesses that the deed on the people's part was wrong and that sheep and oxen should have been utterly destroyed.

What a Physician Says.

J. M. Loose Red Clover Co., Detroit:

I cheerfully furnish the following for publication.

Mrs. S., age 36, cancerous face (cell cancer), had tried many physicians, and on presentation to me was a horrible sight to look upon. Nose partly eaten away, deep pits in cheeks, forehead and chin. As a last hope I put her on Loose's Extract Red Clover—large doses internally, and as a local application, I used the Solid Extract in plaster form. She improved rapidly from the first week, and in four mo. was entirely well. Now eighteen mo. since treatment, and no signs of return.

JOHN J. WEAVER.

Ulceration of the leg (Indolent Ulcer). Recovered entirely after three months' treatment with Red Clover Extract and Solid Extract Dressing. Now one year since treatment, and no sign of return.

WALTER W. HUME.

Cancer of Lip and Skin Disease. Entirely cured with three months' treatment with Red Clover Tonic and Solid Extract Dressing. Now over year and no sign of return.

H——B——

Secondary Syphilis was entirely cured by Red Clover Extract in three months, with none of the results such as are left by mercury in such cases.

If you have any doubting physicians, they can write to me and I will give them a full history of each case.

Give the Fly a Chance.

"Good many flies in here," he said to a shoemaker on Champlain street, as he sat down to have a lift put on the heel of his shoe.

"Yes."

"Never tried to drive 'em out, did you?"

"No."

"Don't want to keep 'em on the outside, I suppose?"

"No."

"Wouldn't put up a screen door, then, if any one should give you one?"

"No."

"You must be the house fly's friend?"

"My frendt, I vhas sooch a man dot I like eaferypody to get along all right. If you pitch on some flies he vhas mad; if you gif him a chance maype he goes py himself und does vhell und vhas your frendt."—Detroit Free Press.

Her Preference.

We sat upon the topmost step,
And talked of this and that;
She asked me if I'd been away,
And how I liked her hat.

We chatted about various things,
Of novels and the weather;
For hours, on almost every theme,
We there conversed together.

I asked what paper she preferred;
She hesitated some,
While through the dark around we heard
The gay mosquito's hum.

She moved a little closer then,
And answered "Can't you guess?
Why, the one of all that suits me most Is The Daily Evening Press."

HOW CAN PARENTS

allow their children to cough and strain and cough and calmly say "Oh! it is only a little cold," and keep giving them cheap and dangerous medicines, until they are down with lung fever or consumption, when they can be so easily relieved by BEGGS' CHERRY COUGH-SYRUP? It has no superior, and few equals. J. J. ORR, Druggist.

WHAT ON EARTH

Is the reason people will not, can not, or do not see any difference in cheap nostrums put up by Cheap John houses or irresponsible parties at enormous profits, rather than take a medicine of world wide reputation and one that is giving universal satisfaction at equal price? No! medicine in the world is giving such unparalleled satisfaction for purifying the blood as BEGGS' BLOOD PURIFIER & BLOOD MAKER, and every bottle that does not do its work will cost you nothing.

J. J. ORR Druggist.

LONG LIFE.

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a race we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we recive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease preventer that has yet been discovered, is simered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names and guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them.

They do not know, of course, unless they have courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why dont you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but one dollar for a very large bottle. Try it at once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggists may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine—of health.

WRITING MACHINE CABINET and OFFICE DESK

For Remington, Hammond, and Crandall Type Writer.

The advantages of this Type writer and Office Desk over all other so-called Combination Cabinets, are:

First.—The ease and simplicity with which the desk is changed from a Library or Office Desk to a Typ-writer Table. This change is effected by pushing the lid covering the machine back in the rear of cabinet—it being a roller top—removing it entirely from sight, thus overcoming the objectionable board and sounder in front of the operator. The movable top is perfectly flat, is baize covered, and forms a complete writing desk when the machine is not in use. The table on which the machine rests is so evenly balanced by our patent adjustments that it needs but a slight touch to bring the machine in position.

Second.—The advantages of the swinging table are: The table is so balanced near its center on patent malleable iron arms, that when the machine brought in place for use, it does not depend on ropes or hangers at rear of platform for support, but is held rigidly in place by its own weight, making it impossible for the machine to be tumbled down an incline in back of desk by the breaking of a rear support. The machine rests on patent slides which keeps the machine in place, and can be drawn out beyond the desk, well under the operator's hand.

Third.—The construction of the lid closing machine space makes it air tight, and the table having felt around its boarders thoroughly protects the machine from dust.

Fourth.—The foot rest and the construction of the table adjustments makes the desk as ridged as though the top was one solid board, which is a matter of great importance where a solid type-writing table is required. No operator can do good work on a shaky table.

Lastly.—The cabinet is a splendid piece of cabinet work. We manufacture them in Walnut, Antique Oak, Natural Oak, Natural Cherry, Cherry imitation, Mahogany and Ash.

Agents wanted to sell these cabinets, and where we have no agency established we will sell direct from our works at wholesale prices.

31 YEARS AGO

the Threshing Machines then in use were almost wholly of the class known as the "Endless Apron" style. Then it was that Nichols & Shepard, of Battle Creek, Mich., invented and began to develop an entirely new and novel style of Grain Thresher and Separator, which they very appropriately named the "Vibrator."

It was a revolution in Threshing Machines, and from a small beginning of five machines in 1858 they soon reached a product of 1,000 yearly.

Their Vibrator drove the "Endless Apron" machine out of market, and all other makers copied it as closely as they dared. To-day all Threshing Machines of any reputation or merit use the principles of the old Vibrator. Nichols & Shepard have continued in the business without change of name, location, or management; and during the past three years have brought out and developed another new Threshing Machine for grain and seeds, as superior to all existing machines as their former was to the 'Endless Apron.' They name this new and improved Thresher and predict as great a revolution in the trade, and as complete success over all rivals as they had thirty-one years ago.

Why Should I Go to Montana?

Great Reservation. Because 18,000,000 acres of free government land, with a delightful climate and equally suited for general farming and stock raising, have just been opened to the homeseeker, in the Milk River Valley and near Fenton and Great Falls.

Stock Raising. Because the favorable climate and superior grasses of Montana make it the natural home of horses, cattle, sheep and other domestic animals; and because winter feeding is not required, as stock grazes at large the year around.

General Farming. Because a rich soil and abundant summer rains produce wheat, oats, rye, barley, and the grasses and vegetables of a quality, size and yield unsurpassed.

Mining. Because Montana produces more of the precious metals than any other state or territory, and abundant opportunities remain to secure valuable properties at nominal cost.

Immigration. Because the Great Reservation is the meeting point of settlers from the Pacific Coast and from the Eastern States and is the only extensive tract of good land left, suitable for settlement.

Business. Because the rapidly growing towns along the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Ry. offer splendid opportunities to engage in business.

Manufacture. Because the 1,000,000 horse-power water power at Great Falls, the extensive coal veins, the wool, mineral and grain raising resources of Montana offer exceptional opportunities to the manufacturer.

Tourist. Because the canon of the Gates of the Mountains, the Great Falls of the Missouri, the Giant Fountain and Continental Divide offer the most sublime and diversified scenery to be found on the Continent. Take a summer tour.

Why Travel by the St. P., M. & M.? Because only by it can you travel through the largest body of free land left for settlement. Because it reaches the Great Falls, with the largest water power on the continent. Because it reaches Helena, the richest city of its size in the world, and because it is the shortest and best route to Butte, the largest mining camp on earth. Special tourists' and landseekers' rates. Daily trains through solid to Montana. Choice of three routes to the Pacific coast. Find out all about it by writing for "The Great Reservation," and "Tourists' Summer Guide." For further information, rates, maps etc, apply to F. I. WHITNEY, G. P. & T. J. WILSON & SON,
TECUMSEH

THE STATE ENCAMPMENT.

A Day's Outing at Battle Creek, and a Few Hours Among the Tents.

The Excursion train over the Mackinaw road bound for Battle Creek left this station at 7:30 o'clock last Sunday morning, and when the train, composed of eight coaches pulled out of this depot, it was nearly filled. Adrian sent over a big delegation, Tecumseh furnished a large crowd, and all the towns in this corner of the county were represented. Additions were made to the load at every station west, and when Battle Creek was reached the eight coaches contained about sixteen car loads of passengers. The train was in charge of Conductor W. D. Cowser, with D. Calhoun at the throttle, and they proved themselves fully equal to the emergency. The train was run promptly on time and not an accident occurred either going or coming.

Upon arriving at Battle Creek, we set out to find Will Wooden, and found him on Cherry street, in the northeastern quarter of the city. His and Joe Wooden's family are occupying the same house at present. Will is building a fine new house of his own, which is nearly completed, and he expects to move into it about the first of September. After noon lunch had been disposed of we started for camp in company with Joe and Will Wooden, Chas. Wooden and son of Cambridge, who went up on the excursion train and C. H. Hopkins. Although the city was crowded with visitors, there was but little trouble in procuring conveyances to the camp grounds. The street railway had all the cars on the Goguac lake line and vehicles of every name and style were in waiting to convey passengers to the camp. Goguac lake is two miles south of the city post office and the fare charged for a single trip was ten cents.

The camp is beautifully located. It occupies a large field, containing about twenty acres just north of the lake. The first Regiment was camped on the farther side of the field. The tents were planted in even rows with alleys between each company and broad streets between the regiments, presenting a beautiful sight as one approached from the city. The companies were arranged in rows north and south. At the extreme south end was the guard tent. Next came the Hospital and Regimental, next the company officers, next the privates, the members of Co. C. filling ten tents—Then the mess tent and the cook house.

Upon arriving on the grounds we took a bee line for the Tecumseh contingent and for about two hours busied ourselves in visiting and inspecting their quarters. The tents looked neat and well kept while the inmates all had a hearty greeting for every man who hailed from Tecumseh.

In the Regimental quarters at the south of the line we found Major C. M. Woodward, Surgeon of the 1st, Ser. D. T. Hall, Hospital Steward.

The Captain's tent contained Capt. Fred B. Wood, 1st Lt. E A. Doke, 2d Lt. T. R. Kyle and Major Howell, who was Capt. Wood's guest. The remaining tents were filled up with from five to six men each as follows:

NUMBER ONE.

Serg. Farley; Corp. Love; Priv. G. H. Tansley, J. T. Tansley, Ran Brown, Geo. Gainsley.

NUMBER TWO.

Sergs. Beebe, Zimmerman, Richart, Marks; Priv. Kopp, Harkness.

NUMBER SEVEN.

NUMBER EIGHT.

NUMBER NINE.

Corp. Bidwell. Priv. Moon, Keyser, W. Hayden, Richard, M. Hayden, Wescott.

NUMBER TEN.

Corp. Ross, Waldron. Priv. Machan, Tremain, Boyce, McClure.

Prof Skinner acted as Chief Bugler of the 1st. and Regimental Bandmaster.

Tent number eleven was used as headquarters for the band.

Number twelve was the mess tent, which was in charge of Quartermaster C. F. Patterson and cooks E. G. Hodges and W. C. Jordan. The cooks had a detail of two or three men each day to assist them, and on Sunday a detail of six. The company fed over a hundred guests at their mess tent that day. Every man, woman or child who hailed from Tecumseh was taken in at once and filled up with chicken pie, baked beans, ice cream, et cetera. The kitchen was a frame shed about fifteen feet square which contained the supply of provisions and crockery, a cook stove and other cooking utensils.

Below we give the daily program or order of the day, which was observed with slight exceptions during the whole five days. On Sunday afternoon the usual drills were omitted and the boys were given three hours off duty. Religious services were also held in the afternoon.

The first Regiment was regarded as the best one in camp. On Friday it held a dress parade of its own, which was conceded to be the finest ever witnessed at a state encampment, and Co. C. takes a commanding position in the 1st. Our boys present a gay appearance in their new uniform while in personel and drill it is surpassed by no company in the Regiment. Tecumseh has reason to be proud of her military company. The organization deserves and should receive our hearty encouragement.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

The State Teachers' Institute for Lenawee County, will be held at Tecumseh, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M., Monday, August 19, and closing at 4 P. M., Friday, August 23.

Supt. E. A. Wilson, Tecumseh, Local Committee.

The value of the instruction received at these Institutes is being very generally recognized by teachers and school officers. As a rule, it has been the experience of County Examiners and other examining officers, that the most successful teachers are those who have availed themselves of the normal instruction offered by these local Institutes.

The daily sessions of the Institutes for this year will, as heretofore, be devoted exclusively to topics of special interest to teachers, presented by persons of extended practical experience as teachers, and who have made a special study of Institute work. The evening lectures will be of a popular character.

The institute law allows teachers, whose schools are in session at the time appointed for the County Institute, held under the direction of the State Superintendent, to close their schools during the continuance of such Institute without forfeiting their wages for as many half days as they are in attendance at the Institute. This provision of law, and the fact that there will be no tuition or enrollment fee exacted, should insure the attendance of every teacher in the county who possesses the true professional spirit.

Full particulars in regard to board, etc., may be obtained upon application to the local committee.

JOSEPH ESTABROOK,
Supt. Public Instruction.

We notice a new departure in the treatment of disease that promises to revolutionize the medicine business. It consists in the collection of the species used by noted specialists of Europe and America, and bringing them within the reach of all. For instance, the treatment pursued by special physicians who treat indigestion, stomach and liver troubles only, was obtained and prepared. The treatments of other physicians, celebrated for curing catarrh, were procured, and so on till these incomparable cures now include diseases of the lungs, kidneys, female weakness, rheumatism, nervous debility, and piles. Originated and used by specialists, being a positive cure for each disease, these preparations are the best remedies procurable. We advise all to send three two cent stamps to the Chase Medical Specialty Co., 179 West Adams St., Chicago, Ill., and receive by return mail their interesting hand book

Tri-State Fair.

Already the large preparations for the great exhibition to be held in Toledo, O., Sep. 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13, are nearly completed. There is much more than usual enthusiasm over the Fair this year. All departments are rapidly filling up, and the exhibition will be unusually large, commanding and exciting. It is estimated that this Fair will be witnessed by larger crowds than ever before. The special attractions will be especially good—Fine races, the great bench show of dogs and the Wood Campbell whippet races daily. Live stock and race entries close Monday, September 2nd; dog entries close Monday, August 26th.

Blake's Annual of Weather Predictions for 1890

Will be published and ready for delivery early this fall. It gives full details of what the weather and crop prospects will be till January 1st, 1891. On receipt of the price, $2, I send a long confidential letter answering all questions and giving the gist of weather changes so that parties may know at once whether to sow wheat this fall, or whether they had better sell all their wheat and depend on spring crops. For the next eighteen months the weather changes will be so severe, sudden and unique that much better crops can be raised by knowing in advance what those changes will be. The enormous crops of all kinds in Kansas, this year are proof of this, as they were sown in accordance with my calculations.

The Field of Honor.

Two Georgians Stand Up To Be Shot At.

ONE SAVES FOUR OF HIS BULLETS,

And With Their Aid Manages a Compromise—A Descendent of John C. Calhoun One of the Principals—His Opponent Wastes His Powder, but Shows Considerable Grit—A Rather Peculiar Proceeding Under the Code—No Blood Spilled.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 12.—Just over the Georgia line in Alabama, on the Rome and Decatur road, near dark Saturday evening, Mr. Pat Calhoun and Mr. J. D. Williamson fought a duel with pistols. Mr. Calhoun was perfectly cool and fired but one shot. Mr. Williamson was nervous and fired five shots without stopping. Mr. Calhoun repeated his demand that Mr. Williamson should apologize for words spoken, which Williamson agreed to. Neither party was hurt, and all scattered at once to escape the arresting officers who were now close upon them. The men left this city Friday night after arranging the preliminaries, and in spite of the efforts of the governor managed to have their meeting without interference.

The Men on the Ground.

The duel was fought with nickel-plated, pearl-handled Smith & Wesson's hammerless five-shooters, and the seconds were Capt. Jackson for Calhoun and Jack King for Williamson. King took one pistol and Capt. Harry Jackson the other. King placed his in Williamson's hand. Capt. Harry Jackson walked over and handed his to Calhoun. The seconds took their positions. The principals and seconds formed the four corners of a square. Williamson raised his weapon to examine it, when Capt. Jackson cried out, "Hold that hand down at your side!" Williamson immediately dropped his arm without a word.

A Peacemaker Present.

Then Col. John Seay, of Rome, rushed in and begged the seconds to settle the matter and not allow the fight. "It is a shame," he said, "to have two such fine men stand up here and shoot at one another." The seconds could not agree upon a settlement, and so announced. "Then I shall stand between them," said Col. Seay, as he took his stand in front of Williamson. He was removed by main force. Then for fully ten seconds there was not a sound. It had been arranged that each principal was to empty his pistol—shoot five times.

The Word to Fire.

Suddenly Jack King's voice rang out:

"Are you ready, gentlemen?"

"Yes," answered both.

"Then fire."

The first shots were simultaneous, and the flames and sparks that flew from the pistol barrels illuminated the scene for an instant. Williamson emptied his revolver, the five shots being fired very rapidly. Calhoun fired only once, then slowly lowered his pistol as Williamson's bullets were whistling past his head.

"Are you hurt, Pat," some one cried.

"No, sir," Calhoun coolly replied.

"Williamson, did he hit you?" asked King.

"I was not touched."

An Unprecedented Scene.

The scene at this time became one unprecedented in dueling affairs. After a brief interval of silence Calhoun's voice was heard. He said:

"Mr. Williamson, I have held four of my balls, which I am entitled to fire at you now. I do not wish to take your life. I now ask you to retract your remarks made before the legislature."

"I will do so," answered Williamson, "provided you withdraw the reflections upon my character involved in your remarks."

The Demand Repeated.

Half a dozen times Calhoun demanded an unconditional retraction and each time Williamson refused to make it, demanding in return a disclaimer of personal reflection. Finally Williamson said:

"I am ready for you to fire. Then we will load and fire again."

"Allow me to speak to Mr. Williamson," said King, his second, but Capt. Jackson said quickly, "No, sir; do not approach him. I will kill the first man who crosses this line." Capt. Jackson drew his revolver. As the moon's rays played upon its glittering barrel every one saw he meant business, and the spectators drew back.

"But I have a right to speak to him," replied King.

Then Capt. Jackson lowered his revolver and said: "Yes, I believe you have that right."

Calhoun Makes a Concession.

King then had a short talk with Williamson, and as he was withdrawing Calhoun's voice rang out: "In my remarks before the legislative committee Mr. Williamson personally did not enter my mind." Then raising his pistol he said: "With the understanding that you withdraw your remarks after my statement I fire the remaining shots in the air. I expressly reserved my shots to do this." With these remarks four shots rang out. Then Calhoun approached and the two principals shook hands, and the party started quickly for the car. Entering the car, Calhoun said: "Mr. Williamson, we will let this matter end here."

"We will," replied Williamson, giving his late antagonist's hand a hearty shake.

Cause of the Difficulty.

The cause of the duel is briefly this: Mr. Calhoun, who is a grandson of the great nullifier, is general counsel for the West Point terminal system of railway, and is the master spirit of the combination of which Mr. John H. Inman is the head. The West Point terminal scooped in the Central railroad system of Georgia, thus bottling up the state. This aroused the indignation of the people, and the result was the introduction of a bill into the legislature known as the Olive bill, to forfeit the charters of roads entering into either consolidations or combinations. Mr. Calhoun on Thursday appeared before the railroad committee to argue against the passage of the bill. There he found himself antagonized by President J. D. Williamson, of the Chattanooga, Rome and Carrollton road, who argued in favor of the bill, and declared for independent roads. Mr. Calhoun retorted that Mr. Williamson sought to enter the West Point combination, but that through his (Calhoun's) opposition Williamson was kept out, and thus deserved no credit for being at the head of an independent line. Williamson jumped up and hissed out that the statement was false. A demand for a retraction was declined and both parties left the city Friday night determined on gore.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

CLINTON CLIPPINGS.

Miss Rose Davis of Michigan City, who has been visiting here for the past few days, left here Tuesday.

Bessie Hinsdale, who has been spending summer here, left last week Thursday for Albion, Mich., where she expects to meet her father who will accompany her home.

Miss Aggie Stevens of Tecumseh, spent last week with her grandparents here, Dr. and Mrs. T. C. Adam.

Mrs. Jacob Smith and Mrs. Dow Draper returned last Thursday from a few days visit with Jackson friends.

A large number went from here last Friday to Wampler's lake to see the Clinton boys knock out Horton.

The picnic at Palmer's Grove last Saturday, was very largely attended by Clinton, Bridgewater, Manchester, and Tecumseh people. An excellent program was presented. The races were very interesting and the dinner was by no means the least absorbing feature of the day. The president and the executive committee are to be congratulated upon the happy manner in which everything was carried out.

Tenie Larzelere, one of our most active and wide-awake young boys, has been suffering from inflammation of the knee for the past few days, and has also been threatened with an attack of typhoid fever, but Dr. White thinks he has broken it up and that he will soon be around again.

A Lansing man came down here to spend the Sabbath and take in the lakes with one of our young ladies. He became tired and the young lady attempted to drive home. The horse shied, tipped over the buggy and the horse ran away. The horse and buggy were both stove up but the couple escaped. The young man left $5.00 with Justice Brown to settle for the rig and walked up the railroad to escape arrest.

W. S. Whittlesey and family spent Sunday and Monday with relatives here.

Chas. Ellis of North Adams, is visiting friends here.

E. W. Freese and wife expect to start Saturday for a trip across the continent, and return when the spirit moves. They go to Detroit and by boat to Duluth, thence to St. Paul; from there to Winnepeg, Manatoba and over the C. P. R. R. to New West Minster, one of the termini of the C. P. R. R., where Mr. Freese has a brother residing whom he has not seen in 36 years; from there to San Francisco and home. May they have a pleasant, health giving trip.

Mrs. W. P Silvers started Saturday afternoon for a two week's trip to York State.

Mrs. Wm. Larzelere of Saline, is visiting friends here.

Chas. Johnson, who has been transferred from Detroit to Memphis, Tenn. is here on a vacation. He has charge of the press dispatches in Memphis.

Miss Blanche Smith entertained her Sabbath school class at her home Monday afternoon.

Miss Hattie Hunter of Detroit, who has been visiting Miss Blanche Smith left for home the first of the week.

F. D. Lancaster went to Toledo, on business Tuesday.

W. D. VanTyle went to Detroit Tuesday, to attend the meeting of the Michigan Banker's association.

W. H. Schmidt, M.D., of Chelsea was in town Tuesday.

W. C. Rogers, our buggy man, drove in town Saturday afternoon with another drove of buggies. It would pay to start a factory here if a company could be sure of his patronage.

The woolen mills are running nights in order to supply their customers.

A Chewing Gum factory will soon be in full blast here. Don't mention it to the girls.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Married, August 8, 1839, at the residence of John Nabin, Saline township, Claudius Mansfield and Lucinda Hoard: Rev. Wm. Craig officiating.

Fifty years have passed since the above event took place. Therefore it is not strange that relatives and friends to the number of eighty or ninety gathered at the home of Uncle Claudius and wished them many more years together. Presents were given appropriate to the occasion. Their coming was a complete surprise, but before the guests took their departure they were well assured that it was a very pleasant one, to both Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield, and that they were very grateful to their friends for remembering them so kindly. Remarks were made by Mrs. Martha Monroe. Rev. Wastell offered a prayer and read a very appropriate poem. After singing, Rev. Stalker made a few remarks which, it is needless to say, were enjoyed by all. Thus passed a day that will long be remembered by those who participated in the happy event.

THE CHANGES OF FIFTY YEARS.

'Twould be given to some to tell in good verse,
The marvelous change I'm about to rehearse.
But I'll summon my muse from afar, where she roams,
And plead for her help while I sing of the homes
That meet here once more
And count by the score,
The years that have passed
Since a family of one Increased ten and four.

I said "family of one" and so I declare,
For the two being joined, then young and so fair,
'Way back in the thirties, so that two changed to one,
And dating from then have our changes begun.
That kept with the years,
Nor longer bring fears.
For wolves have all fled,
And rivals are all dead;
While here sit "the dears".

For wolves stood in the way to forbid him to pass;
But what cared the bold youth, when seeking his lass?
With fire brands he scattered them down in yon "holler",
And soon at the parson's was announced a young caller
So oft' seen before,
But soon seen no more,
For he took his friend nearer,
As she became dearer,
Into his own door.

Those days had no buggies, nor had Lucy a ride
Before she was married, though at Claudius' side
On foot she had pleasure; but now 'tis not so;
For whatever the distance, in a carriage they go.
A great change, indeed!
Though now with more speed
Than once they had wanted
When Cupid so haunted
Their word and their deed.

Of change in affection I have not been told;
Though everything else changed, in the good days of old,
And the stream of affection changed only in size,
'Till Hoard changed to Mansfield, nor to the surprise
Of neighbors but few,
Yet so wise that they knew
By experience or guess,
The look of the face
That tenderer grew.

Rev. Sprague was soon called and he tied the knot well;
As we who are present are ready to tell.
A saw mill now stands to cut timber in two,
Where you then pledged that it never would do.
To have anything sever,
Then, there or forever,
Neither sickness or health,
Or woe or wealth,
Have parted you ever.

And changes of home life have constantly come,
As William and Mary and Talmon were born;
Three sprites, we believe, if we judge back from to-day,
Though only their parents are able to say.
Was there ever a minute
That did not have in it
Some mischief or other Meant simply to bother
The father or mother?

And Nancy—at rest now—marks the saddest of changes
That enters work, home, heart or life's widest ranges;
And John, that took place in the home and the heart,
And as dear as your child when you see him depart
To a life of care
And the world with its snare.
With grandchildren eight,
And two we call great,
Fear not world or its glare.

Since eighteen hundred and thirty-nine,
And the eighth of August, a day so fine,
A world of changes old earth has seen,
And scattered within your lives have they been;
The greatest of all
That have touched this ball
Since the Lord Christ brought Riches of thought
And sound from the fall.

In the work of the home, the work on the land,
Eased have the burdens been, saved the hand,
But changes will come, for weal or for woe,
'Till the garment of flesh is dropped in the throe
Of the death that doth release
And bring the spirit peace;
And changed shall we be,
Whose spirits then are free,
And who see him as he is.

. . . . . .

Yes, quickly have vanished the years we called golden,
So full of sweet memories—a blessed token
Of the years to come, when again with hearts young,
You reach that country of which you have sung.
That beautiful home land,
With its bright happy band,
That land of sweet sunshine
Where night never comes To add any gloom.

'Tis now getting late; the shadows are falling,
And life's work is nearly complete.
With soft cadence falling sweet voices are calling
To hearts they are waiting to greet.
May the gates swing wide open;
May the west be unbroken;
When the Father shall call thee home,
And the life here begun,
Meet the Master's "well done"
To his servants.

W. Leonardson & Son are getting their coal in for winter.

A good many went from here to Monroe Tuesday to attend the band tournament.

Jno. McKendry of Macon, drew the C. & H. watch, instead of Wm. Taylor, as stated in last week's issue. Uncle Billy had better watch out; forgery is a very grave offense.

A number of our young men went to the lakes last Friday. They went away alone and returned the same way, but the hat found in one of the buggys, trimmed in feathers and ribbon, tells the story.

Marian Hathaway, of Adrian, visited Ida M. Pocklington, from Saturday until Monday.

Dr. R. H. Nelson was at Adrian, Wednesday, on business.

He leaves an aged mother, wife and three children, who have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad affliction. The funeral services were held at the church here on Tuesday afternoon, when a large attendance of neighbors and friends were present to pay their last respects to a true friend and obliging neighbor. Rev. James Wright preached a very able sermon.

FRANKLIN FACTS.

Mrs. Hannah Bradley of Augusta, Mich., is visiting Franklin relatives and friends.

Mrs. Edward Wisner started the 16th inst. for Macknaw. She had quite a sharp attack of hay fever and asthma before going. Alvinza Whelan left the next day for the same place via Detroit and the lakes.

James Allen and Wilford have just returned from a short trip to Litchfield. Anna, who accompanied them, remained to make a two week's visit with her aunt Dell.

Master Whelan, son of John Whelan of Detroit, is rusticating with his grandma while his parents are enjoying a trip to the lakes.

We have not been able to take in the last two literaries; we are informed however that they had a good time at G. W. Allen's, Aug. 10th, and a very enjoyable debate. The question which had been chosen previously was exchanged for another, as some of the speakers were absent. The question discussed, we think, was: Resolved, that the Indian has suffered more at the hands of the whites than the negro. G. W. Allen was pitted against several speakers and victoriously won the question. G. W. is a whole host in himself in debate. The next meeting will be held at E. J. Whelan's, Sept. 7th, when the annual election will take place. A literary program will be presented; no debate.

The Evans Creek base ball nine and the Dist. No. One engaged in mortal combat—that is to say a game of base ball—the difference is so very slight; scarcely perceptible—at the farmers picnic at Sand Lake, Aug. 7th, which resulted in a victory for the Dist. No. One's—Oh! get a name boys—The score we are told was 5 to 14. The Evans Creek boys do not expect to give it up so.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, AUG. 22

FOR GOVERNOR OF IOWA

The Republican State Convention Nominates J. G. Hutchison.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Aug. 15.—The Republican state convention took twenty-two ballots for governor Wednesday night, the figures being very fluctuating and Hutchinson on the twentieth ballot having within three votes of enough, but no choice was made and adjournment was taken. For permanent president B. I. Salinger was chosen.

The delegates got down to work promptly at 9 o'clock Thursday morning. There was an immense crowd present and the greatest excitement was apparent, as it was felt sure that a nomination was not far off. The prediction was fulfilled, as on the third ballot of the morning, and the twenty-fifth successive one, J. G. Hutchison was nominated for governor.

The Other Nominations.

It took two ballots to select a lieutenant governor, and his name when chosen was Senator Poyner, of Tama. Josiah H. Given was nominated by acclamation for supreme judge, Henry Sabin for superintendent of public instruction and Spencer Smith for railway commissioner.

The Platform.

The platform indorses Harrison's administration; favors liberal pensions; demands protection to American industry; indorses state railway legislation; demands the prohibition of pools among business men; stands by prohibition; favors courts of arbitration for labor troubles; sympathizes with the Des Moines "riverlanders," and indorses Governor Larrabee's administration.

A resolution indorsing Pension Commissioner Tanner was adopted and the convention adjourned sine die.

McKinney Wins in Virginia.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 15.—The state Democratic convention adjourned at midnight Wednesday after one ballot for governor with no choice, but McKinney had a big lead. R. H. Cardwell was chosen permanent chairman.

Upon the reassembling of the convention Thursday morning, Capt. McKinney was nominated for governor by acclamation.

Balance of Ticket and Platform.

The convention completed its labors by the nomination of John Hodge Tyler for lieutenant governor by acclamation; R. Taylor Scott, of Fauquier, for attorney general, and the adoption of a platform, which praises Lee's administration; deprecates the opening of the state debt question; opposes convict labor in competition with free labor; indorses the national platform as to tariff and internal revenue; favors complete remonetization of silver; asks for the abolition of the tax on tobacco and fruit brandies, and advocates appropriations for disabled Confederate veterans.

The last plank declares that Democratic and white supremacy in the state is paramount to the tariff or any other consideration.

MRS. MAYBRICK'S CASE.

Commutation of the Death Sentence To Be Recommended.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—It is announced that Home Secretary Matthews will recommend to the queen the commutation of the death sentence of Mrs. Maybrick to penal servitude for life and that the commutation of sentence will be announced after the queen has given formal assent. Mr. Matthews, Justice Stephens, the lord chancellor and medical experts held a conference Friday in the home office, with a view of arriving at a decision in the Maybrick case. The conference lasted four hours.

Assumed That She Was Innocent.

Home Secretary Matthews and the experts assumed that Mrs. Maybrick was not guilty, and acting upon this assumption sifted every scrap of the testimony given, especially that in relation to the husband's craze for arsenic, which is of great weight, and it is believed turned the scale in the prisoner's favor. It is a noteworthy fact that the lord chancellor is seldom consulted in such cases, except when a reprieve is meditated. Eighty-eight members of the house of commons have signed the memorial in behalf of Mrs. Maybrick.

Cannon for Speaker.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 19.—Congressman Springer, of Illinois, was in the city Saturday. He said in answer to questions that Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, stood away up in the chances to be speaker of the national house. He thought Harrison would be a candidate for re-election; he was not built on the plan of a one-term man. Blaine, he said, was too old to make a race for president now and would never again be a candidate. The fact that Illinois Democrats were planing to run Gen. Palmer for senator from Illinois next year made the general prominent and there was a chance for him to be a dangerous opponent of other Democrats who had eyes on the chief magistrate's chair.

Rival Picnics in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—The great rival Irish picnics were held at Ogden grove and Chetlenham beach, the former under the auspices of the adherents of the old Clan-na-Gael "triangle" and the latter conducted by the Personal Rights league and the men who want to avenge Dr. Cronin's murder. The picnics were both held Thursday and the money derived from the Cheltenham beach affair will be turned over to the Cronin investigating committee to be used in aiding the prosecution of the assassins, while the funds gathered at Ogden grove will be sent to Mr. Parnell.

An Invariable Sign.

Swelling of ankles or feet when not due to rheumatism, Prof DeCosta says, is always caused by a weak or diseased heart. So is shortness of breath, pain or uneasiness when lying on left side, smothering spells. The only cure is Dr. Miles' New Cure. Sold at Baker & Hall's.

The Ranges Aflame.

Montana Aglow With Miles of Blazing Timber.

MANY CATTLE AND SHEEP DESTROYED.

Scores of Men Fighting the Devastator, of Whom It is Feared Four Have Lost Their Lives—Two Towns Threatened—Eighteen People Injured in a Railway Disaster—A Cow Causes a Fatal Wreck in Indiana—Minor Mishaps.

HELENA, M. T., Aug. 19.—Forest fires, which have been raging all over Montana for three weeks, have destroyed hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of timber and have reached most alarming proportions. A gentleman in from northern Montana reports that ranges in Chouteau county which heretofore have escaped, and on which cattlemen were depending to keep thousands of heads of cattle, are on fire and all the big companies have their men out trying to suppress the flames. In two days the fire traveled over a section sixty miles wide and 100 miles in length.

Surrounded by the Flames.

In Deer Lodge county the town of Georgetown is surrounded by fire, and a strong wind brought the flames within five miles of Phillipsburg. The mill of the Bi-Metallic Mining company near that town is in great danger, and the fire is travelling toward it with great rapidity. Couriers who arrived at Phillipsburg from Georgetown at midnight reported that the utmost consternation prevailed in town, and a large force was organized to go to the rescue.

Four Men Probably Lost.

In the Yellowstone country the pineries fire covers an area of eight miles and is spreading rapidly. Rangers in that section have also been almost entirely destroyed, the fire extending nearly from Miles City to Glendive. A letter received Saturday from Forsythe says that Henry Casey, J. P. Harrison and two cowboys, recently from Texas, who were fighting the fire in that vicinity, are missing and it is feared they have perished.

TWO COACHES DERAILED.

Eighteen Persons More or less Severely Injured, None Fatally.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 19.—At 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning an incoming passenger train on the B. and M. railway was derailed two miles from the city. A broken brake beam threw a switch open, and two cars were hurled down a high embankment. Eighteen persons were injured more or less seriously, but all may recover. The injured are: William Babcock and son, of Miller, Neb.; Mrs. May McKesson, of Wymore; R. K. Clarke, of Des Moines; F. W. Wood, of Waverly, Neb.; O. A. Jones, of Lincoln. Also the following members of a B. and M. bridge gang: C. P. Olson, Andrew Sundeen, W. A. Brown, John Griffith, Lars Framstead, Robert Kelly, George Holland, W. J. Moncrief, C. Culley, William Reed, F. Gebbart, and Frank Graham.

Ditched by a Cow.

VINCENNES, Ind., Aug. 19.—J. C. Lyons was killed outright, C. W. Pauly fatally mangled, an engine and eight cars wrecked and a large number of cattle killed in an accident Saturday at Montgomery, twenty-five miles from here. While a freight train of the Ohio and Mississippi railway was running at high speed it struck a cow and the engine and eight cars were thrown into a ditch and demolished. The engineer and fireman saved themselves by jumping. All passenger trains on the road were delayed throughout the day.

Was Careless in Turning Off the Gas.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Miss Mattie Hornby, one of the members of the "Bluebeard, Jr.," company, who rooms alone at the Commercial hotel, was found lying unconscious on the floor of her room yesterday afternoon with a full flow of gas escaping from the burner, and the room full of the deadly vapor. Miss Hornby was with great difficulty revived, and says she must have turned on one burner while turning the other off.

An Aeronaut Dies of His Injuries.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 19.—W. C. Perry, the aeronaut who sustained severe injuries by falling from a balloon 700 feet high at Mount Holly fair, near Charlotte, ten days ago, died last night from internal injuries. Perry leaves a wife and two children, who came here from Birmingham, Ala., a few days ago.

Exploded with Its Usual Consideration.

KING'S MILLS, O., Aug. 19.—Four of the Kings Powder mills exploded Saturday evening shortly after all the employes had quit work, consequently no lives were lost. Loss to property, $6,000.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 19.—Among the postmasters appointed by the president Saturday were the following: Illinois—Charles S. Castle, Austin; E. A. Mitchell, Chillicothe; Arthur H. Boyington, Highland Park; Richard E. Griffith, Lewiston; W. C. Roodhouse, Roodhouse; John Culver, Sandwich; Arthur Crooker, Taylorsville. Indiana—Marcus W. Towle, Hammond; John M. Robinson, Tipton. Iowa—Elijah Lewis Chariton Edwin B. Kirk, Sioux City; J. C. Traer, Vinton. Michigan—Leopold Jackman, Menominee; Isaac A. Fancher, Mount Pleasant; Richard M. Sampson, Norway. Death of Congressman Laird.

HASTINGS, Neb., Aug. 19.—Congressman James Laird, whose physicians gave up hope of his recovery Friday, died Saturday morning. He was born at Fowlerville, Livingston county, N. Y., June 20, 1849. He was raised in Michigan, from which state he went to the war as a private and served until the close. Later he came to this state and when he died he was congressman-elect to the Fiftieth congress, having served in the two preceding sessions. He was a Republican.

Flames at Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 17.—Fire Saturday afternoon completely destroyed the $60,000 stock of wholesale drugs, paints and druggists supplies of Hecht & Zummach, 282 Third street, and the wholesale paper stock of the Minnesota Paper company adjoining. Total loss on stock, $70,000; on building, $30,000. Insurance, $30,000.

Allen Taken to Sing Sing.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Eben S. Allen, who was Friday sentenced to fourteen years' imprisonment for issuing fraudulent stock, was Saturday taken to the Sing Sing prison. He looked like a thoroughly crushed man, and when leaving the tombs broke down completely.

THE PRESIDENT TRAVELS.

En Route to Bar Harbor He Takes a Trip on on New York Bay.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—President Harrison, accompanied by Secretaries Windom and Proctor and Private Secretary Halford, left Washington City yesterday morning en route for Bar Harbor, to visit Secretary Blaine. The party arrived at Jersey City at 8:20 p. m. yesterday, in the best of spirits. They were met by Cornelius N. Bliss, chairman of the state committee, and President Choate, of the Fall River Steamboat line, and escorted to the tug Belvidere, which was in waiting at the dock adjoining the station.

To the Narrows in a Tug.

A trip was taken in the tug to the Narrows. Salutes of twenty-one guns were fired from Forts Wadsworth and Lafayette as the tug passed. Returning up the harbor the distinguished party reached the Fall River pier a few minutes before 5 o'clock, and were immediately escorted to the steamer Pilgrim, and at 5:30 started for Boston.

Off to Meet the President.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 7.—Walker Blaine left here last night to meet President Harrison in Boston. Maj. Aulick Palmer has issued invitations to 150 prominent society people to meet the presidential party at luncheon at 6 o'clock Friday. The party will visit the mountain some morning in a special car of the Green Mountain Railroad company.

The President in Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—President Harrison arrived in the city shortly after 9 o'clock Wednesday morning and was immediately driven to the Hotel Vendome.

At Bar Harbor.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 10.—The president arrived here Thursday evening and was immediately driven to the residence of Secretary Blaine.

A DISHONEST ATTORNEY.

He Forges a Client's Name for Money to Speculate with.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 8.—It was made public here Wednesday morning that J. Frank Collom, of Rockwood & Collom, attorneys at 220 Temple court, is the forger who has signed the name of John Blaisdell to numerous notes. The forgeries extend over a period of more than a year, and the ill-gotten money has been spent in speculation. Collom has confessed his crime, and says he has no desire to defend himself; he simply wants to go to the penitentiary. The forger has been Mr. Blaisdell's attorney and was thus enabled to have access to his papers—an opportunity which he used for his schemes. He is about 35 years of age. The young man was kept a prisoner all Tuesday night at the office of Attorney F. F. Davis, who was retained in the interest of the Security bank which holds a good deal of the forged paper. Other banks and merchants are also said to be involved.

Martin Burke, the Cronin Suspect.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Martin Burke, under indictment for the murder of Dr. Cronin, was removed from the armory to the county jail just before noon Thursday. The transfer was made quickly and without attracting any attention. Burke, after the usual preliminaries, was consigned to the boys' department and locked up. At noon, when the hour arrived for the argument to be heard before Judge Baker, on the revised writ for habeas corpus, in the Burke case, Officer Collins made answer that the prisoner had already been delivered to the sheriff of Cook County and was in the county jail. Mr. Forrest, for the prisoner, stated that that was satisfactory and that no further proceedings would be taken in the case. The crowd that had gathered in expectation of a legal fight then went away disappointed.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon Martin Burke, the Cronin suspect, was arraigned before Judge Baker on two indictments for murder. He pleaded not guilty to each and was led back to the jail.

Mrs. Logan Will Be There.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—It having been understood that Mrs. John A. Logan would be in Milwaukee during the Grand Army national encampment, she has been tendered an escort, consisting of all the members of John A. Logan post, Grand Army of the Republic, of Evanston. There is no doubt but that she will accept the offer and be their guest.

The navy department has instructed the commanding officer of the U. S. steamship Michigan to be present with that vessel at Milwaukee during the encampment of the G. A. R. there from August 27 to 30 and to take part in the naval sham battle and to otherwise promote the success of the encampment.

Boulanger Charged with Roodlery.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—The high court of impeachment, on going into secret session Saturday, had a mass of documentary evidence placed before them by the procureur general, including many letters written by Boulanger himself. Some of these tend to show that the general shared with M. Baret in certain commissions paid to that gentleman by army contractors. A letter was also submitted making damaging damaging disclosures against Boulanger, which had been written by Madame Pourpe, his mistress, to her friend, the popular agitator, Louise Michel.

A Big Fire at Hammond, Ind.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Saturday morning two of the buildings of G. H. Hammond & Co.'s slaughterhouse at Hammond, Ind., were almost totally destroyed. The buildings were saturated with grease and full of oily products, such as lard and tallow, and water had very little effect. The flames leaped to a hight of 200 feet and the oil ran into the river and burned there, presenting the remarkable scene of a river on fire. The killing and cooling departments were saved, but the loss will reach nearly $200,000, with $104,000 insurance.

Wife Murder and Suicide.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Christian Harder, of 3246 South Halsted street, shot and killed his wife last night and then shot himself, falling dead by her side. The tragedy took place in the street immediately after a quarrel between the couple in a justice's court room at Brighton, a suburb of Chicago. Harder had his wife arrested for larceny, but the justice, after hearing the evidence, ordered the case dismissed. After the court proceedings Harder tried to persuade his wife to get into his buggy and, upon her refusal, shot her and himself.

John L. Sullivan Will Do Time.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 12.—William Muldoon, the trainer of Sullivan, passed through Rochester Saturday on his way to his home in Belfast. In an interview Muldoon said he did not see any bright prospects of Sullivan getting off easy, and believed that Governor Lowry would see that the big slugger had the limit of the law, which he can do, as the judge fixes the punishment.

THE MANDARIN.

While seated in his palanquin,
Rode Ling Gum Foo, a mandarin;
Some laundry people working nigh,
Were hanging garments out to dry,
He beckoned with his golden fan,
And thus addressed the nearest man:
"Why do the robes upon your line
Like glaciers of Alaska shine?
Since we set out from Ning Po Keen,
A finer sight I have not seen!"
"We washed those garments," answered he,
"With soap that's made beyond the sea,
The IVORY SOAP they call it there,
We find it good beyond compare."
Then said the mandarin profound:
"Go, order me a thousand pound
And they who use another kind,
Shall prison cell and scaffold find!"

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory;'" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Vaulting Ambition of an Eminent Citizen.

NO MODEST POST FOR C. M. DEPEW.

Two High Positions Declined Because of Gratitude to the Vanderbilts—The New York Orator's Gaze Fixed on the White House or Nothing—An Irish-American Gives the President a Piece of His Mind—Political News Notes.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The talk about Chauncey M. Depew resigning from his places in the Vanderbilt system and going into politics makes his friends smile. They know what the midsummer gossips apparently do not, that Mr. Depew refused offers by Gen. Harrison of a place in the cabinet, and of the English mission, refusals unique in the history of this country. Gen. Harrison believed that the acceptance by Mr. Depew of the secretaryship of the treasury would end the rivalry between Thomas C. Platt and Warner Miller, and would satisfy the Republicans of this state as nothing else would, and he was very anxious that Mr. Depew should accept.

Too Grateful to the Vanderbilts.

Mr. Depew refused because he could not reconcile it with his notions of duty and gratitude to leave the Vanderbilts, from whose father and grandfather he had received such distinguished favors. So of the English mission, which the president asked him to take soon after the inauguration. Mr. Depew could not see his way clear to leave the Vanderbilts. He was an attorney at Peekskill with a small practice when Commodore Vanderbilt found him out and made him one of the lawyers of the New York Central.

A Nice Little Income.

Since then his abilities have caused his advancement, until his income from his earnings—in addition to his investments—is about $125,000 a year. He is president of the Central, of the Michigan Southern and of other corporations under their control, and officer, of some sort in all their enterprises and a trustee of many funds and estates. In each of his capacities he receives a fine salary, ranging down from his $25,000 salary as president of the New York Central. Even if he did not feel bound to the Vanderbilts by close ties of gratitude, this income might seem to be a good deal to give up.

His One Great Ambition.

Mr. Depew, however, appears to have an understanding with the Vanderbilts that for the presidency of the United States he may relinquish everything and leave them. A short time before he went to Chicago, last summer, Mr. Depew said to an acquaintance in whom he had confidence: "The presidency is a great prize. It is worth trying for. A man can give up everything for that."

"Then you would take that and give up your railroad business?"

"Yes, everything for that. To be president is to be immortal. It is the foremost place on earth, and everything sinks into insignificance in comparison with that."

Lots of Mr. Depew's friends believe that his ambition may yet be satisfied.

PATRICK M'COURT'S PROTEST.

He Appeals to the President to Protect Him from Dismissal.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Patrick MacCourt, a clerk in the liquidating division of the custom house, was notified on Tuesday by Secretary Windom that his services were no longer required. He has written President Harrison a letter, in which very vigorous terms are used, beginning thus:

"As an Irish-American citizen—the race to whom you owe your election in this city and state—I appeal to you to protect me, under the civil service law, from arbitrary dismissal by your secretary of the treasury."

Mr. MacCourt goes on to recite that he has been in the service several years, was appointed under a civil service examination, has done good work, and does not merit dismissal. MacCourt is a Democrat. He is a well-known writer on Irish affairs, and has enjoyed the friendship of many eminent men. No reason is given for his dismissal.

Illinois Prohibitionists Organizing.

DECATUR, Ill., Aug. 10.—A state conference of Prohibition leaders was held here in connection with the camp meeting yesterday. D. H. Harts, of Lincoln; Rev. Mr. Hughes, of Fulton county; Benjamin McFaddeu, of Chicago, and A. J. Bassett were appointed a committee to devise a plan for state organization. The committee recommended that the state committee be empowered to employ clerical help, that an organizer for state work be employed, that the committee submit an estimate of state expenses until the next state convention and that counties be requested to form as many clubs as possible.

Pennsylvania Republicans.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 8.—The Republican state convention met in this city Wednesday morning. Walter Lyon, of Allegheny, was chosen temporary chairman.

A recess was then taken and upon reassembling Senator Delameter was made permanent chairman.

Henry K. Boyer, of Philadelphia, was nominated for state treasurer by acclamation, and was received when he appeared on the platform to return his thanks with tremendous applause. The convention then adjourned sine die.

Want Gray to Lead Them.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 10.—There is a strong disposition among the Democrats of the state to make Governor Gray chairman of the state central committee. His friends say that he is the best organizer in the state, that he has always been successful in infusing life into the party when a candidate, and that he will be equally potent as the head of the committee. The proposition is meeting with no opposition, and the only question to which doubt attaches is his acceptance.

The Territorial Conventions.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—A telegram from Bismarck, D. T., states that yesterday the report locating the capital of the coming state at Bismarck was adapted by the constitutional covention. There was a struggle in the Montana convention over the same question. The committee reported in favor of Bozeman, but the opponents of the report filibustered and secured a recess. At Olympia the question of taxation of church property was left to the legislature.

Preparing to Receive Gen. Harrison.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 10.—At a meeting here last night a committee headed by Gov. Hovey was appointed to receive President Harrison at the state line when he comes west to be present at the corner stone laying of the soldiers' monument. Great efforts are making to signalize the visit so that it will be a red-letter day in the life of the president. Aug. 22 is the date.

BASE BALL SCORES.

Struggles of the League and Association Clubs for the Pennants.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—The Windy City section of the National league met the "Giants," of New York, yesterday, and the "Giants" walked off with the honors of the occasion. League scores were: At Chicago—Chicago 7, New York 8; at Indianapolis—Indianapolis 2, Boston 4; at Pittsburg—Pittsburg 1, Philadelphia 2—twelve innings; at Cleveland—Cleveland 5, Washington 2. American association: At Philadelphia—Athletic 0, Brooklyn 15; at Baltimore—Baltimore 2, Cincinnati 3; at Columbus—Columbus 5, Kansas City 0.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—The Giants walked off the field again yesterday with the gory scalps of Anson's alleged ball players dangling at their belts. The league scores were: At Chicago—Chicago 8, New York 10—ten innings; at Pittsburg—Pittsburg 3, Philadelphia 7; at Cleveland—Cleveland 1, Washington 8; at Indianapolis—Indianapolis 8, Boston 3. American association: At Philadelphia—Athletic 8, Baltimore 0; at Columbus—Columbus 4; Brooklyn 3. No other games played.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Again the Giants clubbed poor Anson's babies to death yesterday. A feature of the league playing was Cleveland's big record of runs, getting fourteen in one inning. League scores were: At Chicago—Chicago 2, New York 4; at Indianapolis—Indianapolis 13, Boston 7; at Cleveland—Cleveland 20, Washington 6. American association: At Philadelphia—Athletic 0, Baltimore 9; at Columbus—Columbus 8, Brooklyn 10; at Louisville—Louisville 4, Cincinnati 5—twelve innings; at Kansas City—Kansas City 1, St. Louis 4.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—The Chicago-Boston base ball game which was to have been played here yesterday was postponed—rain. Other league games scored as follows: At Indianapolis—Indianapolis 14, New York 4, at Cleveland—Cleveland 7, Philadelphia 10, at Pittsburg—Pittsburg 12, Washington 6. American association: At Kansas City—Kansas City 2, St. Louis 12; at Columbus—Columbus 11, Brooklyn 12; at Louisville—Louisville 8, Cincinnati 4; at Philadelphia—Athletics 5, Baltimore 6.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—When a base ball club lets Anson's "babies" present it with nine goose eggs in one game it would seem that the directors have some justification in kicking. That's what happened yesterday with Boston's sluggers. League scores: At Chicago—Chicago 9, Boston 0; at Indianapolis—Indianapolis 1, New York 5; at Pittsburg—Pittsburg 15, Washington 3; Cleveland-Philadelphia game postponed—rain. American association: At Louisville—Louisville 3, Cincinnati 15, at Kansas City—Kansas City 11, St. Louis 7. Western league: At St. Joseph—St. Joseph 8, St. Paul 2.

League games Saturday gave the following scores: At Chicago—Chicago 7, Boston 9—ten innings; at Cleveland—Cleveland 10, Philadelphia 5; at Pittsburg—(first game) Pittsburg 1, Washington 2; (second game) Pittsburg 8, Washington 5; at Indianapolis—Indianapolis 6, New York 9. American association: At Kansas City—Kansas City 6, Columbus 1; at Louisville—Louisville 9, Athletic 11; at St. Louis—St. Louis 4, Brooklyn 2—ten innings; at Cincinnati—Cincinnati 20, Baltimore 0. Sunday: At St. Louis—St. Louis 14, Brooklyn 5; at Kansas City—Kansas City 6, Columbus 4; at Louisville—Louisville 3, Athletic 12; at Cincinnati—Cincinnati 3, Baltimore 4.

TERRIBLE YACHTING DISASTER.

Blown Up by Naphtha and Four Persons Killed, Three of Them Children.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 8.—At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, while the yacht Cedar Ridge, owned by Mr. L. L. Crocker, of East Buffalo, was being got ready for a trip down the river, and just as the engineer had started the fire, two explosions occurred on board in rapid succession. The yacht at once took fire and burned to the water's edge.

Four Horrible Deaths.

Of those on board the following were killed: Ethel and Leonard L. Crocker, children, burned; Howard Crocker, a boy, drowned. John Rubenstein, a carpenter working on the dock, was burned to death by his boathouse taking fire from the boat. The injured are: Charlotte Crocker; Miss McLean, a friend—both badly burned; Engineer Peter Coalmeyer, burned. The explosion was due to the naphtha by which the boiler was heated.

THAT WISCONSIN TRAIN-ROBBER.

He Is Still on Deck and Does Another Neat Job.

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., Aug. 8.—Great commotion was created Thursday morning when news reached here that as the Wisconsin Central train from the east pulled into Cadott, twelve miles east of this city, a masked robber boarded the train and proceeded to intimidate the porter. The conductor was asleep and robbed of his watch. About a dozen passengers were on the Milwaukee sleeper and several watches and probably about $100 was secured. The Chicago sleeper was not entered. The robber pulled the bell-rope as the train was a little past Cadott, took a blanket from the coach and disappeared. He is described as a small man, but no one offered to follow. The sheriff has gone to the scene. The description of the robber tallies with that of the man who robbed a Milwaukee and Northern train at Ellis Junction some weeks ago.

A County Treasurer Short.

VINTON, Ia., Aug. 8.—The committee to examine the books of R. H. Stedman, county treasurer, return a deficit of $11,500. The report of the treasurer made July 1, 1889, shows a balance of $50,847, when the true cash balance as shown by the committee is $61,733, a difference of $10,886. There are errors all the way from $100 to $1,000. In all the funds his entries were incorrect, and invariably in his favor. Various little errors make the total of $11,500.

Another Letter from Norvin Green.

STATE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

A BRIEF SYNOPSIS OF THE PROCEEDINGS AT THE REGULAR DAILY SESSIONS.

A Large Attendance of Teachers from All Parts of the County—The Program of Exercises a Very Interesting and Instructive One Thus Far.

The Teachers' Institute, held by the State authorities, began its sessions in the Central School building in this village last Monday forenoon. The Institute is in charge of Prof. John Goodison of Ypsilanti, who officiates as Director, and he is assisted by Prof. W. C. Hull of Albion, and Prof. E. A. Wilson of Tecumseh, the latter acting as local committee of arrangements.

The first session was called to order at ten o'clock a. m., and those present enrolled their names as members. The first discussion was by Prof. Goodison on the subject of Geography. Prof Hull then gave a talk on penmanship and Prof. Warren followed with a short lecture on school discipline. Note books were distributed among the members, and most of the teachers took memoranda of the lectures for preservation and future reference.

The number present during the first half day's session exceeded expectations.

MONDAY AFTERNOON.

The session this afternoon opened with an increased attendance.

Prof. Goodison continued upon the subject of Geography. His lecture was divided into two parts. 1st—Direct observations. 2d—Indirect observations. Pupils should be led to interpret symbols upon the map. Inculcate leading principles first; details afterwards.

Prof. Warren continued on the topic of School Discipline. The motives to obedience are six in number.

1—Fear of punishment.
2—Natural love of order.
3—Love of approbation.
4—Love and respect for teachers.
5—Sense of courtesy.
6—Sense of duty.

Prof. Hull then continued his talk on penmanship. He recommended the use of seven principles with older pupils and three with younger pupils. Position and movement were illustrated and explained.

The concluding lecture of the afternoon was given by Prof. Goodison on Drawing. Position is of prime importance. Develop definitions thoroughly. Have dictation exercises.

The enrollment reached seventy-five on Monday and many were enrolled afterwards.

TUESDAY MORNING.

The Institute opened promptly at nine o'clock with an increased attendance. Prof. Warren continued the subject of school discipline. Whispering is of two kinds. First, about the lessons, and secondly, about something else. One of the most difficult matters connected with discipline is to control whispering. I would treat it under the following heads:

1st—Explain objections to it fully.
2d—Keep the pupils busy.
3d—Seat them properly.
4th—Give whispering recesses.
5th—Never fail to see and hear the whispering pupil.
6th—Inflict punishment of some sort for the offense.

Prof. Goodison continued the subject of primary Geography. Mathematical geography he would teach somewhat scientifically, adapting it to the age of the pupil. In the primary grades, make the work elementary, leading the pupil to discover the facts by his own observation.

Prof. Hull then resumed the topic of penmanship. He advocated the use of printing, that is making letters in their printed form, and would point out the difference between the two—printing and writing. Analyze figures and instruct the pupils to analyze them.

Prof. Warren continued on Discipline. The point of neatness should be observed in every detail, not only in the schoolroom itself, but with the desks and books of the pupil, and with the pupils personal attire, etc. Seek out all sources of disorder, whatever they may be, and put a stop to them at once.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

The session opened with a still larger attendance of both teachers and visitors. Prof. Goodison took up the subject of geography and went thro' with the process of teaching primary classes, setting forth the successive steps of the process.

Prof. Hull introduced a new topic, that of physiology, treating especially of alcholic stimulants and narcotics. A good text book should be employed. All branches of physiology, of course, should be taught, but alcohol should receive its proper attention.

Prof. Warren introduced the subject of civil government. Begin the subject at home, and proceed from the known to unknown. The whole school should receive this instruction orally. Begin with the school district, then the township, then the county and so on. Take the annual town meeting, then enumerate the classes who are voters, then give the powers of the voters, etc.

Prof. Goodison continued the topic of drawing. This exercise should be given two or three times each week. Use lines to represent form. Work from natural objects as much as possible. Develop the idea of straight lines by means of card boards. After developing an idea, give a concise definition. Take vertical lines first, then horizontal, then inclined lines, etc.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

The attendance was still further increased by the addition of several new members to the roll. The first thing on the program was a class exercise in primary reading conducted by Miss May Temple. Books were placed in the hands of the pupils, and a piece was selected from the supplementary readers which they had not seen before. After developing the new words and bringing out the idea contained in the lesson, spelling was given both by letter and by sound, by pupils individually and in concert.

Prof. Warren then took up the subject of language lessons, and he presented these six points.

1st—The proper use of "a" and "an."
2d—Use of adjectives, several at once.
3d—Use of adverbs.
4th—Plural and singular subjects.
5th—Correct use of irregular verbs.
6th—Use of comparatives and superlatives. Drill was given upon each of the foregoing topics.

Prof. Hull continued the subject of physiology. He referred to the different publications upon the subject and gave a talk on bones, presenting some practical hints upon the proper use of bones in illustration. He also spoke further on the effects of tobacco upon the human system. He talked briefly on the effects of alcohol and gave some experiments showing how it acts upon pepsin, etc.

Prof. Warren continued the topic of language lessons, showing the correct use of pronouns; viz. as subject, as predicate, as relatives, etc.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

The attendance was larger than at any previous session. A few questions from the "Query Box" were answered and Prof. Warren continued the subject of Language. He treated of composition work under the following heads:

1st—Mechanical copying of poetry, maxims, etc.
2d—Description of actions.
3d Description of pictures.
4th—Description of objects.
5th—Imaginary subjects.
6th—Letter writing.
7th—Reproductions.
8th—Description of industries in the neighborhood.
8th—Description of current events.
10th—Dictation exercises.
11th—Biographical, historical and scientific subjects.
12th—Paraphrasing.
13th—Treatment of theme.

Prof. Goodison then gave an interesting talk upon advanced geography. Develope ideas first, then introduce apparatus, definitions, etc.

Miss Avery gave a good talk on calisthenics. To correct our present habits in school, teachers should make this subject a study.

Prof. Hull then introduced the topic of U. S. History. History should create in the pupil a taste for reading history. Teach the pupils who our great men are. Have a permanent map on the blackboard. The general plan of teaching history was given.

Prof. Goodison continued the subject of elementary drawing. Draw out questions leading pupils to use terms with which they are already familiar.

The total enrollment up to last evening, exceeded one hundred members. Prof. Goodison and his assistants seem much pleased with the success of the Institute thus far.

SHADOWS OF THE ORIENT.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus T. Bush of Brooklyn, N. Y. are visiting a few weeks at Mrs. Jonathan Hall's in Ridgeway. Mr. Bush returned in April last from his trip around the world on the yacht "Coronet." The Hall Library is receiving the benefit of several souvenirs of that trip. Mr. Bush is now having a lot of photos and pictures framed at Kinney's which will be used to ornament the walls of the Library Building.

In the collection we noticed the following:

A large photographic view of the Rock of Gibralter.

Twelve views on one plate representing Chinese musicians. These are executed in colors by hand and are a decided curiosity.

Three large size photos on one background of scenes in Egypt—Climbing the pyramid of Cheops; Mohammedan women; the "Coronet" party at the Pyramids. The latter is a group view of the yacht party with the sphinx and a pyramid in the back ground.

Another frame contains six views from India and Africa—Drawing water for irrigation; an elephant of Ceylon; Two camels of Ceylon; Women of Soudan; Warriors of Soudan; one of the gates of the city of Malta.

Six beautiful views are placed on another card showing these: Egypt, The Sphinx, Whirling dervishes, the city of Cairo; Ceylon—the devil dancers; Arabia—The well of Moses, a solitary palm near the well of Moses.

Another sheet has nine Japanese views—These are beautiful pictures, being photos touched up by hand in colors. They represent: A dinner party of three; Hotel in Yokohama; Cherry blossoms; Temple in Tokio; Street in Tokio; Sailing junk; Lady and her servant; A court of justice; Method of carrying children. Mr. Bush's generosity will be appreciated by the Library association.

HABITS OF THE CHINESE.

Essay Read Before the Ridgeway Young Folks Union on Aug. 5th, by Eddy Lowry.

The following essay is printed in this issue of the HERALD by request. Mr. Lowry's home is at Pekin, China, which gives him a personal knowledge of the life, habits and customs of the Chinese.

Taking one of our west bound trains, having traveled through the fertile valleys and rolling prairies, having climbed the rugged steeps, and having descended the western slopes of the rockies, and at the end of a week's travel we arrive at length at San Francisco, the western gate of our country.

There having embarked on one of our great ocean steamers with spread sail we pass out of the harbor thro' the golden gate and bidding adieu to the receding shore pushed boldly into the pathless deep. A voyage of twenty days without seeing a foot of land upon which to rest the weary eye, brings us into port at Yokohama in Japan.

There changing vessels and crossing the inland sea, having stopped at Kobe, we reached at length Nagasaki the most western point of Japan and the seat of one of our flourishing missions. From there we cross the Yellow Sea, approaching Shanghai, where we get our first glimpse of the Flowery Land, the Middle Kingdom, as China has been variously called.

The extent of this Empire is often underrated, for more than three thousand miles its shores are washed by the ceaseless surges of the sea, and would you cross it from east to west by Chinese conveyance, whose most rapid speed is forty miles a day, it would require two months to reach its western limits.

Compare it with England and you may overlay it with one hundred and four England's. Take all Europe and lay it on China and there will still be thirteen hundred square miles of the latter uncovered. Take the United States, including Alaska, and place it upon China and you may fill up the edges with a half dozen Great Brittians and Irelands. To-day four hundred millions of people are living in this great Empire, a population of one hundred and forty to the square mile while the United States has twenty per square mile. Four hundred millions of people, but their tears and and their groans, and their ignorance and their superstition are unheeded by thousands of personally conscientious christians living in the clear light of truth! Who can but be amazed when he considers that every third human being on earth lives in China; that every third child born looks into the face of a heathen Chinese mother; that every third person who dies must depart from this throng of unenlightened souls. Depart they must and we are startled when we estimate how rapidly they go. Thirty thousand die each day. Thirty thousand with no knowledge of Christ; with no living hope of Heaven; with no knowledge of immortal existence; with only the stray hope that their spirits may live after death in some beast of the field. This great Empire stretching over 32 degrees of latitude must contain a great variety of climates. In north China the winters are cold and dry. The Pie Ho river from Tsin Tsin to Pekin is frozen for three months in the year, and during this time very little snow falls, and on account of the extremely dry weather when windy the air is filled with dust. At Canton in the extreme south of the empire, the thermometer seldom falls below fifty degrees above zero. Make China into a botanical garden and nothing grows anywhere in the world that would not flourish in some part of the Empire. In the north part corn, wheat, sorghum, millet, are grown, while in the central part rice and cotton are raised. Also, vast stores of tea are gathered in the southern part. In addition to these fruits of every kind are raised. The south abounds in tropical fruits, while in the north are found the fruits of the temperate zone. Much of the country is fertile only by irrigation for the rainy seasons usually come about June and July, and during the rest of the year it is very dry, and but very little rain falls.

The government of China is an absolute monarchy. At its head is the Emperor, called in Chinese the "Son of Heaven." His authority is absolute, and he transmits the power to whomsoever he desires, governed by no law. Literary qualifications are necessary for fitness for office under the government. All officers must be graduates of the second or third degree. The first degree, "Budding Genius" is obtained by a successful examination before the district's examiners. At these examinations there usually present themselves from seventeen to twenty thousand candidates ranging from fourteen to eighty years of age—often son, father and grand-father for the same degree. About one in every hundred pass in this examination, for a single blot or mistake will throw out the manuscript of the candidate. All these competitors or candidates are shut up in long rows of cells with just sufficient room to sit down, and for a desk upon which he does his writing, remaining in these cells until their work is completed. The themes for this examination are two prose essays and a poem. Three years later these "Budding Geniuses" come to the provincial capital to take the second degree. Success in this depends upon memory and style. These examinations last for nine days, with but few intervals of a few hours each for rest. The third degree is conferred at an examination before the Emperor at Pekin. Also another examination is held at which the Emperor choses a "Laureate" or "Ripe Flower." During the last examination at Pekin a young man upset his ink upon his paper and on account of his grief went out and hanged himself.

Conservatism is the chief reason of China's slow progress. They rigedly retain their old forms and customs of doing things, and stand in horror of such modern conveniences as railways, steam engines, and improved machinery. Their country abounds in mineral wealth, but they are unable to secure it because of the rudeness of their machinery. In digging a mine they sink a shaft until they come to water, and then can go no further, as they have no way of pumping out the water.

As a nation they are narrow-minded and bigoted. They think themselves possessed of knowledge, but in reality know but very little. They know but little of other nations, their ports having been closed to foreign nations until within the last fifty years. Their notion of Amercans is that they are a barbarous race of people, wearing the skins of animals for clothing, eating berries and roots, and living in holes in the ground. Persons coming among them from other countries, they call foreign devils. In many places where one of our missionary physicians is located, they refuse to let him doctor their children as they think these physicians take out the eyes of those who are sent to be treated and make medicine of them for others. Another instance of their superstition is, when a person dies that they think he is in need of clothing, food and money. These they wish to send to the deceased. To do this the relatives employ two priests to assist them in the ceremony. The offering consisting of a number of plates of cakes, several plates of fruit, rice and other articles, are placed up on the table. One of the priests stands by the table beating a drum, while the other reciting formulas rings a bell to draw the attention of the departed spirit. The officer dressed in his best garments, kneels down, then bows three times to the ground, muttering his requests to the spirit who by this time is supposed to have arrived. At the end of the ceremony, which lasts about an hour, the wine and soup are poured upon the ground or all eaten up by the friends. So this is the manner they imagine food is sent to their dead friends. The clothing is made of paper and these are burnt, and in this way are thought to be conveyed to the deceased.

A LIBERAL OFFER.

Always alive to the requirements and changes of the times the Detroit Free Press was the first to note the growing desire of readers everywhere for something new and fresh in the line of high class fiction. Out of the determination to satisfy this demand grew their unparelleled offer of $3.000 in Cash Prizes for the three best stories to be written for the Free Press. With the details of this remarkable enterprise our readers are doubtless familiar. That it has excited widespread interest and comment cannot be denied. The competition is ended; the hundreds of manuscripts are now in the hands of the judges and it is expected to announce the prize winners and begin the publication of the stories within two or three weeks. Look out for a literary sensation.

The reading public is on the qui-vive for the stories, hundreds having already sent in their subscriptions. The time is particularly auspicous for our agents to make a move all along the line, as everyone will be interested in reading these masterly serials. In order that none may be deterred on account of price we have concluded to offer the Weekly Free Press and the Tecumseh HERALD, both papers, four months for FIFTY CENTS.

Remember this offer includes both papers, but it means cash in advance when the papers are ordered. People should take advantage of it at once, to be ready for the prize stories as soon as they begin.

THE BAND RE-UNION.

The Tecumseh city band left home on Tuesday morning to attend the Monroe tournament with seventeen men, and were joined at Lenawee Junction by two more, making nineteen in all. Upon arriving at Monroe the bands were met by special committees, who had charge of them during the day. Thirty bands, in all, were present, and all the in-coming trains were loaded with people. After dinner the bands were formed in two divisions, one in charge of Musical Director C. E. Boehme, and the other in charge of his assistant, Chas. F. Skinner. The parade was through the principal streets, thence to the grove where the exercises were held. M. M. Snyder, of Philadelphia, the composer of the two pieces for unison playing, had personal charge of the bands while they executed those pieces.

The greatest feature of the day was the forming of all the bands into one, headed by twenty-five drum majors, abreast the tubas, and the other horns following in their regular order, with fifty snare drums and thirty bass drums in the rear. This procession marched from grove to city, and back again, playing the Fifth Annual March, making about four hundred musicians, all playing the same music at one time.

Our band was highly complimented for their fine appearance and playing. On leaving the grove at six o'clock, the Tecumseh band was chosen to escort the officers of the day to the city, where they were entertained in fine style. Our boys speak in high terms of the citizens of Monroe for their hospitality. Much credit is due Prof. Skinner for the admirable way in which he conducted his own band and the bands of his division. The boys came home feeling elated over their success.

LAKEVIEW.

"Lakeview" is the name of a handsome place owned by Mr. William Arnold, of Tecumseh, and his brother-in-law, Mr. Nathan Schmidt, of Manchester, two gentlemen, who with their estimable wives, are well known and deservedly popular in their respective communities. It is situated on a high knoll, near the hotel formerly owned by Charley Adams, and is appropriately named, having a commanding view not only of Sand lake but the whole surrounding country. Here on pleasant summer days, with their families, the gentlemen never lack a houseful of guests, and to the casual caller they dispense an open-handed hospitality that would vie with that of any old baronial hall looming in its eyrie on the romantic Rhine. The cottage is roomy, substantial, and well built, with brick-floored cellar, capacious kitchen, and all the accessories for comfortable housekeeping. A wide piazza faces on three sides, while leading down the steep bluff to the lake is a picturesque stairway, connecting two or three seated galleries, which serve as convenient resting places, and afford pleasant spots from whence to view the lake. This year the gentlemen have added a number of improvements, for beautifying the grounds, and in addition put up a roomy carriage house and barn. A little to the west, fronting Lakeview, is the new island which developed in Sand lake this spring. It is a high gravely strip perhaps fifty feet long and twelve wide. This the gentlemen have taken possession of in the name of the U. S. government and the German Empire, and planted a number of trees, and erected a flagstaff, from which floats a white banner, with the historic name "Alma" in red letters on the field. It is a pretty adjunct to their premises, and to a sailor would suggest one of the little coral caves that dot the coast of Cuba and the Gulf states. Altogether they have an ideal lake side home, and "Sie sind wilkommen," is the ruling motto of the chateau.—Adrian Times.

The Fayette Normal University, opens the new year on Tuesday Aug. 27th. We want to say to all prospective students "Come early." Don't wait till Tuesday. The attendance will be largely increased but the accommodations are still ample. Visit the Normal office on Monday and let us all be prepared for a pleasant, successful and complete organization at General Exercises on Tuesday morning.
Very Respectfully,
J. E. Dodds.

A Hudson lady thus suggestively soliloquises: How thankful all good people ought to be at evidence of increase of piety in our midst. And come to think about it, very few who went to Devils lake attend divine service at home.

Thos. Madill, agent of the Sherwin Williams Co's paints, gave us a call Tuesday. This firm has houses in Cleveland, Chicago and New York, and is doing a mammoth business. Mr. Madill showed us an advertising pamphlet, setting forth a visit through the company's factory, which in the line of engraving and letter press surpasses any thing that has ever fallen under our notice. It is an elegant speciman of the printers art.

Peterson for September is already on our table. The steel engraving, "Pick a Back" is a charming picture; the wood illustration, "the Young Family" is exceedingly pretty. The illustrated article gives a variety of head dresses and costumes, and describes them in a charming way. Miss Bowman's serial, "In St. Tammany Parish," ends most touchingly, while the other continued story, 'Ted and I,' concludes in as sprightly a manner as it commenced. The short stories are exceptionally good and the fashion and household notes are as complete as ever. Terms: $2 a year. Address Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut st., Philadelphia.

Having reached the age of seventy years, he realizes that the time is near at hand when these valuable remedies must be in other hands or become lost to the world. Dr. Gleason has also written a valuable treatise on these diseases, which is profusely illustrated with finely executed wood-cuts, showing the Head, Throat and Lungs as they are when diseased; it discusses in an able manner the cause and cure of these complaints; it is printed on heavy super-calendered paper and handsomely bound. This book, together with full instructions how to order on trial, will be sent free to all who will write and ask for it. Address

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

A Flint chap is under arrest because it's believed that he's stolen the major portion of a neighboring widow's wheat crop.

Ex-Senator Palmer's city taxes at Detroit amount to $11,479 this year, which indicates that his wealth isn't all invested in that Oakland county farm.

Decatur is proud of her lady barber, something of which few towns in the state can state.

Something like $40,000 is what it will cost the Toledo, Ann Arbor, and Northern Railway company to get its track across Newton creek, over in Wayne county. The rails will be ninety feet above high-water mark, and the bridge is nearly 2,000 feet, but the Ashleys are equal to the job of spanning it.

The fellow who embarked in the cutlery trade at the expense of a Leslie dealer has been overhauled at Lansing. At the time of the interview he was lugging $30 worth of jack knives around with his dear self.

Let the man who would wallup the country editor ponder o'er the fate of three St Joseph parties who undertook the job, and then seriously ask himself if he's ready to be transplanted to the beautiful beyond. But, if after calm meditation, he decides the matter affirmatively let him first make a deal with a respectable life insurance company, as a wise provision for a mourning family.

A $40,000 Polish church is to be built in Bay City, and when completed will eclipse all the other worship structures of the town.

A company with $1,000,000 capital has been incorporated at Detroit for the manufacture of railway appliances.

A Marshall woman has petitioned to have her children cared for by a state institution as she's no longer able to fight the battle of life, the husband and father being too lazy and shiftless to assist her.

Some two or three months ago Willie Dodge, a Lansing boy, wat severely shocked by a bolt of lightning, and since that time the lad becomes unconscious during every thunderstorm.

The local camps of the patrons of industry have notified Morley merchants that they must sell them goods at a 10 per cent. profit or not sell at all, and the dealers retort by saying that they'll run their own business in their own way. So there!

The average Kalamazulu is just a bit proud of the celery conquests made by that city, but he always keeps a weather eye on any stray manufactory that may be looking for a comfortable location. Just now that weather eye is focused on a stove factory, to employ 200 hands.

Bears are so numerous in the vicinity of Omer, that organized bands of 'em bruin the town of dark nights to the great terror of the small boy who spyeth out the location of the melon patch and the early-ripening Astrachan apple.

A Detroit firm recently received an order for a five-inch manilla rope to be 1,200 feet long and weigh four tons. This is said to be the largest rope ever ordered by a western firm. It will be used as a wrecking hawser.

The celebration of Emancipation Day by the colored convicts at the Jackson prison may seem a trifle incongruous, though they may be in a position to appreciate the full meaning of the word liberty, of which they are just now deprived.

'Tis said that nine-tenths of the Oceana county apple crop has dropped from the trees during the past two or three weeks. Pears and plums promise an abundant yield.

A Unionville fruitist exhibits the limb of an apple tree containing buds, blossoms and matured fruit. "And signs and wonders shall ye show people in these latter days."

A Van Buren county justice of the peace has decided that dogs are not property, and so, after feasting his eyes upon the soulful countenances of two prisoners who were charged with the larceny of a couple of canines, ordered their unconditional release.

Prison life doesn't seem to exactly agree with the Indian Irving Latimer, as he's recently had a "spell" of ill health. He's still hopeful, however, of obtaining a new trial, and eventually his liberty.

Boarding moving trains still continues to be a favorite recreation with many people. But John Anderson tried it once too many times and went under the wheels at Bay City. He now sleeps in an untimely grave.

An Albion banker cashed an elevator receipt for four bushels of wheat for a young farmer of the vicinity, but mistaking it for 145 bushels, paid for that amount. But the young farmer knows more than he did before the transaction occurred, though it cost him an even $1,000 for his overreaching experience.

The cedars of Lebanon may have been typical of peace and prosperity in the older time, but the United brethren of the Michigan Lebanon aren't united to any great extent, nowadays. Should they ever reach an amicable understanding respecting the secret society question their case may be different.

A couple of Easton chaps are lassooing Van Buren county turtles and sliding them off to the New York market to tempt the delicate appetites of the high-toned Gothamites.

H. M. Buchanan, who recently vacated the Goodland postoffice, has filled that position, with the exception of one year, since away back in the '50's. Mr. B. has exhibited staying qualities which many another man would be gratified to imitate.

Even the most delicate and harmless articles of diet disagree with some people and this fact doubtless accounts for a Bay City man's exhibit of all the symptoms of poisoning after having partaken of a generous "dose" of rice pudding.

Flint folks are so distressingly healthy that her sanitarian has wound up business, the building to be used as a normal school.

Milan is no slouch of a town, not if she knows herself, and the indications all point to the conclusion that she does. She was not long the abiding place of the electric sugar schemers, but of a lady who brings a $5,500 suit against a horrid masculine who indiscreetly said naughty things about her.

Lightning, like death, may love a shining mark. At any rate, it has "removed" three barns from the same foundation for a Hartford farmer, the last one being destroyed some ten days ago.

Repairing harvesting machines while teams are hitched thereto would seem to be hazardous business. Frank Porter, a Jasper farmer, tried it the other day, and now sleeps in a new-made grave.

MAJ. WARNER INTERVIEWED.

He Gives His Views in Relation to the Grand Army Encampment.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—W. A. Warner, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., arrived in the city Saturday morning, with the returning Sioux Indian commission. He was at once visited by large numbers of G. A. R. members who were anxious to ascertain his views regarding the national encampment at Milwaukee, and his attitude in relation to the recent meeting of department commanders in this city. Gen. Warner said: "I have repeatedly stated that the railroad rates are unjust and inexcusable. The encampment will be a large one, but, of course, the attendance will not be as large, nearly, as it would have been. Gen. Martin had a right to call a reunion of the soldiers of this state at such time and place as he deemed proper. I have not issued an order commanding the comrades to attend the encampment. All I have done is to advise a large attendance. I have no authority to command the comrades to attend the national encampment at Milwaukee.

The Department Commanders.

"Certainly the department commanders have as much, but no more, authority in the matter than the commander in chief. I certainly concede to them the same honesty of purpose and desire for the welfare of the order that I claim for myself. Some of the comrades have advised the change in the encampment to some other place. Such action I deem impracticable. No other city has extended an invitation, and Milwaukee has provided the money and performed the labor necessary to the entertainment of all comrades who shall attend. No other city has intimated to me that it is ready to do what Milwaukee has done. There is and can be no feeling between the department commanders who have advised comrades to stay at home and myself."

The Regatta at Pullman.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—All but one of the amateur championships at sculling for the ensuing year were decided at Pullman Friday. J. B. Lovell and Dennis Donohue carried away the junior and senior singles respectively, the Garfield beach crew of Salt Lake City—the pair oared, the Winnipeg Rowing Club of Manitoba won the laurels in the senior four-oared race, and the Atalantas of New York defeated the Bradfords for the banner and medals for eight-oared crews. The event that still hangs in the balance is the senior doubles. In this a dead trial was rowed, resulting in the complete collapse of one of the Bradford crew. The New York men could have rowed over the course and won the race, but generously refused to take the advantage preferring to win if at all against a good crew.

Back from a Victorious Tour.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The Massachusetts riflemen arrived Saturday morning from their victorious tour abroad. Maj. French was in command. He and the men in his command were sunburned and the pictures of perfect health. The Massachusetts crack shots were escorted to the mayor's office by Capt. Wilson and a detachment of the Second battery. Mayor Grant welcomed his visitors in a short speech, complimenting them on their victorious trip. Maj. Frost responded, thanking the mayor for his hearty welcome. A general handshaking followed and some informal remarks regarding the trip were made. The riflemen left for Boston at 5 o'clock.

Her Fritz Still Lived.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Mrs. Fritz Kraus, of 92 Stanton street, ordered an undertaker, spent $50 on mourning attire and completed other arrangements for her husband's funeral. She had been notified that David Kraus had died at the insane asylum on Ward's island, where her husband, Fritz, was confined. She asked no questions, but accepted the conclusion that the authorities had made an error in the first name of the deceased. When everything was ready for the funeral she took a trip to the island to get a last look at the features of the departed. She was not a little surprised to find that her Fritz was still alive, and the dead man was really a David.

The August Crop Report.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 10.—The crop report makes the condition of cotton 89.3, an advance of nearly two points during the month. Since 1880 this average has been exceeded but three times. Rains have been frequent and general throughout the south, except in portions of Texas. A Negro Demonstration Spoiled.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—A special from Atlanta, Ga., says: The burning in effigy of Gen. Lewis and Col. Buck has aroused the colored politicians, and Friday night they threatened a counter demonstration. It was announced in the evening papers that the retaliation would take the shape of a serenade to the Republicans. Gen. Lewis lives in a handsome house on Peach Tree street, and a visit from a howling mob was a compliment the general failed to appreciate. He succeeded in inducing the negroes to postpone their demonstration.

DAVID IS ANOINTED KING.

LESSON VIII, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 25.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xvi, 1-13—Commit Verses 11-13—Golden Text, I Sam. xvi. 7—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

1. "And the Lord said unto Samuel, How long wilt thou mourn for Saul, seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel." So difficult is it for us to side with God, regardless of our own thoughts or feelings or preferences, that even the great and good Samuel is here seen clinging in his heart (for he went not near him, chap. xv, 35) to Saul after the Lord had rejected him. We must remember that the Lord did not reject Saul until Saul had, persistently rejected and disobeyed the Lord (chaps. xiii, 13, 14; xv, 26), so that Saul had no one to blame but himself for the loss of his position.

"I will send thee to Jesse, the Bethlehemite, for I have provided me a king among his sons." So it is written in the Psalms, "He chose David also His servant, and took him from the sheepfolds;" and again, "I have found David my servant; with my holy oil have I anointed him." (Ps. lxxviii, 70; lxxxix, 20.) "Promotion cometh neither from the east, nor from the west, nor from the south, but God is the judge; He putteth down one and setteth up another." (Ps. lxxv, 6.) Let the children tell how Bethlehem (the house of bread) had already become famous in Bible history in connection with Rachel and Benjamin, Boaz and Ruth; and let the older scholars ponder the deep things in these incidents.

2. "How can I go! If Saul hear it, he will kill me." This does not sound like the utterance of a faithful, fearless follower of the Lord God of Hosts. It might be said to Samuel, "Who art thou that thou shouldest be afraid of a man that shall die, * * * and forgettest the Lord thy Maker?" (Isa. li, 12, 13.)

3. "I will show thee what thou shalt do; and thou shalt anoint unto Me him whom I name unto thee." The servant of the Lord has only to move forward calmly and in perfect confidence in his captain and he is always promised sure guidance. "I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go." "Thine ears shall hear a word behind thee saying, this is the way." "It shall be told thee what thou must do." "It shall be given you what ye shall speak." (Ps. xxxii, 8; Isa. xxx, 21; Acts ix, 6; Matt. x, 19.)

4. "And Samuel did that which the Lord spake." This is now as it should be, the word of the Lord prevails, and the servant is simply obedient and comes to Bethlehem leaving God to carry out His own plans and manage His own affairs in His own wise way. When we are thus passive and also obedient in His hands, all will be well and His purpose unhindered. "The elders of the town trembled." Here is another indication of lack of fellowship with God, for if their hearts were right and their conduct right there would have been rejoicing instead of trembling at a visit from the Lord's servant; but probably they, too, were clinging to the disobedient king. God is the God of Peace, and Jesus the Prince of Peace; it is only where there is persistent enmity to God that there is need for a sword instead of peace.

5. "I am come to sacrifice unto the Lord." He uses the very words which he was told to use (v. 2), and that is always the right thing to do. Jesus Himself said only what the Father told Him (John xii, 49); Jeremiah and Ezekiel were to speak only the Lord's words (Jer. i, 7-9; Ezek. iii, 4, 10, 11, 17); and when we as messengers of the Lord confine ourselves to the Lord's message, rather than give our thoughts about it, surely we shall be most pleasing to Him.

6, 7. "The Lord looketh on the heart." As the first of Jesse's sons stood before Samuel, there was something about him which caused Samuel to think that he was the Lord's anointed; but how solemn the word of the Lord, "I have refused him." Let us again repeat that in the matter of salvation the Lord refuses none who come to Him; but this is a matter of special service, and it is not stature nor a fair countenance He seeks, but a heart right with Himself, "a man after his own heart" (chap. xiii, 14).

8-10. "Jesse made seven of his sons to pass before Samuel; and Samuel said unto Jesse, the Lord hath not chosen these." Here, then, is an apparent failure; the Lord had said to Samuel that He had provided a king from among Jesse's sons, and yet here are all the sons whom Jesse had thought it necessary to bring; and for this special service, this place of honor, all are set aside, the right man has not appeared. God's thoughts and ways are as much higher than ours as heaven is higher than earth; and how few seem to know His thoughts or understand His counsel.

11. "Send and fetch him, for we will not sit down till he come hither." So everything has to stand still till the slighted son is brought. In reply to Samuel's question as to whether these seven were all his sons Jesse replied that the youngest was at home keeping the sheep, and it was for him that they were now sending and waiting. If we judge from chap. xvii, 28, it would seem that some of David's older brothers did not accept cheerfully their being rejected, nor did they soon forget it, but were jealous of him. Only the grace of God, and abundance of it, can enable us to act upon the precepts, "In honor preferring one another," and "In loneliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves." (Rom. xii, 10; Phil. ii, 3.) But inasmuch as His grace is sufficient for us, and He would have us do it, let us aim at it and rely upon him for the sufficient grace. We are not told whether David took kindly to being left at home that day to keep the sheep, but we may hope that he did, for a spirit of meekness seems to characterize him. But there is one great lesson here which I wish that all might lay to heart, and that is, that if we meekly and fully follow the Lord, and rely upon Him, He will always get us where He wants us, and where He does not want us, of course, we will not want to be. Remembering this will enable us to live above all real or fancied slights from others and keep us in His own place. Two or three precepts which cover this point will be found in Ps. xxxvii, 4-7; Prov. xvi, 3; Phil. iv, 6, 7.

12. "And he sent, and brought him in, * * * and the Lord said, Arise, anoint him; for this is he." As we are thus for the first time personally introduced to David, the son of Jesse, the history of whose kingdom, past and future, fills so much of Scripture, and with whom we expect to be somewhat intimately associated when Jesus, the son of David, who is also the church's Bridegroom, shall sit on David's throne, we can only stand and gaze upon this ruddy, good looking young man and wonder at the grace of God in choosing a mortal man for such a glorious immortal future; and then turning to our own souls we would say: O, my soul, see that that thou dost never cease to adore, and cry aloud the praises of Him, whose grace has called you, passing by so many others, to be a king-priest unto God, washing you in His own precious blood.

13. "Then Samuel took the horn of oil and anointed him in the midst of his brethren." He was afterwards, at Hebron, anointed king over the house of Judah and somewhat later, at the same place, anointed king over all Israel. (II Sam. ii, 4; v, 1-5.)

Death for an Insult.

Judge Terry, of California, Shot in the Heart.

RESULT OF THE SHARON-HILL CASE.

The Murder Committed by Deputy United States Marshal Nagle Who Was with the Justice When Assaulted—Mrs. Terry Makes a Scene and Wants to Slap Justice Field After the Shooting.

LATHROP, Cal., Aug. 14.—Upon the arrival of the southern overland train here at 7:30 Wednesday morning, United States Supreme Judge Stephen J. Field and Deputy United States Marshal Nagle walked into the depot dining-room for breakfast and sat down side by side. Soon after Judge David Terry and his wife came in also. They were proceeding to another table when Mrs. Terry, evidently recognizing Justice Field, did not sit down, but retired to the train for some unknown purpose.

Slapped Justice Field's Face.

Before she reached it, however, and as soon as she had left the dining room, Judge Terry approached Justice Field and, stooping over him, slapped his face. At this juncture Deputy Marshal Nagle arose from his seat and shot Judge Terry through the heart. As he was falling the deputy marshal shot again, but missed him, the bullet going through the floor. Both shots were fired in very quick succession.

An Exciting Time.

The judge never uttered a sound after being shot. Judge Terry had hardly fallen when Mrs. Terry rushed to the side of his body and threw herself upon it. Then ensued a scene of wildest excitement. People rushed from the dining room and others rushed in. During this time Justice Field and Deputy Marsual Nagle retreated to the sleeping car, where they were securely locked within, while Mrs. Terry called upon the citizens to arrest them. Before the train pulled out Constable Walker entered the sleeper, and was carried away on board the train. He informed the spectators that he knew his duty and would perform it.

Mrs. Terry Wanted to Get at Him.

During the time the train was standing at the depot Mrs. Terry was running wildly alternately from the body of her husband to the sleeper, and demanding admittance that she might slap Justice Field's face, and at the same time begging that they be detained and have their examination here. Previous to the entrance of Constable Walker into the sleeper Sheriff Purvis and a deputy of Stanislaus county had already taken charge of Deputy United States Marshal Nagle. The tragedy is a result of the troubles growing out of the famous Sharon-Hill case, which had been before the courts since 1885.

The Murderer Arrested.

After the shooting Deputy Marshal Nagle backed up against the wall of the dining-room and warned every one not to arrest him, saying he was a United States officer in discharge of his duty. There was no semblance of an attempt to molest him at any time. Constable Walker took Deputy Nagle from the train at Tracy and proceeded with him to Stockton, where he now is in jail. District Attorney White ordered the arrest of Justice Field upon his arrival in San Francisco, and telegraphed the order to the sheriff of San Francisco.

Verdict Against Deputy Nagle.

The coroner's jury on the killing of ex-Judge Terry brought in a verdict declaring that he came to his death by a gunshot wound inflicted by Deputy Marshal Nagle.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—The sheriff of San Joaquin county arrived here Thursday night, and yesterday afternoon served a warrant of arrest upon Judge Field. There was some doubt as to whether the warrant would be endorsed by a judge of San Francisco county as required by law, but this endorsement was obtained. Immediately after the warrant was served, a writ of habeas corpus was sworn out before Judge Sawyer, of the circuit court, and heard by him in chambers. Justice Sawyer granted the writ and released Justice Field on $5,000 bail.

Ex-Judge Terry's Funeral.

STOCKTON, Cal., Aug. 17.—The funeral of David S. Terry was held here yesterday. The body was removed from the morgue at noon, and taken to the Episcopal church, where it lay in state for two hours and was viewed by a great number of people. Mrs. Terry occupied a pew near the casket and watched the face of the dead man all the while. Several times she left her seat and threw herself upon the casket. The service was read by one of the vestrymen of the church. The body was interred in the cemetery in Stockton.

HOW CAN PARENTS

allow their children to cough and strain and cough and calmly say: "Oh! it is only a little cold," and keep giving them cheap and dangerous medicines, until they are down with lung fever or consumption, when they can be so easily relieved by BEGGS' CHERRY COUGH-SYRUP? It has no superior, and few equals. J. J. ORR, Druggist.

WHAT ON EARTH

Is the reason people will not, can not, or do not see any difference in cheap nostrums put up by Cheap John Houses or irresponsible parties at enormous profits, rather than take a medicine of world wide reputation and one that is giving universal satisfaction at equal price? No! medicine in the world is giving such unparalleled satisfaction for purifying the blood as BEGGS' BLOOD PURIFIER & BLOOD MAKER, and every bottle that does not do its work will cost you nothing.

LONG LIFE.

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought untill we recive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease preventer that has yet been discovered, is simered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names and guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them.

They do not know, of course, unless they have courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why dont you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but one dollar for a very large bottle. Try it at once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggists may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine—of health.

WRITING MACHINE CABINET and OFFICE DESK

For Remington, Hammond, and Crandall Type Writer.

The advantages of this Type writer and Office Desk over all other so-called Combination Cabinets, are:

First.—The ease and simplicity with which the desk is changed from a Library or Office Desk to a Type-writer Table. This change is effected by pushing the lid covering the machine back in the rear of cabinet—it being a roller top—removing it entirely from sight, thus overcoming the objectionable board and sounder in front of the operator. The movable top is perfectly flat, is huge covered, and forms a complete writing desk when the machine is not in use. The table on which the machine rests is so evenly balanced by our patent adjustments that it needs but a slight touch to bring the machine in position.

Second.—The advantages of the swinging table are: The table is so balanced near its centre on patent malleable iron arms, that when the machine is brought in place for use, it does not drop, and on pipes or hangers at rear of platform for support, but is held rigidly in place by its own weight, making it impossible for the machine to be tumbled down an incline in back of desk by the heading of a rear support. The machine rests on patent springs which keeps the machine in place, and can be drawn out beyond the desk, well under the operator's hand.

Third.—The construction of the lid closing machine space makes it air tight, and the table having felt around its boarders thoroughly protects the machine from dust.

Fourth.—The foot rest and the construction of the table adjustments makes the desk as rigid as though the top was one solid board, which is a matter of great importance where a solid type-writing table is required. No paper rests against workers back when using table.

Lastly.—The cabinet is a splendid piece of cabinet work. We manufacture them in Walnut, Antique Oak, Natural Oak, Natural Cherry, Cherry imitation, Mahogany and Ash.

Agents wanted to sell these cabinets, and where we have no agents established we will sell direct from our factory at wholesale prices.

NICHOLS & SHEPARD
BATTLE CREEK, MICHIGAN

Why Should I Go to Montana?

Great Reservation. Because 18,000,000 acres of free government land, with a delightful climate and equally suited for general farming and stock raising, have just been opened to the homeseeker, in the Milk River valley and near Benton and Great Falls.

Stock Raising. Because the favorable climate and superior grasses of Montana make it the natural home of horses, cattle, sheep and other domestic animals; and because winter feeding is not required, as stock grazes at large the year around.

General Farming. Because a rich soil and abundant summer rains produce wheat, oats, rye, barley, and the grasses and vegetables of a quality, size and yield unsurpassed.

Mining. Because Montana produces more of the precious metals than any other state or territory, and abundant opportunities remain to secure valuable properties at nominal cost.

Immigration. Because the Great Reservation is the meeting point of settlers from the Pacific Coast and from the Eastern States and is the only extensive tract of good land left, suitable for settlement.

Business. Because the rapidly growing towns along the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Ry. offer splendid opportunities to engage in business.

Manufacture. Because the 1,000,000 horse-power water power at Great Falls, the extensive coal veins, the wool, mineral and grain raising resources of Montana offer exceptional opportunities to the manufacturer.

Tourist. Because the canon of the Gates of the Mountains, the Great Falls of the Missouri, the Giant Fountain and Continental Divide offer the most sublime and diversified scenery to be found on the Continent. Take a summer tour.

Why Travel by the St. P., M. & M.? Because only by it can you travel through the largest body of free land left for settlement. Because it reaches the Great Falls, with the largest water power on the continent. Because it reaches Helena, the richest city of its size in the world, and because it is the shortest and best route to Butte, the largest mining camp on earth. Special tourists' and landseekers' rates. Daily trains through solid to Montana. Choice of three routes to the Pacific coast. Notice these facts.—This is a market fair, and exhibitors are requested to bring articles and display them attractively for sale, nothing entered for premium to be removed until Saturday, September 7.

Our evening exhibitions are a new and attractive feature. The brilliancy of an immense bazaar illuminated by electricity, and the scenes of interest presented by the gayly decked throng moving about to the sound of music and the play of fountains, will be in itself a great sight, if there were no special attractions.

Beside the show of fine animals, machinery and the choicest products of the earth and man's handiwork, there will be the special attractions all the time—races, band contest, military contests, bicycle racing, baloon ascensions, concerts, dancing, dissolving views by calcium light, masquerade carnival, etc., etc.

We call attention to the ease and cheapness with which this Exposition may be enjoyed. Reduced rates on the railroads, and moderate terms and accommodation at the hotels and boarding houses, make it a cheap and enjoyable trip. The fair ground is very accessible, being only half a mile from the center of town and the depots, and street cars run to the gates, and the Michigan Central (Northern Divisions) and Grand Trunk railroads land passengers at the entrance. Every pains will be taken to have the the street and grounds sprinkled and free from dust, and the admission is only 25 cents—children, under 10 years of age, 15 cents.

FARMING MACHINERY.

WHAT INVENTION AND IMPROVEMENT HAVE DONE FOR FARMERS.

The Farmer's Work and Tools of a Generation Ago Contrasted with Those of To-day—Farmers' Wives and Household Tools—A Grand Display of Farm Machinery and Implements of the Latest and Best Styles.

No class of people have been more benefited by modern inventions and improvements in machinery and tools than farmers and their families. It is only the plain truth to say that the lives and work of farmers have been revolutionized within the last fifty years by invention and improvements in machinery and implements. The present generation cannot realize what was the condition of farmers and their families fifty years ago. Many of the old men can remember when the whole outfit of a pretty good farmer and his family was about this: One lumber wagon, old style, heavy and rough; one or two plows, also rude and heavy; one drag or harrow; ax, spade, hoes (heavy), hay fork, hand rake, sheep shears, home-made flails; one chain for wagon, plow and harrow; one logging chain; cradle and scythe, to cut grain and grass by hand labor; one iron wedge to split rails; two iron rings for a maul (make the maul yourself); a few carpenter's tools (every farmer was his own carpenter), cast iron shoes for a sled or sleigh (make the sleigh yourself, and make it heavy and strong enough for logging with); harness, if you had horses; home-made yoke for oxen. The farmer's wife was lucky if she had a churn. Generally she had to use a tall crock, over which her husband fitted a wooden cover with a hole in it for a home-made dasher, to be pounded up and down; a cook stove sometimes, but often only a rude chimney fire-place; and a cheap coffee and spice mill. That was then a pretty good outfit, so far as machinery and tools go. Pioneer farming can still be done with such an outfit, only better in quality; but at means from daylight till dark, and then an hour or two of chores and odd jobs by the firelight or the light of a tin lantern with a tallow dip. Besides, the farmer's wife often in those days had a spinning wheel and loom, and had to make the cloth for the family wear, and then serve as dressmaker, milliner and tailoress for the whole family, men and women, boys and girls, alike. Her dishes were few; tea-pots and pans few, and heavy, and rude; her toil longer and more incessant than her husband's.

In those days there were no steam or machine threshers; no machine reapers, mowers and binders; no improved harrows, sod cutters and breakers; no cultivators, seed and grain drills, sulkey plows, corn hackers and shellers; no mills for grinding feed; no variety of improved choice plows for different kinds of work; no hay or straw cutters; no machines for cutting wood; no portable steam engines; no windmills for pumping water; no sewing machines, improved cookers, fine stoves with their conveniences, no knitting machines; no apparatus for the dairy dairies, fanning mills, seed sowers, nor any of the thousand and one household machines and implements that now make women's work easy and sweet. The life of the women of a family on a farm was an unending round of

DRUDGERY LIKE SLAVES.

Now how changed! The genius of invention and the hands of improvement have touched and redeemed all old things, and all classes of new things. Even the simple tools—the spade, hoe, fork, rake, have been improved, elegant, strong and cheap—wonderfully different from what they were in the old times. The elegant, clean, light steel plows of to-day, and the dozens of different harrows, would seem like a dream of fairy land to one of the old pioneers, if he could be resurrected. And especially the new inventions of farm machinery and farm tools would astonish him beyond measure. And his good wife would be equally, or even more, astonished at the noiseless outfit of her modern successor, with its dozens of new and fine labor saving contrivances, comforts and even luxuries of convenience and use.

Every year adds to the inventions and improvements in farm machinery and implements. In fact, the farmer and his wife and family are constantly more and more and machinists, instead of merely rude agricultural laborers, as their fathers were. The operations of farm life take on more and more the character of manufactures or mechanical pursuits, thus uplifting intelligence, broadening life, and requiring additional knowledge and skill of hand and brain.

Every farmers' fair has, now-a-days, become as much of a show of machines and tools as of agricultural or animal products. In fact the show of implements and machinery is often the most important and generally the most instructive and attractive part of a great farmers' fair. The place where farmers can see all sorts of machines in operation, and compare their merits, and all sorts of tools for his use, and select those which are best for his necessities, and choose such labor saving devices and improvements as will best insure his financial success as well as ease and rapidity of his work, is the place that is to him most instructive, attractive and useful. But it is only at where are gathered the latest inventions and improvements of the whole continent, as they will be at the Detroit International Exposition, Sept. 17 to 27, that farmers can take full advantage of their best modern opportunities, and find, compare and select from everything that either they or their wives may need, from the smallest to the greatest. At this great fair a space of fifteen acres will be devoted to the display of agricultural machines and implements of all sorts, besides the scores of machines that will be exhibited in the vast machinery hall. There will be everything that the farmer or his wife, or anybody else, can need or use in the line of new inventions and machines, from the latest and best sewing machine to the big steam thresher, or from an apple peeler, sausage stuffer or meat chopper to the latest and best plows, harrows, harvesters, portable engines or windmills, while in other departments will be found a host of attractions, from the great gallery of paintings and statuary, and the vast hall filled with rare manufactures, to the wonderful display of fruits and flowers, and cattle, horses, sheep, swine, poultry, dogs, cats, birds and rare pets, and grand concerts, games, tournaments and pageants. In short, the United States and Canada will compete with each other to display everything that the farmer, mechanic, manufacturer, merchant, artist or inventor can show that is beautiful, curious, costly or useful.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN'S SENTENCE.

The Judge at Purvis, Miss., Sends Him Up for a Year—An Appeal.

PURVIS, Miss., Aug. 19.—The Sullivan prize fighting case came to an end for the present Saturday and the judge did what most people expected he would—gave John L. the ugly end of the law on the subject, one year in jail. He also sentenced John Fitzpatrick to pay a fine of $200 for acting as referee. It was noticeable that in calling John L. to his feet to receive his sentence the judge said "Sullivan stand up," but in addressing Fitzpatrick he said "M." Fitzpatrick. Motions in arrest of judgment and for a new trial in Sullivan's case were promptly overruled.

Strong Petitions for Leniency.

The sentence of Sullivan was in direct disregard to petitions for a light punishment from the best citizens of the county and the grand and petit jury, save one member of the latter. These petitions were read to the judge and asked that only a fine of $5,000 be imposed, as it was the first case of violation of the law and that Sullivan himself had no idea that he was so doing. The petitions were signed by all the merchants in the town, a number of farmers in the vicinity, the sheriff, and all the officers of the court, and the justice of the peace before whom the case was first tried. The judge was told that 90 people out of every 100 in the state would be gratified if only a fine was imposed. Sullivan himself made a speech of exactly 73 words, stating that he was ignorant of the law and asking for clemency.

An Insult to Mississippi.

In the sentence the judge laid stress on the fact that the party journeyed through several states and pitched upon Mississippi as one whose laws they would trample under foot, and said it was a gross affront to the state, indicating their utter contempt for her statutes. When he was through Sullivan looked like he would like to have that judge in any size ring for a few rounds, but after the proceedings were concluded he recovered his good humor.

The Case Appealed.

An appeal was of course taken, and sixty days were granted in which to file a bill of exceptions. A bond was ready in the highest amount—$1,000—on Sullivan's behalf, and the business of the day was done.

Jake Kilrain's Ejaculation.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19.—In the same minute Jake Kilrain was told Saturday of the sentence of Sullivan and the fact that an officer was in town to take him (Jake) to Mississippi. His only remark was "H—ll!" Jake is out on bail until next Thursday, and as it is almost impossible to collect a bond in this state it is more than probable that he will let the officer hold the bag, and skip to Canada.

Sullivan Passes Through Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 19.—John L. Sullivan arrived here late last evening, and took the train half an hour afterward for New York.

Goff's Plurality in West Virginia.

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 17.—The legislative committee has completed the investigation into the gubernatorial election last fall, except in two counties. Gen. Goff's plurality has not been wiped out, and, with the two counties yet to be heard, he still has the advantage of about fifty votes, his original plurality having been 110.

The Forger Collom Out on Bail.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 17.—Frank Collom, who is credited with forging $227,000 worth of notes, and who has been lying in the county jail for several days, was released on bail last night. The sum was fixed by Judge Emery at $100,000, and after considerable hustling the desired amount was raised late last night.

In 1860 he was honored with the degree of A. M. by the Genesee college, by that of D. D. by the Ohio Wesleyan university, and by that of LL. D. by Albion college, Michigan. The remains will be taken to Chicago for burial, that having been at one time the home of the family.

A Woman Suicide's Message.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 15.—At about 8 o'clock yesterday morning a woman named May Goodrich, 30 years of age, was found dead in bed at the Foresters' hotel. A two-ounce vial half filled with chloroform explained the cause of death. On the table was a letter as follows: "If dead when found, send my body to my father, Mr. William Selby, Windsor, Ont. Don't make a public show of me; some of you may have a son or daughter that may some day meet with misfortune."

Heavy Failure at Dundee, Ills.

The Kankakee with the Monon in the cent-a- and the Panhandle will be forced it. Grand Army men are jubilant over the Monon and Kankanee announcements, and prophesy it is but the beginning of a universal break by all lines to the cent-a-mile rate.

The River Lands Again.

FORT DODGE, Ia., Aug. 15.—The old river land trouble was revived by the arrest of three settlers yesterday, charged with malicious trespass. C. C. Intermill, Alfred Walsh, and W. Intermill, were lodged in jail for returning to their farms, from which they were evicted, and securing the hay crop. They will be tried Saturday.

THE RIDGEWAY CONCERT.

We had the pleasure of attending the choir concert at Ridgeway, on Wednesday evening of last week, and it is no flattery to say that it was a very superior musical entertainment. Ridgeway can boast of some fine talent of her own in the line of music, and on this occasion they drew on Tecumseh, Clinton and Saline for some of their best. Prof. Clark rendered valuable assistance, both in his solos and in the anthems. Miss Grayson fully sustained her reputation as a fine vocalist, while the ladies' quartette from Clinton completely captured the audience. The club is composed of five voices—Mrs. J. T. Clark and Misses Clark, Pomeroy, Avery and Kishpaugh. Their voices harmonize beautifully and their singing showed thorough training. The Ridgeway choir rendered the sacred anthems very finely. The quartette "Give me my own Native Isle," by Messrs. Clark and Waring and Misses Hall and Grayson, although given early, was one of the choicest numbers on the program. The duet by Misses Hall and Barlow, and the trio by the same, with Mrs. Houseman, were fine specimens of vocal harmony. They have long sang together and they seem to improve with every public appearance. Miss Barlow surpassed herself at the organ. The audience was charmed from first to last and well they might be, for the concert was worthy of professionals. The choir added about $20.00 to their treasury, which will come very opportunely; for even a church choir, if properly kept up, cannot be run on faith alone.

IN MEMORIAM.

A tribute to Capt. James R. Cairns, adopted by Beers Post No. 140, Department of Michigan, G. A. R.:

Capt. James R. Cairns, our Senior Post commander was relieved from duty by our Great Commander on high, July 30, 1889, and it is with sorrow that we bow to the supreme command. His duties in this department are ended. He has been transferred to a higher, brighter, grander field of action. He died as he lived—a hero. He is mourned as a brother, father, friend and comrade. His family, the grand army of the republic and society at large are bereft of one whose place cannot be filled. Beers Post No. 140, Department of Michigan, G. A. R. has lost its first commander. As soldiers we submit to the inevitable with fortitude. As comrades we regard with pride the wise, brave acts of a noble man. As a leader, he has gone before and tramp, tramp, tramp the comrades of the war are following toward the goal he has reached, and it will not be long before we shall all hear the command from the Great Captain, "lights out" But, while we mourn his loss, we will cherish his memory for his many virtues. Noble, brave and true, a kind husband, an affectionate father, a true friend and neighbor, and above all, a noble patriot who was ready to give his life if need be, or to sacrifice his health, as he did, in his country's cause. He is eminently worthy to be held in honored remembrance by us all; and while we remember him with an affection which can be felt only by one comrade for another, we extend to his bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in this their great affliction. As friend, we mourn with those who weep. Soldier, commander, comrade, friend, farewell.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, AUG. 29

WRECKED THE FIRST TRAIN.

Three Prominent Tennesseeans Killed and Many Wounded at a Railway Opening.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 24.—Knoxville is in mourning. Three of her foremost citizens lie dead and more than a score of others are badly injured. The completion of the Knoxville, Cumberland Gap and Louisville railroad has been looked forward to with interest by the people of this city. Thursday the first regular train was run over this line. Twenty-two miles out from Knoxville it passed a crossing. Just beyond this crossing there is a trestle spanning a shallow stream of water. It is thirty feet from the top of the trestle to the bed of the stream.

Three Killed and Many Injured.

In passing the crossing the rear car ran off the track. It struck the trestle, swayed to one side and went off, turning bottom side up. In turning it was wrenched from the balance of the train when crossed in safety. There were forty-four men in the car that went down. Out of this number one was killed outright, two died inside of an hour, and thirty-one were more or less seriously injured. Following is a list: S. T. Powers, killed almost outright; Judge George Andrews, died in an hour; Alexander Reeder, ex-sheriff of Knox county, died in an hour. Besides these, thirty-one persons, all prominent citizens, were more or less seriously injured.

Another Death.

Col. Isham Young, chairman of the board of public works, died Friday at 2 p. m. Edward F. Barker is thought to be dying, also J. E. Barry. Barker was pinned under the cars for more than an hour. County Judge Maloney is in a precarious condition. He will hardly recover. His ribs are broken and thigh fractured. An inquest was held over Col. S. T. Powers Friday and a verdict of accidental death from unavoidable causes was returned. His funeral occurred at 4 o'clock p. m., and his remains were shipped to Augusta, Ky.

HARRISON AT INDIANAPOLIS.

He Assists in Laying the Corner Stone of the Indiana Soldiers' Monument.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 22.—President Harrison arrived here from Cincinnati at 9 o'clock Wednesday night over the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad. Thousands of people had assembled in the vicinity of the Union railway station, and when the train of the president and party rolled into the station a few moments before 9 o'clock a shout arose and echoed through the crowd up to the New Denison house, the destination and resting place of the distinguished visitor. The greeting he received when he appeared on the rear platform of his car was vigorously expressive of Hoosier enthusiasm and welcome, and it was repeated as frequently as he bowed recognition to the people.

Several Persons Injured.

The crowd was unwieldy and the police were wholly unable to hold it under control. It surged over the six-foot iron picket fence in the railway station as if it were really no barrier, and when the president stepped from the train it was with the greatest difficulty that the militia and police by combined efforts could make way for him through the depot to the carriage standing in waiting for him outside. The crush was great and several persons were injured in it.

The president held a public reception Thursday morning from 10 o'clock until 12 in the parlors of the Denison. He was assisted by Marshal Ransdell, Attorney General Miller and Secretary Rusk.

The Corner-Stone Laying.

Thursday afternoon the president took part in the laying of the corner stone of the Indiana Soldiers' monument.

The monument is being erected in Circle park in the exact geographical center of the city, and when completed will be the most magnificent and imposing structure of the kind in America.

ANOTHER ATTACK ON BALFOUR.

Irish Parliamentarians Call Him an Assassin, and He Waxes Wroth.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—There was another stormy debate in the commons last night over the Irish estimates. The Parnellites accused Balfour of improper administration of the prisons. Balfour, referring to the fact that Conybeare had contracted a skin disease in prison, said the disease had been removed by a bath. The man who had occupied the cell before Conybeare had not suffered from any disease. He had caused the prisons to be examined and no trace of disease had been found. Blaine, an Irish member, told of his own experience in an Irish prison, and said the prisons were filthy. Sexton said Londonderry jail was a "pest-house where Irish were murdered." Several Irish members pointed at Balfour, crying: "There is the assassin."

Mahone Unanimously

The Doughty Virginian Nominated for Governor.

NOT A VOICE RAISED AGAINST HIM.

Old Dominion Republicans Put Their Ticket in the Field—A Promise to Settle the Debt Question—South Dakota Republicans Get Through Their Work—Miller for Governor—Nominations in Montana—Nebraska Prohibitionists.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 23.—The Republican state convention to nominate candidates for governor, lieutenant governor, and attorney general convened in the Academy of Music yesterday shortly after noon. Long before that time crowds had begun to assemble in the lobbies, and by 11:30 most of the delegations had come in and taken the places assigned them. The entrance of W. C. Elam, George E. Bowden and other notables was greeted with cheers, which became tumultuous when Gen. Mahone appeared. After the audience became silent, Rev. Vernon I. Anson advanced to the footlights and offered prayer.

Mahone's Address.

Then Gen. Mahone commenced his address amidst loud cheers. He accused the Democrats of overtaxing the masses, swindling the voters, driving capital out of the state, taking away the chastity of females in insane asylums and being utterly unable to deal with the public debt question. Touching the negro question, he said: "The unmanly cover under which the Democratic managers have misled public thought and have incited ungovernable apprehension has been a pretended concern for the safety of our civilization—the fear of domination of our affairs by the colored man—and under that cover they have led too many honest and honorable men to acquiesce in the most shameful outrages upon popular government."

Organizing the Body.

After this speech a recess was taken until 3 o'clock to allow the districts to name men for the committees. When the convention met again at 3 o'clock the committees were announced, and another recess was taken until 7 o'clock to allow them to report. At the night session Hon. George E. Bowden, of Norfolk, was made permanent chairman and Col. Asa Rogers permanent secretary. The Mahone delegates, in cases where there were contests, were seated in three out of four cases, and in the fourth the vote was divided between the two delegations. The platform was read by Col. W. C. Elam, of Louisa. It pledges the Republican party, if given power, to settle the state debt permanently, satisfactorily, and without increasing the state tax.

Mahone Nominated.

Gen. Mahone was nominated for governor by Col. William Lamb, of Norfolk, who made a brilliant speech. S. Brown Allen, R. A. Paul, A. W. Harris, and others seconded the nomination, and was made by acclamation. General Mahone reached the convention hall at 10:30. He accepted the nomination in a brief speech. Campbell Slemp, of Lee county, was unanimously nominated for lieutenant governor, and W. S. Larty, of Harrisonburg, for attorney general.

Dakotans Nominate State Officers.

FARGO, D. T., Aug. 23.—Wednesday night both Miller and Allen had determined to withdraw and leave Tyler in possession of the field and gubernaterial nomination. Yesterday morning there was a change and the Miller people announced that their man was still in the field. Both factions filibustered in the convention yesterday, the Tyler men hoping to get an adjournment until evening, but they were unsuccessful, and at 6:30 the first vote was taken resulting in the nomination of John Miller, the vote standing 141 to 120 for Tyler. The remainder of the ticket was made up as follows: Secretary of state, John Flettie, of Traill; supreme court judges—C. H. Corliss, of Grand Forks; Alfred Wallin, of Fargo, and J. M. Bartholomew, of Lamoure; member of congress, H. C. Hansbraugh, of Devils Lake.

Nebraska Prohibition Nominations.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 23.—The Prohibitionists closed their state convention in this city last night, the session lasting two days. There were about 400 delegates in attendance. The convention was of one mind in everything but the adoption of a resolution in the platform relating to the non-partisan amendment league, which evoked considerable discussion and some sharp personalities. A plank expressing sympathy with the movement was at length adopted. Candidates for supreme judge and regents for the state university were nominated, L. P. Wigton, of Norfolk, for the former position, and Mrs. Jennie F. Holmes, of Tecumseh, and L. B. Palmer, of Hastings, for the latter.

Montana Republican.

HELENA, M. T., Aug. 23.—The Republican state convention met at Anaconda at noon yesterday, with a full representation present. A. J. Seligman was elected permanent president; Sam Gordon, secretary. T. H. Carter, at present delegate in congress, was unanimously nominated for representative. The following were and also nominated: For governor—T. C. Power, of Helena. Lieutenant governor—J. E. Richards, of Butte. The ticket is considered so far unusually strong.

Expunged a Vote Indorsing Tanner.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 23.—At a largely attended meeting last night, Post 43, G. A. R., after a full and free discussion, ordered expunged from the records the vote passed at a previous thinly attended meeting whereby the course of Pension Commissioner Tanner was indorsed. Prominent members of the post expressed themselves to the effect that the vote indorsing Mr. Tanner, in view of the investigation he is under, was ill-advised.

Washington Territory Is Ready.

OLYMPIA, W. T., Aug. 23.—The constitutional convention completed its labors yesterday, and all the delegates are hurrying home. No business of importance was transacted except that a clause was passed confirming all government patents in title lands. The closing hours were very orderly, and there was not the slightest indecorum.

Illinois Prohibitionists.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 22.—The state Prohibition convention assembled in this city yesterday afternoon with 300 delegates, representing about twenty-five counties. A supreme judge and two regents of the state university will be nominated to-day.

An Iowa Flouring Mill Burned.

MANCHESTER, Ia., Aug. 24.—Hoag's flouring mill burned early yesterday morning together with the electric light plant. Loss $30,000. No insurance. It is supposed to be incendiary.

Butchers of Women.

Murder and Suicide Hold a Bloody Carnival.

WIFE AND MISTRESS THE VICTIMS.

A Chicago Husband Cuts His Wife's Throat and His Own, and an Indianapolis Man Tries His Knife on His Paramour—An Ohio Tragedy of the Same Kind—A Couple of Single Suicides.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—What will undoubtedly prove a murder and suicide occurred Saturday afternoon, Elmer Hoffman, a brakeman, cutting his wife's throat and then his own with a jack-knife. Hoffman and his wife have had a hard time to get along together, and she has been compelled to support herself because of his extreme jealousy and ill treatment. Friday she had sworn out a warrant for his arrest for persecuting her, and this angered him to an extreme degree. Shortly after 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon he paid a visit to where his wife was employed. When Mrs. Hoffman learned of his presence she fled from the house. Hoffman gave chase, and overtook her and cut her throat twice, inflicting severe and probably fatal injuries. He then drew the knife blade across his own throat, and died shortly after reaching the hospital.

The Woman Was Unfaithful.

Further facts came out yesterday in regard to the above tragedy, the development being the arrest of James Cummings, at whose house Mrs. Hoffman was working. The arrest was made at the instance of Cummings' wife on a charge of adultery with the woman who now lies, perhaps, on her death-bed at the hospital. Mrs. Cummings says that soon after Mrs. Hoffman went to live with them her husband became criminally intimate with her. His infatuation for the woman was so great, his wife says, that he would not allow her out of his sight, and when his wife remonstrated with him he threatened to kill her. He neglected his family entirely for Mrs. Hoffman, who continued to live in the house. Cummings' rage when he learned that his mistress had been perhaps fatally injured knew no bounds. He proceeded to demolish the furniture, and had made an assault on his wife when arrested.

SLASHED WITH A KNIFE.

Man and Woman Found with Their Throats Gashed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 26.—Shortly before 12 o'clock Saturday night persons returning from Kissell's beer resort, north of this city, found a woman lying in the ditch by the roadway with her throat cut from ear to ear. She was speechless and death soon followed. Near by was found the body of a man supposed to be Eli Aszman, of Cincinnati. He was bleeding from a ghastly wound in the throat, and he was unable to give any account of the tragedy. He was removed to the hospital and the body of the woman taken to the morgue. The affair is shrouded in mystery.

The Murderer Tells His Story.

LATER.—Aszman has revived sufficiently to explain the mystery. He said that he and Bertha Eliff, with whom he had been intimate for three years past, had been to Kissell's resort, and on their return home had a quarrel. Becoming infuriated, he drew his pocket-knife and cut her throat, and then, horror-stricken at what he had done, he drew the knife across his own throat. The deceased woman was a dressmaker, and bore an excellent reputation. Aszman is a Cincinnatian, but has been working in this city at different times for several years. He has so far recovered as to be considered out of danger.

They Want Separate Trials.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Saturday afternoon the attorneys for O'Sullivan, Coughlin and Burke, the Cronin suspects, served notice on State's Attorney Longenecker that to-day, or as soon thereafter as counsel could be heard, they would each move for a separate trial on behalf of their clients. Judge Longenecker says he will resist the motions, as the six defendants are indicted for conspiracy.

In Love with a Beautiful Girl.

SAGINAW CITY, Mich., Aug. 26.—A sensational suicide occurred here yesterday afternoon. Julius Zimmerman, a prominent young man, shot himself through the heart at his room on Adams street. It is said he was infatuated with a beautiful young lady, who rejected his suit. He left a sealed letter, but it was taken possession of by the coroner, and will not be opened until the inquest.

Hung Himself on an Apple Tree.

ROBINSON, Kan., Aug. 26.—W. H. Vanhook, a well-to-do citizen of this city Friday committed suicide by hanging. He was judged insane last spring and sent to the asylum. On being released he went to an orchard, climbed up an apple tree, tied a rope to a limb and, fastening it around his neck, jumped off. When found he was dead.

Another Candidate for a Hempen Necktie.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Saturday night Edward Barrett, aged 52, residing at 115 Union street, Brooklyn, threw his wife out of the second-story window. The woman was conveyed to the hospital, where up to a late hour she remained unconscious. Barrett was arrested and locked up. The woman will probably die.

And Still Another Case.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 26.—A special from Mount Vernon, O., says that Elijah Lybarger, a prominent Democratic politician, residing at Midwood, shot his wife last night, and then shot himself through the head. Neither can recover. Jealousy is supposed to have been the cause.

Should Dangle from a Rope.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—John Lynch, a shoemaker, during a drunken brawl with his wife at their home, 38 Carmine street, Saturday, shot and fatally wounded the latter. Lynch was locked up.

Drowned by the Bursting of a Dam.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 26.—The Spring lake reservoir, near Fiskville, in the southwest corner of Cranston, about fifteen miles from this city, which supplies a number of mill villages along the Pawtuxet river, burst yesterday afternoon. Three persons were drowned and some slight damage done to property. The names of the drowned were: Mrs. Greene Tew, aged 60; a Mrs. Hawkins, aged 90, and Mrs. Tew's son, 7 years old. They were walking through a strip of wood, and were overtaken by the flood and drowned.

Eight Prisoners Break Jail.

GREENSBURG, Ind., Aug. 24.—Eight prisoners escaped from the county jail Friday night by sawing out sixteen bars of the steel grating. The men are all desperate characters and are still at large. Four other prisoners refused to leave, but did not inform the sheriff of the escape until some time after it had occurred.

"CATCH-PENNY" SOAPS.

Anything that is the best of its kind is sure to be imitated, and the fact that an article is counterfeited, is the best possible evidence of its value. There are scores of imitations of the Ivory Soap, which grocers are persuaded to buy because they pay more profit than the "Ivory" will. On account of this extra profit, the grocer represent them to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

OUTBREAK IN TEXAS.

Political Factions Go to War and Troops Are Called Upon.

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 17.—The long looked for outbreak between the contending political factions in Fort Bend county commenced at Richmond, the county seat, Friday night. The former is charged with larceny and the latter with adultery. The specific charge against Crane is receiving $1,500, which it is alleged Mrs. Frauenfelter took from her husband and turned over to Crane. The woman has made a statement that Frauenfelter is her second husband and that he has used her brutally and often beaten her, besides being guilty of infidelity. She says the money referred to belonged to her and not to her husband, and she has not given it to Crane. She alleges that Frauenfelter ill-used her children by a former husband, and, by his cruelty, forced her to leave him.

A Texas Cowboy's Performance.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 17.—A special dispatch from Jackson, Tenn., says: A terrible tragedy took place Friday morning, ten miles northeast of Jackson. Henry Prewit, an ex-cowboy from Texas, shot his young wife fatally through the back, wounded his mother-in-law, and running into a field shot himself through the head, dying instantly. He had been married four months. A warrant was out for his arrest for moonshining. He asked his wife to go with him to Weakly county. He got down on his knees yesterday morning and begged her to go, but she is in bad health and told him she could not go. He bore a desperate character, told his wife he had been married four times, had killed one wife and three or four men.

Mrs. Beutel is but slightly wounded.

She improved rapidly from the first week, and in four mo. was entirely well. Now eighteen mo. since treatment and no sign of return.

ANOTHER BIG PICNIC.

HELD AT DEVILS LAKE LAST THURSDAY BY THE FARMERS OF LENAWEE AND HILLSDALE COUNTIES.

It was a Roaring Success as Usual, and the Crowd Larger than Last Year—A Brief Report of the Proceedings.

The excursion train containing the Tecumseh contingent to the picnic at Devils Lake last Thursday pulled out of this station nearly an hour late, and the six cars that made up the train were filled to overflowing. At each station large additions were made to the already crowded cars, and the train arrived at Manitou Beach with the excursionists packed in the cars like sardines in a box, the platforms were full, and many were clinging desperately to the iron guards around the steps.

An immediate skirmish was made by all for something to eat, and the lunch stands were charged upon and captured by hundreds of the hungry crowd, while those who had brought along their lunch joined the army of picknicers camped in the grove in little family groups. The long tables were also filled by the thousands that annually gather there from their respective townships to attend this after-harvest festival, now in its 17th year.

A stroll through the grove shows the usual number of "fakirs" making a deafening noise in their attempts to draw the nickles and dimes from the pockets of the passers by. Everything imaginable is there, calculated to extract a copper from the crowd, and the crowd seemed to take a fancy to them, and the process of extraction was comparatively easy. The crowd, by the way, was immense in point of numbers, and an attempt at enumeration would find the enumerator a fit subject for the insane asylum inside of an hour. The estimate was placed by some as high as 25,000, and 18,000 would be a conservative one. Since the advent of the railroad, a large number come by that route, and the management have this year fenced in the grove, and each man was under the painful necessity of putting up five cents, or scaling a barb wire fence in order to gain admission. Of course he wisely chose the former. The women were very considerately (for their dresses) allowed to pass in free.

Beardsell's hotel was literally packed full, and it was difficult for one to get across the wide porch around it. The other hotels were also full of business. The pretty little steamers and the big "City of Hudson" were carrying crowds of excursionists around the lake all day. The weather was beautiful and all seemed to enjoy themselves to the utmost.

After dinner the crowd adjourned to the stand erected for the exercises of the day. The seats around the stand were evidently built for persons of lighter faith and stomachs, than farmers fresh from a picnic dinner, as the program was repeatedly interrupted by the crack, crack of the benches, as one after another succumbed to the extra strain, and deposited their load upon the bosom of mother earth.

The program was opened with a selection by the Adrian city band. Rev. Mr. Pierce, of Clayton, followed with prayer.

President S. W. Curtis, of Hudson, welcomed the audience in a few words and Secretary Wm. H. Wiggins then read the minutes of the last meeting which showed the receipts last year to be $318.50, and the expenses $239 30.

Master Wm. Wirts gave a humorous piece entitled "Marriage a Failure," which provoked much laughter and applause.

Judge V. H. Lane was then introduced and gave a very pertinent address, which interested his hearers throughout. The Judge thought the opportunity ought to be in the hands of another, and then knocked that argument in the head by the brilliant manner in which he improved the opportunity, giving, in the course of his remarks, a whack at Sunday excursions, and saying this government depended upon the morality of the people.

You will remember, he said, that when the grain and wine and oil had been stored up, when out of the granery of God had been poured into the lap of Israel all the bounties of his kindness, then did they gather together for the feast of the tabernacles—for their farmers' picnic. Yours is not a national gathering, but it is one borne out by hearts made joyous. It is a festival where we come and mingle together and enjoy ourselves, to get that good which comes of association everywhere. Upon another occasion I had opportunity to suggest very briefly something of the thought in my mind today, but so very briefly that I am persuaded I cannot more profitably employ the time here allotted to me than by following out this train of thought. The responsibility of the individual is measured by his ability and the opportunity for its employment. What may be his responsibility as a member of our political society, depends also upon the place it occupies among the nations of the earth and the influence it exerts over them. To-day this nation exceeds every nation of the earth in the wealth it possesses; it likewise exceeds every other of the company of nations in 1st manufactures, doing a quarter of what all the people of the earth are doing. We carry the banner of Christian civilization in the vanguard, and are the educators in government and civilization of the world. In our own university town, if I am correctly informed, are about 100 of the young men of Japan a nation representing the cream of its young mental strength, come to learn of us. Washington in one of his state papers said, "Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports."

Look where you will on the face of the earth, among pagan or Christian people and where you find the Sabbath desecrated, you will find bad government, and well may you tremble for the safety of this government when the Sabbath is by wicked hands trodden under foot. Let not, I beseech you, the respect for the beneficent influences of this day depart from among us. Let us, in the interest of good government, out of love for our country, out of affection for the children who shall live after us, out of respect to our God who instituted this day and commanded its observance, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

At the conclusion of Judge Lane's remarks, the Adrian band played a selection and Miss Mary Allis recited "The Debating Society" with great success, scoring one on "Philander," of the Press. The band gave another toot and Wm. Wirts gave a recitation entitled "John Burns at Gettysburg."

President Curtis then introduced Congressman E. P. Allen, who delivered an eloquent address, which was frequently interrupted by vigorous applause. Cong. Allen endorsed Judge Lane's utterances, and wished he had the representatives of the United States there to look into their faces and into their eyes, to show them what is true of a state like Michigan, which has progressed beyond any other in the union.

"I would like to have them look into the faces of an audience of Southern Michigan and see why it is that Michigan is such a prosperous state. There are those not here who are entitled to some of the glory. Some of them possibly may be, but they are old and decrepid, while others have gone since they made it possible for such a gathering as this is today. The men who 30, 40, or 50 years ago, left their eastern homes and took a journey to the wilderness, then more of a journey than today would be to the Sandwich Islands. Those men, young, stalwart, full of courage, full of honesty, full of the ideas that alone make a people great eventually; those came here, and what you behold today is not what you have done, but what they who are sleeping in their graves did. Not only the men but the women who came with them, were as true to the mission that God had laid upon their shoulders. The girl of today with the luxurious home she has, has no conception of what it cost our mother, our grandmother, when as young, but passive she turned her back upon all civilization and undertook to found a home in the wilderness. The old pioneers were the advance guard who undertook to settle the state of Michigan, who gave their lives prematurely, going down to the graves because of the conflicts through which they passed. They laid the foundation of a state that ranks foremost in the Union, and established a system of schools and churches, and a code of morality and virtue from which we are reaping the fruits. In this country we govern ourselves, and governing ourselves we shall be what we make ourselves. If this country was governed by a king or parliament it would not make so much difference of talking in this way. We would not depend upon ourselves, but we would depend upon those born with blue blood. We have nothing of that kind in this country and we never shall have it until we degenerate. No American should have a greater love than his love for liberty. Farmers, you are the heritage of this country. This will always be an agricultural country. England is not a farmers' country in the sense that this is. The Almighty has given you a covenant of land seven-tenths capable of supplying the world. Sometimes when I have gone to bed at midnight I have thought that every man wanted an office, but as a matter of fact, after due deliberation, I have come to the conclusion that not one man in 100 wants one. Every man ought to aspire to high positions, and if this country becomes corrupt it will be your fault and the remedy will be with you. I want the time to come that when a man goes to vote, he will have the same secrecy from stragglers as when he goes to his private room to pray. Why? Because there is no standing army or blue blood for us to depend upon.'

At the conclusion of Mr. Allen's address the exercises concluded with the election of officers, as follows:

Tecumseh is now represented in the person of D. T. Hall, and although Dan is not a farmer at present, he will fill the bill just the same.

After the exercises the crowd began to disperse. Many remained however to attend the dance. The excursion trains pulled slowly out of Manitou Beach with their tired loads of picknicers, the highways were soon lined with vehicles homeward bound, and the 17th annual gathering successfully terminated.

STATE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

A BRIEF SYNOPSIS OF THE PROCEEDINGS AT THE REGULAR DAILY SESSIONS.

A Large Attendance of Teachers from All Parts of the County—The Program of Exercises Very Interesting and Instructive.

We continue our report of the Institute held last week in Tecumseh, beginning with the Thursday morning's session. The session opened with an increased enrollment, but the Devil's lake picnic seemed to have an attraction for some of the teachers, as a goodly number failed to respond to roll call.

Prof. Goodison continued his talk on geography, with the aid of his charts, showing the outline to follow, step by step, and how to make apparatus to aid in this kind of work.

Prof. Hull continued the subject of United States history. He advocated teaching by topics, having reproduction exercises written upon the blackboard. Select important dates and fix them in the minds of the pupil. He advocated the use of the patch map.

Prof. Warren took up the subject of arithmetic. Tables of addition, subtraction, multiplication and division were placed upon the board. How to form these tables and keep them within the limits of the pupil's knowledge, was an important feature of the work.

Prof. Goodison continued on geography. He told the teachers how to select a good map. A large number of the maps in use are exaggerations. He entered minutely into the plan of teaching home geography, thence to state, thence to United States, etc.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

Prof. Goodison explained the manner of entering the Normal school. Each candidate is expected to pass a searching examination in arithmetic, grammar, geography, orthography, spelling and reading. Certificates of studies passed in our high school (Tecumseh) and some twenty-four others are accepted and credit given. A detailed plan of preparation was given for the benefit of those desiring to enter the Normal school.

Primary reading was next taken up. The average child on entering school has a vocabulary of 250 to 500 words. Teach about 100 words by the word method before attempting to read much. Write sentences on the black board. Teach the child to analyze the written and printed word.

Prof. Warren continued the subject of arithmetic. Develop all the combinations in primary arithmetic by means of objects, and at the same time represent the work on the board. Perhaps you can dispense with objects after going through the 2's and 3's. Proceed through the four tables by means of objects, then mix or combine them. Review the work frequently. Require neatness in all work.

Prof. Hull then showed the use to be made of the patch map. As each new acquisition is made, a patch is placed on the map, showing the same. Thus, as changes are made in territory, the map is changed as needed.

FRIDAY MORNING.

Prof. Warren gave the first lecture of this session on school punishment. It is grounded upon good sense. Modes of punishment should vary according to the differences in home life and home training. He presented the following modes as those which could be used to advantage.

1st. Withdrawal of teacher's confidence and approval.
2d. Reproof; private and public before the school.
3d. Loss of privileges.
4th. Payment of damage done.
5th. Acknowledgment in public of the wrong done.
6th. Corporal punishment. If offense is very open and flagrant at once and publicly. Generally in private, after deliberation.
7th. Suspension.

Prof. Hull concluded his instruction in teaching by presenting a number of important topics for study and urging the cultivation of interest in history. The desire which the pupil possesses for reading should be directed to that which will benefit him.

Prof. Goodison gave a short talk on mathematical geography, showing how it can be based upon the apparent motions of the sun and heavenly bodies.

Prof. Warren then introduced the subject of morals and manners.

1st. Manners in general.
2d. Develop patriotic feelings and feelings for citizenship.
3d. Morals. (a) personal advice to the pupil. (b) the teacher's example.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

Prof. Warren opened the session with a talk on common fractions, as applied to pupils who have had no previous knowledge of fractions. He illustrated it by means of an apple divided into halves, quarters, etc.

Prof. Goodison continued the subject of perspective drawing, illustrated by blackboard sketches of common objects. The professor then distributed the certificates to the members and the institute was declared closed.

All the teachers present expressed themselves as highly pleased with the work of the instructors, and departed with many thanks to Prof. Goodison and his able assistants for their instruction and advice. The teachers came for good, thorough work, and they had the opportunity of obtaining it. There were one hundred and eighteen names placed on the membership roll, and the daily attendance, including visitors, amounted to about one hundred and fifty.

Two public lectures were given at the Baptist church, one by Prof. Warren, on Wednesday evening, and one by Prof. Goodison, on Thursday evening. Both of them were decidedly interesting and were listened to by good audiences.

THE DEWEY—CONKLING WEDDING.

The cozy little residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Conkling, corner of Pearl and Pottawatamie sts. was filled to overflowing with friends and relatives last Thursday afternoon to witness one of the most pleasant social events that has occurred in our village in years. This event proved to be the marriage of their daughter Miss Etta, to Lyster H. Dewey, formerly of Cambridge, but whose home is now in Lansing.

About five o'clock, the couple took their places under a canopy of fern leaves and plants in the parlor, accompanied by the bridesmaid and groomsman and maids of honor, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Babbitt in a most pleasant manner. The usual congratulations and banquet followed. The maids of honor comprised Mrs. E. J. Ware, of Grand Rapids; Miss Carpenter, of Chicago; Misses Sena Hosmer, Mary Burridge, Allie Gray and Allie Rice, of this village. Mr. Will Hayden officiated as groomsman, and Miss Gereau, of Chicago, as bridesmaid.

An elegant array of presents was received by the bride, among which were $120 in gold from the groom's father, $100 in gold from the bride's father, a handsome gold watch and chain from an uncle.

The happy pair took the night train for Lansing, their future home, followed by the best wishes of their numerous friends. Tecumseh thus loses one of her most accomplished and agreeable daughters, and the groom is to be congratulated upon his choice. Lyster is a graduate of our high school, and also of the State Agricultural college, and is a young man of rare abilities. He now holds a position as instructor in the college.

MRS. SARAH WOLCOTT.

The announcement on Monday, the 19th, of the sudden death of this estimable woman, plunged into deep grief a large circle of intimate and sympathizing friends. Having been for some months afflicted with goitre, which began to threaten serious consequences, she went to Detroit in company with her physician to seek counsel in her case from eminent specialists in the city. They had arrived at the Woodward avenue station and were waiting for the street car, when suddenly, with scarcely a moment's warning, death claimed her for his own. The body was brought home on the evening train and on Wednesday afternoon the funeral was held from the late residence, attended by a very large concourse of personal friends and associates. The services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. F. Adkins. Rev. W. H. Babbitt was also present and assisted.

Mrs. Wolcott, long and widely known in this community as Miss Sarah Swartout, was born in Hillsdale, Mich., May 14, 1849. Left an orphan by the death of her parents in early childhood, she went to live with her aunt, Mrs. Lydia Hause, then and now residing in Ridgeway, and at the age of probably about fifteen she came to Tecumseh to make, as best she could, her own way in the world. By diligent and efficient devotion to the employments in which she engaged, she was everywhere eminently successful, and in various relations of business and social life soon became widely and favorably known in the community. She developed a remarkable versatility of talent and a decision and energy of purpose combined with great kindliness and helpfulness of spirit. During a temporary residence in Marshall, Mich., she was converted to Christ and united with the Baptist church of that place. Thence she went to Chicago, where she remained two or three years, a member of the Fourth Baptist church in that city. In 1878 she united by letter with the Baptist church in Tecumseh, and has, during her entire connection with it, been actively and aggressively identified with all its interests and its work. She was a trusted counsellor and faithful worker, and this activity continued until the last day of her life, she being present on Sabbath the day previous to her death, at the services of the church and Sunday school as usual, and especially planning with reference to certain lines of work for which she had been appointed. Thus she fell "with the harness on", and without waiting to say goodbye, took her quiet departure for the heavenly home, being ready when the Master came.

In February, 1885, she was married to Mr. Isaac C. Wolcott, and to him is warmly extended the sympathy of the community in his deep bereavement. The W. C. T. U. of Tecumseh, of which she was an active member, as an expression of their respect and grief, attended the funeral in a body. The church parts from her in deep sorrow and tenderly testifies, "She hath done what she could."

A six foot fence is being constructed on the north and west sides of the east branch school yard, in order to curb the small boy's desire to wander at recess.

There will be no services at the Universalist church next Sunday, as the pastor, Rev. J. M. Getchell, will preach for the Knights Templar at Sand Lake on that day, at 10:30 a.m.

C. H. Keysor's barber shop has been closed for the past few days, and it is learned that the sheriff had a hand in the matter. We hope things will be straightened out and business resumed at an early day.

The cider mill owned by Aaron Waldron about a mile west of the village was destroyed by fire last Saturday night. The origin of the fire is a mistery as there has been no fire inside the building for several years.

The fire department was called out Tuesday evening on a false alarm. Some one saw a stove blaze up in the rooms occupied by E. C. Kennedy over Gene Service's saloon and gave the alarm. No damage was done.

C. D. Bills will take his blooded horses, Banker, Hunter, and several others to Detroit to enter the horse show at the exposition. Dell Cairns expects to take some of his promising young colts there also.

The W. C. T. U. will give their monthly tea at their temperance parlors, on Friday, Aug. 30. Tea served from 5 to 7:30. I would like to call the attention of the ladies to the annual school meeting to be held Monday evening. If anyone ought to feel interested it is the mothers.

The Tri-state Fair at Toledo, September 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13, has assumed immense proportions, and will be witnessed by larger crowds than ever before this year. The trotting, pacing and running races, the great kennel show, the Wood-Campbell whippet races will all be exhibitions of high merit, while all other departments are crowded.

Macon Grange met in regular session Aug 24th. Although there was not as many members present as should have been, enough were present to have an enjoyable meeting. As the busy time is getting over and the evenings longer, it is hoped that members will be more prompt in attendance. The next meeting will be held Saturday, Sept. 7, at 7:30 o'clock p.m. A volunteer program will be called for. The young people are especially requested to be prepared with something in response.

Jones & Hazlett have found their quarters altogether too small for their increasing business. Accordingly they have moved their work tables in the second story and have converted the entire lower floor into a sales room. The new arrangement will enable them to double their stock of cloths and increase their facilities in every way. The firm pride themselves on turning out none but first class work, and they are reaping their reward in a rapidly growing trade. They have a new announcement in this week's paper.

Calvin Adams arrived from Deleware last Friday for a few days' stay.

Miss Dora Heck returned last week from an extended visit at South Bend, Ind.

A new sidewalk has been laid in front of the opera house, a much needed improvement.

We shall endeavor to close our forms Wednesday evening hereafter and go to press early Thursday morning.

Wm. Totten got home from his Petoskey trip last Saturday, having enjoyed his visit there better than ever.

Mrs. Wm. Ives and Mrs. S. S. Hill, mother and sister of Mrs. E. H. Bates, are visiting her from Knowlesville, N. Y.

The State fair will begin Monday, Sept. 9th at Lansing, and the indications all point to a very successful exhibition.

All members of the Royal Arcanum are requested to be present at the next meeting which will be Tuesday, Sept. 3d.

The Misses Florence and Minnie Thompson, of Adrian, who have been spending a couple of weeks with Miss Eda Ingersoll, returned home last week.

Lucius Lilley returned last Saturday from his trip "away down east." He enjoyed his trip exceedingly well, and comes back to his desk feeling much refreshed and invigorated.

Theo. Wood swings the kalsomine brush like a veteran, and D. Holmes handles the paint brush equally as well. We tried them both this week during "house cleaning" time, to our entire satisfaction.

We have been cleaning house at the HERALD office this week. It is an awful bore, but it must be done once in a while. We shall get settled by Saturday, and the work rooms will then look as neat as a new pin.

On account of the big picnic at Devils Lake last week, we went to press on Wednesday evening and thus shut out several locals which were handed in Thursday morning. The safe way is to hand in your locals on Wednesday.

The poultry dealers of Michigan held a meeting at Jackson Monday, which was quite largely attended. A state organization was perfected, and our townsman, C. E. Williamson, was chosen president thereof. A good selection. "Ed" is a hustler wherever he goes.

The annual school meeting will occur next Monday evening. We invite attention to the special call elsewhere from which it will be seen that some important business of a special character will come before the meeting for discussion and decision. There should be a large attendance.

Our old reliable harness dealer, J. D. Sholes, has a new announcement this week on the first page to which we invite special attention. He not only keeps a full assortment of harnesses and all kinds of horse furnishing goods, but he will henceforth keep for sale a stock of buggies and carriages. It will do one good to examine his stock.

There will be a series of trotting and pacing matinees at Tecumseh, beginning Aug. 31, and thereafter every two weeks alternating with Adrian. Races called at 2 p.m. Prizes will be given the successful competitors. No charge for entry. For further particulars or to make entries, apply to C. D. Bills. Entries close Aug. 31, 1 p.m. Admission 25c. Ladies free.

The Adrian Press of last week contains this item:

The wife of Dr. Dayton Parker, formerly of this city, died at Bay View, Petoskey, Thursday of last week, of heart disease. Mrs. Parker was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cogswell, formerly of Deerfield township. She was an affectionate, lovable wife, and much esteemed lady, who leaves many friends. Five children and her husband survive her.

Mr. Cogswell's home was in Tecumseh, when he owned an interest in the Slayton planning mill. Ida Cogswell had hosts of friends here who will learn of her demise with sincere regret.

The residence of Thos. Wyrill was the scene of a nice little surprise party Saturday evening last. Some evil disposed person enticed them off to her mothers, Mrs. A. McNeil's, in the afternoon, and upon their return about 7 o'clock they found the house and grounds overrun with neighbors and friends who had called to pay their respects. Tables were spread on the lawn, and loaded down with eatables which the callers had thoughtfully brought with them. After supper the guests spent an hour or so in social intercourse, and departed, wishing the host and hostess many more years of happiness, and leaving behind them as a memento of the event, a beautiful water service. The affair was very neatly planned, and just as neatly executed.

A GENEROUS OFFER.—The celebrated Dr. Gleason, after a practice of forty years, having during all that time made the cure of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption his special study, has in this time so perfected his treatment as to be able to cure nearly all who suffer from these complaints. Having reached the age of seventy years, he realizes that the time is near at hand when these valuable remedies must be in other hands or become lost to the world. Desiring that his Home Treatment should be within the reach of all, he has placed the prescriptions with the Hall Chemical Company; this company, knowing the wonderful success of the Home Treatment in the cure of all Throat and Lung Troubles, have decided to send the full treatment ON TRIAL to any one who wishes to try it. Dr. Gleason has also written a valuable treatise on these diseases, which is profusely illustrated with finely executed wood-cuts, showing the Head, Throat and Lungs as they are when diseased; it discusses in an able manner the cause and cure of these complaints; it is printed on heavy super-calendered paper and handsomely bound. This book, together with full instructions how to order on trial, will be sent free to all who will write and ask for it. Address

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

A Lansing gentleman of color, who's hitherto earned his bread by the sweat of his brow and a kit of carpenter tools, has just pulled a $15,00 wind-fall off the Louisiana state concern.

Nearly $1,000,000 worth of edible material—in the raw state—left this commonwealth via the Port Huron custom house last month, while less than $300,000 represents the amount that got away at Detroit, during the same period.

A Cadmus citizen, who by the way is a ruralist and the owner of a drove of swine, knows exactly what a liberal dose of hard cider will do for the squealers. He tried it, and some of the porkers survived the three days drunk that followed, while others were sure enough candidates for the happy hunting grounds.

[illegible] game in the upper peninsula seems to partake a trifle of the hazardous. But an umpire got through his job all O. K. at L'Anse, with nary a kick. The varied outfit of shootin' irons that ornamented his anatomy may have had something to do with the very submissive manner in which his decisions were received by the spectators.

A St. Clair editor has laid aside his pencil and scissors and will grind himself through the ministerial mill. There's doubtless more of a $ inducement in the latter profession, while the assurance of soft clothes and chicken pie is much more conducive to a contented frame of mind than stove-wood, and subscription promises that never materialize.

They've bounced a policeman down at Jackson for taking a snooze while on duty, and yet this is called a land of liberty.

Burglars will likely pass Grand Lodge by on the other side in future. They paid the town a visit on a recent dark night, but got narry a cent from the three safes they cracked and ruined. Such utter lack of success must indeed be disheartening.

Gen see county pioneers will picnic at Long Lake and rehearse had luck times Aug. 29.

Most of the early pioneers of Ionia county have passed over to the majority, though one of the landmarks of pioneer civilization—a log school house still remains.

Lansing folks are bound to entertain the state fair visitors even if it takes the last biscuit and cot in the house. To make sure that everybody has a place to snore, some of the churches will be curtained off into sleeping apartments. Snorin' is catching in some places, you know.

The millennium must be near at hand for old Van Buren has turned out a perfect man. Fact; for he umpired a ball game at Paw Paw, giving "perfect satisfaction." When a man can accomplish a feat like that, he's prepared to become a full-fledged angel on short notice, and "without benefit of the clergy."

The late state military campers at Gogebic lake seem to have been proficient foragers. An adjacent farmer claims that they captured sixty of his chickens, while on the homeward march. A Lansing dealer had 100 watermelons confiscated and a Charlotte citizen had a whole lot of pop washed down their thirsty throats. Who says Michigan isn't prepared for war.

The Mason Clothes Pin factory will hang out its line over in Mason county where an abundance of timber and a fair sized bonus are waiting to be harvested.

Portland don't propose to thirst—not if an adequate supply of wholesome water available anything—for some time to come, having contracted for a thirty years' supply as a starter.

A Jackson saloonist persisted in feeding a man firewater after his wife had forbidden it, and now a Jackson jury has awarded the woman $500 damages against the beverage dispenser because his red-eye had made her husband a worthless cost.

Otis Lemunge, a Van Buren county youth of 14 years, goes to the state reform school for three years for criminal assault. They graduate young in old Van Buren, in some cases.

The pioneers of Kalamazoo county and lots of other folks—something like 5,000 or 6,000 in all, picnicked at Long Lake, and had a jolly old-fashioned time. Since the last county 50 of the pioneers had joined the silent party.

Hale Wagar, an Iowa lumberman, will have a train of thirty cars with machinery and things, designed to harvest the timber crop, and transship the outfit to Mobile, Ala. A logging railroad, with its complement of rolling stock, is included in the job lot.

Wisdom may be an attribute of age, but there's cases where the stock in hand is mighty small and no mistake. A Jackson chap who's seen 73 summers has been called upon to explain to the jury—the man—why he should not pay complainant $10,000 for attempted improper liberties with her person. The lady in the case is past 50 years of age.

Miss Mary Smith, a Grand Blanc maiden is the owner of a 42-year-old horse. If Miss Mary is as aged as the equine, her chances—there, there, we've never yet said a word against the girls, bless their hearts and aren't going to begin now.

The steam threshers have begun the season's consuming record in good shape, making a clean sweep in several cases. One of the latest conflagrations from this source was the barn of L. Cornwell, a Mt. Morris man. A lot of barley, 1,200 bushels of wheat and other property was also incinerated.

Something more than 10,000 lifeless sparrows, a horse so full of punctures that he'll never kick again, a boy with a leg full of lead, and another minus one eye, is the record of the bow-and-sparrow-shooting campaign at Grand Rapids, thus far. Quite a varied beginning.

An upper peninsula powder mill, located not far from Norway, went off on the 17th. Nobody hurt, but there's mighty little left of the plant except the ground it stood on, and even that indicates that something might have happened.

There is a proper time no doubt in which to do everything, and midsummer may be all right for a house cleaning job, but a Cedar Springs lady tried it and broke an arm. She had clambered upon the dining room table in order to "shoo" a bit of dirt from the ceiling, but the table wasn't accustomed to such usage and "kicked," with the result as already stated.

A Jackson merchant has been closed out of business on a chattel mortgage held by his wife. She was too well acquainted with the mortgagor, it seems, to take any chances.

Sauerkraut ought to be plentiful and cheap this fall, unless a trust gets hold of the appetizer. A Dundee man has 55,000 cabbages whose heads are swelling every day.

A Menominee man carries a flattened bullet around in his pocket that struck his head last Fourth of July, just to show how hard-headed some folks are. This particular head came out of the collision in good shape even if the beauty of the bullet was somewhat marred.

Not far from Port Huron there lives a farmer who hired a boy to assist in tending the stock and tilling the soil. Among the first tasks assigned him was salting a calf that jointly occupied a pasture with some colts, and, boy like, he rubbed the salt into the calf's hide. Then the colts took to licking the calf, and now the calf hasn't a hair left to cover its sore and sensitive pelt.

The Lutheran synod of this state has just decided that the Bible is solely the production of inspiration and the Almighty, and that whosoever believes otherwise is—mistaken. That surely ought to settle the mooted problem.

William Amick, an Alamo gentleman, happened to have secured the ill-will of another young fellow of the place—possibly because William was altogether the most successful in winning the affection of a certain young lady—who set about for their discomfiture by stretching a rope across a walk that the young people frequented on moonlight evenings. The scheme worked as planned, but the schemer got a thrashing that wasn't on the programme, for which William paid a $6 fine with the belief that he got the full worth of his money.

SHOT DEAD IN HIS TRACKS.

A Chicago Thief Killed by a Conductor Whom He Had Assaulted.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 24.—An unknown man, well dressed and wearing valuable diamonds, supposed to be a Chicago thief, was shot dead between this city and Wadsworth Friday night, by Frank Parker, a conductor on the St. Paul road. Parker was in charge of freight train No. 19, which passed through Wadsworth at about midnight. When the train stopped at a switch a short distance this side of Wadsworth four men boarded the caboose and informed Parker that they intended to ride to Milwaukee, but refused to pay their fare.

Struck Him a Blow in the Face.

Parker compelled them to leave the car while it was yet at a standstill, but they remained beside the track, and just as the train was starting one of them drew a revolver, with the butt end of which he dealt the conductor a crushing blow in the face. Parker drew his revolver and as the train was moving off he fired three shots in return. He did not learn the effect of his fire until he arrived in this city, when word was received from Wadsworth that the dead body of his assailant had been found near the track with the revolver still clutched in his lifeless hand.

Complaint to the Commerce Commission.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 26.—The following complaint has been filed with the inter-state commerce commission: Charles D. Sampson and Thomas H. Watkins, coal dealers and shippers, of Scranton, Pa., have filed complaints against the New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad company, charging that this road carries coal for the Hudson Canal and Hillsdale Coal and Iron companies from the Carbondale coal district of Pennsylvania to points in New York and New Jersey at much lower rates than are allowed the complainants. They have also filed a complaint against the Delaware and Hudson Canal company for charging unjust and unreasonable rates on coal shipped from the Pennsylvania coal fields to points in New York.

Report on European Dockyards.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 24.—The navy department has just received the second edition of Naval Constructor Hichborn's report on European dockyards. The importance of a work of this kind to all maritime nations is evidenced by the many applications from foreigners for copies. The report contains the latest information relating to dockyards, naval vessels, their equipment, etc. Also the different systems employed in the management and education of labor in both private and government yards in England, France, Germany, Russia and Italy. Copies in half-leather binding are to obtained on application to the construction bureau of the navy department.

The St. Louis Laundry War.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 24.—The labor unions of the city have taken up the fight of the laundry girls against the Chinese, and at a meeting of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers Friday night all members were requested to boycott Chinese laundries. It was also decided to form the laundry girls into a union, so that they could receive fair wages from the laundry proprietors. A member of the Trades and Labor assembly said the organization of the laundry girls into a union would be begun as soon as the committee of organization completed its plan for doing the work.

Murderer Wright's Examination.

FRANKFORT, Mich., Aug. 24.—The Wright examination came to a close after the testimony of Coroner Donovan at noon Friday. The defense waived examination in the killing of Dr. Thurber, and Charles T. Wright was held for murder in the first degree and committed without bail until the next term of court, which convenes in November. A strong effort will be made to get a change of venue. Sheriff Case started with his prisoner for Traverse City jail, forty miles distant, the Benzonia structure being considered unsafe. This ends the first act of the most terrible crime ever committed in northern Michigan.

Evidence of a Foul Murder.

PANA, Ills., Aug. 24.—A foul murder was probably committed near here last Tuesday. That evening a man and woman in a buggy were seen driving past the farm of Byron James. Within an hour the same man and rig drove rapidly past in the opposite direction without the woman. Later in the evening an empty log house a mile away from James' farm was discovered on fire. Friday several human bones, including bones of an unborn infant, were found in the ruins, doubtless the remains of the woman. So far no clew to either the man or woman could be found.

A Judge in a Moonshine Fight.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 24.—In a fight between a posse headed by Judge Lewis and members of the Howard moonshiners' gang on Tuesday in Harlan county, Bird Spurlock, George Hall, and two men named Meredith and Smallwood were killed. All but Spurlock were members of the Lewis posse, and the outlaws won the fight. Judge Lewis was personally in command of the posse because Sheriff Howard is a relative of one of the men whose arrest was attempted.

Will Go into the Waste Basket.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 24.—The acting secretary of war has suspended the order assigning Surgeon Porter, who recently tended his resignation, to Jackson barracks, La. Meanwhile the resignation remains unacted upon, and it will probably go to the waste basket, as Surgeon Porter tendered it because he had been ordered to Jackson barracks while awaiting retirement.

Promotion and Appointment.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 24.—E. C. Fowler, of Maryland, for many years a clerk in the office of the first assistant postmaster general, was Saturday promoted to be chief clerk of the first assistant's office. P. H. Bristow, of Iowa, was Saturday made appointment clerk in the office of the first assistant postmaster general, postoffice department.

Remarkable Nerve.

The early history of America is full of instances of men having great nerve. But we are rapidly becoming the most nervous people on earth. The recent increase of insanity, epileptic fits, headache, backache, neuralgia, sleeplessness, nervousness, dyspepsia, fluttering of the heart, etc., points to an early decay of the race, unless this tendency is checked. Nothing will cure these diseases like Dr. Miles' Nervine, warranted to contain neither opium nor morphine. Sample bottles free at Baker & Hall's Drug Store. Don't fail to try it.

DAVID SLAYS GOLIATH.

LESSON IX, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, SEPT. 1.

Text of the Lesson, 1 Sam. xvii, 32-52.

Commit Verses 45, 46—Golden Text, Rom. viii, 31.—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

After the spirit of the Lord came mightily upon David, as we learned in last week's lesson, the spirit of the Lord departed from Saul, and an evil spirit from the Lord troubled him (chap. xvi, 14); and that evil spirit is mentioned five times in the closing verses of the chapter, as well as in chaps. xviii, 10; xix, 9. Saul, having refused to obey God and follow Him, is simply left by God to the guidance of the one whom he preferred. In II Thess. ii, 8-12, it is written that when people refuse to receive the truth God will send them strong delusion; or, in other words, leave them to the delusions and lies which they have preferred to the truth. The only safety is to hear His voice.

32. "And David said to Saul, Let no man's heart fail because of him." The armies of Israel and of the Philistines were in battle array upon two mountains facing each other, and between them lay a valley; for forty days, morning and evening, Goliath the giant, the champion of the Philistines, stood and cried for some man of Israel to come and fight with him, saying, If he kill me we will be your servants, and if I kill him you will be our servants. Thus he defied or reproached the armies of Israel, and inasmuch as he was a man over nine feet high, his coat of mail weighing over 150 pounds, and the head of his spear about twenty pounds, no man in Israel was willing to try battle with him.

33. "And Saul said to David, Thou art not able." Saul, like all his soldiers, saw only with his natural eyes, and looking upon David's youth and apparent inexperience in matters of war, said: Thou art but a youth, while this Philistine is a man of war from his youth, and therefore thou art not able to go against him to fight with him. In Saul's eyes it was simply a question of man against man, and so it seemed to be in the eyes of all Israel, and the God of Israel, the Lord God of Hosts, was not thought of, much less relied upon. How could a people whose history from their very beginning was so full of the mighty power of God on their behalf ever forget Him or fail to trust in Him?

34-36. "He hath defied the armies of the Living God." The Living God was to David a far greater reality than this mass of defiant and blaspheming flesh and blood.

37. "The Lord that delivered me, * * * will deliver me." This sounds like the great apostle to the Gentiles when he said "I was delivered out of the mouth of the lion; and the Lord shall deliver me from every evil work, and will preserve me unto His heavenly kingdom." II Tim. iv, 17, 18. It was the same spirit in each, and probably Paul learned the secret from David. What simple confidence in God, what grand assurance; and yet so many Christians cannot get beyond "I hope it is well with me," "I trust I am a child of God." Why not come out clearly and say "I believe God," "I know whom I have believed and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day."

38, 39. "And David said, I cannot go with these; for I have not proved them." When Saul saw the grand confidence of David in the Living God, he said, "Go, and the Lord be with thee;" then he armed David with his armor and David assayed to go, but he was glad to put it off, for he had not been accustomed to rely upon such helps. He knew God, but he did not know the use of man's devices for safety and self defense. He had no armor but the presence of God when he slew the lion and the bear, and he would go now with the same.

41-44. "When the Philistine looked about and saw David he disdained him." So the flesh always despises the Spirit, just as Ishmael mocked Isaac, but the flesh shall be conquered and the Spirit will prevail.

45. "Thou comest with sword, spear and shield; but I come in the name of the Lord of Hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast defied." Goliath represented simply himself and his own power and skill; but David thought nothing of himself; he represented the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israel, and the question was not what could David do, but what could He do in whose name David went forth.

46. "That all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel." David says what God will do, and that through him as the instrument, but the object will be to honor God and not David. Now the Lord searcheth all hearts and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts; He weigheth our actions, our spirits and our paths (I Chron. xxviii, 9; I Sam. ii, 3; Prov. xvi, 2; Isa. xxvi, 7); and He sees whether in our inmost souls we are seeking to make Him known or whether there is also quite a large desire to make ourselves known. Had there been in David's heart any desire for his own fame he could not have gone forward so confidently.

47. "All this assembly shall know that the Lord saveth not with sword and spear: for the battle is the Lord's, and He will give you into our hands." See how David is nothing and God is everything; it is Paul's cry, "Not I, but Christ;" "Not I, but the Grace of God" (Gal. ii, 20; I Cor. xv, 10). Notice also that not only shall Israel know, but all the earth shall know that Jehovah is the God and deliverer of Israel. When the true David, Israel's Messiah, shall in the last days overthrow a greater Goliath, even the Antichrist, then shall Israel know that Jesus, so long despised, is their own Messiah and Saviour; and all the earth shall know that the God of Israel is the only Living and True God. If we as Christians would daily remember that the battle of our life is the Lord's and let Him fight for us, what victory over our enemies we would have and what glory there would be to God. It is as true of every child of God as it was of Israel, concerning all things with which we have to contend that "the battle is the Lord's."

48, 49. "David hasted, and ran toward the army to meet the Philistine." Many thousands of Israel and many thousands of the Philistines are watching the stripling and the giant as they go forth to meet each other in deadly conflict and to decide the fate of these nations. If the armies heard the conversation of the two it must have been that the faith of some in Israel was strengthened by the grand words of David and his unearthly courage in going forth unarmed to meet the man who for forty days had made all their hearts to tremble; while on the part of the Philistines the jeering of their champion must have been re-echoed by thousands. What a moment of intensest interest it is as David now runs to meet his enemy, and as he does so sends with deadly aim, and more than human power, a stone from his well tried sling. In an instant the giant falls upon his face to the earth, the stone having sunk into his forehead. Where is now his strength or the power of his gods in whose name he had cursed David? He has ceased to reproach the God of Israel, his tongue is silent in death. God could have done it as easily without David's help, but He chose thus to honor His servant who delighted to honor Him.

CAUSED BY WRONG ORDERS.

An Official Excursion on the B. and O. Collides with Another Train.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 24.—Yesterday morning the accomodation train due here at 11:10 a. m. collided with a special eastbound train carrying Baltimore and Ohio officials at a point between Petroleum and Silver Run, twenty-five miles from here, on the Parkersburg branch of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The accident was caused by wrong orders being given to the engineers. The special train was ordered to pass the accommodation at Petroleum, the farther point east, and the accommodation to pass the special train at Silver Run, the farther point west. At the time of the collision both trains were going thirty-five miles an hour.

Met on a Sharp Curve.

They met on a sharp curve and without a moment's warning dashed into each other, wrecking both engines and a baggage car, instantly killing Engineer Lyman, fatally injuring Engineer George Rowland, and instantly killing the two firemen, James Fletcher and John Bailey. One of the officials, named Hunter, was badly and perhaps fatally hurt. A Mrs. Manley, of Central, W. Va., was badly injured. Councilman Robert Malley, of this city, was cut and bruised. Baggagemaster Rose was cut. A colored porter on the special was thrown through a glass door and probably fatally injured. There were some miraculous escapes. The dead bodies were brought here.

GOOD DAY FOR JACK KETCH.

Four Murderers Swung Off at New York—One in Montana.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Four murderers, Patrick Packenham, Jack Lewis (colored), James Nolan and Ferdinand Carolin, were hanged in the yard of the Tombs yesterday morning about 7 o'clock. They were swung off two at a time. Packenham and Nolan swung first and Lewis and Carolin next. Carolin smoked a cigar, but was very nervous and shocked his attending priests by breaking out "I die an innocent man, G—d d—n it; I didn't do this thing." At this Lewis said: "What's the matter with you, anyway?" Why don't you die like a man?

"I will die like a man," shrieked Carolin, his face turning perfectly livid. "I will die like a man—an innocent man." Then the drop fell. They were all hung for woman murder.

He Murdered a Teamster.

BUTTE, Aug. M.T., 24.—Harry Roberts was hanged here yesterday afternoon for the unprovoked killing last May of J. W. Crawford, a teamster in his employ. Roberts' neck was broken by the fall.

PILES! PILES! PILES!

Dr. William's Indian Pile Ointment is the only sure cure for Blind, Bleeding or Itching Piles ever discovered. It never fails to cure old chronic cases of long standing.

Judge Coons, Maysville, Ky., says: "Dr. William's Indian Pile Ointment cured me after years of suffering."

HOW CAN PARENTS

allow their children to cough and strain and cough and calmly say: "Oh! it is only a little cold," and keep giving them cheap and dangerous medicines, until they are down with lung fever or consumption, when they can be so easily relieved by BEGGS' CHERRY COUGH SYRUP? It has no superior, and few equals. J. J. ORR, Druggist.

WHAT ON EARTH

Is the reason people will not, can not, or do not see any difference in cheap nostrums put up by Cheap John houses or irresponsible parties at enormous profits, rather than take a medicine of world wide reputation and one that is giving universal satisfaction at equal price? No medicine in the world is giving such unparalleled satisfaction for purifying the blood as BEGGS' BLOOD PURIFIER & BLOOD MAKER, and every bottle that does not do its work will cost you nothing.

J. J. ORR Druggist.

LONG LIFE.

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought untill we recive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease preventer that has yet been discovered, is simered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names and guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them.

They do not know, of course, unless they have courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always. Why dont you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but one dollar for a very large bottle. Try it at once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggists may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine—of health.

WRITING MACHINE CABINET and OFFICE DESK

For Remington, Hammond, and Crandall Type Writer.

The advantages of this Type-writer and Office Desk over all other so-called Combination Cabinets, are:

First.—The ease and simplicity with which the desk is changed from a Library or Office Desk to a Type-writer Table. This change is effected by pushing the lid covering the machine back in the rear of cabinet—it being a roller top—removing it entirely from sight, thus overcoming the objectionable board and sounder in front of the operator. The movable top is perfectly flat, is baize covered, and forms a complete writing desk when the machine is not in use. The table on which the machine rests is so evenly balanced by our patent adjustments that it needs but a slight touch to bring the machine in position.

Second.—The advantages of the swinging table are: The table is so balanced near its center on patent malleable iron arms, that when the machine brought in place for use, it does not depend on rods or hangers at rear of platform for support, but is held rigidly in place by its own weight, making it impossible for the machine to be tumbled down an incline in back of desk by the breaking of a rear support. The machine rests on patent slides which keeps the machine in place, and can be drawn out beyond the desk, well under the operator's hand.

Third.—The construction of the lid closing machine space makes it air tight, and the table moving felt around its boarders thoroughly protects the machine from dust.

Fourth.—The foot rest and the construction of the table adjustments makes the desk as ridged as though the top was one solid board, which is a matter of great importance where a solid type-writing table is required. No operator can do good work on a shaky table.

Fifth.—The cabinet is a splendid piece of cabinet work. We manufacture them in Walnut, Antique Oak, Natural Oak, Natural Cherry, Cherry imitation, Mahogany and Ash.

Agents wanted to sell these cabinets, and where we have no agencies established we will sell direct from our works at wholesale prices.

THE SMEAD DRY CLOSET SYSTEM.

EDITOR HERALD:—Theories are advanced against the Smead Dry closet as used in the basement of our West Branch school building. Theories become important only when put to practical test and proven correct. Wishing to know the practical results of Smead's theory I addressed the following letter to prominent sanitarians, educators and others:

"Please tell us your experience with and opinion of the Smead Dry Closet in basement of public school buildings. Do you think Dry Earth Closet would be an improvement on Smead system?"

The following are a few of the replies. Respectfully Yours.

A. W. MILLS.

LANSING, Mich., July 13, '89.

Answering Yours, referring to the Smead Dry Closet System I will say, that I, with others of our Board visited Grand Ledge, AnnArbor, Saginaw, Detroit and Toledo, before adopting the system, opposed as it was by Dr. Baker, Kellogg and others of State Board of Health. We placed it in our school building and it has given the very best satisfaction. We are having a great deal of trouble with water closets placed in our High School building a few years ago, and intend putting the Smead Dry Closet system in all our buildings as fast as we can afford it. It is a great success and you never will regret putting it in your building, if building now, I am sure. Yours, Etc.,

JASON E. NICHOLS.
President of Board of Education.

HILLSDALE, MICH., July 11, '89.

We have given the Smead System of warming and ventilating and Dry Closet a very thorough trial, and while its operation has not been uniformly satisfactorly, owing to putting it into an old building, yet whenever complaints arose and were made to the house at Toledo, they have been always on hand to correct matters, and have overcome difficulties almost entirely. Speaking generally it has been highly successful, and think much more so than anything that has preceded it or that could be put in its place. If placed in a new building put up with reference to its use, I am certain that it is perfect.

Yours Sincerely
W. A. DRAKE.
Moderator of School Board.

JACKSON, Mich., Aug. 19th, 1889.

Dear Sir:—The Dry Closet system with us is a success and is all that is claimed for it. We have in our various school buildings, the common vault, the dry earth, the water closet and the Smead system, and I do hesitate to say that the dry closet is by far the best and the cheapest to take care of. Would ask you to call and examine for yourself, but now being vacation is not used, and the vault is as dry and clean as any brick side walk. It would be better to come when the school has been running ten or twelve weeks and view the deposit of 200 pupils that will not fill a half bushel basket, can be raked out and burned like so much buffalo chips. We are well satisfied.

Respectfully,
W. L. SEATON,
Sec'y. of School Board.

JACKSON, Mich., Aug. 19, '89.

Dear Sir:—Replying to yours of 17th say that the Smead system of heating and ventilating exceeds our most sanguine expectations. We have a dry earth closet at one of our ward schools but does not compare with the Smead system. We are now contemplating putting Smead closet into our Central building with 15 or 16 rooms.

Yours Truly, C. H. HARRIS,
Prest. Board of Education.

ST. JOHNS, Mich., Aug. 11, '89.

DEAR SIR:—Our Moderator, Mr. Chas. Fowler, is not at home and I take the liberty to reply to yours of the 8th. We are well pleased with the Smead System of heating, also the closet in basement. It does every thing for us that Mr. Smead claimed it would do. Respectfully,

JOSIAH UPTON,
Director School Board.

OTSEGO, Mich., Aug. 22, '89.

Dear Sir:—In answer to yours of yesterday allow me to say that in my opinion the Smead system of Dry Air closet is the best that is in use in the public schools in Michigan. It is much better than the dry earth closet because the dry air is always in operation when needed and takes care of itself, while the dry earth closet requires looking after at the close of each half day session and an entire cleaning once a week, and I have never known that to be done promptly enough to prevent the odors from being given off. I advise you by all means to use the Smead system. I am most truly yours,

J. M. BALLOU.
Prest. State Board Education.

EAST SAGINAW, Mich. Aug. 14, '89.

Dear Sir:—We, in East Saginaw have used the Smead furnaces and dry closets in basements for four years, and will use nothing else. We have eight large schools with these appliances in them, and a success in every case. We are building a new school this season with these furnaces and closets. Use them by all means.

Very Cordially,
C. B. THOMAS,
Sup't of Schools.

We have before us the announcement for 1889-90 of DETROIT COLLEGE of MEDICINE. The Board of Trustees are:

Hon. Sidney D. Miller, Pres.
E. L. Shurley, M.D. Vice Pres.
H. O. Walker, M.D., Secy.
Geo. L. Trowbridge, Treas.
Ex.Gov. H. P. Baldwin, R. H. Fyfe, A. C. McGraw, Wm. A. Butler, Theo A. McGraw, M. D., H. F. Lyster, M D., J. B. Book, M.D., Wm. Brodie, M D., C. B. Lathrop.

FACULTY.

Theo. A. McGraw, M.D., Dean.
H. O. Walker, M.D. Secy.
J. E. Clark, M. D., Director, and 34 other prominent Detroit Doctors.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 13, '89.

Dear Sir:—As you are probably aware, some time ago the Detroit Board of Education appointed a committee consisting of Drs. McLain of Ann Arbor, Dr. Shurley and myself to investigate the Smead system and the report we made was favorable to the system. The faculty of the Detroit College of Medicine are satisfied that the system is a good one and have adopted it in its entirety in the new College building now nearing completion. I feel it is not necessary to go into reasons which have led me to favor it. I am, Yours Sincerely,

J. E. CLARK, Director,
Prof. of Chemistry and Physics of Detroit College of Medicine.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., July 18, '89.

My Dear Sir:—Not a word of fault has been found by any responsible person of the Smead system since it was put into two school buildings here. The Smead system is death on the plummers, and you must expect that plummers and all their friends will howl whenever the system is adopted. The "Evening News" a year ago or so, attacked the system in Detroit, but their attack was in the interest of steam heating men and plummers, and fell flat. Since then it has been put into several buildings in Detroit. It is the best and cheapest system of heating and ventilating ever put into a public building. It has never failed to work when put into a new building. The State board of health and one or two doctors in Detroit, without practical knowledge, have said that if the entire circulation was reversed, that is if the current went down the chimney and over the excreta up into the rooms, it would be very bad and dangerous to health. So it would. So with all chimneys, if the current is reversed and the air and smoke of the chimney should descend and come into our rooms the house would be uninhabitable. But chimneys, properly constructed, do not work that way, and so long as the law of gravitation holds good, and heated and rarified air ascends, the Smead system will work. Dr Kedzie and some members of the State board to the contrary, notwithstanding. The truth is, Mr. North, every practical man who has tried the system stands by it without a single exception, and nobody opposes it but theorists and parties who are interested, or whose friends are interested in steam heating or some other system of heating and ventilation. If the Smead system of heating and closets is a good thing in Detroit, where they have a complete system of water and sewerage, how much more valuable must it be for such a town as yours and ours, which have no decent means of getting rid of excreta. I have spent much time in investigating the Smead system, and I am more and more convinced that it is the best and cheapest system of heating and ventilating yet discovered, and the only system in the world that gets rid of excreta without expense—the dry and thirsty air seizing it the moment it is dropt in the closet, absorbing its moisture—three fourth's its bulk, and carrying it with all its odors to the top of the chimney, there depositing it into the infallible air. God help a community that think an old fashioned schoolhouse privy, or an ordinary water closet, with the best of drainage even, is better than the clean, odorless and inexpensive Smead closet. I should just as soon think the intelligent people of Tecumseh would go back to belief in witchcraft, as to go back on the Smead closet system if they have given it a fair and intelligent trial.

Yours Respectfully,
W. D. HARRIMAN,
Prest. School Board.

DETROIT, Aug. 22, '89.

Dr. Sir:—Two years ago I investigated the Smead system of heating and ventilation for our school board and along with other members of the profession made a report which was published and which was strongly in favor of the system. I am of the same opinion yet.

Most Respectfully Yours,
DONALD MACLAIN, M. D.
Surgeon in-Chief, Mich. Cent. R. R.

WASHINGTON, AUG. 10, '89.

Dear Sir:—Yours of 17th inst. to hand and contents noted, and in reply, I would say, the "Smead Dry Closet System" as put in the public school buildings here, have proved satisfactory in every respect. I have examined the system of closets, in constant use for months, and always find the apartments perfectly free from any offensive odors. In my opinion it is the best closet for use in school buildings. Very Truly,

SAMUEL A. ROBINSON
Inspect. of Plumbing, Health Dept Dist. of Columbia.

MASSILLON, O., Aug. 20, '89.

Dear Sir:—Yours of Aug. 17th received. I have examined quite thoroughly into the practical workings of the air closet of Smead & Co., and have found it to work well. It is constructed on sound philosophical principles and, in my opinion, is the best method we have at present—and is especially well adapted to public school buildings. On the other hand every other method has so far failed in such buildings. The dry earth closets are good in their place though I hardly think it possible that they would have proper care in a public building.

Yours Truly,
T. CLARKE MILLER, M.D.,
Prest. Board of Education.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 20, '89.

Dear Sir:—The Smead system is in use in Muncie and Wabash this State and is giving satisfaction. I do not think dry earth closets would be any improvement over the Smead system.

Yours Truly,
C. N. METCALF,
Secy. Dept. Pub. Health, State of Indiana.

MANSFIELD, O., Aug. 20, 89.

Dear Sir:—Your favor at hand of the 17th, and I hasten to reply and will say that I have watched the results of the Smead system of Dry Closets in the basement of school and other buildings for years, and I will say without mental reservation, that I consider it the most scientific, as well as the most Sanitary method of disposing of the excreta of any method I knew of. It is cheap, durable and practical and comfortable. I have the dry earth closets at my own home and if I was to build again I would unquestionably put in Smead's entire system heater, closets and all. I have his furnace in my house, but it was put in years after my house was built, and that explains why I do not have his whole system at the present time. I have had ample opportunities of studying his entire methods and consider them par-excellent in every repect over any of the many systems I have seen and examined, not excepting the Medical and Hospital Dept. of the John Hopkins University at Baltimore, Md., which I visited and examined last May. I have the honor to remain,

Very Respectfully Yours,
R. HARVEY REED,
Secy. Ohio State Sanitary Association and Treas. National Association of R. R. Surgeons.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 8, '89.

Dry closets have been used four years. Have them in twelve school houses. Our best sanitary men approve of them—they are perfectly satisfactory. Very Truly,

O. E. D. BARRON,
Clerk of Board of Education.

BATTLE CREEK, Aug. 22, 1889.

Dear Sir:—Yours of the 21st. just received, and in reply I hasten to say that some one is circulating an unfounded rumor concerning my relations with Mr. Smead. Messrs. Smead & Co., have never undertaken to bribe me in any way. They offered to pay me for time and expenses incurred in going to Toledo to inspect their dry closet system. I refused to accept the compensation, as I made the visit as a member of the committee appointed by the State Board of Health, by the request of Messrs. Smead & Co. I authorize you to deny emphatically any statement which may be made by any party that Smead & Co. ever made any attempt to bribe me. They have from the first been too well acquainted with my views of their dry closet system to want to undertake anything of that sort, even if they felt disposed to do so.

Very Truly Yours,
J. H. KELLOGG.

Since putting the system into our west branch building, Mr. Smead has made some improvements. For three years past the part of the vault that is not brick is of iron; occasionally the janitor will pour a little kerosene in the upper end of the vault, set it on fire, and in a few minutes all their remains in the vault is a few ashes. This does away with the possibility of anything escaping that can be injurious, and saves the trouble of cleaning the vault yearly as we have done, while the practical working of the system is not changed.

Notice these facts.—This is a market fair, and exhibitors are requested to bring articles and display them attractively for sale, nothing entered for premium to be removed until Saturday, September 7.

Our evening exhibitions are a new and attractive feature. The brilliancy of an immense bazaar illuminated by electricity, and the scenes of interest presented by the gayly decked throng moving about to the sound of music and the play of fountains, will be in itself a great sight, if there were no special attractions.

Beside the show of fine animals, machinery and the choicest products of the earth and man's handiwork, there will be the special attractions all the time—races, band contest, military contests, bicycle racing, baloon ascensions, concerts, dancing, dissolving views by calcium light, masquerade carnival, etc., etc.

We call attention to the ease and cheapness with which this Exposition may be enjoyed. Reduced rates on the railroads and moderate terms and accommodation at the hotels and boarding houses, make it a cheap and enjoyable trip. The fair ground is very accessible, being only half a mile from the center of the town and the depots, and street cars run to the gates, and the Michigan Central (northern division) and Grand Trunk railroads land passengers at the entrance. Every pains will be taken to have the street and grounds sprinkled and free from dust, and the admission is only 25 cents—children under 10 years of age, 15 cents.

SIMON OLIVER.

The deceased was born in Tompkins Co., N. Y., Dec. 8th, 1806, and at his death was 82 years, 8 months and 10 days old. He died Sunday Aug. 18th, 1889, and on Tuesday, Aug. 20th, at 10:30 A. M., in the Christian church, Britton, funeral services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. James Wright. A large circle of relatives and friends were present to pay their last kind act of respect to an aged citizen of Ridgeway, having resided in the town 35 years. The deceased moved to Michigan in 1844 and in the winter of 1846 was converted in a revival in the town of Rome this county, and in the summer of 1846 was baptized in Round Lake and joined the Christian church of that place. He moved to Ridgeway in 1854, and Jan. 19th, 1855, united with the Christian church of Ridgeway. He raised a family of 13 children to manhood and womanhood, 7 sons and 5 daughters; and, that which is wonderful to note is that only one of that large family is dead. He served in the Civil War in 1863, after a little over two years service in the 4th Mich. Calv. Three sons and four daughters were present to pay their last sad rites to their father, whom we believe has crossed the river of death in hope of immortality. Brother Oliver said to his pastor one week before death, "Elder, if I don't meet you any more on earth I hope to meet you in Heaven. I am trying to get ready to go to Heaven." He spoke of his departure with calmness. Text—Rev. xxi, 25. "There shall be no night there."

FLORA BROWN.

Wife of Joseph Brown of East Ridgeway, after sickness of some months, died on Friday morning Aug. 16th, 1889 aged 28 years, 5 months and 10 days, leaving four little children, the youngest but two years, all to the care of a lone father. Mrs. Brown patiently submitted to God and died in the faith and hope of the gospel. Funeral services were conducted at Petersburgh, by Rev. James Wright, and burried in the cemetery of said place. Text: Cor. xv. 19. If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men miserable.

ABLE J. LIDSTER.

The deceased, an infant son, aged 13 weeks, of Mr. and Mrs. Lidster of East Ridgeway, died Thursday morning, Aug. 22d. 1889. Funeral services conducted in the home on Friday at 10:00 A. M., by Rev. James Wright of Britton, Mich. Text: Luke xviii, 17. "Whosoever shall not receive the Kingdom of God as a little child shall in no wise enter therein."

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. Alice D. Osborn, widow of the late Franklin Osborn, and one of the pioneers of Franklin township, this county, departed this life quite suddenly at her residence, Saturday afternoon, Aug. 24th. Her maiden name was Grove, she being the daughter of Wm. and Isabel Grove, of Ovid, Seneca Co. N. Y., where she was born March 24th, 1820. In January, 1845, she married Franklin Osborn and with him moved at once to Michigan, settling upon the property now owned by their son, Wm. J. To them six children have been born, five of whom remain to mourn their loss. The funeral was held from the residence, Tuesday at 2 P. M.; a large concourse of relatives and friends gathering to pay their last tribute to one who was ever a valued friend and neighbor. Rev. A. B. Storms, of Hudson, assisted by the Methodist and Congregational pastors of Tipton, conducted the exercises. Her remains were laid to rest in the family lot in the Tipton cemetery. A mother in Israel has gone to her heavenly home. Altho' living a quiet domestic life she has left a motherly character and example behind, which her children will cherish and honor so long as life shall last.

THE BRITTON CHURCH FAIR.

The fair and festival under the auspices of the Christian church, which was inaugurated at Britton last Tuesday, has been a most emphatic success thus far. Exelby's large hall is arranged in tasty shape, the room being nicely ornamented with evergreens and bunting. A bazaar for the sale of fancy articles; a fish pond; a gypsy camp and other attractions are ranged about the sides of the room. One ante-room is used for ice cream and the other is converted into an art gallery. This is a veritable curiosity shop and contains a rare collection of old relics, paintings and works of art. It has the best assortment of relics we have seen in many months. Among them are a teapot once owned by Grandma Britton's mother, a bible printed in 1607, now owned by Mrs. Geo. Oliver, a history of England in four volumes, 103 years old. The "odds and ends" are gotten up with rare ingenuity and taste. Last evening a literary entertainment was presented to a crowded house. The Britton band furnished some excellent music, while the dialogues, recitations, etc., were all finely rendered. The male quartette carried off the whole bakery, including the bologna sausages. It was an excellent program throughout for an entertainment of that character. The brief time before going to press renders it impossible for us to give as lengthy a report, as its merits deserve. The fair continues this afternoon and will close with a repetition of the exhibition this evening. If you have not already been there, take our advice and visit the fair to day.

THE LENAWEE CLUB AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 31st, 1889.

DEAR "HERALD."—The Lenawee Club held its last meeting at the Grand Pacific Hotel, Tuesday Eve., Aug. 20th. A pleasant evening was passed and now the permanency of the club seems assured.

The executive committee met at the same place last Monday night and selected Thursday, Sept. 19th., as the date for tha picnic reception, to be given to visitors from Lenawee Co., to the exposition during that week.

Another meeting of the club will be held in parlor 23 at the Grand Pacific, on Tuesday evening, Sept., 10th., when it is hoped that not only every member of the club, but every one of the Lenawee colony in this city will be present, to discuss the picnic.

The exposition opens on Wednesday, Sept., 4th., and a fine exhibit is promised. The art collection is expected to be far ahead of any of late years, and we may expect to see some notable works.

Geo. T. Ketcham is one of the latest additions to our colony in this city, and I am told that he has secured a good position. George looks exactly as he did when he left Tecumseh years ago, and it did me good to meet him again, although I saw him but for a few minutes one day in J. B. Kerr's drug store on Lake St., while waiting for a car.

W. D. Meeker holds one of the most responsible positions in the North side cable car offices now, having been promoted to the secretary and treasurership of the company. His sterling worth is fully recognized by the company.

Mrs Andrew Pearson, daughter of the kind old gentleman who will be remembered by many Tecumseh people, Mr. Parmalee, still has the horse that her father drove in Tecumseh many years ago, and intends to drive him to the picnic and let him be seen by her old friends.

Yours Ever,

AN ARTIST'S ROMANCE.

STRANGE HISTORY OF A GRAND AND FAMOUS PAINTING.

How Konstantin Makoffski, the Great Russian Painter, Produced His Master-Piece—The Famous Picture To Be Exhibited at the Detroit Exposition.

The greatest painter Russia has produced, and one of the greatest painters of Europe, is Konstantin Makoffski. He was already recognized as the master of Russian art when he deliberately set himself to the task of painting a picture that should be immortal, and that should also be a national Russian picture—a picture that should immortalize not himself only, but Russian art. Artists and art students can conceive how difficult a task he had undertaken. It was, and is, perhaps, the most difficult undertaking in all the realm of art—to create a national picture that shall be immortal. Think of all the immortal works of art in the world, and, since the classics of Rome and Greece, how few are national, done by a national artist! There are hardly a dozen really great national paintings. There are great pictures that are utterly French, or German, or Italian, or Spanish, or English; but the things they depict either belong to history, and are national only because of history, or else they show things that might happen in any other country. Their greatness depends upon their appeal to the common human nature and the common knowledge of all countries. Of distinctively American national pictures perhaps the best known, although not an immortal painting, is the popular "The Trapper's Last Shot," in which a white borderer, clad in buckskin and riding a Kentucky horse, has taken refuge in the swampy reeds of a western prairie bottom, and sits at bay upon his blown horse, with his last bullet in his long rifle, to beat off

DETROIT INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION—ART HALL.

A BAND OF BLOODTHIRSTY SIOUX INDIANS.

This is national and American because the white man is an American of a type that no other land produces. So are the Indians, of course, American. So is the prairie American. The weapons are also American. And finally the story told by the picture is such a story as no other country ever had to tell.

Konstantin Makoffski undertook to produce a picture that would depict men and women that should be thoroughly and unmistakably Russian, engaged in something that should be Russian also, and not to be found in any other country. Besides it must be an immortal picture. Surely a great task. He selected as his subject because the old Muscovite wedding feast is an institution peculiar to Russia. Other countries have wedding feasts; but none other ever had such a wedding feast as is peculiar to the Muscovite customs. And in his picture are none but strictly typical Russian faces and costumes, and all accessories.

"THE RUSSIAN WEDDING FEAST,"

The great ambition of a Russian artist is to get a picture accepted and placed in the imperial art gallery of the Czar. That gallery is difficult of access. Its paintings are the rarest master-pieces of Russian art. Konstantin Makoffski shut himself up in his studio for months, while he labored like a madman upon his great project. Nobody except his wife was admitted, and she so rarely that she, like all his friends, suspected insanity in her husband. His intense earnestness and labor wore the painter to a skeleton. He worked at his picture at all hours; he dreamed of it while he slept; he painted and repainted, drew and redrew, in a growing fever of enthusiasm, until at last it was completed. Then his wife shed tears, because now she could have her husband again, and the artist fainted from prolonged exhaustion. The great picture was a triumph of genius.

The painting was sent to the Czar. The whole imperial family and the Russian artists were delighted with it. But it happened that, just then, a world's art exhibition was being held in Antwerp. The Czar, desiring that Europe should recognize Russian genius, sent the picture there. It instantly won the recognition of all Europe, and it was awarded the medaille d'honeur as of the age. Under the rules of the Antwerp exhibition the picture was sold. The Czar expected to put it in his imperial gallery; but he wanted money for his army; and so an American—Mr. Charles W. Schuman—bid a fabulous price and carried off the picture. He built a special private art gallery for it in New York, and refused to allow it to be exhibited elsewhere. But finally he yielded to the public desire, and consented to lend it to the Detroit International Exposition, at a cost of $50 per day for each day it is exhibited. Thus this great picture comes to the Detroit Exposition, where the people will have the rare privilege of seeing it.

It is a wonderful picture, not only in its design, the characteristic Russian faces, the strange costumes, the room, the table and the furniture; but it is also a masterpiece of color. It is a blaze of gorgeous colors, and yet so blended as to make a rich, harmonious whole. No description can do it full justice, and this grand painting must be seen, as it will be by thousands upon thousands, at the great Art Gallery of the Exposition, where it will be the star amid three hundred and fifty other admirable paintings and many other works of art.

Marching Thousands.

Milwaukee Witnesses a Great Grand Army Pageant.

THIRTY-FIVE THOUSAND IN LINE.

Gen. Sherman and Mrs. Logan the Principal Attraction for the Tramping Veterans—The Review a Great Success and Not a Single Accident to Mar It—Meeting of the Iron Brigade.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 28.—The gathering of the hosts of the Grand Army to hold their annual encampment began to make itself felt in this city Sunday, and from then until Monday night every train brought hundreds of veterans and sightseers, until by Monday night there were more than 50,000 strangers in the city. Tuesday morning the trains were again loaded with people, mostly sightseers, and probably 100,000 would not more than express the number of visitors. The city was radiant with bunting, and the national emblem floated from hundreds of staffs in every section of the city, while the decorations were profuse and beautiful everywhere.

Arrival of Notables.

The man of all men whom everybody wanted to see—not the less because this might be the last time he could be seen in public—was Gen. Sherman, and next to him Mrs. Logan was the greatest attraction. Mrs. Logan arrived Monday and must have been proud of the welcome she received. She was accompanied by Gen. Alger, Secretary Rusk and numerous other well-known citizen-soldiers. Maj. Warner, commander-in-chief, and Pension Commissioner Tanner arrived Sunday night and received a hearty greeting. The commander was escorted to this city by the Missouri G. A. R., and came in a car that was ablaze with red, white and blue.

"Old Tecumseh" a Little Behind.

Gen. Sherman was looked for early Monday afternoon, but he got left for once in his life and did not get here until evening. Somehow he became mixed up in the crowd at the railway station in Chicago, and before he could be found or find his way to the railway carriage the train started and he was forced to await a later train. When he did arrive he was received with marks of esteem that must have warmed "the cockles of his heart." Thousands of veterans and citizens lined the route to the Plankington house, where he is stopping, and the cheers from the railway station to the hotel were continuous. The general held an impromptu reception for an hour and then retired for the night.

Greeting Old Comrades.

Monday was put in by the veterans in the pleasant task of greeting their friends, and many an old soldier met for the first time since the war some one whom he had supposed dead. Ample provision had been made by the citizens for the entertainment of the visitors and tents were put up in many instances on the private lawns of citizens, who furnished the "rations" for the camp. It was a day of receptions and the local committees were kept busy meeting the in-coming delegations and assigning them to quarters. There was much talk among the vets as to who would be commander-in-chief, and Gen. Alger seemed to have the lead.

The Great Parade.

Tuesday was set apart for the parade. There was some friction as to who should have the right of the line, Illinois claiming it on the strength of a resolution passed at Columbus giving that honor to the oldest state encampment, while Commander Warner wanted his personal escort, the Missouri delegation, to have the honor. The point was conceded by Illinois, and at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday the head of the procession began passing the reviewing stand on Grand avenue. Here Gen. Sherman had taken his post, and in the knot of people who surrounded him were Mrs. Gen. Logan, Gen. Rusk, Governor Hoard and other distinguished citizens.

As the line passed in review the old soldiers went wild over their grizzled one-time commander, and the honors paid Mrs. Logan were only second to those paid Gen. Sherman. The parade as it passed the stand was one long cheer, and to the general's disgust it was one long strain of "Marching Through Georgia," a tune that the old hero comes very near being tired of. Conservative estimates put the number in line at 35,000, and the pageant was a brilliant one.

Closing Up the Day.

The procession having come to an end entertainments and meetings were the order. A grand war-song concert was held, at which 8,000 were present. The Woman's Relief corps was welcomed to the city by Governor Hoard and others; a campfire was held at the Turner hall; the ex-prisoners held a reunion, and the election of officers of the "Iron Brigade" took place. At the meeting the friends of Gen. Bragg hoped to elect him first vice president, but the effort failed. Gen. Gibbon was elected president and G. M. Woodward, of LaCrosse, Wis., made first vice president.

The night was spent until late bedtime in merry making and reunions, and so far as general good feeling is concerned there never was an encampment that was a greater success.

VETS COMMENCE BUSINESS.

Commander Warner's Address—Alger Elected to Lead—Boston's Luck.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 29.—The business meetings of the national encampment began yesterday. After the preliminary exercises the first thing was the annual address of Commander-in-Chief Warner. He began with a glowing eulogy of the organization, which he said now numbered over 380,000 members in good standing, paid an eloquent tribute to the "old commander," Gen. Grant, and feelingly referred to the number of veterans claimed by death during the past year, which was 4,696. He then took up the question of pension legislation, and said the soldiers would ask nothing but what was right, and that they would demand. The disability bill should be passed by congress and service pension was sure to come. He said that the bondholders should remember that the soldiers made their bonds valuable and ever insisted that they should be paid to the uttermost farthing, and that they had equal claims on the country, at least. He preferred help for living comrades to monuments to dead ones.

Opposed to Bussey's Ruling.

Gen. MacMahon, of New York, offered a resolution which was referred, declaring that Assistant Secretary Bussey's ruling that a dishonorably discharged soldier was entitled to no rights as such was wrong. The resolution was received with applause. The pension committee reported their work with congress and the future last session of the important bills, and recommended continued efforts, which had excellent prospect of success.

Alger Elected Commander.

The election of commander-in-chief was then taken up, and Judge Veazey, of Vermont, and Gen. Consigny, of Iowa, having withdrawn, Gen. R. A. Alger was elected by acclamation. A. G. Weissert, of Wisconsin, was elected senior vice and John F. Lovett, of New Jersey, junior vice, both without opposition.

Boston was chosen as the place of meeting next year, and at 11:30 p. m. the encampment adjourned for the day.

Incidents of the Encampment.

Gen. Sherman spent two hours at the Soldiers' home yesterday, and in the afternoon went to the National park and reviewed the Chicago Zouaves, Battery D of Chicago, the First Light Battery and the Fourth Battalion.

The United States Veteran corps held its annual meeting and elected Governor Forraker president. The reports presented at the annual convention of the National Association of the Army of Tennessee showed a large increase of membership during the year.

The Woman's Relief Corps in its annual convention transacted a quantity of routine business.

A delegation of ex-members of the Confederate army arrived in the city yesterday to seek the support of the national encampment in the reunion of the Blue and the Gray, which takes place at Vicksburg next month.

THEY STOOD BY TANNER.

The G. A. R. Encampment Indorses the Corporal—The Naval Fight.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 30.—Thursday the G. A. R. encampment met in its second business session and elected Dr. Horace P. Porter, of Kansas, surgeon general and W. H. Childers, of Kentucky, chaplain. A lively debate, with Pension Commissioner Tanner for its subject, then took place. Comrade Perkins, of Kansas, introduced resolutions indorsing Corporal Tanner's actions in regard to pensions. They were supported by many delegates, and when they were read the applause was general. The principal point of objection urged by those opposing was that an investigation into the pension business was now in progress and if the resolutions passed and the corporal was found to have done something wrong the encampment would be put in a bad position; while if the corporal was vindicated, his enemies would say the administration was afraid to antagonize the Grand Army. The resolutions were finally put in a shape to overcome the objections and adopted. They express implicit confidence in the corporal's honest administration and declare their indorsement of the same. Commissioner Tanner made a speech in which he said he courted and demanded the closest scrutiny.

The Women Auxiliaries.

The encampment refused to recognize the Sons of Veterans as an auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, because of a disturbing faction in the former. Instead of giving the two women's organizations—the Loyal Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Woman's Relief Corps—formal indorsement, which would be contrary to the rules, it was recommended that the encampment bid them godspeed in the work.

Miscellaneous Matters.

The Logan monument committee was instructed to push their work to completion as fast as possible.

The committee having the matter in charge was instructed in making arrangements for the Boston encampment to secure a pledge from hotelkeepers that they would not raise their prices, and failing to obtain such a pledge to take the encampment to some city where it could be obtained.

Gen. Sherman and all the Grand Army men were given a reception and banquet during the afternoon by Brewer Pabst.

The Naval Engagement.

The great naval sham fight came off at night with 150,000 spectators. It was a great success, and for more than an hour the mimic war between the land batteries and the fleet, consisting of the Michigan warship, the cutter Fessenden, a fleet of mortar boats and tugs, kept the air in a tremble with the explosions of the big guns, while the heavens were brilliant with the glare of fireworks. The scene was a good imitation of real war, and not without its casualties, four or five men being injured by mishaps, one of whom will lose one hand. There were no fatalities, however, and the hurts, while painful, except in the case noted were not serious.

CLOSE OF THE ENCAMPMENT.

The Columbus Resolution on Pensions Indorsed—Homeward Bound.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 31.—The G. A. R. encampment finished its business Friday and adjourned sine die, and from the time of adjournment until late at night the cars out of this city were crowded with veterans returning to their homes. Gen. Sherman and Corporal Tanner left the city Thursday night.

Final Action on Pensions.

The principal business transacted was the reaffirmation of the pension resolution passed at Columbus last year, which calls for the adoption by congress of the disability and service pension bills. The resolution introduced by Gen. McMahon opposing the ruling of Mr. Bussey that declares dishonorable discharge no bar to a pension was adversely reported.

"The House of Lords."

A resolution depriving post commanders of their privilege ex officio, of voting at encampments—a privilege that has obtained for them the name of "the house of lords," was referred to a committee, which made two reports, one—the majority—adverse. This was adopted by a large majority.

The business was rushed through rapidly and by 1 o'clock p. m. everything was ready for adjournment. Gen. Warner then made a brief farewell speech and the encampment adjourned sine die.

Gen. Sherman Insulted.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Mr. Hoyt Sherman, Gen. Sherman's brother, told the reporters here yesterday that the general got into a car at Milwaukee Thursday night to come to this city. He had hardly become seated when a crowd of G. A. R. men wearing the badge of Phil Sheridan post, of this city, boarded the cars, insisted that it was their private car and that the general must vacate, which he did, finding a seat in a forward car. Among prominent G. A. R. men here last night it was considered almost incredible and the hope and belief was expressed that there was some strange mistake.

THE CASHIER SPECULATED.

Result, the Citizens' Bank at Prairie City, Ia., Is Busted.

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 30.—The Citizens' bank, of Prairie City, Jasper county, failed yesterday, with liabilities estimated at from $75,000 to $100,000. The assets are claimed to be above the usual sum. The failure is attributed to the insolvency of J. B. Rosebaugh, who was for fourteen years the bank's cashier, and who failed about ten days ago. For several years he has been speculating in land, stock and merchandise, and had drawn on the bank so heavily that when it became known the depositors began to withdraw so heavily the bank was compelled to close.

BELIEVES MRS. MAYBRICK GUILTY;

But Doubtful if She Killed Her Husband—Sentence Commuted.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The home secretary has decided the case of Mrs. Maybrick and announcement is officially made that her sentence has been commuted to imprisonment for life. The decision is peculiar inasmuch that the woman is considered guilty of the intent but that doubt exists as to her success in the purposed crime.

The decision is based on the conflict of the medical testimony given at the trial upon the point whether the quantity of poison administered by the prisoner to her husband was sufficient to kill. The lawyers and the judge whom Mr. Matthews consulted were unanimously of the opinion that it was Mrs. Maybrick's intention to commit murder.

All the morning papers express satisfaction at the commutation of Mrs. Maybrick's sentence, and commend Mr. Matthews for the able manner in which he has discharged his duty.

Serious Accident to a Circus Train.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Barnum & Bailey's circus train met with a serious accident near Potsdam while en route from Gouverneur to Montreal on the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg railroad late Thursday night. An axle broke on the second train, derailing six cars and telescoping two more, crushing everything in them. Thirty ring horses and one of the chariot teams and two camels were killed. The loss is estimated at $40,000, beside which the loss of the day's receipts at Montreal, where the circus was to show Friday, must be added. This will make an additional loss of between $15,000 and $18,000.

is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter of a century ago, as the steam power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

AFTER EXERCISE.

When men and maidens seek the sport
They find around the tennis court,
Or when upon the diamond field
Their bats the champion players wield,
When walks, or rides, or bending oars,
Bring perspiration from the pores,
Then people all should bear in mind
The best and purest soap to find.
For after some such exercise
The system must its dirt rejoice,
Absorbing then but safe and sure
The poisons found in soap impure,
And those who keep for face and hands
Or general use as time demands
The IVORY SOAP, need have no fear
From exercise throughout the year.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

C. F. Hale, a Shelby fruitist, has just sold his ten-acre peach crop as it hangs on the trees for an even $2,000. We lay no claim to the possession of superior knowledge in the granger line, but it occurs to us that $200 per acre for unharvested peaches distances the agricultural field with wheat at 75 cents per bushel, potatoes at 25 cents and butter going at a price that doesn't make it worth the while of the family cow to chew her cud.

The library of the State Agricultural college will hereafter be dusted by Miss Jane Sinclair, a Jonesville lady, she having been appointed librarian of the institution.

A couple of Jackson chaps have been called upon by a court of competent jurisdiction to explain why they built a fire under a balky horse. Maybe we can't tell both we'll wager our chances on a ticket to the next free concert that it was done to make the obstinate animal get up and dust.

Did you ever hear of a policeman being yanked up because of a too intimate acquaintance with tanglefoot? Well, hardly ever, though they say that such a thing has actually occurred at Grand Rapids.

An Emerson granger exhibits samples of white Russian oats that stand up four feet six inches in their stocking feet. The field in which these samples grew panned out seventy-five bushels per acre—if the figures have not grown since the threshing was completed.

Some persons believe in compressing a varied experience into a brief space of time. An Ashley girl of sweet 16 summers began suit for divorce credentials just four days after she was married. Evidently, she's a hustler.

It only required a week for an Adventist camp-meeting at Kalamazoo to convert 12 people to their way of looking at things terrestial and otherwise, which is a pretty fair warm weather record.

It's generally supposed, and pretty correctly, too, that the majority of canines are cunning enough to escape registry on the tax rolls, but Saginaw city officials propose a little shooting episode in the career of all such barkers. That'll bring 'em to time if anything will.

'Tis claimed that Governor Luce will locate permanently at Lansing, which would indicate that there is no balm in Gilead for the man who's once tasted the sweets of political place power.

The records show that thirty-one doctors have been planted beneath the daisies in Hillsdale county during the past forty-five years. Concerning the number of people planted by the doctors during the same period, history is silent. Probably the enumerator got tired of counting.

Traverse City's business men went out t'other day in one, two, three order. That is, there's 123 of 'em and they all closed shop for a day's outing at Omena, where they ate, drank and were merry.

Bissfield's going to fence in a barb wire fence factory at that place. This seems necessary for the longevity of the colts, young and old, of the vicinity.

A $5,000 blaze demoralized Coe's drill factory at Trenton on the 21st. Fully insured.

Mary Dundas, a Lansing lady, ran afoul of a Capital City sidewalk $3,000 worth. But knowing that lawyers are a luxury that few people can afford, Mary took $1,500 and called it square without having a lawsuit.

John VanBoomgaard was a Sound Haven genius who felt mighty certain that he could take his "nips" without forming a habit. But John was no smarter than lots of other good men who had fought the alcoholic struggle and so fell a victim, as thousands had done before him. He now fills a suicide's and drunkard's grave.

Just thirty-two bands got together at the Monroe tournament and made more music than 12,000 pairs of good ears could properly harvest. The number of people who have since been hard of hearing is large, though by no means surprisingly so.

Pontiac's soldiers' reunion was largely attended, resulting in a royal good time. The omnipresent fakir was also there, but the "boys" bit sparingly.

John Nojaist, an upper peninsula man, got married and took a trip to Escanaba. While there he went to a saloon to celebrate and lighted two hours later. Somebody bumped his beak with a mallet.

A Mason woman of not an overly genial disposition will board at the bastile for sixty days—and longer if she doesn't pay a $5 fine—for battering the beauty from a neighbor's face, with whom she didn't agree.

A precious parcel of Davidson girls got in the notion of congregating at the railway station and raising such a general hurrah that the aid of the authorities was invoked for their suppression. The irrepressibles of this fast age aren't all confined to the male sex, it seems.

A Battle Creek residenter was the owner of a sick horse, for which he thought he had no further use, and so turned it adrift. A fine of $25.65, or sixty days in the calaboose, was the alternative presented him by a local court for his treatment—or lack of it—of the equine.

A Mendon girl attempted to shoot her brother for endeavoring to prevent her from swallowing too much whisky in a local saloon. Some queer feminine folks in this world of ours.

Flint's Normal college is now in working order, and has already begun to grind on the grist that will some day be worked into a graduating class.

A $20,000 fire wiped out the warehouse of the Crescent Furniture company at Big Rapids. Insured.

Elder E. Swift, an Ingham county parson and resident for the past thirty years, was trampled to death by a vicious that he'd been driving.

A Pontiac woman married a rich Californian, and afterward discovered that she was wife No. 2. Then she raised a rumpus, but the "old boy" gave her $5,000 worth of Golden state property in settlement of the deal.

That Vanderbilt corporation known as the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway company has just sent the man Parker, who saved one of its passenger trains from a frightful accident near Hillsdale, the colossal sum of $50. The amount saved the company by Parker could not have been less than $100,000, while the loss might have exceeded three times that sum had the accident occurred.

Dropson claims some wonderfully productive oat fields this season, the yield reaching 104 bushels per acre in some cases.

A company with $1,000,000 capital has been organized at Detroit for the purpose of building a new Union railway depot. In connection the announcement is made that the Pennsylvania system will be extended to that city.

Mrs. Charles B. Durand has been granted a decree of divorce and $17,000 worth of alimony by a Jackson court. The case has been on tap for two years.

A Pontiac business man was somewhat surprised by the dumping of a large load of hay directly in front of his store not long since. It was a runaway case, and the driver was set down with the load in a solid fashion, injuring him severely.

The $1,000 in prizes offered by the Jackson fair association for the best drilled military companies will likely draw out a large attendance and strong competition for the coveted cash.

A Milan lady, who's been married twenty years, boldly confesses that she's used but one paper of pins during all that time. If Barnum, whose penchant for great natural curiosities is well known, should see this item, her fortune would be made, for money would be no objection to the great show man in a case like this.

A Bud boy of 72 mature years, and an Elk maiden of 68 sweet summers were recently married at Croswell. They should be possessed of sufficiently worldly wisdom to be able to steer their ship clear of all matrimonial breakers.

A couple of fellows with a plan for a $25,000 potato starch factory [illegible] vince Muskegon folks that the scheme would be just the thing to fill a fat bonus to. The business is said to be very profitable when rightly managed.

Embezzler Broad Under Arrest.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 2.—Alfred Broad, accused of embezzling $40,000 from the W. Steele Packing and Provision company, of which he was treasurer, was arrested Thursday night at Ionia upon returning home from the west and brought here. He will have an examination Sept. 9, and expects soon to be at liberty on $5,000 bail, which Ionia friends will provide. Friday W. Steele filed chattel and real estate mortgages covering all his own and the company's real estate and personal property in this city and Ionia to William Dunham, of this city, as trustee, to the amount of $110,000, to secure bank creditors.

Shot by a Saloon Keeper.

SAUGATUCK, Mich., Aug. 30.—El Hurst was shot Wednesday by R. F. Kleeman, a saloon keeper. Hurst was playing pool with others in the saloon and Kleeman ordered him out. Hurst left and Kleeman followed and shot him with a gun. It is uncertain whether he will live. Kleeman was put in jail. He fired the jail, but by quick aid of the citizens the flames were extinguished.

Big Blaze at Dansville, Mich.

MASON, Mich., Aug. 31.—Fire Wednesday midnight destroyed eighteen stores and dwellings, burning the entire west portion of the business section of the village of Dansville. There is no fire apparatus in the town, and the fire spread rapidly before a brisk breeze. The losses aggregated $40,000, with little insurance.

Safe Blowers in Michigan.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 2.—The Journal's Iron Mountain special says: Burglars exploded the safe of Peter Culviss Friday night and secured $800 in cash. Several watches and some valuable papers were also taken. The burglars are at large.

A Mississippi Outrage.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 2.—Robert Armstrong, a negro school teacher from Ascension parish, says that on Wednesday night eight masked white men came to his cabin, took him out and whipped him severely. He had just been appointed supervisor of election and the masked men told him, he says, that he wouldn't be allowed to run politics in that parish. He was told to leave the parish and not to return under five days. Armstrong was stripped and displayed his lashes in the presence of Congressmen Burrow and Rowell, who denounced in strong terms the treatment he had received. Armstrong's lashes were not serious. The skin was bruised, but was not broken.

The Stars and Stripes Enough for Them.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 2.—The Sun's special from Manassas, Va., says: People from all over northern Virginia flocked here Friday to participate in the dedication of the monument to the memory of the Confederate dead. The orator of the occasion was Senator John W. Daniel. The exercises began shortly after 1 o'clock. Facing the monument on the east was a gaily decorated stand. Bunting and flags were in profusion, but not a sign of a Confederate banner. The stars and stripes were visible from every angle.

Mrs. Logan at Waukesha.

WAUKESHA, Wis., Sept. 2.—Mrs. John A. Logan stood on the broad porch of the Bethesda Park buildings for half an hour Friday morning and shook hands with at least 1,000 persons who had assembled to meet the widow of the distinguished general. Mrs. Logan was accompanied by Mrs. Russell A. Alger, who stood on the left and took part in the reception, and a number of her acquaintances from Illinois and Michigan.

Novel Adventure of Well Diggers.

ROME, Ga., Sept. 2.—While a well was being dug Thursday three miles from here the bottom fell out, and the workmen, who were twenty-five feet from the surface, dropped ten feet more and found themselves in a large cave miles in length and containing chambers of various sizes. After a partial exploration the men returned and a party was formed which will thoroughly explore the cave.

An Iowa Man Accidentally Killed.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 2.—Mr. Stricker, of Iowa, one of a party of tourists who had ascended Long's peak, Tuesday, was killed by the accidental discharge of his pistol, the ball striking him in the neck. He was lifting a boulder to roll it down the mountain side, when the pistol fell from his pocket, and striking a stone was discharged.

Sent to America for Light.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 2.—H. M. Byllesby, vice president and general manager of the Westinghouse Electric company, sailed Saturday on the City of Paris for London. Mr. Byllesby will build a branch works of the company fully as large as the one in Pittsburg in London, N. E., on a branch of the York road.

The "Moxie" Man Insolvent.

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—Augustine Thompson, manager of the Moxie Nerve Food company, and homœopathic physician, of Lowell, Mass., has gone into insolvency. He owes $68,954, about one-half of which is secured. The unencumbered assets are light.

A Canning Factory Burned.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 2.—The East Hamburg Canning factory, at Hamburg, was burned to the ground Saturday morning. The loss is not yet known, but will be quite large and is thought to be covered by insurance.

Died of Hydrophobia.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Dr. Nagle, register of vital statistics, notified the coroner's office Saturday morning that Florence Hashagen, 4 years old, died at 220 Avenue A Friday night from rabies, the result of a dog bite.

A Chinaman at Philadelphia Friday refused to change a $5 bill, whereupon the man went outside and threw a large stone through the window, striking the Chinaman on the head and fracturing his skull.

LONG LIFE.

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought untill we recive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life preserver, and disease preventer has yet been discovered, is offered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names and guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them.

They do not know, of course, unless they have courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why dont you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but one dollar for a very large bottle. Try it at once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggists may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine—of health.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

THE RIDGEWAY LIBRARY.

A FINE ENTERTAINMENT IN THE HALL MEMORIAL BUILDING LAST WEEK WEDNESDAY.

A Public Reception Tendered to Rufus T. Bush Esq.—A Fine Literary and Musical Programme Presented and a Splendid Address by the Guest of the Evening.

The people of Ridgeway will always have reason to honor the name and memory of Rufus T. Bush, Esq., to [illegible] the Hall Memorial Library and the beautiful building containing it. Mr. and Mrs. Bush are now enjoying a few weeks relaxation from city life with the family of Mr. Warren Jones on the old homestead farm. The officers of the Library Association conceived the happy thought of tendering them a public reception during their stay. It was decided to hold the reception in the lierary building and to have it partake of both a literary and social character. Wednesday evening of last week was selected as the date. As soon as we learned of the meeting, we blocked out our work for the day to include the reception that evening, and we have had no cause to regret our decision.

We arrived at the hall about eight o'clock and found it filled with a fine audience. The tables in the reading room were removed and both apartments were filled with chairs. Shortly after eight the exercises began, under charge of Dr. Nelson, and were presented in the following order:

Vocal trio, "Savior, breathe an Evening Blessing"—Misses Hall and Barlow and Mrs. Houseman.

A brief address of welcome by Dr. Nelson.

A short response by Mr. R. T. Bush.

Vocal duet, "I Live and Love Thee" —Misses Barlow and Hall.

Mrs. W. R. Wilson then gave the audience some original "chronicles" which were gotten up in her own happy vein and were keenly relished.

Mrs. H. R. Williams gave a recitation, "The one-legged goose"—which set forth her talents in this direction to good advantage.

Vocal trio, "Kathleen Mavourneen" Mrs. Houseman, Misses Hall and Barlow:

An original poem by Mr. F. J. Temple. It evinced good talents in this direction and was very nicely delivered.

Mr. Bush was then introduced and gave an outline of his trip around the world on the Coronet. His address, although somewhat lengthy, was intensely interesting, and we take pleasure in giving an abstract of the same, sufficiently full to reveal its general character.

A pretty Hawaiian melody entitled "Aia Hiki Mai" was sung by Misses Barlow and Hall.

The programme closed with a good night quartette entitled "The Night Bird's Whisper," by Mr. G. P. Waring and Misses Hall, Barlow and Lorce.

The vocal numbers on the program were all admirably chosen and beautifully sung. That trio! Ah, we fear the good people of Ridgeway may not fully appreciate the excellence of that trio. We are all inclined to underrate home talent simply because it is home talent. But, however Ridgeway may estimate that trio, we can assure them that outsiders always regard their singing as a musical treat. Their simple home melodies never fail to touch the heart strings of the listener.

The company then resolved itself into a social, and for nearly an hour Mr. and Mrs. Bush held quite a levee, shaking hands with their numerous friends who had remained to pay their personal respects. The towns adjoining Ridgeway were all represented at the gathering, and we were especially glad to see so many Tecumseh people present, both on their own account and on Mr. Bush's also. The walls of the library are now ornamented with several large pictures, the gift of Mr. Bush, a list of which has already appeared in these columns.

The evening's entertainment will long be cherished by those who participated, as a most enjoyable social episode in the hum-drum of every day life.

RUFUS T. BUSH'S ADDRESS.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:—To give a full account of a trip which required nearly a year, in the short time allotted me this evening, would be quite impossible, hence my remarks must be of a fragmentary nature, touching only slightly upon each country visited. We started from Ridgeway, because we had to have a starting place, and this point, to the people here assembled, is the pivot on which the world turns. Our first objective point was San Diego, Cal., where we embarked on the yacht Coronet, which had come around Cape Horn from New York to meet us.

From southern California we sailed over the peaceful Pacific to the Sandwich Islands, reaching Honolulu, 2200 miles distant in 14 days. This city, the capital of the Islands, is beautifully situated at the foot of a mountain, at the top of which is the crater of an extinct volcano now called the "punch bowl." The harbor is neither large or handsome, but is sufficient to accommodate several naval vessels and a number of merchant ships. The city of Honolulu has a population of perhaps 20,000. The natives have nearly all embraced the Christian religion, their conversion having been easily brought about. Just previous to the arrival of the first missionaries in 1820 they had broken up their tablets, and were waiting for some new belief. The Rev. Dr. Smith, who reached the Islands in 1832, told me that when he landed there the natives wore no clothing except a cloth about the loins, but were very ready to adopt any new ideas regarding clothing or religion. Speaking of their large generosity he said, "Soon after commencing my labors among them a pair of pantaloons fell into the hands of a couple of men who attended my services. They did not know how they were to be worn, but concluded one pair ought to be sufficient for two persons. One Sunday morning during the service I was much astonished to see the two [illegible] calmly up the center aisle wearing the garment between them, each having a leg thrust into the pants." The natives are genial like their climate, and adopt the ways of the whites very readily. They are not, however, very good workers, and until the Chinese were imported, sugar growing, which is the chief industry there, made but little progress. During our stay we received a large amount of attention, in fact rather too much for the good of my health, as I had gone off to rest and recuperate from the wear and tear which a busy life in New York for many years had wrought. The king sent his glee club in a boat to serenade us the first night after our arrival, and a few days later came himself, sending on board his government band of 40 pieces, all natives except the leader. And still later he gave us a reception at the hotel. The trees surrounding the hotel were filled with incandescent electric lights, making the scene, with the music by the band and glee club, a perfect fairy land.

During our passage from the Hawaiian Islands to Japan, we experienced more hot weather, and were nearer the sun than at any time during our cruise. We were running with the trade [illegible] the parallel of 20° north a[illegible]n though, on his southern [illegible] was still 6° north of the e[illegible] which brought us within 14°. [illegible] we were near the equtor at Singapore, the sun was considerably further from us, he sojourning at the time 23° south of the equator. On the Pacific the Coronet plunged through thousands of flying fish, causing them to rise like flocks of birds, and fly sometimes a quarter of a mile or more. They frequently flew on deck, and one night the sailors picked up so many that we had them for breakfast. The weather was delightful until the day before reaching Yokahama, when we ran into a little blow, causing us to lay the yacht to for a few hours. The following day we entered the harbor and dropped anchor in the midst of a fleet of English men-of-war, only two American naval vessels being present. Yokahama is a beautiful city, having a native population of about 100,000, and white or foreign population of 1200, the latter living by themselves on an elevation called the bluff. The Japanese are, I believe, the neatest and most polite people on the face of the earth. No one thinks of entering a house without leaving his shoes outside, and the result is, that their white mats on their floors are as spotless as a freshly ironed table cloth. They sit and sleep on the floor, wrapping themselves at night in thick soft comfortables, and very good beds they make. They use no glass, their windows being made of rice paper, which much resembles ground glass, and admits about the same amount of light. Upon entering a house, in a few minutes a girl presents one with tea in dainty little cups placed on a lacquered tray, always dropping upon her knees before offering the tea. Food is served on little tables about six inches high, and while eating one must sit upon the floor. The chop sticks furnished with which to eat, are two small pieces of cedar about the size of an ordinary lead pencil. To use them successfully requires a little practice, but one soon overcomes the difficulty, so that for anything except soup, they are quite convenient. New sticks are given with every meal, hence there can be no objection for want of cleanliness. The Japanese never shake hands, but when friends or acquaintances meet or separate in the street or other places, they together make very low bows three times in succession, keeping their eyes on each other so as to go down and come up exactly together. The Jinrikisha, the carriage of Japan, is a great institution, and a wonderful convenience. They are drawn by men of great endurance who seldom walk, but keep almost constantly on a trot or run. Horses in this country with the endurance of those men, would sell for fancy prices. The Coronet party were drawn 23 miles in two hours and 40 minutes, the men stopping once only a few minutes for rice and tea. Cows are not kept or known in Japan, the natives using neither milk nor butter. A few tame buffalo are kept for milk around the cities where Europeans reside. Butter is all imported. Learning this fact before leaving the Sandwich Islands we took on board a considerable stock of butter for which we paid the modest price of one dollar per pound. Agricultural implements, beyond a long heavy hoe resembling a carpenter's adz, and a sickle, are not to be seen in Japan. The blade of this hoe is about 16 inches in length, which they strike into the ground with considerable force and pry it up, which takes the place of the spade or plow; and with the sickle they cut their rice, hang it up on poles to dry. Threshing is done with the flail, and natural winds have thus far kept out fanning mills.

A considerable number of railroads are being operated in Japan, and the Japs are exceedingly fond of riding. When the first road between Yokahama and Tokio was opened for travel, it is said some of the Japanese went to the cars, slipping off their shoes on the platform as they do when entering a house, and when the train reached Tokio stepped out and looked around for their foot covering. It is presumed they supposed the platform was a part of the train, and would go along with them. The agent of our American bible society in Yokahama told me the railroads had converted more Japanese than the missionaries. They reason in this wise: The European mode of travel is so much better than ours, their religion also must be better.

The most expensive tea is raised in Japan, some very fancy grades selling as high as $10 a pound, but an ordinary tea drinker cannot distinguish its excellence any more than most persons can appreciate a hundred thousand dollar painting. All tea is cured in iron kettles, none made of copper or brass being used. They are set in brick arches partly filled with tea which is constantly stirred with the hand, while under the kettle a slow fire burns. Tea is made green by putting in a small amount of Prussian blue, and colored black with plumbago. Tea firers claim that uncolored tea will not sell, consumers believing it to be of an inferior grade.

Educational facilities in Japan are most excellent, and every child over seven years of age is compelled by law to attend school.

The houses are [illegible] ous everywhere. One day while on an excursion into the country, we stopped at a tea house for luncheon, which was served in the usual manner. The quality and variety of the food was quite satisfactory, but when the proprietor handed us his bill, he had charged 40c each for the ladies and only 30c for the gentlemen, the reason for which we were not able to learn. A fire in a Japanese city is a very amusing sight. Almost immediately after the ringing of the fire bells hundreds of Japanese may be seen coming on a keen run from every quarter, each one having, if it be at night, a paper lantern in his hand. The wildest confusion prevails, and someone with a fire god in his hand rushes on top of a row of one story buildings, sets up the god just beyond the fire, toward which it is sweeping, confidently expecting it to stop when it reaches his august presence.

Had I time I would like to tell you of the Mikado's garden party which we attended, also a national ball given in the name of Count and Countess Okuma. I would be pleased to speak of the rice growing, manner of building houses, Japanese home life so far as we could learn, hotels, theatres, wages, etc., but we must hurry down into China, else we will not get around the world to-night.

(Concluded next week.)

HOW TO DO IT.

A. O. Wheeler, a pushing business man of Manistee, tells how to secure manufacturing enterprises that will benefit a locality, as follows:

"First ascertain what particular business is best adapted for your city or village, so as to compete successfully in the markets of the country. Remember it is sure to be a misfortune, not a benefit, to a small city to have an enterprise located that is not self-supporting nor likely to be, when compared to more favored localities. It attracts people to the place and when the collapse comes, as it is sure to do, the bottom drops out of the place and the town is a great deal worse off than if the enterprise had never been located and never had a boom. But when, after a thorough investigation, you find a manufactur'g business that is especially adapted to your locality, when you can compete with the world in the raw material and facilities for reaching the consumer, and when they have a decent margin of profit for the investors, let your business men unite and raise among themselves the necessary capital. Then you will land your enterprise every time. We have tried it and know it works well. It don't pay to wait for millioniares and capitalists to start a boom. We have lots of them and they are quite as progressive as any in the country, and as public spirited, but you must remember capitalists are very conservative men and are apt to be very methodical and have fixed habits and be well advanced in years before they become millionaires. These don't have to embark in new enterprises to increase their wealth, and as a rule they are adverse to going into a business they don't understand.

THE ADDISON COURIER.

Mr. A. J. Kempton, last week moved the Addison Courier into a new building which is his own property. It is twenty by sixty feet in size, two stories high and is located on the north side of main street and west of the creek. The first floor is finished off for his own use and the second story will be used as an Odd Fellow's Lodge Room. We confess that we feel more than a passing interest in the present prosperity of the Courier. We took the little brat in out of the wet when only one year old, and it was restored to health and usefulness by our own financial aid, assisted by Bro. Kempton's careful nursing. After an ownership of two years and five months we sold the plant to Joe, and the paper has prospered abundantly since he has been both owner and pilot at the helm. He now has the pleasure—and it is an unalloyed pleasure too of sticking type under his own vine and fig tree, and the hustling little paper in the village on the Bean can now be regarded as having begun a long career of business prosperity. Here's good luck to friend Joe from the bottom quad of a printer's heart. May his shadow never grow less; may his lot in life always be made up at the top of the column and next to pure reading matter; and may his form be so justified, that good health and silver dollars may always follow in the wake of its impressions.

THE FIRST OF THE SERIES.

The Blanket Matinee held last Saturday a very Interesting and Successful One—A large Crowd in Attendance.

The interest in well bred trotting horses is steadily increasing in this section of the country, and everyone that thinks of purchasing a horse, immediately investigates his record as a speeder, as the principle qualification. The trotting matinees held at Bills' track this summer have increased in attendance with each succeeding one, and last Saturday's crowd numbered nearly 500 people. The surrounding towns sent their fastest horses, and with those from our own village, made about twenty entries in the races. There were three classes—the named race, best three in five, mile heats; 3 yr. old race best two in three; and the free for all, best three in five. The judges stand was occupied by J. R. Hialey, proprietor of the Lenawee Co. carriage factory; Chas. Blackmar, of Milan, who did the starting; and the genial John Gibson, of Britton, held the ticker.

The named race was called up first with six starters, as follows: Pete, owned by Wm. Underwood; Walt Exelby's Black Bill, Britton; Jame Riley's Hattie, Cone; Geo. Getty's Presto, Britton; Dr. Taylor's Nimrod, of Manchester; and Irving Osborne's Jim. Pete drew the pole, and after scoring several times the horses were started. Pete took a good lead from the first with Hattie second and the heat lay between those two. The finish was made with Pete about a length ahead of Hattie, and the rest scattered over the last quarter.

The free for all was sandwiched between the heats of the named race, and it was called next. There were three starters—Simmons' Josie L., Harrington's Brown Mack, and Harmon's Texas Jim. Josie L. drew the pole with Jim second. The heat was a walkover for Jim, as he passed Josie L. on the first quarter, and came in about three lengths ahead. The second heat was a repetition of the first, with Brown Mack second. In the third, Mack made it more interesting for Jim, and on the last quarter kept him company to the finish, and Jim's nose was only about twelve inches in the lead when they passed under the wire. Following is the free for all score.

Brown Mack	3	2	2

The second heat of the named race was easily won by Hattie, who overhauled Pete on the start and stayed there. Hattie also took the third heat with plenty of time to spare. In the fourth heat Black Bill surprised the crowd and tickled the numerous Brittonites by cutting across and heading off Pete on the first turn. At the last turn he passed Hattie and flew past the judges stand enveloped in a cloud of dust and victory, with one shoe missing. Hattie took the last heat and the race. Nimrod was withdrawn in the second heat, and Jim on the fourth. Score:

Pete	1	2	2	3	4
Hattie	2	1	1	2	1
Black Bill	3	3	3	1	2
Jim	4	4	5
Nimrod	5
Presto	6	5	4	4	3

Alverson's Gov. Alger, Billington's George B., Cairns' Lady, and Bills' Caprice were started in the 3 yr. old race, in the order named. Lady crossed over and took the pole at the second turn, with Caprice a rod behind. On the home stretch, Caprice broke and gained on Lady, and trotted past her, coming in a length ahead. Caprice also took the second heat and the race. Lady took second.

Three prizes were given in each class, consisting of different grades of horse blankets. The track was in fair shape, though awfully dusty, and some good time was made, considering the training the horses have had. 2.42 time was made in the free for all, 3.01½ was made in the named race and the three yr. old was trotted in a three minute gait.

The matinees will be held every two weeks and great sport is expected.

THE ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING.

The regular annual school meeting of this district convened at the central school building on Monday evening. The attendance was much larger than usual, probably reaching 150, and there was quite a sprinkling of ladies in the number.

The room was filled at eight o'clock and Moderator Mills called to order at that hour. The Director, Dr. North, then read the minutes of the last annual meeting which were accepted and adopted. The Director then presented his annual report, the principle portions of which are herewith presented.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

The Board of Trustees recommend that the length of time for which school shall be taught in this district during the ensuing school year shall be ten months, commencing on September 2, 1889, and by both male and female teachers. Also that special taxes be raised as follows:

For general purposes	$3,360 00
For bonded debt and interest	1,590 00
Director's salary	50 00
Total	$5,000 00

The above recommendation of $5,000 for special tax is $700 less than the estimate. This deficiency is recommended because the amount of money on hand, $1,820.20, is regarded as unnecessarily large. If it is reduced to $1,100, as the recommendation contemplates, it will be near the amount actually needed. This is $440 less than the special tax last year. The district is under obligations to Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hicks for an organ donated by them to the West Branch school. The number of children of school age in the district by the August census is 554.

The report was adopted without discussion or dissent and the meeting then proceeded to elect a trustee in place of Dr. North, whose term of office had expired. Dr. Steinhoff, J. D. Shull, C. F. Patterson and L. B. Stevens were appointed tellers, and an informal ballot was taken for trustee.

There were 131 votes cast, of which Dr. North received 98, the balance being scattered among about a dozen different persons. On motion the Doctor was then elected by acclamation as his own successor. Mrs. Hardenburgh tendered her resignation as a member of the Board, but the meeting very properly declined to accept it.

The question of employing a teacher of music was then brought up and discussed and a motion prevailed that Miss Grayson be employed for two days each week at a salary not exceeding $125 per year.

The subject of free books was quite thoroughly discussed, pro and con, but a motion to introduce the system was voted down by a strong majority. The meeting then adjourned until March to consider the question of putting the Smead system into the East Branch school house.

Dr. Gleason has also written a valuable treatise on these diseases, which is profusely illustrated with finely executed wood-cuts, showing the Head, Throat and Lungs as they are when diseased; it discusses in an able manner the cause and cure of these complaints; it is printed on heavy super-calendered paper and handsomely bound. This book, together with full instructions how to order on trial, will be sent free to all who will write and ask for it. Address

Buckeye Democracy.

Campbell Selected to Whoop it Up for Foraker.

THE FULL TICKET AND PLATFORM.

A Large and Enthusiastic Gathering of Democrats—Tariff Reform Kept Prominent as an Issue—A Virginia Republican Editor Kicks Out of the Traces—Pennsylvania Prohibitionists Put Up Their Man—Dakota Republicans Considering the Situation.

DAYTON, O., Aug. 29.—The Democracy of past two or three days, went into, state convention yesterday morning at the rink to select candidates for state officers. The people of this city, without regard to politics, have been profuse in courtesies to the delegates and visiting politicians, and one of the notable incidents in this line was the tender of the Garfield club's rooms to the committee on resolutions, the club providing the committee with a luncheon also. For the twenty-four hours preceding the time for opening the convention the usual excitement incident to gatherings of this character was noticeable at all the hotels and public places, where delegates gathered to discuss probabilities, "leg" for their favorites and talk about the prospects for victory.

Opening the Convention.

The gathering was the largest one the Democrats ever held in this state. The rink is capable of holding several thousand people, but was not large enough to contain the throngs that demanded admission, and before 10 o'clock, the hour of meeting, it was packed to suffocation. Dr. Norton called the body to order and made an address, in which he was very vigorous in paying his respects to Governor Foraker and eulogized the Democracy and ex-President Cleveland, at the mention of whose name the convention broke out in a storm of applause.

Permanent Organization.

The routine committees were promptly appointed and as promptly made their reports, giving the permanent chairmanship to Hon. D. M. Harter, of Richland county, and the secretaryship to L. G. Barnard, of Hamilton county. The one contest from Lucas county was quickly settled, and Mr. Harter addressed the delegates in a long speech covering all the issues of the day.

Declaration of Principles.

The committee on resolutions next reported, the gist of their report being as follows:

The national platform adopted at St. Louis last year is approved, especially the tariff planks; trusts of every form are denounced and all tariff taxes that enable them to exist are disapproved of; liberal and equitable pensions are demanded for the veterans of the war of the rebellion; the present national administration is denounced for violating its pledges regarding civil service reform; the present state administration is denounced as partisan, demoralizing and extravagant, and declared to be a great political machine; Foraker's nomination for a third term is declared a violation of all precedent that should be rebuked at the polls; home rule for Ireland is favored and the same is demanded for Ohio.

Campbell Nominated for Governor.

The report was unanimously adopted and then came the great business of the day—the nomination for governor. For this office three men were named—James E. Campbell, of Butler; Virgil P. Kline, of Cuyahoga, and Lawrence T. Neal. The first ballot resulted in no choice—Kline, 199; Neal, 292; Campbell, 388; whole number of votes 789. The second ballot gave Campbell, 397¼; Neal, 299, and Kline 93. A motion to make the nomination unanimous was carried amid the greatest enthusiasm, the band meanwhile playing "The Campbells Are Coming," and a committee was sent to notify the nominee.

The Rest of the Ticket.

The ticket was completed as follows: Lieutenant governor, William V. Marquis, of Belleforntaine; judge of supreme court, Martin D. Follett, of Marietta; state treasurer, W. E. Bolgen, of Guernsey county; school commissioner, Charles C. Miller, of Putnam county; attorney general, Jesse M. Lewis, of Urbana; member board of public works, Frank Reynolds, of Cincinnati; clerk of supreme court, I. J. C. Schumaker, of Tiffin. The convention then adjourned sine die.

NOMINATIONS IN DAKOTA.

Republicans and Democrats Put Tickets in the Field.

HURON, D. T., Aug. 30.—The Republican convention for South Dakota yesterday adopted a platform the feature of which was a plank in favor of prohibition, a minority report proposing to expunge this resolution being defeated. The following ticket was then chosen: Governor, A. C. Mellette, of Codington county; lieutenant governor, J. H. Fletcher, of Brown; auditor, S. C. Taylor, of Hansen; for congress, O. S. Gifford, of Lincoln, and J. A. Pickler, of Faulk; secretary of state, O. A. Ringsrud, of Ocean; treasurer, W. L. Smith, of Lake; attorney general, Robert Dollard, of Bonhommie; superintendent of public instruction, C. L. Parkhurst, of Hand; supreme judges, D. Corson, of Lawrence; A. G. Kellam, of Brule, and John E. Bennett, of Clark; commissioner of school and public lands, O. H. Parker, of Brookings.

The Democratic Convention.

FARGO, D. T., Aug. 30.—The Democratic state convention for North Dakota was called to order at 10 a. m. yesterday and listened to a speech by Hon. William M. Springer. J. F. O'Brien was made permanent chairman and W. A. Friedly secretary. After the adoption of a platform the following were nominated: Governor, R. N. Roach, of Walsh county; lieutenant governor, S. K. Maginniss, of Stutsman; secretary of state, A. S. Froseth, of Traill; treasurer, C. W. Lord, of Ransey; auditor, P. Odlergard, of Cass; attorney general, T. R. Ball, of Grand Forks; public instructor, Charles A. Kent, of Dickey; supreme court judges—W. P. Miller, of Cass; J. W. Gammons, of Ramson, and the third left for the executive committee to name; commissioner of agriculture, J. R. Engelbert, of Foster; commissioner of insurance, W. A. Friedly, of Kidder; railroad commissioners—E. P. Wright, Peter Cameron, and John Lewis; member of congress, Dan W. Maratta.

Pennsylvania Prohibitionists.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 29.—The state Prohibition convention was held here yesterday, with a full attendance of delegates and all the prominent Prohibition workers in the state present. Rev. W. R. Covert was made permanent chairman, and the time was largely taken up by vigorous oratory in favor of the enactment of the Scott anti-liquor law. J. B. Johnston, of Pittsburg, was nominated for state treasurer, and a platform adopted which indorses the Indianapolis platform of 1888, favors the Australian ballot system and universal suffrage, and declares that prohibition will settle the labor question by insuring better wages, steady work, and larger profits.

Dakota Republicans.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 29.—The Republicans of south Dakota met in convention [illegible] was perfected, committees appointed and adjournment taken for the day. The Matthews forces are the only ones that do not favor the combination which presents A. C. Mellette, of Coddington, for governor. Matthews' strength is hourly increasing, it was said, and his nomination for congress was thought by some assured.

Republican Kicker in Virginia.

STAUNTON, Va., Aug. 29.—The Valley Virginian, S. M. Yoste' paper, says: "We will not support Mahone for governor. The body that nominated him was not a Republican convention representing the sentiment of the state. It was Gen. Mahone's caucus, the programme prescribed by the general."

REPUBLIC, Mich., Sept. 2.—Reimund Holzhay, alias "Black Bart," the highwayman, who for five months past has been robbing trains, waylaying stage coaches and holding up pedestrians, is in custody. He was captured here Saturday morning by City Marshal Goole and Justice of the Peace E. E. Weiser, and has been taken to Bessemer to answer for the killing of A. Foisebheira of Belleville, Ills., at Gogebic, Monday of last week. Holzhay confesses to all the stage and train robberies.

Graham Goes Over the Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Carlisle D. Graham, the Philadelphia Cooper, shot over the brink of the great Horseshoe falls at 7:10 o'clock yesterday morning. He was tightly cased in his barrel-boat, and twenty-five minutes later was picked up in the Rock eddy, comparatively unharmed. The venture, never before accomplished, was witnessed by not less than fifty spectators. The friends of Graham had become well nigh discouraged by the frequent and disparaging failures that had marked his early efforts.

Swung Off by the Sheriff.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 31.—William Walker, colored, and Jack Spanihrd, a Choctaw Indian, were hung at Fort Smith yesterday. Spanihrd's crime was the killing of United States Deputy Marshal Erwin, Sept. 18, 1885.

An Extra Session for the Big Fair.

DEER PARK, Md., Sept. 2.—Saturday the president received a memorial, presented by Joseph H. Ball, president of the American Agricultural association, urging the calling of an extra session of congress to consider plans for the world's fair for 1892. Mr. Ball urged that the step was desirable, as the regular session would not be able to give sufficient time to the fair.

And He Shot Him, Sure Enough.

DUBUQUE, Ia., Sept. 2.—Otto Groff, 13 years old, was accidentally shot by a playmate near East Dubuque, Saturday evening. They had been firing at a mark, and Groff's companion, named Waddington, thinking an gun unloaded, snapped it at Groff, with the remark: "I'll shoot you!" The bullet entered the boy's head.

Increase in the Public Debt.

DAVID AND JONATHAN.

LESSON X, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, SEPT. 8.

Text of the Lesson, 1 Sam. xx, 1-13—Commit Verses 3, 4—Golden Text, Prov. xviii. 24—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

1. "And David fled from Naioth in Ramah and came and said before Jonathan, What have I done? Saul, being constantly troubled with an evil spirit, had sought on two different occasions to slay David (chaps. xviii. 10, xix. 10), one time even in his own house, but the Lord was with him, and the last time he fled to Samuel, and he and Samuel went and dwelt in Naioth. If we are true children of God the presence of the Lord is ever with us, as a wall of fire round about us, and nothing can reach us without His permission; and whatever He may permit to reach us, nothing can by any means harm us, for our life is hid with Christ in God. Enemies may seem to prosper, but God will make even the wrath of man to praise Him.

2. "Thou shalt not die." David inquires of Jonathan why Saul, his father, should thus persistently seek his life, and what he had done to merit such ill treatment at the hands of Saul. Jonathan assures him that he shall not die, and that inasmuch as his father will do nothing without telling him, and has given him no hint of such a purpose, therefore it cannot be; but the sequel proves that in this case the mind of Saul was hidden from Jonathan, and that he was really determined to kill David (vs. 30-33), because, as he said, while David lived Jonathan, his own son, could not be established in his kingdom.

3. "There is but a step between me and death." This was, humanly speaking, true of David and is true of every one of us. In God's hand is our breath and by His kind care we live and move and have our being day by day, and whether on land or sea it is equally true that the next step may usher us into eternity. This may well cause the unsaved to tremble, but it should give no anxiety to one who is redeemed by the precious blood of Christ and is therefore seeking day by day to "do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with God." There is no real death to the soul that has eternal life; such can never perish; to serve Christ in this mortal body is the greatest joy on earth, to be with Him apart from the body will be great gain, and to reign with Him in a body immortal and incorruptible shall be the consummation of bliss, and to that there shall be no end. What then, though there be but a step between us and death, nothing could keep David from his throne beyond the appointed time, and nothing can keep us. Therefore, Be strong, Fear not.

4. "Whatsoever thy soul desireth, I will even do it for thee." Thus said Jonathan to David in his great love for him. A greater love said to a poor blind man: "What wilt thou that I should do unto thee?"

5-7. "If he say thus It is well; thy servant shall have peace; but"— By thus absenting himself from his accustomed place for three days, David would surely learn the mind of Saul towards him, and Jonathan would see it and then know for himself his father's thoughts toward David. If any think that they see deception here on the part of David in his speaking of going to Bethlehem, let them remember that God cannot possibly in any way tolerate sin, and never does he excuse it; and if David sinned in this matter it must have brought him chastening.

8. "Therefore thou shalt deal kindly with thy servant, for thou hast brought thy servant into a covenant of the Lord with thee." David had already the love of Jonathan, and the love of all Israel and Judah (xviii. 1, 16), but his one great enemy caused him to fear, and Jonathan was now to be the mediator standing between David and his enemy on behalf of David, and there was a covenant between them which David calls a covenant of the Lord.

9. "Would not I tell it thee?" David had asked Jonathan to kill him, if he was guilty, rather than let him be brought to Saul. Jonathan's reply is that if he knew evil was determined against David he would surely tell him. Now Scripture plainly states that our great adversary seeks to devour us, and that if men refuse the deliverer and deliverance so lovingly provided for them, they must go to the everlasting fire prepared for that adversary and his angels. (I Pet. v, 8; Matt. xxv, 41.) Can we who are called Christians be in any sense worthy of the name, or be said truly to love our fellow men, if we believe that such evil awaits them and never open our mouths to warn them or to entreat them to behold the love of God and receive Jesus as their personal Saviour?

10. "Who shall tell me?" Now David wants to know how he shall find out the result of the interview between Jonathan and his father. He surely does not honor the love of his friend, nor seem to esteem his friend, or his friend's word very highly by these questions. He seems to be greatly moved, he does not now sing "I will not fear, though the earth be removed," (Ps. xlvi, 2); he does not talk like valiant David, a man after God's own heart, but rather like the spies who saw the giants and walled cities instead of seeing God. Let us learn from him that nothing must ever be allowed to come between us and God lest we too be filled with fears and dishonor Christ.

11. "Come and let us go out into the field." "Come apart," said Jesus to the disciples. "Bid the servant pass on, but stand thou still awhile," said Samuel to Saul. It is wise, when we would have fellowship with God, to get alone with Him and shut out all else. It is wise, also, when you would deal personally with a soul in His name, to take them alone, with not even a third party near, and thus you will have more power with them; I have always found it so. There is also a power ofttimes in being, when possible, apart from everything human; God's fields or forests around you and God's sky your canopy. Alone with God is the place of power for your own soul, and also for fellowship with others in His Name; but you can in some sense be alone with Him also in the crowded streets and scenes of a great city.

12, 13. "That thou mayest go in peace, and the Lord be with thee." Jonathan now solemnly calls the Lord God to witness that whether the tidings from his father be good or evil, he will surely let David know; and in the following verses, in most remarkable words, he speaks of a time when all the enemies of David shall have been cut off from the face of the earth, and as if anticipating his own and his father's fall and David's exaltation, he causes David to promise kindness to his house forever. Then follows the account of the interview between Saul and his son, and the way in which Jonathan acquainted David with the result. But even if the tidings were to be evil and Saul should seek the life of David, Jonathan says he is to go in peace, for the Lord will be with him. Perhaps David remembered this when he sang: "He shall not be afraid of evil tidings, his heart is fixed, trusting in the Lord." (Ps. cxii. 7.) The heart that rests in the love of Him who [illegible] than a brother, who has shown His love by dying for His enemies, and who having given Himself has given all things with Himself, should be able to say truthfully at all times: "Behold, God is my Saviour, I will trust and not be afraid; for His thoughts to me are peace and not evil; and He Himself is my everlasting life."

AN HISTORIC CITY.

THE PLEASANTEST PLACE TO VISIT IN SEPTEMBER.

A City Full of Rare Attractions for Strangers—Ten Days of Solid Enjoyment—Preparing for September—A Hundred Thousand Visitors Per Day Fully Provided for.

One of the most delightful cities on the American continent is the city of Detroit. It is one of the old American cities—the oldest city west of the Atlantic seaboard. It is one of the wealthiest of American cities. It is also one of the best planned and best built of American cities. No other city, except Washington, is laid out with such magnificently broad avenues and streets.

DETROIT INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION—CONCERT BUILDING.

Hardly any other city possesses so many architecturally original and beautiful homes and other buildings. Away from its business portion it is a city set in continuous parks and boulevards. Situated upon a vast, slightly rolling plain, with an almost uniform slope toward its river front, giving perfect drainage and an admirable surface for parks and lawns, its wide streets are bordered with grand maples and elms and miles of green grassy lawns, set off by fountains and flower beds. It is the

of Detroit people on their residence streets to have no fences in front of their dwellings. The houses are set well back from the street line, with lawns and flower beds, fountains and statuary or other ornaments in front, leaving the architecture of the handsome buildings and all the beauties of the grounds wide open to the pleasure seeking view of the stroller along the wide tree-shaded sidewalks, or the occupants of carriages in the streets. This makes the homes of Detroit look like rows of pretty buildings set in an immense park.

The great trees along the streets make the sidewalks run through long perspectives of leafy arcades, and on many streets their long branches almost, if not quite, touch together at a lofty height clear across the broad spaces of the streets, giving a delightful, sylvan aspect to the driveways. There are also numerous small parks with fountains, lawns and inviting seats in the shade scattered over the city.

The great charm of Detroit, however, is its noble river. No other city in the world possesses such broad, deep, blue, pure and beautiful. Its narrowest point is about half a mile wide, its broadest several miles. Upon its current floats the largest commerce in the world. Like the people of Venice, in Europe, the inhabitants of Detroit in summer month's love to be upon the water. Hence there are innumerable boats, yachts and steamers always in use. At various distances in every direction are places of resort, including Belle Isle park, of 700 acres, with miles of drives and walks, canals and gay boats, to and from which swift ferries continually ply at wonderfully cheap rates. These ferry steamers and excursion boats are large, broad, powerful crafts, and there are enough of them to handle 20,000 or 30,000 people at once. The excursion rates in every direction are always less than a cent a mile, and often less than half a cent per mile.

The best time to visit Detroit is in September, when the heats of summer begin to be tempered by the delicious autumn coolness. From Sept. 17 to Sept. 27, inclusive, the great Detroit International Fair and Exposition, with its list of splendid attractions—its grand Art Gallery of famous paintings, its magnificent horse show, with over 1,000 of the best horses on the continent, its immense concerts every afternoon and evening, its sports, games and processions, its great band tournament, its grand cattle show, its vast building full of machinery and rare and costly displays, its wonderful show of fruits, flowers and vegetables, including the great display of the United States government, its strange show of fishes of all sorts in an immense aquarium, etc.—will be in full operation. Then visitors can fill their days and evenings with

EVER VARYING DELIGHT.

Besides the city, with its theatres and opera houses, there will be hourly excursions by boat and steam and electric railways to pleasure resorts in Michigan and Canada, within a radius of fifty miles, including the famous St. Clair flats, the most famous fishing and gunning resort on the continent. The great concerts at the exposition occur every afternoon and evening. There will also be regattas, base ball, athletic and other sports and games, and races daily at the exposition grounds. The fifteen acres of immense buildings, besides tents and sheds, the graveled walks and thoroughly drained grounds, make them independent of weather. If it should rain, no matter how violently, the cars and boats can transport 75,000 people under shelter, perfectly dry, and the vast exposition buildings can contain 50,000, and show them everything on the programme in comfort and security. There will be no postponement or alteration of programme on account of the weather, and no diminution of attractions under any circumstances, and visitors to the city can securely count upon abundance of enjoyment.

Snake Killed by a Rabbit.

A rabbit is said to have killed a snake at Seneca, Ga., a few days ago. The snake had caught a young rabbit and was trying to swallow it. The old rabbit rushed by the snake and bit it in passing. It then ran by the snake again and bit it, and repeated the operation several times. The reptile finally dropped the rabbit, crawled away a short distance and died.

Was It Intentional?

Professor (of class in journalism)—What is the difference between an editorial and an editorial paragraph?

Student—An editorial is of the same nature as an editorial paragraph, but larger and doesn't have as much to say.—Springfield Union.

A Florida Magistrate.

Pensacola, Fla., has a magistrate with peculiar notions of judicial dignity. Mayor Chipley, in discharging a man arrested for fighting, said to him: "If you hadn't hit him you ought to have been hung." The decision has made him very popular.

Birch-Bark Parties.

"Birch-bark" lawn parties are the latest in Maine. The invitations are written on birch bark and the refreshments served from plates of the same material.

New York politicians note with interest that Gover or Hill has gone to Saranac lake, where Grover Cleveland may now be found.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipt in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by address, W. A. Noyes, 149 Powers block, Rochester, N. Y.

Balfour Shows Anger.

Balfour showed great anger at this, and made a hot speech, saying he would regard such attacks with contempt. Russell moved that a sanitary engineer be appointed to inspect the prisons. Parnell said the Irish prisoners were half-starved, and he confirmed from his own knowledge the statements that the prisons were in an unhealthy condition. After further acrimonious debate the estimates were adopted, 113 to 69.

THEIR PROVISIONS DESTROYED.

Fire Burnes Up the Provisions of the Striking Streator Miners.

STREATOR, Ills., Aug. 26.—An added misfortune befell the striking miners Saturday evening when fire destroyed the stock of provisions sent here from abroad for their relief. The supplies were stored in an old building. About five tons of flour, besides other provisions, were in the building. Many people claim that the fire was of incendiary origin and assign dissatisfaction with the method of distributing the relief as a motive for the deed.

The Behring Sea Trouble.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 24.—Acting Secretary Wharton, speaking of the Behring sea troubles Saturday morning, said that the state department has had no communication with the British government on that question since Mr. Bayard was secretary of state, and that the matter stands exactly as it did when he left the department. "When these questions are brought forward as involving points of international law," he continued, "the state department has no action to take, and has, of course, officially no opinion upon the subject. We have had no communications from Minister Lincoln or from the British government upon the question."

The President at Deer Park.

DEER PARK, Md., Aug. 26.—Rev. Mr. Alsop, of the Protestant Episcopal church, Brooklyn, N. Y., preached at the chapel in the hotel grounds yesterday. Among the worshipers were the president and Mrs. Harrison. The president took a walk and spent the greater part of the afternoon on the cottage piazza.

The Good Little Sunday School Boy.

If there is any place where one needs to keep all his wits about him it is in the Mission Sunday school. On one occasion a young rapscallion in a north end school remarked in a sanctimonious tone, "My father drinks." The unwary teacher, falling into the trap, began to talk to the class of the evils of intemperance. She waxed eloquent and spoke at considerable length. When all the class were supposed to be in an eminently edified condition of mind little Johnny finished his sentence with an air so innocent as to deceive, if it were possible, even the elect. "My father," he said, "drinks water." And he smiled confidingly into the face of his teacher, as if he were sure of her approval, and as if he enjoyed the approval of a clear conscience, as, indeed, very likely he did.—Boston Courier.

allow their children to cough and strain and cough and calmly say "Oh! it is only a little cold," and keep giving them cheap and dangerous medicines, until they are down with lung fever or consumption, when they can be so easily relieved by BEGGS' CHERRY COUGH SYRUP? WRITING MACHINE CABINET and OFFICE DESK

For Remington, Hammond, and Crandall Type Writer.

The advantages of this Type writer and Office Desk over all other so-called Combination Cabinets, are:

First.—The ease and simplicity with which the desk is changed from a Library or Office Desk to a Type-writer Table. This change is effected by pushing the lid covering the machine back in the rear of cabinet—it being a roller top—removing it entirely from sight, thus overcoming the objectionable board and sounder in front of the operator. The movable top is perfectly flat, is felt covered, and forms a complete writing desk when the machine is not in use. The table on which the machine rests is so evenly balanced by our patent adjustments that it needs but a slight touch to bring the machine in position.

Second.—The advantages of the swinging table are. The table is so balanced near its center on patent malleable iron arms, that when the machine is brought into place for use, it does not depend on ropes or hangers at rear of platform for support, but is held rigidly in place by its own weight, making it impossible for the machine to be jumbled down on incline in back of desk by the breaking of a rear support. The machine rests on patent springs which keep the machine in place, and can be drawn out beyond the desk, well under the operator's hand.

Third.—The construction of the lid closing machine space makes it air tight, and the table having felt around its borders thoroughly protects the machine from dust.

Fourth.—The foot rest and the construction of the table adjustments makes the desk as rigid as though the top was one solid board, which is a matter of great importance where a solid type-writing table is required. No operator can do good work on a shaky table.

Lastly.—The cabinet is a splendid piece of cabinet work. We manufacture them in Walnut, Antique Oak, Natural Oak, Natural Cherry, Cherry imitation, Mahogany and Ash.

Agents wanted to sell these cabinets, and where we have no agencies established we will sell direct from our works at wholesale prices.

HABITS OF THE CHINESE.

Essay Read Before the Ridgeway Young Folks Union on Aug. 6th, by Eddy Lowry.

In methods of doing work they are one hundred years behind the times. The little machinery is rude and simple, applying but few even of the elementary principles of mechanics. They reap their grain with sickles and thresh it upon a level plot of ground patted down smooth and solid. In some places they beat the grain out by striking it upon slats, while in other places it is flailed upon the ground. After it has been beaten out it is taken up in dust pans and thrown into the air that the wind may blow out the chaff.

For mills they have not our improved roller process, and but few water mills or wind mills. Their mills usually consist of two large stones, each about a foot and a half thick, and about six feet in diameter. These stones are placed one above the other and in the upper stone a small hole is cut through to the lower one, into which the grain is poured and passes down between them. To the upper stone a pole is fastened, and is either pushed around by hand or is pulled around by a donkey or mule. Usually a woman gathers up the meal and puts it into sacks.

The Chinese dwellings are wanting in many of the comforts and conveniences such as are found in the homes of people of civilized nations. They are built usually of grey brick and covered with tiles. In the country they are built of mud mostly and are covered with thatched roofs. The houses are never made of timber for there are no forests in China, and therefore wood for building is very scarce. The floors to these houses are just the bare earth beaten hard, unless the family is quite wealthy and can afford a brick floor. Wooden floors are unknown, nor are they ever carpeted. In most houses there is no ceiling, the room being open to the roof. Their beds differ widely from our soft comfortable beds with spring mattresses. Indeed, if any one of you ever have a chance to try one of those Chinese beds you will conclude that they are not very springy. In North China they have the Kang, or raised mason work bed. It is made of brick, built entirely across one side of the room, about two and a-half feet high. Flues are constructed all through this bed, which are connected with a stove built against the bed receiving the heat which warms the bricks, and in winter time they do not have to use much bedding. Over the bricks is spread a thin matting, and with a quilt for a mattress and another for a covering, they pass the night in comfort. Their pillows are not quite as soft and comfortable as ours are, being small oblong bags filled with sawdust or some kind of grain. Sometimes they use simply a block of wood for a pillow. The windows of these houses are made of white paper pasted over lattice work. Glass windows are very rare except among the wealthier families.

Let us now take a tour through Peking, the capital city of this great empire. Its population is estimated to be about one million. Everything about the city has been planned on a liberal scale, and the main streets are about one hundred feet in width, while in many of the cities they are not more than 12 or 15 feet wide. Peking is divided into two parts separated by a wall. The wall around the Tartar city is quite large, being about 50 feet thick at the base, 40 feet high, and 30 feet wide at the top. It forms a square four miles square on each side. The wall of the Chinese city, which is south of the Tartar city, is not so large. The entire length of both walls is 26 miles. It is in the Tartar city that our mission is situated. There are 9 gates to this city which are closed every evening about sundown, and opened at about sunrise, that no one can go in or out during the night. Above these gates are large towers 59 feet higher than the wall, making their entire height 99 feet. These towers were constructed for storing amunition in time of war. Outside the wall surrounding the city is a great moat, in which the water is from six to eight feet deep. This was constructed for additional fortification. The main streets of the city are graded high, but not macadamized, and in wet weather deep ruts are worn in. The sidewalks are lower than the street, unpaved, and in wet seasons are often covered with water to such a depth that it is not an unusual thing to see Chinese boys bathing on them. In the Tartar city are situated the palace building where the Emperor resides. That part occupied by the Emperor is called the forbidden city, and no one excepting high officials are permitted to enter. These buildings occupying about one-third of the city are enclosed with a wall, and are the largest in the city.

Let us visit a few of the temples of interest: first, the temple of Heaven. This grand structure is also surrounded by a wall 15 or 20 feet high, and 3 miles in circumference. Entering these grounds from the east a broad, straight avenue a mile in length shaded on both sides by large trees leads us through the grounds to the principle altar itself. Reaching the long broad stairs we climb to the main temple. The dome of the interior is a ceiling made in imitation of the concave vault of Heaven. In this the Emperor is supposed to come once a year and worship the supreme ruler of Heaven. Within these grounds sacrifices are offered up on the altars three times a year.

Let us next visit the Mongol temple in the northern part of the city. This temple is large enough to accommodate three thousand priests. After bribing the gate keeper with several dollars, let us enter this temple. The first thing that attracts our attention is a priest moving towards a cylindrical object and taking hold of a handle gives it a few rapid turns causing it to whirl rapidly for some time. We ask him the cause of his action, and he will reply that he was only saying his prayers. We look further on and the next thing that meets our eyes is an idol, an image of Buddha, the largest idol in China, and perhaps the largest in the world. You ascend to the second story of the building in which it is placed and you are then just at its shoulders, its entire highth being between 60 and 70 feet. Two persons can comfortably be seated on his big toe. Every evening about 400 of these priests come together in a chapel and there sitting upon the floor with their feet crossed, mumble over their prayers, not in adoration of the living God, not exalting the name of Jehovah but doing homage to a god made by the hands of man. And the words of the Psalmist were certainly true when he said: "They have mouths, but they speak not; eyes have they, but they see not; they have ears but they hear not; neither is there any breath in their mouths." Before leaving the city of Peking, let us now visit a place of special interest to us, our missionary quarters—my own home.

This is located in the southeastern part of the city. All the missionary possessions are within a wall about 15 feet high. In the south part of this wall is a large gate, the main entrance to the compound. This gate must be watched by a gate-keeper by day, and closed and locked at night. Within this compound are situated the homes of all our missionaries in Peking. Besides the homes of the missionaries there are two school buildings, a hospital, a dispensary and a church. All our mission houses are made of brick, and are furnished with American furniture. Much of the supplies for the table also must be brought from America or England, because many things cannot be had there, and others are of an inferior quality. Drinking water is a precious article, the water in most of the wells about the city being bitter, hence we have to buy our water, for which we have to pay about $1.50 per month for one family.

When I left China three years ago there was an attendance of about 45 boys in our boys' school at Peking, and since then the number has just doubled itself and during last year there was an attendance of 90. There is also a girls' school in which there are about 50 in attendance. Besides the church which is in the compound, there are two other street chapels in the city in which there is preaching every afternoon. After preaching, opportunity is given to any who wish to enquire concerning Christianity. Each day some tarry, seeking for this light of truth. Of the one million of people in the city, but a small number comparatively have as yet come under the sound of the gospel. Protestant missions were begun in China by the London mission, by sending Robert Morrison to Canton in 1807. Unable to do direct missionary work when he first went out, he labored as a servant in the East India Co.; in the meantime compiling a dictionary and translating the bible. For six years he labored alone and then help was sent him. He labored seven years before he baptised his first convert. This was the beginning of the great work so much needed in China.

Since then the work has steadily advanced. Up to 1841 there were only 58 missionaries in all China. For 15 years they labored chiefly in five places in which foreigners were then allowed to enter. In 1860 all the chief ports were opened to foreign nations. Missionaries have been going out and China is making progress in civilization. At present there are eleven families and eight young ladies laboring in the north China mission. Their work is confined to two provinces—Chih-li and Shang-tung—having a population of 50,000,000. Eleven Methodist preachers in a population almost equal to that of the United States. The great need now is for money to send those who are willing to go and give their lives for such work. There are more that are willing to go than the board has funds to send them with. The country is now open inviting workers. The work must speedily be done or never be done. China in her weakness and helplessness is calling to you stronger Christian nations for aid. Christianity is taking hold upon the hearts of the people and may God speed the time when China too shall have no other religion but Christianity, and worship the only true and living God.

SUNDAY AT CAMP GEROW.

A Brief Description of the Knights Templar Camp at Sand Lake and Exercises of the Day.

The K. T. camp at Sand Lake was invaded last Sunday by a large crowd of visitors from the surrounding towns, Tecumseh being especially well represented. A little after 9 o'clock in the morning, after the Sir Knights had breakfasted, and were preparing for the day's program, the stirring strains from a brass band came floating through the grove to those assembled in camp, and the cause thereof soon appeared on the hill east of the parade ground. The band proved to be that splendid musical organization, the Tecumseh city band, headed by their dashing drum major, and it contained 18 pieces. Following them came Company C. M. S. T., about 40 strong, under command of Lieut. Doke. They marched up through camp to headquarters, and were received by the Sir Knights drawn up in line.

The camp was situated very pleasantly in the grove south of Putnam's hotel, overlooking the lake. There were 12 large tents arranged to form a street, with the headquarters of the Eminent Commander at the end and looking down the street. These were occupied by upwards of 50 Knights. Many of the married men had their families also. Their meals were taken at the hotel. The Knights present from Tecumseh Blue Lodge were J. H. Smith, Thos. R. Kyle, Jas. Boyd, B. J. Garlinghouse, B. A. Garlinghouse, Frank Davidson, Henry Mensing, Minor Davidson, B.F. Steinhoff, Chas. Underwood, John Britton, John J. Orr, C.A. Wright, Rev. J. M. Getchell, and Geo. A. Kies. C. M. Woodward came with the band.

The band and Co. C drove up in wagons and carriages, and every horse in the village had been engaged for the day. Many came on the Devils lake excursion train, and by one o'clock the grove was crowded.

About ten o'clock the Adrian band played a selection while the Knights and Co. C marched to seats in front of the stand where religious exercises were to be held, and soon a large congregation had collected. The meeting was opened with the usual scripture reading and singing, after which Rev. J. M. Getchell announced the text of his sermon as "The Highest Type of Life." The discourse was very interesting and the audience listened attentively throughout.

Dinner was next on the program and Putnam's hotel was tested to its utmost capacity for several hours. After dinner the Tecumseh band repaired to the grove and entertained the crowd with some of their best selections of music, and the compliments showered upon them at the close showed the concert was appreciated.

At four o'clock preparations were made for the dress parade, and the Tecumseh band, which was to furnish the music, marched to the parade ground a little north of camp, and took their places on the north side. They were soon followed by Co. C and the Sir Knights, who were drawn up under command of Acting Adjutant Fred B. Wood. The drilling and marching of the Knights was fine, and Co. C handled their guns with a precision nearly equal to that of regulars. Adjutant Wood read the general orders which showed that there had been no sickness in camp, and the four days spent together were those of unalloyed happiness. At the conclusion of dress parade the cannon boomed across the lake, the colors were hauled down and the encampment had come to an end.

Packing up was immediately began and the majority of the Knights returned home that evening. The camp was the most successful ever held by the commandery, and the attendance was larger than that of last year. Strict military discipline was observed throughout by Eminent Commander King and Capt. Gen. Howell, and the Knights speak in high terms of them. The regular daily program observed was generally as follows: Drill from 8:30 to 10 a.m. and from 2:30 to 4 p.m. Dress parade at 6:30. A vote of thanks was tendered Co. C and the city band for their pleasant visit, and the part they took in the day's program.

OBITUARY.

Departed this life in the town of Franklin, on Wednesday, August 28, Louie Langdon, daughter of Reuben and Candace Langdon, aged 14 years. Her sickness was long and painful, but her patience and resignation throughout her suffering were a beautiful illustration of the power of divine grace to cheer and sustain the young christian in the presence of the last enemy. She had been a member of the church for several years. Her end was peace. Her school-mates attended her funeral at the Congregational church on Friday last and were addressed by the pastor from Eccl. 12, 1. The children went in the procession to the cemetery, and after the coffin had been lowered into the grave, they passed around, each one depositing a beautiful flower, a tribute of affection to the dear playmate they had loved so well. It is well with Louie, yet some that loved her feel afflicted and desolate, though all are trying to learn to say, "Thy will be done."

It is a fact that all the avenues for gaining a livelihood are crowded, but there is ever a place seeking the competent one. A business or shorthand training prepares for many good situations. Melchior Bros., Tri-State Business College and "Best" Shorthand school, Toledo, Ohio, do not recommend their students until they are thoroughly prepared, hence the demand by business men for help from these schools. Address them for circulars.

"CLEOPATRA."

H. Rider Haggard's Latest Novel—A Wonderful Story, and Conceded by Critics to Be His Best—It Will Shortly Be Published in This Paper.

H. Rider Haggard, while one of the youngest of the English novelists, is by no means the least famous. In fact, for striking originality, strength of plot, power and beauty of narration, he stands foremost among the great writers of the day. The extraordinary sale of his works attests in an undisputable way his immense popularity among the reading public wherever the English language is spoken; to say nothing of the fact that they have been translated into nearly all of the foreign languages. There are few people in this country who have not read "She," "Jess," or "King Solomon's Mines," hence the announcement of still another story from Mr. Haggard's pen can not but awaken the liveliest anticipations of pleasure among lovers of the best serial fiction. "Cleopatra," Mr. Haggard's latest and (the critics say) his best story, and which will shortly be begun in these columns, is, in fact, an historical romance of ancient Egypt. Cleopatra, one of the most famous women of either ancient or modern times, is, of course, the central character of the story, while Antony, scarcely less prominent as an historic figure, is also an important personage in the tale. But it is around Egypt's wondrous Queen, a woman in whom the world has never lost its interest, that Mr. Haggard has woven a romance so fanciful that the never-to-be-forgotten fairy tales of childhood pale before its dazzling splendor, its weird mysteries and its vivid picturing. "She," which did more to win Mr. Haggard name and fame than all his previous works, and which stands almost unsurpassed among the spectacular stories of the day, is not superior to "Cleopatra" in its Oriental gorgeousness; while in many respects the latter is a far superior piece of literary work. But what surprises, as well as delights, the reader of "Cleopatra," is the amount of historic lore it contains, and which must have cost its author years of research and study. Indeed, in the dedication of the work to his mother, who, it seems, is also an Egyptian scholar of much learning, Mr. Haggard hints at the vast amount of labor which he was compelled to perform in gathering the materials for his story. The same attentive labor and research is also continued and carried out in the illustrations by Grieffenhagen, who has made a life study of Egyptian lore, and whose splendidly artistic and classical pictures for this story have been redrawn and adapted for newspaper use by one of the most competent artists in the West.

Briefly stated, "Cleopatra" is supposed to be a translation from three rolls of papyri found in the coffin of a mummy who existed in Cleopatra's days and who was himself the hero of this tale. This mummy, known in life as Harmachis, was held by the native priests of Egypt to be a direct descendant of the ancient Pharaohs, and figured as the leader in a conspiracy to overthrow the hated Queen. Instead of slaying her, as had been plotted, Harmachis falls a victim to her witcheries and for a brief period plays the part of a favored lover. He is, however, soon cast aside, when, being enraged at such treatment, he works out a secret vengeance which results in the ruin of Cleopatra and her favored Antony. This is, of course, but the barest hint at the plot of the story, but enough, we trust, to give those who are familiar with Mr. Haggard's work an idea of the treat in store for them when they come to a perusal of this, his latest and best piece of romantic fiction. As stated before, it will shortly be begun in these columns and given in liberal installments until completed. We bespeak for it a hearty welcome at the hands of our readers and at the same time congratulate them that we have been able to secure this certainly wonderful and charming tale.

The ladies of the union are especially requested to furnish, and any other of the friends who wish. Supper will be served during the entire evening.

For some unknown reason our mention of A. Lincoln Kirk, the elocutionist and impersonator, who gave an entertainment at Cottage Hall week before last, was left out of our report last week, and would not mention it only for the reason of his being worthy of a more hearty welcome than was given. He is a young man who has certainly originality as an elocutionist, while his impersonations show decided dramatic talent. His rendition of "How Ruby Played" was well received and well worth the price of admission. He was highly appreciated by those who heard him and we take great pleasure in recommending him to the public as an impersonator of character of more than ordinary ability and can unhesitatingly recommend his entertainment as unexceptionable and calculated to entertain and instruct.

FROM TECUMSEH TO CARO.

CARO, Ann. Mich. 1889.

EDITOR HERALD.—We arrived in this place the 26th. An unfortunate ignorance of the time tables of the R. R. left us stranded at Flint for a whole day, a day fraught with memories of beautiful flowers, fine churches and the massive structure of her deaf and dumb asylum, mingled less pleasantly with thoughts of dust, smoke and the utter weariness that comes of waiting for trains that never seem to come. Some one, doubtless the R. R. Co., has made two large, beautiful grass plots close to the depot. A fountain plays in each and hot house flowers and plants are arranged in lovely shapes. God bless the hands that plants and tends a flower or shrub to refresh the weary nauseated traveler.

Our Sabbath we spent at Milford. We found Mrs. Davis' family well. Gertie and Zella attending the teachers' institute—her daughters. Sixty or more teachers were in attendance there. The scheme to dam the Pettibone and construct a large and popular summer resort at this place, has for the present collapsed although we are assured it must ultimately succeed. At Highland station, three miles north of this place is located large pickle and vinegar works, and many acres of cucumbers are planted here; the present season we are told has been a disastrous one, cut worms taking the first and the yellow striped bug the second planting.

After we leave Geneseeville we begin to be struck with the altered appearance of the country. Small pines began to dot the woods, and in the fields are such a multitude of stumps and stump fences with their gnarled roots high in air fringe the fields, and above all the huge blackened trunks of trees, sometimes with a few dead limbs at the top—relicts of forrest fires of years past—are everywhere, ghostly reminders of what once was and now is no more. Ten years ago or more the little city of Caro was surrounded with fire. A heavy pall of smoke hung over it for weeks, and at night the lurid flames added to the gloom; no one was permitted to build in the town except in case of absolute necessity. Fires seemed everywhere and hair-breadths escapes were a matter of every day occurence. H. L. Taggett but just escaped being hemmed in at one time by the speed of his horse, and before he reached his home his buggy cushions had caught fire several times. But enough; Caro has entered on a period of prosperity. We like the place, we like the people.

The Tecumseh HERALD has arrived and we feel like shaking it by the hand, it is so like the face of a familar friend. Of course we turn to Northeast Franklin items first—please pardon us all other reporters—and we thank your correspondent for remembering that we like to share our gleanings in our poor way with our frends. We find the HERALD a very welcome weekly visitor at Mrs. C. L. Taggett's, and the thought occurs to us what a power is our local press for keeping the old ties strong and fresh in the hearts of the people; friends neglect to write but the HERALD never fails to put in an appearance.

The P. O. safe was burglarized Wednesday night, rather an attempt was made, the second one. The heavy doors were blown off upsetting a table and arousing a man, when the thieves fled. However they were caught Friday in a like attempt at Cass City, two of them, one escaping, and are now lodged in Caro jail.

We have had the pleasure of meeting the Rev. E. W. Frazee formerly of Clinton, and also of Ridgeway. He goes to conference at Bay City on Tuesday and we believe the people are anxious he should be returned back to them.

Dry! dry! dust as fine and dry as ashes—no rain for nearly two months all along the line.

We have just returned from a ride in the country, a fine rolling country with good farm buildings and an appearance of prosperity. The ghostly tree trunks have been carefully removed here. At Mr. Atwood's we are treated to a fine sight, a herd of seven deer, two stags and three does and two fawns; the graceful creatures come bounding lightly to our side enticed by a handful of clover and allowed us to stroke their sleek necks; the fawns stand back timidly, their big soft eyes full of curiosity.

But we are already drawing out this letter to too great length and close by saying our health has been greatly benefitted by our sojourn here. W.

We are indebted to Geo. W. Stacy for a copy of the Buffalo Express, containing a very full panoramic description of the Buffalo fair.

POLITICAL CONVENTIONS.

Prohibitionists, Democrats, and Union Labor Men in Session.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept 5.—The state Prohibition convention made George Kempton, of Sharon, chairman yesterday, and he delivered a speech reviewing the entire prohibition question at great length. The platform adopted is a radical affirmation of the strongest prohibition principles, and declares the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors inconsistent with good citizenship, sound morality, or Christian love; will have no hand in any license scheme, high or low, and denounces both old parties, uttering a special anathema against the Republicans. The third party is approved of, and a plank put in favoring suffrage not limited to race or sex. Five thousand dollars were subscribed to the campaign fund.

Dr. John Blackmer, of Springfield, was nominated for governor.

Dakota Democratic Nominations.

HURON, D. T., Sept. 6.—The Democratic state convention reassembled at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. P. F. McClure was nominated for governor by acclamation. The remainder of the ticket is as follows: For lieutenant governor, A. W. Pratt; for secretary of state, Otto Peemiller; auditor, J. R. Horton; treasurer, A. D. Hill; attorney general, H. F. Ellons; superintendent of public instruction, George H. McFarland; commissioner of public schools and public lands, Henry S. Volkman, and for supreme judges, S B. Van Buskirk, C. H. Winson, and D. McLaughlin. For congress, L. Q. Jeffries, and S. M. Booth. The convention then adjourned. The platform indorses Cleveland's tariff views; declares in favor of just and equitable pension laws; favors minority representation; sympathizes with the Irish people, and favors a license law.

Pennsylvania Democrats.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 5.—The Democratic state convention met in this city yesterday and nominated Edwin A. Bigler, of Clearfield county, for state treasurer. The platform begins by reaffirming belief in the tenth amendment to the constitution, declaring that all powers not expressly granted to the general government are held by the states; demands tariff revision, denounces trusts, favors a liberal pension system, but only for those honorably discharged, and generally denounces the Republican administration of the state government and for hypocrisy on the prohibition question. A resolution of sympathy with Gladstone and Parnell was also adopted.

Union Labor Nominates a Ticket.

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 5.—The state convention of the Union Labor party was attended by 100 delegates yesterday. The platform reaffirms the principles of the old Greenback party, free trade, more money, and opposition to banks, railroads and trusts. The following state ticket was nominated: Governor, S. B. Downing, of Davis county; lieutenant governor, Ezra Brownell, of Madison; superintendent, Mrs. Homer Belangee of Polk; judge of supreme court, M. H. Jones, of Davis; short term, L. H. Weller, of Chickasaw; railroad commissioner, L. H. Griffith, of Cass. This was the largest convention held by them in many years.

Cold Water Ticket for New York.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 6.—The state Prohibition convention reassembled yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock, and proceeded to the nomination of candidates, with the following result: Secretary of state, Jesse H. Griffin, Steuben county; comptroller, Benjamin L. Rand, Niagara county; attorney general, Coleridge A. Hart, New York county; state engineer and surveyor, Alpheus P. Kenyon, Allegany county. A motion made before the candidates were selected, that the highest nomination of the convention be given to a lady, was voted down.

Ohio Democratic Politics.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 4.—The Democratic state executive committee met here yesterday and organized with Hon. James E Neal, of Hamilton, as chairman, and John A. Barber, of this city, as treasurer. At 8 o'clock p. m. the various Democratic clubs serenaded Hon. James E. Campbell, the candidate for governor. A ratification meeting was held at the city hall with Hon. Lawrence T. Neal, of Chillicothe, as president, who spoke, and was followed by Mr. Campbell, Hon. Allen W. Thurman, Hon. George L. Converse, Hon. J. A. Norton, and others.

They Want To Be States.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Constitutional conventions are now in session at Cheyenne, Wy. T., and Santa Fe, N. M. Yesterday in the former M. C. Brown, of Albany, was made president, defeating the Republican nominee, Judge Conway. Brown's politics are not given. At Santa Fe the Democrats elected the temporary chairman—Judge Trimble, and J. Francisco Chavez was elected permanent chairman—politics not given. Fifty-three of the seventy-three delegates were present.

The Democrat Elected.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 4.—Telegrams from various points in the Third congressional district indicate the election of Andrew Price, Democrat, by a good majority over H. C. Miner, Republican.

WHAT ON EARTH

Is the reason people will not, can not, or do not see any difference in cheap nostrums put up by Cheap John houses or irresponsible parties at enormous profits, rather than take a medicine of world wide reputation and one that is giving universal satisfaction at equal price? No medicine in the world is giving such unparalleled satisfaction for purifying the blood as BEGGS' BLOOD PURIFIER & BLOOD MAKER, and every bottle that does not do its work will cost you nothing.

J. J. ORR Druggist.

INSANE DEVILTRY.

A Chicago Lunatic Stabs His Wife to Death.

MOST DIABOLICAL DELIBERATION.

He Knocks Her Down and Coolly Selects the Places on Her Bare Bosom to Stab Her, Driving His Knife by Inches Six Times Through Her Heart—The Negro Death-Roll in Mississippi Increasing—A Reign of Terror Among the Blacks—Race Troubles Elsewhere.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Groundless jealousy led to the deliberate butchery of Mrs. Josephine Johnson by her husband, G. E. Johnson last night. The murderous work was done in Dr. W. E. Morgan's handsomely furnished office, 34 East Twenty-ninth street, near Cottage Grove avenue. The man and his wife had been left alone in the office for a moment, and Johnson had locked and bolted every door. Divining his intent, his wife screamed for help, but was answered by a blow that felled her to the floor.

Vain Attempt at Rescue.

Kneeling over the prostrate woman Johnson held her fast. A Swedish dirk was already open in one hand, and with the other hand he slowly laid back the folds of his wife's dress that his aim might be sure. Men were already clamoring at his office door, called by the woman's screams. The door panels they could shatter, but the door itself would not give way, and men and women stood powerless a few feet away while the murder was being committed.

Fiendish Deliberation.

Moving the point of his blade slowly over the screaming woman's breast, Johnson finally chose a point just over the heart. Then, an inch at a time, the knife was driven in until it was buried to the hilt. It was withdrawn as slowly as it had been impelled and once more sank into the quivering flesh. Six times this was repeated, Johnson watching the spurt of blood that followed each stroke with a critical eye. There was no nervousness; it was the coolness of a surgeon in the midst of an operation.

Help Comes Too Late.

The murderer was just rising from his knees, knife in hand, when the door crashed open before the shoulders of the now frenzied crowd. Those who were in front were thrown almost headlong into the fast growing pools of blood, and jumped back in dismay. But Johnson attempted no resistance. "Here is my knife," he said to Officer Bartel, who forced his way through the throng from the street. "Take me to the station where I can do no more harm."

Every Thrust in the Heart.

There was a pause while a hasty examination was made of the woman's wounds. Each of the six thrusts had penetrated the heart, and from the wounds blood was flowing in streams that bespattered furniture and left great blotches on the white surface of the walls. As his wife breathed her last Johnson's face took on a look of satisfaction.

"Thank God," he said. "Now my family is safe. I have saved that girl's honor."

The cause of the horrible deed was insane jealousy. The man is undoubtedly a lunatic, and all the way to the police station he threatened to kill himself. He is 57 years old, and his wife was about 40.

THE SLAUGHTER OF NEGROES.

Twenty-Two, and Probably More, Dead in Mississippi—Troubles Elsewhere.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—A special to The Herald from Greenwood, Miss., says: Twenty-two negroes, and possibly more, who were working on a cotton plantation Monday morning, rest beneath the sod in DeFiore county, riddled by bullets. The names of those killed, so far as ascertained, are: John Boyker, Dol Wharton, Monroe Jones, Scott Marsh, Warren Snell, Theyton Lock, Ben Lock and Warren Beckwith. They were killed for resisting arrest. One was killed on Monday or Tuesday, and the others Wednesday and yesterday.

The Leaders Get Away.

The leaders of the insurrection, Joseph Allen and Oliver Cromwell, have both escaped, though it is thought that Allen was captured last evening. Cromwell was caught in Jackson Wednesday, but for some reason was turned loose.

The negroes are in a frightful state of fear and two have gone crazy over the excitement. The negroes have threatened to burn every house in LeFiore county, and every house is being closely guarded. More than 2,000 laborers have quit the fields and the cotton and corn needs gathering badly.

On the Edge of a Conflict.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 6.—The situation along Elk river between the whites and blacks is such that an open conflict may be precipitated at any time. The center of the trouble seems to have shifted from Echo to Sewell, and there is much concern among the leading citizens and authorities as to the outcome. The least incident, a drunken brawl, or the most trifling breach of the peace may lead to bloodshed.

The Negroes Want Winchesters.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 6.—A petition is being circulated among the negroes to secure funds with which to buy Winchester rifles and form a secret military company to join the negroes of Selma, Ala., and Greenwood, Miss. The members of the company are sworn to secrecy. The plot has been discovered in time to prevent the negroes from carrying out their designs.

OF COURSE JOHN, WHY NOT?

The Great John L. Announces Himself a Candidate for Congress.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—John L. Sullivan is out in a card in The Sun, in which he says in brief that after thinking the matter over he has concluded to be a candidate for congress from Boston at the next election if the Democratic nomination is offered him. He says he has always supported his party and deserves reciprocal support; that he has personal friends and admirers enough in Boston to elect him anyhow, and if anybody doubts his popularity with the American people all they have to do to dismiss the same is to travel around with him a while. But his strongest card is the work he has done to keep up the reputation of America among other nations, and he thinks that the man who can quiet a crowd in Madison Square garden, can "make his presence felt in congress or any where else."

Held Head Downward for Three Hours.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 6.—The collapse of two buildings on O street shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning caught seven men and buried them beneath the debris. Six of them were rescued in a few minutes, without serious injury, but the other, Dr. Kelso, was caught head downward between the ceiling and the floor of his office, and it was over three hours before he could be released. No one was seriously injured.

DAYS OF PLEASURE.

A GREAT HOLIDAY OF DELIGHT FOR THE MULTITUDES

About to Open in Detroit—The Good Things Prepared for the Detroit International Fair and Exposition—Amusement, Instruction and Business Combined—A Rare Programme.

The great national fairs and celebrations of ancient Rome and Greece were made attractive to the populace of the then civilized world by popular amusements, such as gladiatorial combats, fights with wild beasts, chariot races and athletic games, in which religious, military and civic ceremonies; processions and displays, etc. The ancients well knew that multitudes always seek amusements as well as instruction and profit.

DETROIT INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION—THE OFFICES.

Great bodies of people in all ages and countries, demand to be amused when they assemble, no matter how serious or how important may be the business that holds them together, and the more they are amused and delighted the brisker and more profitable is the business done.

Upon this custom of Rome has Gen. Wallace, the famous author of Ben Hur, founded the splendid drama of Commodus. The fair week in Rome gave the conspirators an opportunity to assemble in the capital from distant parts of the Roman empire without being questioned or suspected, and also gave them a chance to approach the palace of the emperor during the festivities without being stopped by the guards.

A GREAT MODERN FAIR

requires the same treatment. The masses of people must be amused. There must be other attractions besides the sober business shows of the exhibitors. The crowds of people expect to have, and will have, a gay holiday time; otherwise they would not congregate together.

Recognizing this fact the managers of the great Detroit International Fair and Exposition, which is to open Sept. 17 there and last ten days, have provided liberally for the amusement of the people on a scale unparalleled for variety and interest. Every day is expected to have its distinct attraction, so as to make the whole ten days' time one continual succession of rare pleasures. From the opening to the close every hour will be occupied with some rare delight for the eye, the ear and the intellect. Music, art, games, tournaments, regattas, races, pageants, processions and displays will succeed each other continually and add piquancy to the more solid business of the great exposition.

ON OPENING DAY

there will be imposing ceremonies, in which the governors of states and dignitaries, including those of Canada, and the city authorities will take the lead. That day will also be children's day and charity day. The inmates of all the charitable institutions in and near the city will be admitted free, and the thousands of school children will be admitted on payment of only 10 cents each. The little ones will have especial care, and will be received by the governor of the state and other dignitaries. Everything will be done to make it a day of delight to the happy youngsters. On the second and third days, Sept. 18 and 19, will occur the great in which about 100 of the best bands of Canada and the United States will compete for prizes, medals and championships. Each evening of these two days there will be a unique monster concert, in which all the bands will play together the national airs of the United States, Canada and other countries. This will be a magnificent display also. One hundred bands means 1,500 to 2,000 musicians. When this great aggregation of two full regiments of musicians in their splendid uniforms, with colors waving and instruments glittering, with their gorgeous drum majors to the front, and drawn up in a solid line of sixty rods long and four ranks deep, the will be something as remarkable as the grand crash of sound when they all play "The Star Spangled Banner" together. Nothing like it has ever been seen or heard in this country.

INTERNATIONAL BAND TOURNAMENT,

After these days every other day will also have its special grand attraction. There will be firemen's day, with its fine display of the brave fire laddies in uniform. There will be regatta day, in which boat and yacht races will take place on the broad river in front of the exposition grounds, where the whole course can be seen from the vast balconies of the exposition buildings; besides a grand review of about 1,000 boats, yachts and pleasure vessels, making the handsomest water pageant for the multitude that could be conceived. There will be military drills and reviews by each corps; horse races on the exposition track; athletic games and sports; the wonderful Palace of Illusions, whose mysteries exceed in beauty and strangeness anything ever before shown; the strange display of all sorts of live fishes in immense aquariums, with the splendid floral display of rare and beautiful flowers; a grand collection of machinery, inventions and models; rich and costly goods and wares; the greatest show of blooded horses and cattle ever collected in the west; the rare show of pet animals and birds of all sorts; the grand Art Hall, with its magnificent collection of great paintings, sculptures, gold and silver ware, etchings, engravings, tapestry, etc.; the rare and fascinating show of pigeons in great numbers and of strange beauty, including the, to most of the multitude, extraordinary spectacle of by the swiftest and strongest trained flyers on the American continent.

In short there will be all the attractions that heart could desire at the great fair itself, past the doors of which will pass in full view all the great commerce of the lakes, in a constant succession of steamers, vessels, barges and boats. And if the visitor is tired of the exposition, the city, with its theatres and opera houses, its magnificent Belle Isle park and its other attractions, is at hand, and fast excursion steamers constantly invite the taking of a half or whole day of pleasure in visiting any of the popular summer resorts within 100 miles of Detroit at cheap prices.

Compared with ancient fairs the great modern exposition pales their glories. The modern fair is also Christian and innocent in its tendencies. It uplifts civilization and morals, benefits humanity, teaches the arts of peaceful industry, and art, science, invention and commerce, and is a great and beneficent educational influence wholly for good.

BELIEVES MRS. MAYBRICK GUILTY;

But Doubtful if She Killed Her Husband—Sentence Commuted.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The home secretary has decided the case of Mrs. Maybrick and announcement is officially made that her sentence has been commuted to imprisonment for life. The decision is peculiar inasmuch that the woman is considered guilty of the intent but that doubt exists as to her success in the purposed crime.

The decision is based on the conflict of the medical testimony given at the trial upon the point whether the quantity of poison administered by the prisoner to her husband was sufficient to kill. The lawyers and the judge whom Mr. Matthews consulted were unanimously of the opinion that it was Mrs. Maybrick's intention to commit murder.

All the morning papers express satisfaction at the commutation of Mrs. Maybrick's sentence, and commend Mr. Matthews for the able manner in which he has discharged his duty.

Serious Accident to a Circus Train.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Barnum & Bailey's circus train met with a serious accident near Potsdam while en route from Gouveneur to Montreal on the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg railroad late Thursday night. An axle broke on the second train, derailing six cars and telescoping two more, crushing everything in them. Thirty ring horses and one of the chariot teams and two camels were killed. The loss is estimated at $40,000, beside which the loss of the day's receipts at Montreal, where the circus was to show Friday, must be added. This will make an additional loss of between $15,000 and $18,000.

What a Physician Says.

J. M. Loose Red Clover Co., Detroit:

I cheerfully furnish the following for publication.

Mrs. S., age 36, cancerous face (cell cancer), had tried many physicians, and on presentation to me was a horrible sight to look upon. Nose partly eaten away, deep pits in cheeks, forehead and chin. As a last hope I put her on Loose's Extract Red Clover—large doses internally, and as a local application, I used the Solid Extract in plaster form. She improved rapidly from the first week, and in four mo. was entirely well. Now eighteen mo. since treatment, and no signs of return.

JOHN J. WEAVER.

Ulceration of the leg (Indolent Ulcer). Recovered entirely after three months' treatment with Red Clover Extract and Solid Extract Dressing. Now one year since treatment, and no sign of return.

WALTER W. HUME.

Cancer of Lip and Skin Disease. Entirely cured with three months' treatment with Red Clover Tonic and Solid Extract Dressing. Now over year and no sign of return.

H——B——

Secondary Syphilis was entirely cured by Red Clover Extract in three months, with none of the results such as are left by mercury in such cases.

If you have any doubting physicians, they can write to me and I will give them a full history of each case.

That Tired Feeling

That extreme tired feeling which is so distressing and often so unaccountable in the spring months, is entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which tones the whole body, purifies the blood, cures scrofula and all humors, cures dyspepsia, creates an appetite, rouses the torpid liver, braces up the nerves, and clears the mind. We solicit a comparison of Hood's Sarsaparilla with any other blood purifier in the market for purity, economy, strength, and medicinal merit.

Tired all the Time

"I had no appetite or strength, and felt tired all the time. I attributed my condition to the climate, and had tried many kinds of medicine without benefit. But as soon as I had taken half a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, my appetite was restored, and my stomach felt better. I have now taken nearly three bottles, and I never was so well." MRS. JESSIE F. DOLBEARE, Pascoag, R. I.

Mrs. C. W. Marriott, Lowell, Mass., was completely cured of sick headache, which she had 16 years, by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Everybody needs and should take a good spring medicine, for two reasons:

1st, The body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season.

2d, The impurities which have accumulated in the blood should be expelled, and the system given tone and strength, before the prostrating effects of warm weather are felt.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best spring medicine. A single trial will convince you of its superiority. Take it before it is too late.

The Best Spring Medicine

"I take Hood's Sarsaparilla for a spring medicine, and I find it just the thing. My father is a cancer man. My wife takes it for dyspepsia, and she derives great benefit from it. She says it is the best medicine she ever took." F. C. TURNER, Hook & Ladder No. 1, Boston, Mass.

"Last spring I was troubled with boils, caused by my blood being out of order. Two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me. I can recommend it to all troubled with affections of the blood." J. SCHOCH, Peoria, Ill.

AN ARTIST'S ROMANCE.

STRANGE HISTORY OF A GRAND AND FAMOUS PAINTING.

How Konstantin Makoffski, the Great Russian Painter, Produced His Master-Piece—The Famous Picture To Be Exhibited at the Detroit Exposition.

The greatest painter Russia has produced, and one of the greatest painters of Europe, is Konstantin Makoffski. He was already recognized as the master of Russian art when he deliberately set himself to the task of painting a picture that should be immortal, and that should also be a national Russian picture—a picture that should immortalize his himself only, but Russian art. Artists and art students can conceive how difficult a task he had undertaken. It was, and is, perhaps, the most difficult undertaking in all the realm of art—to create a national picture that shall be immortal. Think of all the immortal works of art in the world, and, since the classics of Rome and Greece, how few are national, done by a national artist! There are hardly a dozen really great national paintings. There are great pictures that are utterly French, or German, or Italian, or Spanish, or English; but the things they depict either belong to history, and are national only because of history, or else they show things that might happen in any other country. Their greatness depends upon their appeal to the common human nature and the common knowledge of all countries. Of distinctively American national pictures perhaps the best known, although not an immortal painting, is the popular "The Trapper's Last Shot," in which a white borderer, clad in buckskin and riding a Kentucky horse, has taken refuge in the swampy reeds of a western prairie bottom, and sits at bay upon his blown horse, with his last bullet in his long rifle, to beat off

DETROIT INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION—ART HALL.

A BAND OF BLOODTHIRSTY SIOUX INDIANS.

This is national and American because the white man is an American of a type that no other land produces. So are the Indians, of course, American. So is the prairie American. The weapons are also American. And finally the story told by the picture is such a story as no other country ever had to tell.

Konstantin Makoffski undertook to produce a picture that would depict men and women that should be thoroughly and unmistakably Russian, engaged in something that should be Russian also, and not to be found in any other country. Besides it must be an immortal picture. Surely a great task. He selected as his subject because the old Muscovite wedding feast is an institution peculiar to Russia. Other countries have wedding feasts; but none other ever had such a wedding feast as is peculiar to the Muscovite customs. And in his picture are none but strictly typical Russian faces and costumes, and all accessories.

The great ambition of a Russian artist is to get a picture accepted and placed in the imperial art gallery of the Czar. That gallery is difficult of access. Its paintings are the rarest master-pieces of Russian art. Konstantin Makoffski shut himself up in his studio for months, while he labored like a madman upon his great project. Nobody except his wife was admitted, and she so rarely that she, like all his friends, suspected insanity in her husband. His intense earnestness and labor wore the painter to a skeleton. He worked at his picture at all hours; he dreamed of it while he slept; he painted and repainted, drew and redrew, in a growing fever of enthusiasm, until at last it was completed. Then his wife shed tears, because now she could have her husband again, and the artist fainted from prolonged exhaustion. The great picture was a triumph of genius.

The painting was sent to the Czar. The whole imperial family and the Russian artists were delighted with it. But it happened that, just then, a world's art exhibition was being held in Antwerp. The Czar, desiring that Europe should recognize Russian genius, sent the picture there. It instantly won the recognition of all Europe, and it was awarded the medaille d'honeur as of the age. Under the rules of the Antwerp exhibition the picture was sold. The Czar expected to put it in his imperial gallery; but he wanted money for his army; and so an American—Mr. Charles W. Schuman—bid a fabulous price and carried off the picture. He built a special private art gallery for it in New York, and refused to allow it to be exhibited elsewhere. But finally he yielded to the public desire, and consented to loan it to the Detroit International Exposition, at a cost of $500 per day for each day it is exhibited. Thus this great picture comes to the Detroit Exposition, where the people will have the rare pleasure of seeing it.

It is a wonderful picture, not only in its grouping, the charracteristic Russian faces, the strange costumes, the room, the table and the furniture; but it is also a masterpiece of rich and exquisite coloring. It is a blaze of gorgeous colors, and yet so blended as to make a rich, harmonious whole. No description can do it full justice, and this grand painting must be seen, as it will be by thousands upon thousands, at the great Art Gallery of the Exposition, where it will be the star amid three hundred and fifty other admirable paintings and many other works of art.

The Good Little Sunday School Boy.

If there is any place where one needs to keep all his wits about him it is in the Mission Sunday school. On one occasion a young rapscallion in a north end school remarked in a sanctimonious tone, "My father drinks." The unwary teacher, falling into the trap, began to talk to the class of the evils of intemperance. She waxed eloquent and spoke at considerable length. When all the class were supposed to be in an eminently edified condition of mind little Johnny finished his sentence with an air so innocent as to deceive, if it were possible, even the elect, "My father," he said, "drinks water." And he smiled confidingly into the face of his teacher, as if he were sure of her approval, and as if he enjoyed the approval of a clear conscience, as, indeed, very likely he did.—Boston Courier.

SHERIFF FOLEY'S DETERMINATION.

He Will Have No Lynching Going on While He Has Charge of the Notorious Wisconsin Stage Robber.

BESSEMER, Mich., Sept. 3.—Holzhey, the bandit, is resting in a jail that looks like a dry goods box. When the train arrived at North Bessemer Monday morning there was not a single soul out to greet the terror of these northern woods. North Bessemer is two miles north of this station. A stage, as they call every wagon in this part of the county, was on hand, Holzhey was bundled into it, and he was rattled over the rough and stony road to the packing case thay call a prison here. On the way through the woods the manacled bandit said: "If I had only known about this stage I would have stopped it several months ago. And, Sheriff Foley, I want to tell you that I am only sorry I did not meet you in the woods. They would have needed a new sheriff if I had seen you first."

Considerable Talk of Lynching.

There has been no excitement here at all, and the bandit himself feels that he is safe. He is in jail with a couple of other murderers, and during the time he has been gazing defiantly at numerous crowds that have called on him. In the saloons, and there are many of them here, there was considerable talk of lynching during the day, but the nerve required by a leader has not yet developed. The wooden jail of which the county boasts is surrounded by people who have Winchester rifles and lots of confidence in themselves. Sheriff Foley said Monday night: "The prisoner will go to Jackson for life, and I'm going to see that he gets a fair start. I will stay very near him, and if any lynching party comes around I will turn him loose with a couple of guns. I will also have a couple myself, and if anybody attempts to take the prisoner away for lynching purposes Holzhey will not be the only man to die."

The Coroner's Inquest.

Bessemer county is building a new stone jail, and Holzhey will be taken to it. Foley would not allow any one to see the prisoner Monday. The fellow was kept close, and even his preliminary examination was conducted behind the bars. The coroner also held his inquest Monday, and by the aid of half a dozen jurors found that Mr. Fleischbein came to his death from bullet wounds inflicted by Holzhey. Only two witnesses were examined, one of them the stage driver, Theodore Dermith, and the other Dr. Loope, of this place. In the room where the inquest was held was W. G. Decelle, the first man ever held up by Holzhey. Decelle is a St. Paul attorney, and he insists that the bandit arrested here is the coolest individual that ever said "Hands up!"

A Conflict of Authority.

Decelle appears to be a timid sort of individual and acknowledges that he will throw up his hands at any stage robber's command. Bessemer county wants to try the robber here, but there will not be a session of the grand jury until Oct. 25. There promises to be a conflict of authority over the custody of the prisoner. Postoffice Inspector Pulcifer came here from Chicago and he has been trying to convince Sheriff Foley that Holzhey ought to be given up to the United States for the mail robberies he committed in Shawano county. Mr. Pulcifer will not get the prisoner. Holzhey talks freely about everything except his crimes, and he laughs over the fright into which he threw Attorney Decelle, of St. Paul, when that gentleman fell a victim to his leveled revolvers.

Will Take Care of Himself.

There is no prospect of a lynching now. A correspondent tried to reach the jail Monday night, but was challenged on all approaches by men with Winchester rifles. Sheriff Foley even came out himself and said: "What are you looking for? If you're expecting a lynching you had better go home for I want to say there will be no hanging in this county. If anything of the kind is attempted there will be trouble." Holzhey himself is not worried. He assures himself with the promise of the sheriff, who has said he will give him guns if he is attacked by a lynching party, and he says he will care for himself in any such emergency.

Mr. Mackichor Reported Dying.

Holzhey is a harmless fellow, and the prevalent impression is that he is crazy—a condition brought around by the excessive perusal of dime novel literature. Some people came over here Monday night from Minneapolis and reported that Donald Mackichor, the banker who wass hot by Holzhey, was dying. Sheriff Foley at once hurried up to the jail to protect his prisoner, and says there will be no lynch law practiced there. Should Mackichor die and word reach here in time no one can tell what may happen. Foley is resolute, but the knots of men who are discussing the capture of Holzney on the street corners have a desperate ring in their voices.

An Emphatic Contradiction.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Secretary North, of the National association of wool manufacturers, authorizes an emphatic contradiction of the dispatch from Columbus, Ohio, to the effect that the association has issued a circular declaring that it will be difficult to keep woolen manufacturers in line for existing rates of duty on wool and asking growers to consent to a reduction of the tariff. PRESBYTERIANS CELEBRATE.

President Harrison Joins in a Day of Commemoration.

HARTSVILLE, Bucks County, Pa., Sept. 8.—President Harrison and wife, Postmaster General Wanamaker, Private Secretary Halford, and other distinguished citizens attended the celebration at the Tennent farm near here yesterday of the establishment of the old "Log" college. The exercises of the day were really commemorative of the founding of the Presbyterian church in the United States. The Log college was established in 1726 by William Tennent, and flourished until 1742, when Princeton college was founded, and it may be said that the Princeton institution of learning sprang from the primitive college established by Tennent. When Thursday's celebration was first talked of, President Harrison promised to attend, and he has kept that promise.

A Raging Mass of Flames.

WINONA, Minn., Sept. 6.—Thirty-five million feet of lumber, shingles and lath, two brick warehouses and a number of tramways of the Laird Norton company were swept away by fire yesterday afternoon. Laird Norton company lose 22,000,000 feet of lumber, 6,000,000 lath and 7,000,000 shingles, valued at $260,000; two brick warehouses, $20,000, and $5,000 in tramways. Of their entire stock of lumber only 2,500,000 feet of common dimension remain. The total loss is $300,000. There is $170,000 insurance on the lumber, divided among twenty-five mutual and semi-mutual companies in Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio and New York, with $5,000 in the Pine Tree, of Winona, but none in old line companies. There is $10,500 insurance on the brick warehouse. J. L. Harris lost $1,000 on wool in the warehouse. Had the fire passed to the Empire yard, just below, the loss would have been millions.

LONG LIFE.

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought untill we recive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease preventer that has yet been discovered, is simered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names and guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them.

They do not know, of course, unless they have courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why dont you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but one dollar for a very large bottle. RUFUS T. BUSH'S ADDRESS.

The Chinese are, in respect to neatness and civility, exactly opposite to the Japanese, the former being as filthy and uncivil as the latter are tidy and polite. The Japanese welcome with open arms the Europeans, while the Chinese despise and hate, calling them "foreign devils."

Hong Kong is situated at the foot of a mountain, the residential portion reaching far up the side, presenting a very beautiful sight at night, when seen from the deck of a vessel lying in the harbor. The native population, if I recollect correcly is about 180,000, while the whites number only 2500. Canton, the largest city in China [illegible] Hong Kong on the Pearl river, navigable for 450 miles, yet the government will not allow any vessel propelled by steam to go above Canton. They are firmly set against the introduction of machinery, fearing it will throw men out of employment. Their 557,000,000 people must have something to do, so I am not sure but what they are right. Free schools and colleges are numerous there, and attending school is compulsory after seven years of age. Examinations for civil service positions, which, if I had time to explain, would show you that political influence or party favoritism avail nothing in China. One-third of the population of Canton live in boats, most of which are not over 16 feet long, and there with no covering except canvas stretched over hoops like an emigrant's wagon, they are born, live and die.

Chinese streets are narrow, from six to ten feet wide, seldom more. They laugh at us for having such wide streets to let in the heat, and well they may, if it be true that the Chinese lungs do not require so much air as do ours. In Canton people must either walk or be carried in chairs, there being nothing on wheels in the city, and if there were, the streets are too narrow for their use. The Chinese are called the English of the east, bright, strong, conceited and self willed. The cat, dog, and rat markets are interesting subjects, but the wind is coming in from the N. E., so we must set sail for Singapore, the bazaar of the east. At Singapore we saw a greater variety of people than at any other place. The weather was extremely hot, although we were there at their coolest season. The English gentlemen wear nothing but white, and only coat and pants, no vest or under vest. The coat buttons close to the chin, and the collar of the coat stands up to represent a shirt collar. These white suits are changed always once a day, and sometimes twice. One gentleman informed us that he had 60 such suits. Just above Singapore, on the peninsula, wild elephants and Bengal tigers are very numerous and troublesome, especially to the coffee planters. At night fires have to be kept burning around the fields to keep the elephants away. When they succeed in getting into a coffee field, nothing seems to delight them more than to destroy the crop. The Sultan of Johore, adjoining Singapore, who sent his steam launch for the Coronet party, entertaining us at his palace with a very elaborate 12 o'clock breakfast, sent on board, as we were taking our leave, a handsome pair of tusks which had been taken from an elephant killed near his palace. I would like to describe the palace and breakfast, but time will not permit.

Leaving Singapore, we were off for Ceylon, the land of spices and gems, which we reached in ten days. At the time we were there, cinnamon growing was not profitable, but nearly all other condiments, cloves, alspice, pepper, nutmeg, etc., were paying unusually well. The pearl fisheries are near Ceylon, and nearly all of the world's gems, except diamonds, are found on the island. Kandy, the capital of Ceylon, lies back in the mountains some distance from the coast, and is a very delightful summer resort. Until recently the king would not allow his subjects to accumulate wealth, and when any one became worth 104 rupees (about $35) he would confiscate all additional earnings. While there a gentleman presented me with a dagger, once worn in the family of one of the kings 600 years ago. The silver sheath was of Moorish design, elaborately wrought.

Calcutta, the largest city in Hindoostan, was our next point. This is a great commercial city, but there is very little to be seen which would interest a traveler. To cross northern India by rail to meet our yacht at Bombay, whither it had been sent to await our coming, was our next move. Leaving Calcutta, we were soon at Benares, the sacred city of India, situated on the left bank of the sacred Ganges. To die in Benares and have the remains thrown into the Ganges, insures one's entrance into Heaven. There is one other city in which, if one dies, he may go to Heaven, but if in Benares there is no mistake about his going. This belief brings constantly a throng of old people, who come from all parts of Hindoostan to die in the sacred city. The cow temple in Benares is a very large and handsome edifice, in which cows are turned loose with their neck and horns decorated with flowers. The natives go in and worship, rubbing their faces against them in the most affectionate manner. There is also a very large monkey temple, in which these sacred animals run and chatter at will. To the Hindoo, all animals are more or less sacred, especially cows and monkeys. Dead bodies are partly burned on the banks of the Ganges, then thrown into the water and allowed to float and be devoured by vultures. One day while going a short distance up the river in a row boat, five dead bodies floated quite near us. Every morning at sunrise thousands of Hindoos may be seen down by the river bathing in the filthy water, while worshipping the rising sun. Where will you find Christians equally zealous? I will skip Cawnpore, Lucknow, and Agra, all places of much historical interest. Will say however that the Taj of Shah Jehan in Agra is unquestionably the most beautiful marble edifice on the face of the earth. It is all inlaid with the precious stones of India, is about 200 feet square and over 200 feet high. Was built 300 years ago, and looks as though completed yesterday. Delhi is a wonderfully interesting old place, in which can be seen the marble formerly having a solid silver roof. In this palace was the famous "Peacock Throne," and the great Koohinoor diamond, now among the crown jewels of England. A Hindoo never allows his living expenses to increase, however much money he may make. As he begins life, so he ends, saving up all his wealth to carry him to Benares to die. His dress is very simple, usually about two yards of cheese cloth. We took two or three elephant rides while in India, and camel rides in Arabia. The elephant as a beast of burden could not well be dispensed with. The government use them very largely in carrying loads up mountains and through the rough country where there are no roads. A half ton or even more a large elephant will walk off with very easily. We rode one considerable larger than Jumbo, notwithstanding he was "the largest elephant in the world."

Please step aboard at Bombay, and we will sail across the Arabian sea to Aden, a place of but little interest. Selling ostrich feathers and coaling steamers seems to be Aden's chief industries. The feathers are extremely cheap and coal correspondingly high, One might almost think it would pay steamship owners to buy feathers for fuel instead of coal. No rain had fallen in Aden for three years. Leaving this port, in seven days we passed through the Red Sea to Suez. About ten miles below this city is the place where the Israelites are supposed to have crossed the Red Sea. Nearly opposite is the well where Moses smote the rock, and the pool is still there over which a house has been built. As we were passing Mt. Sinai, which is quite near the coast, (having all gathered on deck to see the sun rise) suddenly a blaze of glory burst upon us, from between the two topmost points, and the whole mountain top seemed on fire. It was a wonderful picture, never to be forgotten. From Suez we went to Cairo by rail, sending the yacht through the canal to Port Said, there to await our coming. Cairo is a very interesting city situated on the river Nile, and only nine miles from the largest pyramids. The hotel there was filled with Americans and we met ten people from Brooklyn, with whom we were acquainted, making us feel that we were getting nearer home. The thing to do when there, is to drive to the pyramids and have your photograph taken with Cheops and the Sphinx in the background, and we did likewise. We saw the tree under which Joseph and Mary rested while flying into Egypt with the infant Jesus, and also the place where the bullrushes grew in which Moses was found. On the little island around which the rushes grew, is located an instrument for registering rise of the Nile called the "Nileometer," and by this instrument the taxes from year to year are regulated. Without the flow of the Nile, the whole of Egypt would be a desert waste. Alexandria, Egypt's seaport, has been mainly restored since the English bombardment, and is neat and new, quite like a miniature Paris.

Returning to Port Said, we found the yacht all ready to sail. Out of the harbor we encountered a heavy head wind which lasted the whole time going the length of the Mediteranean, over 2000 miles. I never saw the wind blow harder, or the sea run higher When we passed the island where St. Paul was wrecked we felt sure that if he had been on a vessel like the Coronet, his fate would have been different. We wanted to stop at Tunis and Algiers, but the storm was so severe, we could not make the ports without great danger of getting aground, hence our first stopping place was Malta, whence we sailed to Gibraltar. One week (during which time we visited Tangier) allowed the equinoctial storm then due to pass, when with a spanking breeze we set sail for New York, which place we reached April 26. After a short sojourn there, we have completed the circle by coming again to the world's pivot.

Died at Tecumseh, at the home of her brother, Mr. Giles Turner, Saturday, August, 31, 1889, Miss Laura Turner, in the 80th year of her age.

Miss Turner was born in Livingston co., N. Y., in March, 1810, and resided in her native home until 1857, when she came to Franklin, Mich., and became a member of her brother's family. She continued to be a valued member of that family, at Franklin first and then at Tecumseh, until the date named above, when she was suddenly called, without any previous illness, to the higher home. In early life Miss Turner was an attendant at the Methodist, in her later at the Congregational or Presbyterian church, Without being a member of any visible church organization, she yet gave to those who knew her the impression by means of her patient, gentle and self-denying life, that the essentials of a Christian character were hers. Those who saw the most of her are the most confident that she has gone hence only to enter into the rest that remaineth for the people of God.

WEST FRANKLIN FARMERS' CLUB.

The West Franklin Farmer's Club met at the residence of Mr. John Osborn on Friday evening, Aug. 23rd. Owing to the busy season the attendance was not quite as large as usual. However the pleasant rooms were comfortably filled, and every one present seemed to be enjoying a social chat with neighbors and friends. The literary exercises were fine and well rendered; the music by Frank Grey and Miss Nellie Smith received a hearty encore. Many topics were discussed, among which was, "Shall we give up the Farmer's Club, and join the Patrons of Industry?"

While the Patrons of Industry is considered a good organization, the Farmer's Club also has its merits and it was emphatically decided to keep up the Club.

The meeting then adjourned to meet at the residence of Mr. Fremont Leonard on Friday evening, Sept. 20, 1889.

Hotel Emery has among its furniture equipments a series of dining tables of uniform size, which are not excelled for beauty, durability or strength, by those of any in the state. They are of a handsome pattern, and of solid oak highly finished, and constructed after newly granted patents, making an elegant piece of furniture. The were furnished by the genial Harry Lee, of the Lee Manufacturing company, of Tecumseh. The furniture is a credit to the hotel as well as to the manufactures, whom we learn, have a growing demand for them, which bids fair to compel additional manufacturing facilities. — Adrian Press.

The harvest festival given by the ladies of St. John's church at Clinton last evening was largely attended and proved to be a profitable occasion.

A neat business paper has been issued from Brown's Business University at Adrian, setting forth the good points of that institution. It can be had for the asking.

We offer no excuse for inserting another column this week descriptive of the Detroit fair and exposition. It is going to be a mammoth show, one of which every citizen of Michigan will have reason to be proud.

Frank Snedecor and family and Mrs. Ed. Snedecor started Monday for Akron, O., and other places in that vicinity to visit friends. Frank and family will return next week, but Mrs. Ed. Snedecor will remain some time.

The first number of the Lansing Democrat is at hand. This is a new venture started by that old war horse Col. Geo. P. Sanford, and he seems to have struck a "git thar" gait with the very first issue. It is a live paper, that has evidently come to stay.

Miss Allie Warren has been in Detroit two weeks and has just returned with a nice line of fall and winter hats and bonnets, and all the latest novelties in trimmings. Ladies are requested to call and examine her stock before purchasing. No trouble to show goods.

The publishers of St. Nicholas announce that that popular children's magazine is to be enlarged, beginning with the new volume, which opens with November, 1889, and that a new and clearer type will be adopted. Four important serial stories by four well known American authors will be given during the coming year.

Our citizens will doubtless recollect Geo. P. Pardington, who lived here during his father's pastorate over the M. E. church, and what a sufferer George was at that time. His health has since been fully restored, and he has just entered the freshman class in the University of the city of New York. He has written a little pamphlet entitled, "The Crooked Made Straight," setting forth the particulars of his affliction and recovery. He attributes his restoration to answered prayer, and he is kept well by the same means—simple trust in God. He is now living at 296 Driggs st., Brooklyn, N. Y. His friends in Tecumseh will learn with wonder and pleasure of his complete recovery to health.

The Detroit Tribune is 60 years old, and is today a better newspaper than at any previous time in its history. Its publishers aim to make its weekly edition a distinctively Michigan newspaper. It consists of 12 pages, containing 84 columns of just the reading matter that Michigan people desire, and in no department is it wanting in interest and excellence. The publishers make the most liberal premium offer that has yet come to our notice. For $2 they send the Weekly Tribune one year and Dickens' complete works, (15 vols., paper) or Scott's complete works, (12 vols., paper) or for $3 the Tribune one year and both sets of books. The books are delivered to subscribers free of all express charges or postage. Thus for one dollar added to the price of the Tribune its subscribers get a full set of Dickens' or Scott's handsomely printed on good paper. The Tribune with this remarkable premium will be clubbed with the HERALD for $3.

The president of the Ananias Club sat for two mortal hours on the curbstone in front of Johnson & Wheeler's drug store Saturday night, and counted the passage of 101 baby carriages, and would undoubtedly have been counting yet, had he not discovered that the thing had been fixed up to run one carriage around on the other side of the street, and down in front of him, indefinitely. It takes a good man to know one baby carriage from another.—Adrian Times.

In a "write up" of East Toledo found in an exchange we find a very favorable mention of the grocery house of Henry & Gross.

In addition to their grocery they have a carriage and buggy department. They have a large supply of buggies, carriages, and wagons, heavy and light. Messrs. Henry & Gross are practical business men and stand prominently in the phalanx of East Toledo's business men. To such enterprising firms is due East Toledo's popularity as a business mart.

Owing to farmers being very busy, and as many wish to attend the fairs, it was thought best to postpone the next regular meeting of the Farmers' Social Club from Sept. 20 to Oct. 11.

How old do you suppose Jas. Snell is? Just 80 this year. He can't do as much work as he could 20 years ago, but he does his full share, and enjoys good health too, for he has built three barns this summer.

The Lenawee Club picnic reception will be held in Jackson park, Chicago, Sept. 19. As this park is provided with a fine pavilion, festivities can be held in it, if the weather should not be all that can be desired.

We took a look through J. D. Sholes' establishment yesterday and were quite surprised to see the extent of his new stock. He has a very fine assortment of heavy and light harnesses, a large supply of trunks and satchels, and a big stock of blankets, robes and other horse furnishing goods. He also sells the celebrated Emerson & Fisher buggies, and can supply all the different styles, made by this firm. Persons in want of goods in his line should not fail to look over his stock.

AWFUL DISASTER.

Three Hundred Killed by an Explosion, Mostly Girls.

ONE THOUSAND PEOPLE WOUNDED.

Antwerp, Belgium, Visited by a Frightful Calamity — A Cartridge Factory Blown to Pieces and the Working Girls Meet a Terrible Fate—Fire Follows the Explosion and Destroys Property by the Millions—The Flames Still Raging at Last Report—Fifty Men Lost in a Pit Horror—Other Casualties.

ANTWERP, Sept. 7.—A frightful disaster occurred in this city yesterday, which has cast a gloom throughout the entire country and caused a great loss of property. A large cartridge factory was situated close to the docks, and in the vicinity of the bourse, and also close to the warehouses in which petroleum is stored. Many work people were employed in the factory yesterday, when suddenly an explosion of dynamite took place, killing at least 200 people and wounding 500 others. To add to the destruction the debris took fire, threatening the bourse, which was ablaze several times, and spreading to the petroleum warehouses and shipping. At this writing the fire is still raging fiercely and the best the firemen hope for is to extinguish it in twenty-four hours. The heat from the burning masses of petroleum was intense and it was impossible to approach to within 100 yards. Several vessel have been burned at their docks and others were only saved through the promptest action of their officers in towing them out of danger. The fire is not now spreading and it is hoped, if the wind does not rise during the night, that the flames can be confined to their present limits. A strong west wind would, however, set the entire city in a blaze.

The Oil Warehouses on Fire.

As soon as the nature of the disaster became known the authorities ordered detachments of troops to the scene, and with their aid the thousands of excited people were kept at a distance from the wrecked building. The firemen had reached the place and were about to begin the work of extinguishing the blazing ruins when it was discovered that the neighboring oil warehouses were on fire. Officers at once passed through the dense crowd, telling them of the new and terrible danger. The people were soon removed to a safe distance, by which time huge flashes of fire were leaping into the air as barrel after barrel of oil exploded and poured out into the various yards.

The Firemen Forced Back.

In less than half an hour the 80,000 barrels of oil was liberated and, gathered into huge pools here and there, was sending high into the air great volumes of flame. As the blaze gathered headway the smoke, which was of the most stifling and offensive description, spread all over the city, and the firemen and troops who were compelled to remain near the burning masses were overcome with nausea in many cases. The air become so black eventually that the soldiers and firemen were withdrawn some distance, it being evident that no efforts on their part could check the progress of the terrible conflagration. Before this action was taken, however, many of the troops and firemen had been carried away to the hospital, having been injured either by flying pieces of blazing wood or overcome by the heat. The firemen were then directed to confine their attention to property in the immediate vicinity of the great blaze. This they are still doing.

A Panic in the Streets.

When the people living in the neighborhood realized what a terrible disaster had befallen the city a panic overtook them. Nearly all are of the poorer class, and some of them began moving their household goods into the street. This example was followed by others, and in a short time the streets in the neighborhood were blocked up, interfering with the movement of troops and firemen. The panic was brought to an end by the city officials, many of whom personally helped the affrighted people to get their goods back into their homes.

Origin of the Disaster.

The explosion occurred in a workshop where a large number of old cartridges were being taken to pieces. Many men and women were employed in the shop and they were actively engaged in breaking up the old cartridges. There were fully 25,000,000 of these in and about the premises, a part of them already broken up. The flames cover two acres of ground and rise to an immense height.

Explosions Still Going On.

Amid the fierce roar of the flames are heard from time the loud reports from explosions, to which there seems to be no end. The explosions are supposed to be of packages of cartridges stored in the buildings, which seem to remain intact until the hot tongues of flame are actually upon them. The shipping at the African docks and at the American docks is in imminent danger, and all the facilities for removing the vessels from the immediate vicinity of the conflagration are being pressed into service.

Fully 300 People Dead.

LATER.—At an early hour this morning the fire was still raging with undiminished fury and the military were assisting the firemen in preventing the spread of the conflagration. It is now certain that fully 300 people have perished and no less than a thousand are injured. The scenes at the hospitals where the wounded have been conveyed are heartrending. The ships at the American docks were saved, the wind being favorable.

A Regular Bombardment.

The explosions at the cartridge factory still continue at frequent intervals, and the flying shells render the work of the firemen and soldiers extremely perilous. The factory was known as the Carvilleian factory. The communal council recently condemned the factory as dangerous, but for some unexplained reason it was allowed to continue operations. The victims are mostly factory girls. Windows were shattered at points three miles away.

The loss in property cannot be stated yet, but it will reach millions.

DEADLY WORK BY LIGHTNING.

Nine Georgians Struck by the Electric Fluid and Killed.

A Bus Full of Girls Capsizes.

PARIS, Ky., Sept. 7.—Mount Airy, the suburban home of Col. W. E. Simms, ex-Confederate states senator, which overlooks this city, was the scene of a grand party Thursday evening, given to his son's classmates at Yale college, Messrs. Langdon Snipe, of Maine, and Starling Chiles, of Pittsburg. As a bus crowded with young ladies and top-heavy with gentlemen was coming down the winding road from Mount Airy it overturned, and the sixteen passengers were thrown helter skelter, and most of them were bruised. Eight of the young ladies were among the injured, one of whom was Miss Susie Todd, of Indianapolis, and one young man had a shoulder dislocated. None of the burts is serious.

Two Men Drowned.

OCEAN CITY, Md., Sept. 7.—Capt. J. T. Robinson, formerly of Long Island, and Capt. William Sport, of this place, were drowned here yesterday. They, with several others started out in two boats on a fishing excursion. The sea was very rough and Capt. Robinson's boat capsized. Robinson and Sport were drawn in by the under-tow and drowned. The others were rescued by the life-saving crew and brought ashore in full view of the 200 guests at the hotel.

THREE TWO-CENT STAMPS LEFT.

An Iowa Bank Breaks Owing Its Depositors About $30,000.

CRESTON, Ia., Sept. 4.—The private bank of L. S. Brooks, at Lennox, has been closed by the sheriff, owing the depositors from $25,000 to $30,000. For some weeks the rumors of its unsound condition have been current, but the proprietor and his cashier have constantly denied these reports, and, it is stated, received $13,000 late Saturday afternoon, since which time the doors have not been opened.

Writs of attachment were sworn out by Ridgeway & North, creditors of the bank, and when the sheriff went to make an inventory he found just three 2-cent stamps in the vault. The town is excited over the event, as many of the depositors are poor people, or tradesmen who cannot lose their deposits and continue their business.

Brooks and his cashier, Bester, are both under arrest, and there is great indignation against them. Many threats of violence have been made, but they are very securely guarded by the sheriff.

Blood vs. Nerves.

Great mistakes have been made in the world, by supposing many nervous troubles were due to bad blood. Thus headache, fits, dizziness, sleeplessness, etc., are always due to weakness or irritation of the nerves of the brain: dyspepsia, pain, wind, etc. to weakness of the nerves of the stomach: weak lungs is caused by weakness of the parts: billiousness, constipation, etc. to weakness of the nerves of the liver or bowels: pains, irregularity, sterility to derangement of the uterine nerves. For all weakness, Dr. Miles' great nerve and brain food surpasses all other remedies. Trial bottle free at Baker & Hall's Drug Store.

THIRD POINT

You should read the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS because it's an independent newspaper. There are two sides to every political question, and THE DAILY NEWS gives them both with equal fairness. A party organ magnifies one side and dwarfs the other. No sensible man wants to be trifled with in this fashion. The time has gone by when American citizens expect to inherit their political opinions. They want to make their own—and to do this they want a paper to tell them the truth, regardless of their own personal preferences. If you are an honest man, independent and self-reliant in thought, read an honest and independent newspaper—read The CHICAGO DAILY NEWS.

DAVID SPARES SAUL'S LIFE

LESSON XI, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, SEPT. 15.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xxiv, 4-17—Commit Verses 11, 13—Golden Text, Rom. xii, 21—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

After David and Jonathan parted that day, as recorded in the last lesson, David obtained from the priest some bread and also the sword of Goliath, and then fled to Achish, king of Gath, but was also afraid there and, feigning himself mad, soon made his escape from that quarter and came to the cave Adullam. Here he was joined by his father and mother and brethren and about four hundred men, over whom he became captain. He did not, however, tarry long at Adullam at this time, but, having made provision for his father and mother with the king of Moab, he sallied forth against the Philistines and defeated them. His company increased to six hundred men, and he had with him Gad, the prophet, and Abiathar, the priest; they abode in strongholds in the wilderness, and Saul sought him every day, but God delivered him not into his hand.

4. "And the men of David said unto him, Behold the day, of which the Lord said unto thee." Saul, who so persistently sought David's life, is now completely in David's power and his men seem to suggest that now he slay him; but as David himself had cried, "Be merciful unto me, O God, be merciful unto me" (Ps. li, 1 and Title), so he would show mercy even to Saul, and is content to lay no hand upon him, but simply cut off the skirt of his robe privily to show him afterwards that he had him in his power.

5. "David's heart smote him because he had cut off Saul's skirt." Even for asserting this slight token of his power, he feels condemned.

6. "The Lord forbid that I should do this thing unto my Master, the Lord's anointed." Here is another view of the case; Saul was not acting like the anointed of the Lord should act, his life did not testify in that direction, but as to his office he was "the anointed of the Lord," and therefore responsible to God to act as such; and if he failed it was for the Lord and not for David to deal with him.

7. "So David stayed his servants with these words; * * * Saul rose up out of the cave and went his way." We may do very much by kind words and the manifestation of a Christ-like spirit to hinder others from speaking against or touching in any way the anointed of the Lord.

8. "David * * * cried after Saul, saying, 'My lord the king,' * * * and stooped with his face to the earth." Notwithstanding David's fears and ofttimes questionable conduct, here is a truly humble and forgiving spirit. Whatever were his sins, his heart was in the main right with God, and his failures tell us the truth of that which he himself wrote: "Verily, every man at his best estate is altogether vanity."

9. "Wherefore hearest thou men's words, saying, Behold David seeketh thy hurt?" Saul had turned a deaf ear to the words of God, and was giving heed to the lying and deceitful words of men; and was, therefore, far from the way of peace. The only rest of soul for man is upon the words and thoughts of God; but how few, even among Christians, rest quietly there? The words of this or that man, what some one has said or reported, is constantly heeded, and there is, therefore, such unrest, while all the while the God of peace is speaking peace and longing to give peace to all who will hear Him.

10, 11. "Some bade me kill thee, but mine eye spared thee; * * * yet thou huntest my soul to take it." Here David recounts the incident in the cave, and displays as proof of the truth of it the part of Saul's robe which he had cut off, thus testifying most unmistakably that there was no evil in his heart towards Saul. Notice how David says to Saul that it was the Lord who delivered him into his power in the cave; when we begin to see the Lord and acknowledge His hand in everything all fears and doubts will soon vanish. David was now in a better frame of mind than when he talked with Jonathan of Saul killing him; but the circumstances were different now, and it is so easy to be bright when the sun shines upon us; there is more glory to God in being joyful in the dark and cloudy day.

12. "The Lord judge between me and thee, and the Lord avenge me of thee; but mine hand shall not be upon thee." This is beautiful on David's part; this is surely casting his burden upon the Lord; it is in accordance with Rom. xii, 19, "Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath;" that is the wrath of God, not your wrath; let Him manage all. Oh, what a resting place this is; we have not to fight our own battles, for it is God who fighteth for us; we have not to defend our reputation, but commit all unto Him; we have no revenge to take, but inasmuch as whoever toucheth us toucheth the apple of God's eye, just let Him see to it in His own good time and way.

13. "Wickedness proceedeth from the wicked, but mine hand shall not be upon thee." If the boys of all our Sunday schools would act upon this principle, and remembering that wicked words and deeds proceed from wicked hearts, avoid all such, refusing even, when injured by them, to lay a hand upon them, it might be that some wicked hearts would be won by such a spirit and learn of the new and clean heart which alone can act in such a way.

14. "After whom dost thou pursue? After a dead dog, after a flea." In chapter xxvi, 20, when he again had Saul in his power and spared him, he uses similar words, comparing himself to a flea and a partridge. David was as harmless to Saul as a dead dog, for he had no thought of doing him any injury; but Saul, tempted by the evil spirit of envy which had taken possession of him, fancied all manner of things against David, and his fancies were helped by the liars and slanderers about him. How many wretched people live today who imagine that evil is surely coming to them from this or that direction, while the truth is that the imaginary source of evil is as harmless as a dead dog or a flea.

15. "The Lord be judge, * * * and see and plead my cause and deliver me out of thine hand." "Judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come." "We shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ." "Every one of us shall give account of himself to God." These are some helpful words of the Holy Spirit upon this matter from the New Testament. In Ps. lxxii, 12, we read that "He shall deliver the needy when he crieth: the poor also and him that hath no no helper;" and David proved these things in his own experience. So may we if we will but commit ways and works and thoughts unto Him, and firmly believe that He is the living God and careth for us.

16. "Saul said, Is this thy voice, my son David? And Saul lifted up his voice and wept." There are many such words and tears nowadays, but they do not amount to anything. That they did not mean much from Saul at this time is evident from chap. xxvi, where we see him as hotly as ever pursuing David to take his life.

AN HISTORIC CITY.

THE PLEASANTEST PLACE TO VISIT IN SEPTEMBER.

A City Full of Rare Attractions for Strangers—Ten Days of Solid Enjoyment—Preparing for September—A Hundred Thousand Visitors Per Day Fully Provided for.

One of the most delightful cities on the American continent is the city of Detroit. It is one of the old American cities—the oldest city west of the Atlantic seaboard. It is one of the wealthiest of American cities. It is also one of the best planned and best built of American cities. No other city, except Washington, is laid out with such magnificently broad avenues and streets.

DETROIT INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION—CONCERT BUILDING.

Hardly any other city possesses so many architecturally original and beautiful homes and other buildings. Away from its business portion it is a city set in continuous parks and boulevards. Situated upon a vast, slightly rolling plain, with an almost uniform slope toward its river front, giving perfect drainage and an admirable surface for parks and lawns, its wide streets are bordered with grand maples and elms and miles of green grassy lawns, set off by fountains and flower beds. It is the

of Detroit people on their residence streets to have no fences in front of their dwellings. The houses are set well back from the street line, with lawns and flower beds, fountains and statuary or other ornaments in front, leaving the architecture of the handsome buildings and all the beauties of the grounds wide open to the pleasure seeking view of the stroller along the wide tree-shaded sidewalks, or the occupants of carriages in the streets. This makes the homes of Detroit look like rows of pretty buildings set in an immense park.

The great trees along the streets make the sidewalks run through long perspectives of leafy arcades, and on many streets their long branches almost, if not quite, touch together at a lofty height clear across the broad spaces of the streets, giving a delightful, sylvan aspect to the driveways. There are also numerous small parks with fountains, lawns and inviting seats in the shade scattered over the city.

The great charm of Detroit, however, is its noble river. No other city in the world possesses such broad, deep, blue, pure and beautiful. Its narrowest point is about half a mile wide, its broadest several miles. Upon its current floats the largest commerce in the world. Like the people of Venice, in Europe, the inhabitants of Detroit in summer months love to be upon the water. Hence there are innumerable boats, yachts and steamers always in use. At various distances in every direction are places of resort, including Belle Isle park, of 700 acres, with miles of drives and walks, canals and gay boats, to and from which swift ferries continually ply at wonderfully cheap rates. These ferry steamers and excursion boats are large, broad, powerful crafts, and there are enough of them to handle 20,000 or 30,000 people at once. The excursion rates in every direction are always less than a cent a mile, and often less than half a cent per mile.

The best time to visit Detroit is in September, when the heats of summer begin to be tempered by the delicious autumn coolness. From Sept. 17 to Sept. 27, inclusive, the great Detroit International Fair and Exposition, with its list of splendid attractions—its grand Art Gallery of famous paintings, its magnificent horse show, with over 1,000 of the best horses on the continent, its immense concerts every afternoon and evening, its sports, games and processions, its great band tournament, its grand cattle show, its vast building full of machinery and rare and costly displays, its wonderful show of fruits, flowers and vegetables, including the great display of the United States government, its strange show of fishes of all sorts in an immense aquarium, etc.—will be in full operation. Then visitors can fill their days and evenings with

EVER VARYING DELIGHT.

Besides the city, with its theatres and opera houses, there will be hourly excursions by boat and steam and electric railways to pleasure resorts in Michigan and Canada, within a radius of fifty miles, including the famous St. Clair flats, the most famous fishing and gunning resort on the continent. The great concerts at the exposition occur every afternoon and evening. There will also be regattas, base ball, athletic and other sports and games, and races daily at the exposition grounds. The fifteen acres of immense buildings, besides tents and sheds, the graveled walks and thoroughly drained grounds, make them independent of weather. If it should rain, no matter how violently, the cars and boats can transport 75,000 people under shelter, perfectly dry, and the vast exposition buildings can contain 50,000, and show them everything on the programme in comfort and security. There will be no postponement or alteration of programme on account of the weather, and no diminution of attractions under any circumstances, and visitors to the city can securely count upon abundance of enjoyment.

Snake Killed by a Rabbit.

A rabbit is said to have killed a snake at Seneca, Ga., a few days ago. The snake had caught a young rabbit and was trying to swallow it. The old rabbit rushed by the snake and bit it in passing. It then ran by the snake again and bit it, and repeated the operation several times. The reptile finally dropped the rabbit, crawled away a short distance and died.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. "CLEOPATRA."

H. Rider Haggard's Latest Novel—A Wonderful Story, and Conceded by Critics to Be His Best—It Will Shortly Be Published in This Paper.

H. Rider Haggard, while one of the youngest of the English novelists, is by no means the least famous. In fact, for striking originality, strength of plot, power and beauty of narration, he stands foremost among the great writers of the day. The extraordinary sale of his works attests in an undisputable way his immense popularity among the reading public wherever the English language is spoken; to say nothing of the fact that they have been translated into nearly all of the foreign languages. There are few people in this country who have not read "She," "Jess," or "King Solomon's Mines," hence the announcement of still another story from Mr. Haggard's pen can not but awaken the liveliest anticipations of pleasure among all lovers of the best serial fiction. "Cleopatra," Mr. Haggard's latest and (the critics say) his best story, and which will shortly be begun in these columns, is, in fact, an historical romance of ancient Egypt. Cleopatra, one of the most famous women of either ancient or modern times, is, of course, the central character of the story, while Antony, scarcely less prominent as an historic figure, is also an important personage in the tale. But it is around Egypt's wondrous Queen, a woman in whom the world has never lost its interest, that Mr. Haggard has woven a romance so fanciful that the never-to-be-forgotten fairy tales of childhood pale before its dazzling splendor, its weird mysteries and its vivid picturing. "She," which did more to win Mr. Haggard name and fame than all his previous works, and which stands almost unsurpassed among the spectacular stories of the day, is not superior to "Cleopatra" in its Oriental gorgeousness; while in many respects the latter is a far superior piece of literary work. But what surprises, as well as delights, the reader of "Cleopatra," is the amount of historic lore it contains, and which must have cost its author years of research and study. Indeed, in the dedication of the work to his mother, who, it seems, is also an Egyptian scholar of much learning, Mr. Haggard hints at the vast amount of labor which he was compelled to perform in gathering the materials for his story. The same attentive labor and research is also continued and carried out in the illustrations by Grieffenhagen, who has made a life study of Egyptian lore, and whose splendidly artistic and classical pictures for this story have been redrawn and adapted for newspaper use by one of the most competent artists in the West.

Briefly stated, "Cleopatra" is supposed to be a translation from three rolls of papyri found in the coffin of a mummy who existed in Cleopatra's days and who was himself the hero of this tale. This mummy, known in life as Harmachis, was held by the native priests of Egypt to be a direct descendant of the ancient Pharaohs, and figured as the leader in a conspiracy to overthrow the hated Queen. Instead of slaying her, as had been plotted, Harmachis falls a victim to her witcheries and for a brief period plays the part of a favored lover. He is, however, soon cast aside, when, being enraged at such treatment, he works out a secret vengeance which results in the ruin of Cleopatra and her favored Antony. This is, of course, but the barest hint at the plot of the story, but enough, we trust, to give those who are familiar with Mr. Haggard's work an idea of the treat in store for them when they come to a perusal of this, his latest and best piece of romantic fiction. As stated before, it will shortly be begun in these columns and given in liberal installments until completed. We bespeak for it a hearty welcome at the hands of our readers and at the same time congratulate them that we have been able to secure this certainly wonderful and charming tale.

Stranahan's three-story brick block at Romeo was burned down recently. Loss, about $7,500; fully insured.

Some causes are very slow in producing their effects. Samuel Thompson, a Farwell gentleman, has just gone insane, caused by a scalp wound received in the war of the rebellion.

Alfred Broad, of Toledo late treasurer of the Stelle Packing and Provision company at Grand Rapids, has been arrested on an alleged shortage of $20,000 in that company's cash. Broad protests his innocence.

The Northwest Traffic association, which met at the "Soo" the past week, adopted resolutions demanding unrestricted international railway communication.

West Michigan lumbermen held a meeting at Grand Rapids, and sort o' fixed things, so as to prevent unnecessary competition and other things that might prove detrimental to their financial interests. W. W. Cummer, of Cadillac, is the president, and W. H. Hoops, of Grand Rapids, secretary of the newly organized association.

Enos Girard, a Jackson prisoner who was recently stabbed by Isaac Clark at the state's prison, dropped dead the other day as he he was about to leave the supper table. Girard was "doing" fifteen years at the prison, while Clark was a "lifer," both men having been connected with the somewhat celebrated Norris murder case in Wayne county. Girard turned informer at the trial, and for this Clark sought revenge.

Upper peninsula highwymen may be a trifle cautious about raiding railway trains in future, as the trainmen on some lines are being armed and the balance will likely be similarly equipped in the near future.

Miss F. M. Towle has the honor of being the first lady secretary of the Otsego county board of examiners. The annual salary is $[illegible]

A party of Bay City resorters amused themselves by filling an old Indian brim full of fire-water and then burying him in the sand. Some people's idea of pleasure is pitched wonderfully high!

Grand Rapids' city council rather thought that Peter Vissers was entitled to some compensation for the serious injuries sustained by reason of a treacherous sidewalk and so voted him $1,000. But the mayor's veto was interposed and Peter now comes at the city treasury with a $5,000 dcamage suit.

Detroit's monied men have a scheme on tap for piping gas from the Ohio fields to that city, to be used for heating houses and offices, and for cooking puuposes. Too much gas is what ails many a household, already.

There are signs of an impending street car war at East Saginaw, as ex-Governor Jerome is after a franchise and some of "Little Jak's" business in that line.

Eugene Rowlson died at Grand Haven not long since, leaving among his assets a one-half ticket in the Mexican lottery. The ticket afterward drew $5,000, but Eugene's heirs aren't likely to ever see the cash as its been stopped at Chicago. According to an Illinois law, lottery money found in transit in that state may be confiscated and turned into the general school fund.

Michigan Center, located four miles east of Jackson, will likely soon become the most famous resort in the world. The waters of its charming little lake are said to turn the bather's hair black, whether it be gray hair of age or that of the red-headed girl. Just think of the rush there'll be.

Grand Haven folks are either good story tellers or else have mighty sharp ears, as they positively assert that the detonations of the naval engagement at Milwaukee during the G. A. R. encampment, was wafted across the damp expanse of Lake Michigan with great distinctness. The distance is eighty-four miles.

Mrs. Wm. Jacobus, a Jonesville lady, in just now chief mourue of a demoralized cook stove. Some son-of-a-gun planted powder in her stove-wood and the stove and the breakfast she was cooking thereon was sown promiscuously about the kitchen.

For several year's past Livingston county has had no fair, as the T., A. A. and N. railway split the old grounds at Howell in train, rendering them undersirable far a prize pumpkin show. But new grounds have at last been secured and a hoss trot and its ceteras will materialize the last of this month.

Fully 5,000 people congregated at Mallory lake one day last week and partook of the Sunday school picnic. The partakers still urvive.

Dey Wilcox, a Mancelona machinist, has broken the record for quick undressing—time 3¼ seconds. He had the assistance of a rapidly revolving shaft, however, and his clothing worn at the time will never look real handsome again—unless it's run through a shoddy mill and revamped.

The people who inhabit the region traversed by the Northern and Canadian Pacific railways propose to send six car loads of the things they grow to Lansing for the folks who attend the forthcoming state fair to gaze at. Whether the exhibit will contain a real live specimen of the highwaymen that's indigenous to that latitude isn't stated.

The reliable snake anecdotes has again thawed out and avers that a Three Rivers farmer, who is engaged in harvesting the rattle snake crop of that region, laid out twenty-eight of 'em in a single day. Who can rattle out a bigger one?

Pomeroy's wild west show, which incubated in Van Buren county during the glad spring time, is reported to have stranded on the rocks of financial distress at Ashland, Ohio. The folks down there are so busy trying to corral the offices that they've no time to take in the summer show.

The lumber region tributary to the Saginaw river shipped 11,000,000 less lumber during August, 1889, than for the same month last year, and still the shipments reached nearly 63,000,000 feet, in addition to a lot of lath and shingles.

IN MEMORIAM.

The following beautiful lines were written in memory of Dr. Justin Gates, late of San Francisco, who was a pioneer of '49. He was a brother of Mrs. Julia Gates Brown, of this place:

When the summons shall come that bids me remove
From the temple below to the grand lodge above,
To lay my tools by, all bright in their use,
Of seasons devoted to friendship and truth,
Then brothers draw near and hear my request,
Ere I hie me away to the haven of rest.

When the eye becomes dim, and the pulse ceases to beat,
The hand lost to feeling, no token can greet,
Then bear me away to the cold, silent grave,
And over my head may the Acacia wave,
Remember the pledges so cheerfully given,
Binding Masons to Masons, and each one to heaven.

Our chain being broken, another link gone,
Surround with your kindness the kindred who mourn,
To the wife of my bosom, extend her relief,
Lest her widowed heart break with burthens of grief.
And the boy of my pride oh, teach him to love
The pathway that leads to the grand lodge above.

The pledges renewed, I'll journey in peace,
And if worthy, find rest where troubles shall cease.
Then wait with patience as kindred shall come,
And brethren in white shall encircle the throne,
And join, as we come to refreshment, thus given,
In praise to our Master forever in heaven.

Where everything is exceptionally good, it is difficult to make a selection of the very best; and this is the dilemma we find ourselves confronted with each month when our favorite periodical, Demorest's Monthly Magazine, arrives. The October number is bristling with good things. To start off with, the colored frontispiece, "The Wedding Trip," is a lovely picture in the same style as "The Yachting Party," given in the previous number, and follows naturally in sequence, for is not a yachting party often a forerunner of a wedding trip? In addition there are nearly 150 other illustrations including a very interesting series showing various kinds of "Human Habitations." It is published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th st., New York.

This justly celebrated remedy for the cure of catarrh, hay fever, cold in the head, &c., can be obtained of any reputable druggist, and may be relied upon as a safe and pleasant remedy for the above complaint and will give immediate relief. It is not a liquid, snuff or powder, has no offensive odor and can be used at any time with good results, as thousands can testify, among them some of the attaches of this office." R. B. HYMAN, a travelling man, of Grand Rapids, says: After months of suffering with a very stubborn case of Eczema, or fever sore on my leg, and consulting and taking treatment from a score or more physicians all over the county, Dr. Lemoreux, of Lake View, Mich., told me of Loose's Extract Red Clover. I only used two pounds solid extract and taking four bottles of fluid extract internally, am entirely well. Deafness Can't be Cured by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflammed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness, (caused by catarrh,) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

YOU CANNOT AFFORD

At this season of the year to be without a good reliable diarrhoae balsam in the house, as cramps, colic, diarrhoea and all inflamation of the stomach and bowels are exceedingly dangerous if not attended to at once. One bottle of BEGG'S DIARRHŒA BALSAM will do more good in cases of this kind than any other medicine on earth. We guarantee it.

We, in behalf of those who have been the recepients of a serenade during the past week, given by a quartette of voices, desire to return to them our best wishes and many thanks, and can assure them that their selections were appreciated and enjoyed by all.

A PLEASANT RECEPTION.

A pleasant reception was tendered Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Lowry in the church parlors, on the evening of their return from a few weeks visit to relatives in New Jersey. At an early hour the rooms were filled to overflowing by their numerous friends who were glad to welcome them to their field of labor which they had so satisfactorily filled during the past year.

As they were not aware that an event of this kind was to take place, they were quietly resting from their journey; and when all had assembled a delegation of ladies was sent to invite them to the church. Then came the crowning event of the evening. Mr. F. J. Temple read a poem of his own production (which we give below) and presented in behalf of their many friends, to Mrs. Lowry a beautiful New White sewing machine and to Mr. Lowry twenty-one dollars in money. Although taken entirely by surprise, they expressed their thanks in a pleasing manner. Then refreshments, consisting of coffee, cake and fruit were served and after an hour or so of social enjoyment, the company dispersed.

If you will please to pardon us and all our faults excuse,
We will try to entertain you by a telling of the news.
We don't propose to preach a sermon—not now at any rate,
As 'twould tend to make you weary, and the hour's growing late,
But it seems that I was chosen somehow or in some way,
To tell you of a certain scheme set brewing
t'other day.
It seems while you were visiting down in New Jersey state,
The Methodists of Michigan were fixing up a slate.
Of course you have not heard, as yet, from conference, where you're going
And as it comes near time that you should be a knowing.
And as you may be anxious to know where you'll live this year,
We can calm your fears by saying: "Do not worry; stay right here."
To us it is a pleasure to know that it is so;
As to how it is with you and yours, of course we do not know,
But we trust that you are satisfied and glad to be returned,
For we feel that you completely have all our good will earned.
But if you are not satisfied to think you cannot move,
We will try to show your mistake and by argument will prove,
That if you should now leave us it might create some ire,
And another thing; 'tis truly said, three moves are as one fire.
So I think that you can plainly see 'tis better all around,
That you should keep on tilling in your present camping ground.
You may not like it quite as well as in some other field,
But the year that's past has proven that the tilling brings the yield.
You are welcome back to Ridgeway, hence we give you this reception
To prove that we're in earnest and are using to deception.
You are welcome back among us to follow your vocation,
And we trust that you have both enjoyed your present short vacation.
We think you'll reap a harvest in more ways,
perhaps, than one,
Though the fruits are not perceptible when the ploughing's just begun.
Some harrowing is essential; some sowing of the seeds,
In preparing for the future as well as present needs.
We are sowing seeds of some kind pretty nearly all the while,
And if they grow and flourish, we must cultivate the soil.
If we ever do our duty, at all times and in all places,
The tendency, we think, will be to see more smiling faces.
New thoughts and new suggestions will continually arise,
And if we do our duty, we may ourselves surprise.
To think how beneficial each to the other prove,
To those who seek advancement and are ever on the move.
This world of ours is moving at a tremendous rate,
And if we fail to jog along, we'll soon be out of date.
So if we do not wish to be considered a back number,
We must hasten in our labors and awaken from our slumber,
And ever try to keep abreast and be up with the times,
Whether it be at raising funds or writing prose or rhymes.
No matter what our station, the rule is just the same;
Advancement is the watchword; keep moving is the game.
Thus we're ever pressing forward, exploring some new field;
If our course is up and onward never worry about the yield,
If we fail to take advantage of opportunities as they go,
We can blame none other but ourselves, because we do not know.
We will have to take our coats off whether in the shade or sun,
Always ready for the struggle, looking out for number one.
Though we sometimes will grow weary in the struggle and the strife.
We must ever bear in memory, such is the game of life.
If we wish to take an active part, keep always in the van,
We must ever keep on moving and do the best we can.
We must never grow discouraged and want to quit for keep,
As those who keep on sowing will surely some day reap.
Thus the ladies, ever ready, with cheerful hands and heart,
Have undertaken, willingly, what seemed to be their part.
A duty providentially appeared to them in sight
And the fact that it was taken up: is why we're here to-night.
They saw something in the distance which seemed to be just right,
And the letters seen upon it composed the one word: White.
Just then it dawned upon them that the object to be seen
Was nothing more nor less than a new White sewing machine.
Then they wondered if the dominie would think it rather mean
If his wife should get possession of that self-same machine.
An he be left out in the cold upon this desolate land,
Unless he get possession of the surplus cash on hand.
So they finally concluded, as it was a pleasant duty,
That the parson was entitled to all the surplus booty;
And his better-half entitled, as its plainly to be seen,
Immediate possession of that new sewing machine.

Forced to Leave Home.

Over 60 people were forced to leave there homes yesterday to call for a free trial package of Lane's Family Medicine. If your blood is bad, your liver and kidneys out of order, if you are constipated and have headache and an unsightly complexion, don't fail to call on any druggist to-day for a free sample of this grand remedy. The ladies praise it. Everyone likes it. Large-size package 50 cents.

"Peterson" for October comes to us with a handsome new cover, which the publishers announce to be the first of a number of improvements about to be made in this admirable periodical. These changes and additions cannot fail greatly to increase "Peterson's" wide circulation, which has long been far beyond that of any other lady's magazine in the country. The contents of this number are, as usual, of the first order of merit. The illustrations are excellent, the stories capital and the fashion and household departments are models in their completeness. The list of premiums for 1890 presents a tempting array of attractions to getters-up of clubs. Address Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut st., Philadelphia, Pa.

CLINTON CLIPPINGS.

Mrs. Clara Wells and daughter Blanche, of St. Paul, Minn., are visiting here.

The Episcopal Harvest Festival was a success socially and financially, the receipts being $20.00. The ladies of the society deserve much praise for the artistic manner in which they decorated the hall.

Mrs. A. B. VanDeMerk and son, and Jane VanDeMark are going to Detroit next Monday for a couple of days.

Eli McConnell has left his position as station agent at Maybee, on the L. S. & M. S. to accept a position of fireman on the same road with headquarters at Elkhart, Ind. He is spending this week here.

Don Palmer went to Detroit last Thursday. Ray Blanchard acted as station agent during his absence.

Mrs. Chas. Priest & Son of Mancelona, Mich., arrived here Tuesday morning.

S. W. Demuth and family went to Toledo, Tuesday.

C. S. Burroughs went to Adrian Friday on business.

There was much alarm Sunday over the report that diptheria had made its appearance in town, one being Eugene Parson's daughter, and the other the daughter of Chas. Priest, who is visiting her grandmother.

Miss Minnie Jacobs has typhoid fever, and just here it might be proper to say that the sanitary condition of our town is very bad, and yards, cellars, etc., need cleaning up or the whole town will be down with sickness. Heroic measures should be resorted to at once.

Miss Maggie Biggins is home from New York city for a week's vacation.

Mrs. W. H. Dorr and Miss Nellie Kishpaugh went to Detroit Tuesday on a visit.

Mrs. Geo. Kies of Elkhart, is here on a visit.

James Hause goes west next Monday on business connected with the extensive cider business of Hause Bros. They have been making many improvements and are in condition this year to do a larger business than ever. Jell making will be no small part of their work this season. Their success has been phenomenal and deserved.

W. H. Mattison, formerly of Battle Creek, has been engaged by C. S. Burroughs to put up drugs for the public. Mr. M. is a welcome addition to our community and has the reputation of being a careful and competent druggist.

The many friends of Dr. and Mrs. E. M. Conklin will be pleased to learn that they are to shake the dust of Kansas from off their feet and return to Michigan. They will live in Manchester and are on the way.

O. A. Sinclair is with the Flint club of the State League. Clinton is sometimes a little slow, but she gets there just the same.

Our foundryman, Mr. Frank Woodward, is obliged on account of increasing business, to put on three more hands in the moulding room. It pays to hustle as the number of Woodward's plows in use testify.

Miss Anna Cobb of Saline spent Saturday and Sunday here with friends.

Clinton people can get excursion tickets at Tecumseh and can buy them while the train waits. So don't stay home from the Detroit Exposition because you can't get low rates from this point. The people were made for the railroad and not the railroad for the people. Great is Vanderbilt.

Mrs. Roff and daughter, who started for Elmira, N. Y., last Saturday, got as far as Toledo and were obliged to return on account of the sudden sickness of Mrs. Roff. She is better at present writing.

Our ice cream rooms are closed. Young men can show themselves again on the street without a cent in their pockets.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Nellie Easterly visited at Milan last Friday.

By the racket in Rinn & Bauman's shop last Saturday, some one must have been shoeing mustangs.

Ira Fox visited his mother and his best girl at Manchester last Sunday.

Our band attended the band picnic at Milan last Friday. It was a grand success.

The G. A. R. met last Saturday evening and were very much surprised when a load of the Tecumseh boys walked in upon them. They had a lunch and good time in general.

We all wondered what Bert Allen, our barber, went to Adrian for last Wednesday, but we soon found out as he was married Thursday evening to Miss Cora Oliver. We wish them a happy future and lots of little shavers.

Will Osgood and wife went to Ann Arbor last Saturday returning Sunday.

The dry house is running now every day and those wishing to sell their apples can do so.

Osgood Bros, grind out some very good cider for we have sampled it.

It is not Collier & Hendershott any more. Dr. H. not being able to attend to his practice and store, has sold out to J.B. Collar, who will carry the business on just the same.

FAMILY REUNION.

Saturday, September 14th, 1889, it was the 69th birth-day of Mrs. Eliza Kniffin. In her son Charles' grove, with her children, grand children, including a great-grand-child, they gave to her, who was once as young as the youngest, a picnic. A bountiful table was spread at noon, where 65 young and old enjoyed a dinner together under the inter-woven tree-tops. After the table was relieved of its burden the time left passed in social enjoyment by the older, while the younger engaged in such amusements as made them feel it was a day indeed pleasantly passed away. There are few families left in any community that make it more suitable for holding family gatherings than this family, as they are so nearly located to each other, which is so profitable to that bond of union which should exist in all families.

NOTICE TO FARMERS.

We are now ready to make your cider for you. Remember we give you the "cider from your own apples" the same day you bring them to us. Also if you have feed you want ground bring it at the same time and get both apples and feed ground.

OSGOOD BROS., Britton.

NOTES FROM THE NORMAL.

YPSILANTI, Sept. 13, '89.

EDITOR HERALD—I have taken this, the first opportunity offered since I came here, to drop you a line. We started from Ridgeway, Monday, Sept. 2, at 5 a.m. As we had considerable of a load, and it was so hot, compelling us to drive slowly, we did not reach here till 3 o'clock. Tuesday morning entrance examination began and continued till Thursday at 4 p.m. Friday morning we were called to chapel for the first time, where directions were given as to classification of new studies. Upward of 200 new students presented themselves for classification, and Friday was all taken up with this work. Saturday, examination was given in U.S. history and civil government, to those who wished to pass the subjects without being compelled to take them here. Rigid examinations are given in these studies by the preceptress, Miss King, who teaches them, and not many had the courage to present themselves for examination. Without wishing to boast I will say that I had the courage to try them, and was so far successful that I passed the examination in civil govt., and although I did not pass in history, my standing was so good that I will have to take but 10 weeks in it, whereas the study is pursued through a term of 20 weeks.

Monday of this week was the first day that recitations were called. The free text-book system is in vogue here and as the recitations were called, books were given out and lessons assigned at the same time. Students who were here last year were classified at the end of the year, so that they did not have to come back till the second week. Many of them are not back yet. This makes it impossible to tell the exact attendance, but upwards of 600 are recorded already in the Normal department and more coming in all the time. The school is in a most prosperous condition and a larger attendance is expected this year than ever before. A deep interest is shown by the students in their work, and all are given enough to do to keep them from mischief. Tonight the different literary societies, four in number, hold their first meeting of the year. A fine program is out for each society, and a cordial invitation extended to all.

I board and room in a pleasant part of the town about two blocks from the Normal. Nothing is left undone to make it homelike and pleasant for the students where they board and room. A most hearty welcome is extended to the new students on every hand. I doubt if a better class of young people could be found in any place than is to be met with here. All are fitting themselves for the same calling, all working for the same end. This unity of purpose tends to bring about an interest in each other's welfare, and a feeling of good will and friendship that could not otherwise exist.

POLITICAL CONVENTIONS.

Prohibitionists, Democrats, and Union Labor Men in Session.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept 5.—The state Prohibition convention made George Kempton, of Sharon, chairman yesterday, and he delivered a speech reviewing the entire prohibition question at great length. The platform adopted is a radical affirmation of the strongest prohibition principles, and declares the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors inconsistent with good citizenship, sound morality, or Christian love; will have no hand in any license scheme, high or low, and denounces both old parties, uttering a special anathema against the Republicans. The third party is approved of, and a plank put in favoring suffrage not limited to race or sex. Five thousand dollars were subscribed to the campaign fund.

Dr. John Blackmer, of Springfield, was nominated for governor.

Dakota Democratic Nominations.

HURON, D. T., Sept. 6.—The Democratic state convention reassembled at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. P. F. McClure was nominated for governor by acclamation. The remainder of the ticket is as follows: For lieutenant governor, A. W. Pratt; for secretary of state, Otto Peemiller; auditor, J. R. Horton; treasurer, A. D. Hill; attorney general, H. F. Ellons; superintendent of public instruction, George H. McFarland; commissioner of public schools and public lands, Henry S. Volkman, and for supreme judges, S. B. Van Buskirk, C. H. Winson, and D. McLaughlin. For congress, L. Q. Jeffries, and S. M. Booth. The convention then adjourned. The platform indorses Cleveland's tariff views; declares in favor of just and equitable pension laws; favors minority representation; sympathizes with the Irish people, and favors a license law.

Pennsylvania Democrats.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 5.—The Democratic state convention met in this city yesterday and nominated Edwin A. Bigler, of Clearfield county, for state treasurer. The platform begins by reaffirming belief in the tenth amendment to the constitution, declaring that all powers not expressly granted to the general government are held by the states; demands tariff revision, denounces trusts, favors a liberal pension system, but only for those honorably discharged, and generally denounces the Republican administration of the state government and for hypocricy on the prohibition question. A resolution of sympathy with Gladstone and Parnell was also adopted.

Union Labor Nominates a Ticket.

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 5.—The state convention of the Union Labor party was attended by 100 delegates yesterday. The platform reaffirms the principles of the old Greenback party, free trade, more money, and opposition to banks, railroads and trusts. The following state ticket was nominated: Governor, S. B. Downing, of Davis county; lieutenant governor, Ezra Brownell, of Madison; superintendent, Mrs. Homel Belangee of Polk; judge of supreme court, M. H. Jones, of Davis; short term, L. H. Weller, of Chickasaw; railroad commissioner, L. H. Griffith, of Cass. This was the largest convention held by them in many years.

Cold Water Ticket for New York.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 6.—The state Prohibition convention reassembled yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock, and proceeded to the nomination of candidates, with the following result: Secretary of state, Jesse H. Griffin, Steuben county; comptroller, Benjamin L. Rand, Niagara county; attorney general, Coleridge A. Hart, New York county; state engineer and surveyor, Alpheus P. Kenyon, Allegany county. A motion made before the candidates were selected, that the highest nomination of the convention be given to a lady, was voted down.

Ohio Democratic Politics.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 4.—The Democratic state executive committee met here yesterday and organized with Hon. James E Neal, of Hamilton, as chairman, and John A. Barber, of this city, as treasurer. At 8 o'clock p. m. the various Democratic clubs serenaded Hon. James E. Campbell, the candidate for governor. A ratification meeting was held at the city hall with Hon. Lawrence T. Neal, of Chillicothe, as president, who spoke, and was followed by Mr. Campbell, Hon. Allen W, Thurman, Hon. George L. Converse, Hon J. A. Norton, and others.

They Want To Be States.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Constitutional conventions are now in session at Cheyenne, Wy. T., and Santa Fe, N. M. Yesterday in the former M. C. Brown, of Albany, was made president, defeating the Republican nominee, Judge Conway. Brown's politics are not given. At Santa Fe the Democrats elected the temporary chairman—Judge Trimble, and J. Francisco Chavez was elected permanent chairman—politics not given. Fifty-three of the seventy-three delegates were present.

The Democrat Elected.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 4.—Telegrams from various points in the Third congressional district indicate the election of Andrew Price, Democrat, by a good majority over H. C. Miner, Republican.

For Hay Fever.

"Give Ely's Cream Balm a trial. This justly celebrated remedy for the cure of catarrh, hay fever, cold in the head, &c., can be obtained of any reputable druggist, and may be relied upon as a safe and pleasant remedy for the above complaint and will give immediate relief. It is not a liquid, snuff or powder, has no offensive odor and can be used at any time with good results, as thousands can testify, among them some of the attaches of this office." Spirit of the Times.

FRILLS IN FLAMES

A Narrow Escape for the Chicago Exposition.

FIRE AMONG THE "WOMEN FIXINS."

A Red-Hot Electric Light Carbon Drops Into the Lace and Millinery and Makes Light of $75,000 Worth—A Scene of Panic Among the Visitors—A Missouri Exposition and Exhibits Destroyed—Fatal Blaze at Louisville, Ky.—Six Firemen Crushed to Death.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—At 10:15 p. m. Saturday, as the large crowd of visitors were filing out in squads of from two to a dozen, the cry of "fire" was heard in the exposition building. There had been as many as 20,000 people present probably half an hour before the alarm, but the throng had been reduced to 12,000, when N. B. Haynes, who was standing with his back toward his own exhibit, noticed the red-hot carbon from one of the electric lights in the great case of Charles Gossage & Co. drop down into a lace curtain beneath. The thin fabric caught fire at once, and Mr. Haynes jumped forward to kick in the glass plates and smother the blaze, but before he could do so a policeman jumped at him, crying out, "No you don't," and twisted him away from the case with great violence. Before Mr. Haynes could explain the flames had gained such headway that it was too late to stop them.

Too Late Seeing the Point.

When the officer did understand what was going on he did all in his power to atone for his mistake. He broke in the plate glass at the bottom and then taking the sheet in his hands tore it from the frame, lacerating himself badly as he did so. A gust of flame and heat blew out which nobody could face, and in a minute Haynes' millinery exhibit, Marshall Field & Co.'s dry goods display, and D. B. Fisk & Co.'s case were wrapped in fire.

A Panic in the Throng.

Half a dozen excited people began to yell "fire" and the cry was taken up on a hundred tongues. The end doors of the building had already been locked, and when this was discovered by the crowd there was something like a panic. Shrieking women and howling men massed themselves up against the south doors, which could not be got open. They were badly scared, but in a moment somebody shouted: "Break out the doors; here's a ram," and the man jumped up to Gerringer's display of wooden cornices and scroll-worked beams. A heavy piece of highly decorated timber was pulled out and thrown lengthways on the floor. A score of men picked it up and rushed at the door with it. There was a crash that sounded like the report of a cannon and the door was gone.

Only One Casualty.

The noise of the smashing of the door was heard by the crowd on the other side of the smoke and it did little to calm them, coming, as it did, with the splintering of glass and the cries and confusion of the scene. Some were so frightened that they smashed out the windows and made their way through, leaving bits of trousers and petticoats and here and there a shred or two of epidermis to point out the way to others. Yet, curiously enough a reporter could find but one man who was at all seriously hurt in the rush. His wrists were very badly gashed.

Progress of the Flames.

While the crowd was taking care of itself the fire was pushing things energetically. The cases of Haynes, Gossage, Marshall Field & Co., Julius Bauer, Mandel Bros., Schlesinger & Mayer, James Wilde & Co., and D. B. Fisk & Co. were destroyed, wholly or partially. Bauer saved his pianos as a whole, but some of them were badly water-logged. The material in the cases was of the most costly sort. Fine silks, exquisite laces, bonnets that made good women feel naughty, all those fragile but most expensive fabrics that the finest taste and the longest purses in the Chicago dry goods business could gather together were in a few minutes shriveled up into ashes. The flame burned fiercely, reaching up to the roof, and swaying back and forth in the draught itself had made.

The Fire Laddies on Hand.

Everybody thought that the whole magnificent show was doomed. Alarm after alarm was sent in, and almost before the first machine was at work a 4-11 had called every available engine to the spot. The tarpaulins were got over the more exposed exhibits, and water began to play on the central pile of fire. The flames went out almost as rapidly as they had grown. The flimsy textile substances were burnt out, and there was in a few minutes nothing but a steaming lot of cinders where had been a great many thousand dollars, worth of merchandise. There was another scare, though, before the episode ended. Fire was discovered in the roof, but one hose blew it out before it had time to become serious.

A Girl on the Roof.

Outside the exposition hall a great crowd had gathered, made up partly of people who had been in the show and partly by an outside contingent of curiosity hunters and toughs. As they were looking at the black length of the building somebody saw a man and a woman on the roof. How they had got there was a mystery which they declined to explain, but there was only one way to get them down, and that was with ladders. Firemen went up and the girl was cheered to the echo by some 4,000 people, who watched the rescue with all the enthusiasm of the front row at a ballet performance.

About $75,000 in Ashes.

The loss is estimated at about $75,000, probably all insured. In the art gallery, as near as known, there were $300,000 worth of paintings, some of them canvases whose value could not be put into money, but nothing here was damaged in the least. The exposition authorities held a consultation as soon as the danger was over, and, after a careful survey of the situation, determined that the show should open to-day as usual. The building was not hurt $100 worth.

CAUGHT UNDER THE DEBRIS.

Six Firemen Crushed to Death at Louisville—Heavy Loss of Property.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept 16.—The five story building corner of Seventh and Main streets, occupied by Bamburger, Bloom & Co., the largest wholesale dry goods house in the city, was destroyed last night. The entire city fire department was called out to prevent the spread of the flames. The guests left the Louisville hotel, which nearly adjoins the burning building on Main street, many of them escaping by means of the fire escapes and ladders on the Sixth street wing, the intense heat making exit from the Main street front impossible.

Terrible Loss of Life.

Six men were killed and two seriously injured by the falling of the Seventh street wall. The killed are: Capt. E l Early, No. 1 hook and ladder; D. Early, No. 1 hook and ladder; John Wheeler, Pat Foley, Lawrence Stackleiter, John Monahan, all firemen; Denny McGrath; both legs broken and skull crushed, will die; Frank Best, seriously injured, but may recover.

Loss, Three-Quarters of a Million.

A conservative estimate places the loss at $750,000, divided as follows: Bamberger, Bloom & Co., on stock and building, $600,000—fully insured; Bretsfelder & Co., stock and building, $75,000; W. C. Kaye & Co., stock, $50,000; other small losses aggregating $25,000. No statement of the Louisville hotel's losses can be obtained.

NOT SO LUCKY AS CHICAGO.

The Exposition Building at New Era, Mo., Entirely Destroyed.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 16.—The main building of the New Era exposition took fire last night. The place was too far away for the fire department here to reach. There were about 5,000 people on the grounds when the [illegible] and no one had any idea how the fire originated. The main building was entirely destroyed with all the exhibits and booths. A fine steel car, which was on exhibition, was also destroyed. The total loss is estimated at $250,000; loss on car, $40,000.

Costly Blaze at Stoughton, Wis.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 16.—Soon after 2 o'clock yesterday morning fire was discovered in the furniture store of Andrew Erickson, at Stoughton, and raged until that building and five other business places were destroyed, causing a loss of $37,000, on which there was only small insurance. The losers are seventeen in number, and their losses range from $300 to $7,000, with not more more than one-third insurance. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin.

American association: At Columbus—Columbus 12, Cincinnati 1—seven innings, darkness.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—Rain again prevented most of the scheduled base ball games of the League and Association teams. J.—St. Louis 1, Athletic 8; at Columbus—Columbus 1, Cincinnati 4—five innings, rain.

RAGING FOREST FIRES.

Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Timber Destroyed—Towns in Danger.

BANGOR, Me., Sept. 14.—Bangor, which is miles from the center of the vast belt of forest fires which are now raging, is enveloped in a dense, heavy cloud of smoke. East of this city the outlook has grown more discouraging, especially along the line of the Maine Central and New Brunswick railways. For miles the forests are burning on each side of the track. On the New Brunswick railway the blaze is an equally torrid one, and is doing hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of damage to the growing timber. A day or two ago a man named Keith died at Salisbury from the effect of the fires. Inhaling the smoke caused a violent fit of coughing which resulted in the bursting of a blood vessel and death. The country roads are impassable on account of the heat. The thriving cities of Fredericton and Moncton, N. B., are surrounded by flames, and the people are fighting bravely to save their property. Counter fires are being started all around the cities, and are burning everything which would be likely to prove a feeder to the flames when they come. The Moncton fire department has fought the blaze until it is fairly exhausted, and all the recruits who can possibly be found are being taken into the department and made to work.

A FIGHT WITH TRAMPS.

A Wisconsin Farmer's Encounter with Two of Them—Used a Pitchfork.

RACINE, Wis., Sept. 14.—News reached here Thursday afternoon of a bloody encounter between a farmer named Kinney, living in Somers, Kenosha county, and two tramps. Wednesday evening Mr. Kinney found the two men hiding in his barn and ordered them out. They refused to go and he attempted to forcibly eject them. Grabbing one of the men by the collar he attempted to draw him from the building, when the tramp drew a long-bladed knife and turned on the farmer. The tramp used his knife freely, slashing Kinney across the face and inflicting two bad cuts in the farmer's arm. The two men then broke away and fled. Kinney seized a pitchfork and pursued them, overtaking the man who used the knife. Another struggle ensued, during which Kinney thrust the tines of the fork through his antagonist, inflicting a wound that will prove fatal. The wounded man's name is not known.

Effects of Modern Life.

Eminent authorities unanimously agree that the high pressure methods of modern life are rapidly making us a race of helpless invalids—subject to all manner of nervous affections, headaches, insanity, dizziness, neuralgia, backache, hysteria, nervous troubles of the heart, stomach, kidneys, brain, etc. Ladies and gentlemen who are thus afflicted, or who are compelled to keep late hours, do much mental or physical work, who worry or fret about business or domestic troubles, should remember that no other remedy in the world will so speedily cure these diseases, remove worry and the blues, induce tranquil sleep, relieve pain, or build up the brain and nervous systems, as Dr. Miles' great discovery, the Restorative Nervine. It contains no opium or sedative. Trial bottles free at Baker & Hall's Drug Store.

The celebrated McGibbeny family will appear at the Tecumseh opera house the first week in October. This family has increased to 14 since their last appearance in our village, and they now travel in their own special car.

It is a fact that there will be a Prohibition institute at Macon Grange hall Oct. 10, all day and evening. Everybody will be invited. Now look out for a good time. Program next week.

Owing to farmers being very busy, and as many wish to attend the fairs, it was thought best to postpone the next regular meeting of the Farmers' Social Club from Sept. 20 to Oct. 11.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any other preparation.

MRS. BROWN AND MRS. GREEN.

Said Mrs. Brown to Mrs. Green,
What makes your garments look so clean?
No speck or dirt on them is seen
To mar your linen's glossy sheen;
Your woolen dress that was so soiled,
I thought that it was surely spoiled,
Now looks as spick and span as though
It never had been spattered so!
This fine old lace is firm and white;
Your silk hose keep their colors bright;
Your shawl, your gloves, are spotless, too;
That old print gown seems really new!

In vain my laundress boils and rubs
The clothes, and labors at her tubs;
My newest garments soon look worn,
Get streaked and lusterless and torn.
Said Mrs. Green, in turn: My dear,
Poor soap has spoiled your clothes I fear,
Compelled your laundress first to boil,
Then spend her days in fruitless toil.
My laundress uses IVORY SOAP,
And in its cakes for you there's hope;
What in my clothes so pleases you,
To IVORY SOAP is wholly due.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

RAGING BILLOWS.

Over Forty Shipwrecked Sailors Lose Their Lives.

TERRIBLE SCENES ALONG THE COAST.

The Shore for Miles Strewn with Wreckage—Noble Work of the Life-Saving Crews—Little Change in the Severity of the Gale—Communication Established with Atlantic City.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 12.—A Lewes special to Every Evening states that no language can picture the terrible scene along the coast. The wind is blowing with almost hurricane fierceness, driving the rain with a force that cuts like hail. The half mile reach of sand between town and coast is a tossing, billowy ocean, bearing wreckage on every wave. Through the mist of spray, storm-tattered sails and the naked masts of scores of deserted and dismantled vessels can be dimly seen. Since Monday night the storm has raged without abatement.

Vessels Seeking Refuge.

Wednesday's dawn showed 100 vessels which had sought the refuge of the breakwater. The refuge was insufficient. By 11 o'clock the sea broke over the breakwater wrecked the telegraph station, carried away the big fog bell and rushed shoreward, sweeping away the steamboat pier and dashing the Italian bark Il Salvatori against the iron government pier. The piers of Brown & Co., and Luce Brothers, gave way and were swept to sea. The United States Marine hospital was dashed from its moorings and sent spinning down the beach. The Lewes Life-saving station, forty feet above high-water mark, was flooded and its foundation undermined. Hugheville, a suburb between the town and beach, was submerged and its 200 inhabitants fled for life, leaving all their possessions behind.

The first boat came ashore at 9 a. m. Then came another and another. The life-saving station crew, reinforced by the Henlopen and Rehoboth crews, went to work and have labored almost unceasingly every since. The crew of every vessel that struck was taken off by these daring men and not a life was lost among the scores of men they handled.

Many Vessels Ashore.

The following named vessels came ashore: Italian bark "Il Salvatori," American schooner Henry M. Clark, British schooner Byron M., American schooners Alena Covert, Gertrude Summers, G. F. Becker, E. and L. Bryan, Maud Leonard, Mina A. Reed, Novena, Charles P. Stickney, (total loss), Addie B. Bacon, S. A. Rudolph, A. and E. Hooker, Emily R. Dwyer, U. D. Robinson, American ship W. R. Grace, American barge Timour, Danish bark Atlanta, American brig Richard J. Green, American schooner Maj. W. H. Tantum, a total loss; Nettie Champion, pilot boat T. F. Bayard, Barge Wallace and Tonawanda, and two others, names unknown. Also a vessel sunk off the brown shoals, all the crew drowned except two, who got ashore on a raft. There is another vessel in regard to which there is a dispute, it being unknown whether she was a bark or three-masted schooner; her topmasts only can be discerned, as she is sunk on the Shears shoals. It is not known whether her crew escaped.

Forty Lives Lost.

The total number of lives lost will probably exceed forty. Five of the eight men who composed the crew of the E. & L. Bryan perished where the vessel struck on Brandywine shoals. The mate and two seamen caught a spar and drifted all night. At daybreak the others discovered that one of the sailors was dead, his body still lashed to the spar. The two survivors were picked up by a tug and brought to Lewes. There is great concern over the crew of pilot boat Ebe Tunnell. She put to sea on Monday and has not been heard from. Pilots John Barnes, Lewis Bertrand and James Bowland, Harry Hickman, son of Harbeson Hickman, and a crew of eight men were on board. The New Jersey pilot boat Edmund was blown across the bay and lies grounded on the Jersey coast with her sails in tatters. New York pilot No. 6 was driven in from the sea but made anchorage safely. An unknown schooner is ashore at Rehoboth, and the coast for miles down is reported to be strewn with wrecks.

NO CHANGE IN THE WEATHER.

Steamers Arriving at New York Report the Storm Terrific.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—There is but little change in the wind and weather since Wednesday. The sea has become a little smother, but at 10 o'clock Thursday morning the gale seemed to be gaining additional strength, and under its influence another high tide is expected. All steamers arriving report having been struck by the gale of Monday night and Tuesday. As the passengers and officers of the various vessels come ashore, the stories they tell fully confirm all that has already been told of the violence of the big storm outside Fire island. Capt. Healey of the National line steamer England which arrived Thursday was seen by a United Press reporter shortly after his arrival. The captain said:

Never Knew Its Equal.

"I have been crossing the Atlantic for sixteen years but the gale I just encountered was the most terrific I ever witnessed off this coast. On Tuesday night at 9 o'clock the wind blew great guns from the east while mountainous seas rolled completely over us. I seldom saw their equal. About 11 o'clock that night we took on a pilot. The yard arms dipped into the seas as the ship rolled midst the big waves. The only mishap we had was the loss of a fireman by being washed overboard."

SITUATION AT ATLANTIC CITY.

Wind Still Blowing Hard and Raining—Communication Established.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 12.—It will take months for this city to recover from the loss the storm has caused. The wind still blows at the rate of thirty-five to forty miles an hour, and it is still raining. The beach tides have not been large, and consequently are unaccompanied by further damage. The meadows, however, are still three or four feet under water. The damage to the road beds of the railroad companies is worse than was at first anticipated. Three or four foolhardy people reached here Thursday from Pleasantville. They walked to the big railroad tower where the principal washout is, when they swam and did the "hand-over-hand" on the loose rails. Train service on the Camden and Atlantic railroad has again been established and will run on schedule time.

Cruiser Atlanta All Right.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 14.—The United States cruiser Atlanta, for whose safety much alarm had been felt for the last two or three days, arrived at this port, her destination, at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

GEN. GRANT IN BRONZE.

The Statue at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, Unveiled.

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Sept. 16.—This city was crowded to overflowing Saturday on the occasion of the unveiling of the statue erected at the fort in honor of Gen. Grant. The troops at the fort took part in the exercises, and the city was gay with bunting. At 1 p. m. a procession composed of G. A. R. posts, Knights Templar, and other civil and military bodies paraded the streets, and then took trains to the fort. The principal features of the unveiling were the prayer of Rev. E. F. Holland, orations by Gen. Merritt, president of the association which erected the statue, Senator Ingalls, Gen. C. W. Blair and Gen. Hazen. Senator Cameron unveiled the statue, which is a heroic figure of the "old commander," standing on a granite monolith four feet square and five feet high. The general is represented standing and examining a paper of official import. The likeness is pronounced excellent. The faces of the monolith are adorned by appropriate inscriptions and reliefs.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH ILLINOIS?

The Race War Epidemic Breaks Out in Lawrenceville.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—A Herald special from Lawrenceville, Ills., says: This town was the scene of a desperate fight between whites and blacks Saturday night. County Judge Barns arrested a negro on the street for running amuck with a knife. The negroes attempted to rescue the prisoner, and the whites went to Barnes' assistance. There was a hard fight, but the whites won, and landed four negroes in jail. The negroes rallied again, broke into the jail and rescued the prisoner.

A Fatal Skirmish.

The whites organized, and in the fight that followed Judge Barns was shot, but not fatally, and two negroes were killed. About a dozen were wounded on both sides. The ringleader was captured and put in jail. A posse, armed with Winchesters, surrounded the jail last night, and the negroes fled, panic-stricken, from the town.

WHOLESALE EVICTION OF SETTLERS.

Four Hundred Farmers Turned Out of Their Homes.

BRAINERD, Minn., Sept. 16.—The Northern Pacific railroad Saturday completed the work of evicting upward of 400 settlers and their families, who, supposing they were conforming to the regulations of the government, located lands on the edge of the reservation, soon to be opened in Minnesota. The commissioner of the general land office decided that the lands were included in the Northern Pacific indemnity belt, and the railroad company sent out an armed force of evictors, who drove the settlers, with their families and stock, off the lands.

Bundled Out Without Ceremony.

So roughly were these evictions made that many of the cabins contain articles of household furniture just as they were hastily abandoned. These people are without money, and many of them must starve unless aid is sent here at once, as the city authorities have no means of providing for the hundreds now here.

London's Strike at an End.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—The dockmen marched in procession yesterday to the Mansion house, where they were reviewed by the lord mayor and lady mayoress. The Australian flag had the place of honor in the line. From the Mansion house the parade marched to Hyde park, where they held a meeting. There was an enormous crowd present, but perfect order was maintained. Four platforms had been erected, from which Mr. Burns and others made addresses. Resolutions were adopted expressing gratitude toward those who assisted the men during the strike.

Work was resumed to-day on the terms noted in these dispatches last week. The men get their raise of wages Nov. 4, and win without modification on all the other points; one thing they conceded was that the men who had gone to work during the strike are not to be interfered with.

The Conemaugh Relief Fund.

HARRISBURG, Pa. Sept. 16.—The question of the final distribution of the flood relief fund was settled Saturday, and it was agreed to give Johnstown 1,600,000 now, to be distributed on the same basis as the first distribution. Up to now the commission has received $2,605,114.22, and has on hand $1,666,456.50, subject to contracts not yet completed amounting to $43,600, and appropriations to other parts of the state of $84,190.55. In the Conemaugh valley $769,382.70 has been expended, and in other parts of the state $169,275.02. Various subscriptions are still being received by the commission, one coming to hand Saturday from the lord mayor of Dublin. It was for £200, and makes the Irish subscription the handsome total of £2,700.

Broke Dr. Carver's Record.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Dr. Bartlett Thursday successfully concluded his attempt to beat Dr. Carver's record of breaking 60,000 glass balls in six days. He began Saturday at 6:30 a. m. and continued twelve hours a day. The first day he broke 12,020; Sunday, 10,017; Monday, 10,105; Tuesday, 10,591; Wednesday, 9,609, and Thursday 11,675. He finished with a total of 64,017. The third day he broke 500 balls in 17 minutes, and a consecutive 500 in 18 minutes. Then he made a spurt to break the record and broke 500 in 14 minutes, breaking Oakley's record of 100 in 3 minutes and 10 seconds. Dr. Bartlett also achieved the phenomenal record of breaking 10 balls in 8 seconds.

Says He Saw Brodie Go Over the Falls.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 14.—William E. Harding, who, because of his connection with the recent Sullivan-Kilrain prize fight is an unwilling sojourner here, stated positively that Steve Brodie did go over the falls, and that he formed one of the Brodie party and witnessed the whole affair, of which he gave a detailed account. He stated further that Brodie will shortly go over the American falls.

Three Weeks and No Jury.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—The third week of the Cronin trial came to an end at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when Judge McConnell announced that the fourteenth venire had been exhausted. Three hundred and twenty-seven veniremen have been examined. All have been excused except Culver, the real estate dealer, and Farmer Pearson. Culver is a probable juror. Pearson will doubtless be excused by the state.

Texas Cattle Fever in Pennsylvania.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., Sept. 14.—A cattle disease said by some to be Texas fever and others black tongue has reached East Huntingdon township, and in the vicinity of Bethany there are nearly 100 such cases, the deaths being very numerous. In the vicinity of Reagantown, South Huntingdon township, it is of a very malignant type, and as high as ten cows of some farmers are down with it.

E. Bainbridge, Munday Esq., County Atty., Clay Co., Tex. says: "Have used Electric Bitters with most happy results. My brother also was very low with Malarial Fever and Jaundice, but was cured by timely use of this medicine. Am satisfied Electric Bitters saved his life."

Mr. D. I. Wilcoxson, of Horse Cave, Ky., adds a like testimony, saying: He positively believes he would have died, had it not been for Electric Bitters.

LONG LIFE.

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought untill we recive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease preventer that has yet been discovered, is simered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names and guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them.

They do not know, of course, unless they have courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why dont you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but one dollar for a very large bottle. Try it at once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggists may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine—of health.

FIFTY YEARS OF WEDDED LIFE.

Fifty years ago, on the 15th of September, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Remington assumed the marriage vows and began matrimonial life together on the "old farm" in Macon. The old farm was new enough then. It was literally the "wild west" in 1839. At that time but few farms were taken up in Macon, and those few were mostly swamp and timber. But the young couple started with a firm resolve to make themselves a home. Good health and contentment dwelt in their humble habitation, and as the years rolled by, their acres yielded fruits in abundance; a family of happy children grew up to bless them, and beautiful buildings were erected to shelter them from sun and storm. Forty-two years of their life were spent on the old farm. The boys then took charge of the homestead while father and mother bought a nice home in the village and moved thereon and here they have resided for the past eight years. They have shared together both the joys and sorrows of life. They have eight children now living (two having gone before) eighteen grandchildren and three great-grand-children to cheer them in their declining years.

Last Saturday was the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding day and they invited in all their old friends to help them celebrate the happy event. About eighty guests gathered at the pleasant home and the entire afternoon was passed in a hearty house warming such as old acquaintances of many years can enjoy. The invitations were mostly confined to the friends of their earlier years, but even then the capacious house was seriously taxed to accommodate the company. Tecumseh, Macon and Ridgeway were all largely represented in the gathering. After the guests had all assembled, Brother Joslin summoned them to the parlors and to the venerable bride and groom he offered a few heart-touching words of congratulation. Mrs. Joslin sang: "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in one," and Bro. Burnett offered a beautiful prayer. A bountiful supply of the food that perisheth was then provided, and the remainder of the day was passed in social converse and recounting reminiscences of "ye olden time."

Many handsome and costly gifts were betowed, among them a silver tea set from the children, and a gold watch from the groom to his bride.

Several letters were received from absent friends, extending their congratulations and regrets, some of which were of special interest. Two of these we take pleasure in reproducing. Not the least incident occurred to mar the happiness of the day, and the guests will long cherish the event in greatful remembrance.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 11, '89.

DEAR UNCLE LEONARDO AND AUNT ANNA REMINGTON:

Your invitation to be with you on the anniversary of your fiftieth wedding day-September 14, 1889-is gratefully appreciated and brings with it regrets, because I will not be able to be present, but in spirit you may feel assured.

Fifty years of married life. A half century of love interspersed with a few little discontents. How your memory must be crowded in looking back over the way your feet have traveled these many years. How bright life seemed on the day you linked your fortunes together, for better or worse. How few of the golden dreams have been realized, and yet, how happy after all that things have happened just as they did.

"God moves in a mysterious way,
His wonders to perform."

I bring to mind, in imagination, the first quarrel in which you two were the principals. How each was determined to have their way and how after a little while both became impressed with the absurdity and silliness of the contention and had the candor to say so, and kiss and "make up." And do you mind how at an early period of your matrimonial life you became inspired with the idea that you were wasting your lives and accomplishing nothing out in the wilds of Michigan and had almost resolved to go "east" and be sombody, and how in a few days it all ended, and how some other resolve took its place, only to give way to something else, and how in the meantime the country was filling up with people and that you were no longer in the "west" but that mythical land was located somewhere out beyond the Mississippi river. When the first baby came, what a thrill of joy took possession of you, and how you trotted over the floor night, after night, trying to quiet the little one, and keep it from crying, and how its little lungs seemed able to continue crying for a thousand nights more, and you so tired and had to get up next morning all "broke up" Oh yes! You remember all that. It's all very funny now, but it was serious enough then because you had no experience.

I wish it were possible to be with you where all is joy and each one of your descendents is trying to make it pleasant for bride and groom.

Long may you live, and joy and comfort be with you to the end is the wish of Yours truly,

J. L. NORRIS.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 12, '89.

My dear Uncle and Aunt:—Accept my congratulations on this joyful event. I do so wish I could be there with you and throw the "rice and slippers" after the happy couple. I know the bride looks sweet and blushing and the groom gallant and fair as all good grooms do. Won't you please make your wedding trip to Washington. It will make me so happy to do my share in entertaining you.

Hoping you will have many pleasant returns of the day and that the remainder of your life may be the happiest part, is the sincere wish of

Your loving niece,

HELEN NORRIS.

PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION.

G. B. Horton, President of the Agricultural Society, has a Few Words to Lenawee County.

The time is drawing near for the regular annual county fair. Much hard work is being done in behalf of its success by the officers in charge, and people all over the county. The most kindly feeling prevails everywhere and all seem anxious for a great increase in exhibits and attendance over former years.

Great improvements in grounds, buildings and general fixtures have helped to make accommodations more complete than ever before and nothing but bad weather can deprive us of a grand exhibition. Notwithstanding all these favorable features, we are still full of ambition and work, soliciting and encouraging on every hand.

At the beginning of the new organization, the mark was set high. We would not be satisfied with an ordinary county fair. It must be one of the great ones, and to that end we unitedly work. The large posters, hangers, dodgers, premium lists and newspaper articles and advertisements sent broadcast over the land, tell of our attractions and accommodations prepared for all. By the published program in this week's county papers, you will notice that the work of judging and showing of stock, and general attractions with speed departments are equally divided between Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Come Tuesday to bring your exhibits. Come Wednesday to see the fair. Come Thursday to see the people. Come Friday to see the races. Do not let rain one day prevent you from coming the next, for the whole program must be gone over and everything advertised performed.

Commence now to prepare for it, and do all you can for this permanent home institution, thus leaving your money and result of your labor where you will get the benefit.

GEO. B. HORTON, President.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Sarah Hall was born in Springfield, Mass., Aug. 26th, 1813. She came to Tecumseh in 1851 with her husband and resided here until 1871, the family occupying the house first west of Lucius Lilley's on Pottawatamie St. In 1871 the family moved to Adrian and shortly thereafter to Elkhart, Ind., where her husband died. She has since made her home in Elkhart with a married daughter.

On the 4th of July last she was stricken with a paralytic shock, from which she never rallied. She slowly sank away until Sept. 10th, when death relieved her from her sufferings. Her remains were brought to Tecumseh on the 12th and laid to rest by the side of her husband's in their family lot in our evergreen cemetery. She leaves three children to mourn her departure; John L., of Ogdensburg, N. Y., Willis, who is in the employ of the Lake Shore road in Chicago, and her daughter Nettie, who lives at Elkhart, Ind.

Blood Poison

Is very liable to follow contact of the hands or face with what is known as poison ivy, especially in hot weather or if the body is perspiring freely. The trouble may subside for a time, only to appear in aggravated form when opportunity offers. The great purifying powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla thoroughly eradicate every trace of poison from the blood, as the cures it has accomplished conclusively show. It also cures scrofula, salt rheum and all other affections arising from impure or poisoned blood.

SATURDAY'S RACES AT BILLS' TRACK.

The races last Saturday drew a good crowd of spectators, and also a large number of entries in the contest. The usual custom of giving blankets as prizes to the successful competitors was departed from and the object for which the equines trotted on this occasion was cold cash. $120 were distributed in four races to the winners. A larger number of horses was entered than two weeks ago and the interest in the races was greater, especially so in the named race, which required six heats to decide it. Egg Boy, owned by Ed. Williamson, came near carrying off first money in this class, notwithstanding the fact that he was taken off the dray that day, without any preparation. He trotted the six heats without making a break and captured second money. Beside the named race, there was the three year old, the three minute and the free for all. Corroloid, owned by Charles Gauntlett, of Milan, carried home first money in the three year old, Bidwell's Joe Rothschilds easily won the three minute, and Harmon's Texas Jim, of Saline, pocketed first money in the free for all; he always does. Texas Jim is a black mustang and has considerable go in him. He has won blankets enough to stretch from Tecumseh to Saline, and before snow flies Ance Harmon will have enough to stretch half way back. Jim always goes in the free for all, and when he starts the interest of the crowd centers in him to see if he breaks. When he breaks he performs like a bucking broncho in a wild west show. He only gives one or two jumps however, and he is on his feet again.

The named race was first called and Underwood's Pete, Exelby's Black Jack, Getty's Presto, and Williamson's Egg Boy started in the order named. Pete was overhauled by Egg Boy on the first turn, and later by Black Jack, and a pretty race was had between the two latter, Egg Boy coming in only a few inches ahead. In the second heat Jack got warmed up, and easily passed Egg Boy, finishing about two lengths ahead. Jack broke in the third heat and Egg Boy won it very easily. Jack captured the next heat, making two each for them. The fifth heat changed the program. Jack and Egg Boy scraped wheels on the start and when they became separated Jack had the pole and Egg Boy was in the pocket with Pete holding the advantage. On the last turn Pete crawled ahead and took the heat by half a length, making it necessary to trot a sixth heat. After scoring several times they got off together with Pete at the pole. Jack immediately crossed over and took the lead with Egg Boy second. On the last quarter Pete nearly pocketed the Egg Boy again, but his driver didn't propose to have it that way and took two spokes out of Pete's sulky in getting out, coming in second to Jack's first. Following is the score:

Black Jack	2	1	2	1	2	1
Presto	4	4	4	4	4
Egg Boy	1	2	1	2	3	2

The three year old race was best two in three heats. Cairns' Lady, Bills' Caprice, and Corroloid were the starters. Two straight heats were easily taken by the latter, whose gait and action showed his superiority. Caprice took second and Lady third. Corroloid made the second heat in 2.41.

Five horses started in the three minute race, as follows: Donna B., owned by Chas. Gauntlett; Stimson's Maud, of Saline; Dr. Wise's Jack the Ripper, of Blissfield; Bidwell's Joe Rothschilds, and Simmons', Marshall Star. Donna B. drew the pole, with the Ripper second and Joe third. Joe drew ahead of the Ripper, who ripped back to last place, and on the home stretch passed Donna, coming in two rods ahead. The second and third heats were trotted in about the same manner. Score:

Jack the Ripper	4	5	5
Joe Rothschilds	1	1	1
Maud	5	4	4
Marshall Star	3	3	3

The free for all also had five starters—Harmon's Texas Jim, Stimpson's Maggie S., Westfall's Belle H., Simmon's Josie L., and Harrington's Brown Mack. Texas Jim had things all his own way and took three straight heats. Mack came in second, Belle third, Josie fourth and Maggie last.

This closed the program for the day. Good time was made and some of the trotters improved on that made two weeks ago. The track is in very fair condition, and at a little expense could be made one of the best half mile tracks in the state. Tecumseh people should take an interest in the track, and if the improvements can be made, we will probably see some good speed contests, as Mr. Bills can get a faster class of horses here and make a program of two or three days' length. If we can't have ball games, let us have horse races.

Lucy Larcom will contribute to Harper's Magazine for October a poem entitled "Discovery," which is appropriate, if not by inspiration due, to the present turning of the world's mind to the hero of 1492.

HIGH SCHOOL HAPPENINGS.

There are 119 members in the high school at preasant, and 26 in the senior class. We hope they will all remain and make the class of '90 the largest that ever graduated from Tecumseh.

Every Tuesday and Thursday morning the regular time for chapel exercises is spent with Miss Grayson, who has been hired to teach music in our schools.

Bert Baker, Gus Cummins, Roy DeWolf, Al Heesen, Bert Corey, Fred Tiffany and Levi Hayden gave us a call last Friday morning.

The H. S. Boy's have formed a "Cane Club." Last Friday night they went serenading and perhaps Prof. Wilson could testify whether they did justice to themselves or not.

A SAD CASE.

The death of Miss Minnie Tuell, which occurred at the residence of M. P. Brown last Saturday morning, was a peculiarly sad affair. She was the daughter of Prof. Tuell, Principal of the Louisville High School, and first became acquainted with Miss Lillie Brown on their trip to San Francisco last summer to attend the National Teacher's association. Miss Tuell came up here last July to spend the summer vacation with her new acquaintance. In August both young ladies were seized with an attack of malarial fever, and for several days their lives were trembling in the balance. On Friday the fever was broken in Miss Tuell's case but her system was too much exhausted to stand the reaction, and she gradually failed until death ensued at 8 o'clock Saturday morning. The remains were taken to her Southern home that afternoon. She was a young lady of fine education and accomplishments, and her death will be a terrible affliction to her parents. Miss Brown is now convalescent, and the chances are favorable for her speedy recovery.

THE MONROE PRESBYTERY.

The Presbytery of Monroe held its semi-annual session in the Presbyterian church of Raisin, Sept. 10 and 11, 1889. Most of the ministers and elders from the several churches were present. The session was one greatly enjoyed by the people who were present, charterized by harmony, good will, a devotional spirit and zeal for the interests of the church.

Rev. W. W. Wetmore of Jonesville, having been called to Cassopolis, in Kalamazoo Presbytery, was dismissed to that body.

Greatly to the regret of the other members, but for reasons deemed satisfactory, Rev. S. W. Pratt, a faithful and efficient member of the Presbytery, and an earnest and successful pastor, was at his own request released from his charge of the church at Monroe, and was granted a letter to another Presbytery, when he shall call for it. Highly complimentary resolutions were passed in view of the severance of relations so long and so pleasantly existing.

Revs. W. H. Babbitt and W. K. Spencer, and Elder Boyd of Monroe, were appointed a committee to consider carefully and to bring in a report at the spring meeting on the overture sent down by the General Assembly concerning the question, whether any changes are desirable in the Confession of Faith, and if so, what changes. From so prudent and able a committee we may safely expect that this Presbytery will act wisely on this most important matter.

The people of Raisin had provided ample entertainment for the visiting body, and their only regret was that there were not more of them to do justice to it.

In the evening of Wednesday a S. S. Institute was held, addressed by Prof. Curtis, the Superintendent of the Adrian City schools, Jesse Rogers of Palmyra and Rev. W. D. Sexton of Hillsdale, the Moderator of Presbytery.

Morenci's street lamps have arrived at last. They are six in number and will burn coal oil.

Frank Haviland will be at Will Anderson's on the 26th of this month with some of his French china. Those wishing some fine chinaware should call on that day and investigate.

Lon Keits, who works at Brewer's foundry, in the machine shop, had the end of the third finger of his right hand cut off last Saturday. He was assisting in lifting a heavy casting when it slipped and fell on his finger, severing it as neatly as could be done with a knife.

The Lake Shore road will sell round trip tickets to Detroit during the ten days of the exposition, for $2.15 which amount includes a ticket of admission to the fair. The Mackinaw will charge $1.65 for the round trip, via. the Wabash, without a fair ticket. Tickets good on both roads on all regular trains.

There will be a social, at which an interesting literary program will be presented, immediately following a short regular meeting of Beers' Post at G. A. R. hall tomorrow evening, Sept. 20. All comrades with their families, members of the Relief Corps, and Sons of Veterans are cordially invited. The doors will be opened at 8 o'clock.

A late number of the Dowagiac Times has the following. We have full confidence that Prof. Miller will fill the bill in his present position.

Under the management of the new superintendent, J. R. Miller, the city schools are opening very auspiciously. Supt. Miller is popular with both teachers and scholars. He is an earnest and enthusiastic worker, and is a practical business man. He is creating a very favorable impression among our citizens and the patrons of the school.

We beg leave to advise our readers to be sure and not forget to see the panorama of the Battle of Gettysburg while in Chicago during the exposition. Take advantage of the low rates and see Gettysburg. There is no picture in the world like this of Gettysburg; no other picture presents such a scope of country or gives such a thrilling representation of a battle. It is no wonder it is called "Chicago's pride and greatest artistic attraction."

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of the Stearns Wind Mill Co. in another column. They manufacture a full line of power wind engines and pumping wind mills. They will give farmers who wish to purchase mills the benefit of strictly wholesale prices until they have an agency established in this county. This firm guarantees their goods strictly first-class in every way, and give good bankable reference and are reliable. Parties who wish to sell mills or buy a mill for their own use will find it to their interest to write them.

Moreland Bros. & Crane, the greatest commercial advertisers in Michigan, are sparing no pains to have the most attractive exhibit at the coming Lenawee co. fair, and have at great expense secured an Edison phonograph or talking machine, the most wonderful invention of this or any age, and we are authorized to invite the public to visit their booth and listen to this great marvel of inventive genius, and secure a sample of the greatest tobacco on the market—'Ivy' fine cut, 10 cts.

John J. Freeman was in Adrian Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Slayton went to Detroit yesterday.

Charlie Whittier is home from Chicago to spend two or three weeks.

E. A. Tribou has gone to Detroit to visit his friends during the exposition.

Oscar Heck occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church last Sunday evening.

Levi Hayden returns to Massachusetts to-morrow to resume his school duties.

The McGibbeny family will appear at the opera house on the evening of Oct. 5th.

Mrs. Abbie Fisher went to Detroit yesterday to visit friends and see the big show.

Minnie and Maggie Glasgow have gone to Brooklyn to spend a week with friends.

The pews of the M. E. church of Tecumseh will be rented at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 28.

A large number of Tecumseh people took the morning train for Detroit to take in the exposition.

Jacob Tallman and wife, of Mt. Morris, N.Y., are spending a couple of weeks at Mrs. E. F. Blood's.

Halsey Lewis, living south of the town line, died at his home last Tuesday at the age of 68 years, of paralysis.

We invite the attention of our readers to the new announcement of Wood, Crane & Wood, which appears on the 8th page.

Hall's Hudson Grocer for September is at hand, filled as usual with good things. It shows that Henry is still at the front in the grocery trade.

Blinn Tallman will start his cider mill about the first of next month. As apples are plenty and cheap this fall he expects to do a rushing business.

Egg Boy, owned by Ed. Williamson, and Exelby's Black Jack will trot for a purse of $50, best three in five, mile heats, at the next matinee, Saturday, Oct. 5. The money has been put up and an exciting race can be looked for.

H. W. Stevens is suffering with a severe boil on his left hand. But that does not prevent his buying apples and paying the highest market price. He is buying for Pat Gleason, of Leroy, N. Y., and has agents at Ousted, Tipton, Holloway and Dundee.

The frescoing at the Presbyterian church has been completed and it is an elegant job. The other repairs are progressing and will be finished in about two weeks. The $1500 which was raised for these repairs will likely all be expended before the work is completed.

The Manitou Beach correspondent of the Addison Courier says:

Uncle Charley will continue to supply the "snow flake" ice cream, pop, cigars, etc., and will accommodate small parties with lodging and lunch by advising him of their coming a few days in advance. He stays for two months yet, certain.

John Heck got home from his European trip last week. It was a success both as a business and pleasure trip. He was out one day in the big storm. The white-capped billows of the gale tossed sea maybe pretty to talk about, but he has no desire to repeat that day's experience simply for the fun of it.

Miss Allie Warren has been in Detroit two weeks and has just returned with a nice line of fall and winter hats and bonnets, and all the latest novelties in trimmings. Ladies are requested to call and examine her stock before purchasing. No trouble to show goods.

The members of Adrian Commandery, Knights Templar, had a meeting in Tecumseh Tuesday afternoon and a fine parade. The city band came out and escorted the commandery through the streets. After marching about the village they returned to Chicago st., and went through some fine evolutions. There were over 40 men in the ranks and they made a nice exhibition of drill.

The Art Amateur for September is one of the most attractive numbers we have seen of this thoroughly practical art magazine. Theodore Child has a critical review of Decorative Art at the Paris Exposition; and Montezuma in his "Note Book" gives some curious facts about the "Angelus" and other pictures. There are lessons in fret-sawing and stamped leather work and the art of making Smoke Pictures. Price 35c. Montague Marks, publisher, 23 Union Square, New York.

We took a look through J. D. Sholes' establishment yesterday and were quite surprised to see the extent of his new stock. He has a very fine assortment of heavy and light harnesses, a large supply of trunks and satchels and a big stock of blankets, robes, and other horse furnishing goods. He also sells the celebrated Emerson & Fisher buggies, and can supply all the different styles made by this firm. Persons in want of goods in his line should not fail to look over his stock.

C. T. Cummins was in town over Sunday.

Miss Hattie Bates has gone to Jackson to attend the wedding of her cousin, Miss Florence Hobart.

Fred Herning, who lives at Napa City, Cal., is seriously ill, and his brother in Adrian has gone to see him.

Ob Tefft expects to start for Washington next Saturday to resume his course of studies in the medical department of Howard University.

Heesen & Son advertise for apples. They expect to open their evaporating works the last of this week and they will need large quantities of apples daily for the next two months.

The Baptist Sunday School held their long deferred picnic last Saturday afternoon at the residence of Ornin Finch. The children took possession of the house and grounds and had a glorious time.

The yarn circulated by a Mr. Lang of Woodstock, that he was shot at by a highwayman while returning home from Adrian on the 10th, turns out to be a hoax. It has not yet transpired whether Lang was drunk or crazy at the time.

The Franklin and Tecumseh Farmers' club will meet at Abner Wilson's on Wednesday evening, Oct. 2, at 7 o'clock. All members are cordially invited. Program next week.
GEORGE SCHWARTZ, Pres.

Dr. Kotts says he is well pleased with the way his practice has opened in Tecumseh, and he will continue his visits at the Lilley House Wednesday of each week. The Doctor is well posted in his profession, is a man of good personal habits and can be relied upon every time.

The administrators of the Frank Silvers estate met yesterday afternoon and received several claims, among which was one from Will Bennett, who wants $500 for the loss of two teeth, the effect of coming in contact with one of Silvers' horse's hoofs. Mr. Cummins wants the same amount for damage done his house.

Among the announcements of The Century for last year was one of a series of "letters home" from Japan, by the American artist, Mr. John La Farge. The letters have been revised and expanded into a series covering the landscape, art, architecture, life and religion of Japan, for which Mr. La Farge has made a great number of illustrations, and these papers are to be a feature of the Century during the coming year. Mr. La Farge's brief papers on Japanese art, published in Mr. Pumpelly's "Across America and Asia," was one of the earliest thoroughly appreciative essays on the subject of Japan.

One week ago last Saturday the good people of our village were aroused by the startling sound of a steamboat whistle at the west end of the lake, and careful inspection ascertained that the G. A. R., Capt. Fred Deuel, had passed through the channel made by Elijah Wilson, of Tecumseh, and was making her way with a few passengers to the Rexford hotel, on the east shore of the lake. It proved to be no easy matter to overcome the obstacles on the east side of the bridge, as they found a heavy bed of pond lilies netted in there. But the little boat proved herself equal to the emergency and worked herself through, turning out roots fully 15 feet long and three or four inches in diameter. The party made their way to Rexford's and were entertained in that hospitable manner Will and wife know so well how to mete out to their guests; after which the lake was rounded and return to Devils lake completed, with nothing to mar the day's enjoyment. Tally one for Fred and the G. A. R.—Geneva cor. Addison Courier.

A GENEROUS OFFER.—The celebrated Dr. Gleason, after a practice of forty years, having during all that time made the cure of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption his special study, has in this time so perfected his treatment as to be able to cure nearly all who suffer from these complaints. Having reached the age of seventy years, he realizes that the time is near at hand when these valuable remedies must be in other hands or become lost to the world. Desiring that his Home Treatment should be within the reach of all, he has placed the prescriptions with the Hall Chemical Company; this company, knowing the wonderful success of the Home Treatment in the cure of all Throat and Lung Troubles, have decided to send the full treatment ON TRIAL to any one who wishes to try it. Dr. Gleason has also written a valuable treatise on these diseases, which is profusely illustrated with finely executed wood-cuts, showing the Head, Throat and Lungs as they are when diseased; it discusses in an able manner the cause and cure of these complaints; it is printed on heavy super-calendered paper and handsomely bound. This book, together with full instructions how to order on trial, will be sent free to all who will write and ask for it. Address

STATE NEWS.

By the death of a California cousin Col. M. Jeffers, of East Saginaw, inherits a generous slice of a magnificent property in the Golden state. Most any one wouldn't object to being wafted by a Pacific sloper or any other financial breeze of similar dimensions.

The eleven libel suits that are on tap in this state, in which newspaper men figure as both plaintiff and defendant, indicate the peace and harmony that don't exist in certain editorial circles.

The occupations that are not hazardous, in some form or other, seem to be as scarce and difficult to discover as an honest politician. Frinstance, who'd ever supposed there was any particular danger in hunting hen's nests? But it did for a Perry lady. Mrs. John Honecker by name, was ransacking the barn in search of hen fruit, she got right in the way of a falling beam and was killed.

An old gray-headed Mosherville man claims to be the champion corn-husker of the state. He has husked 175 bushels of ears in a day, and if necessary can beat that feat by hustling a little livelier for ten hours. Is there a young man in the state who cares to try titles with him in an ear to ear contest?

Rev. E. A. Berry, a Romeo Congregational clergyman, will soon emigrate to Atlanta, Ga., he having accepted a chair in the Clark university of that city.

The Calumet and Hecla mine has been thoroughly searched for the bodies of the men who were lost in its great subterranean fire last winter, but no trace of them could be found. The intense heat seems to have resulted in utter physical annihilation.

A Fillmore fruitist is the owner of a pear tree, of the "Bell" variety, from which he picked 17½ bushels of fruit, the crop selling for $17.50. A forty acre orchard of such trees wouldn't be bad property to own this year.

Exhuming a dead man's remains seems to be somewhat of a daggerous undertaking. A Buffalo insurance company desired to dig up the body of Darius Snyder at Paw Paw, alleging that he committed suicide and that it was not legally liable for the $3,000 it carried on his life. Obtaining the father's sanction the sexton was set at work when the beneficiary's attorney appeared on the scene and made it plain to all concerned that an immediate cessation of the work alone would save 'em from the bastile. Darius' remains still rest in peace.

Some Milan toughs meandered down to the depot one sunny afternoon not long since with the premeditated design of "cleaning out" Station Agent Debenham; but that gentleman thought he knew how to run his own business, and the toughs in question entirely agree with him now. The wallopin' they got will last 'em for many moons to come.

Battle Creek has a hotel man who has become so weary of being called as a witness in divorce cases that he just destroys his registers as soon as they are filled with names. Of course, you can't prove anything by a hotel man's memory.

A Webberville lady, who's seen 80 summers and is old enough, one would think, to take a permanent vacation from toil, often pares and cores four bushels of apples for drying in a single day, and gathers her own fruit by way of diversion. Still, there's no earthly happiness that can compare with that derived from congenial employment, no matter what the age of the person may be.

Preparations are in progress for an unusually active winter campaign in the lumber regions of Oscoda county and 'tis now thought that a larger log crop will be harvested than during any previous season. Where's the man who prophesied that Michigan pine would all be used up twenty years ago.

Down at Mio, when one man pounds another until he can see stars tucker'n the milky way at high noon, they fine him $1 and costs, but stealing a left handed mule is good for a three-years' job at Jackson. And yet justice is sometimes represented by a balance that's properly adjusted.

A Petoskey doctor secured letters patent on a rat trap and then swapped his credentials for $15,000, cash. Who says that American inventors aren't appreciated?

A Hudson lady has a California nectarine that's bearing fruit this season, the only tree of the kind in that portion of the state.

An $8,000 brick church, sixty by fifty-three feet in size and furnished with modern improvements, is what Eaton Rapids Baptists are figuring on to make the labors of the first day of the week more comfortable.

The Bell telephone monopoly have finally succeeding in squeezing the life out of all opposition in the telephone business in this state. The Bay people have just won their suit against the Toledo and South Haven railway company, which was using a Cushman line, the last, we belive, Michigan.

An Ascoda county man, who possesses more temper than good sense, undertook to transplant a fellow mortal by means of an ax. 'Twas a mighty narrow escape, for the man assailed, but the assailant has regained his liberty by a flaw in the proceedings instituted against him. The holes in the legal skinner are of times peculiarly numerous.

Cornelius Diekraw, the Holland gentleman who was terribly beat a few months about a year ago, and has since been a great sufferer, is dead, at the age of 50 years. His assailants, one of whom was his own grandson, are now doing time for the same at Jackson.

With the near approach of the season of the year when the majority of Michigan stoves are laid on the shelf till the spring posies bloom, that article of kitchen furniture seems intent on improving its opportunities to the utmost. Mrs. Frank Harris, a Marshall lady, is one of the latest reported victims of gasoline explosion.

Fanti's new African M. E. church has just been dedicated and is in good running order.

While the Three Rivers band company was at the local fair grounds, some one for a prize, an $1,800 down-town residence improved the occasion for being cremated. Insurance, $1,000.

Some folks don't get married very often, and so consider that the event should be properly celebrated. An Ann Arbor woman did so by imbibing an over-dose of corn juice, and then spent several days in the calaboose. What a difference there is in the way different individuals derive happiness.

The roaming cow hath a firm friend in at least one corporate body—Alpheus's common council—and so she continues to roam in the streets of that northland burg of the Huron shore.

A Pittsfield man has a hard maple tree in his front yard that annually sheds its leaves in the month of August and immediately puts out fresh foliage that "stays by" until J. Frost, Esq., bids it let up.

Maggie Hietkirk, a Bay county maiden, was the victim of unrequited love and believing that there was no happiness for her in this vale of tears, imbibed a dose of paris green. Maggie is in a fair way to become an angel.

Even a burglar may make a mistake, like the average run of ordinary mortals. Our 'em hooked a Kalamazoo man's watch but found it to be such an unreliable times that 'twas returned, accompanied by a note to the effect that it was of eartly use to the taker which was a very satisfactory explanation of the purloiner's action.

A $150 cat was one of the purring attractions at the Lansing state fair.

The Johnstown flood was somewhat slow in drying up, but the alleged sufferers therefrom are still more dilatory, many of whom are yet working various sections of this state for assistance.

Roscommon county folks are so busy, prosperous and peaceable that the last term of her circuit court lasted but one hour. No time for quarreling, it seems.

THE GREENBACK PLATFORM.

Declaration of Principles Adopted by the National Convention.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 14.—The national Greenback convention resumed work yesterday at 12 o'clock. The platform which was adopted reasserts the third and fourth planks of the Democratic platform of 1868, that all laws changing the time or manner of paying public debts after 1865 are expost facto laws and should be repealed; that all legal tender notes (greenbacks) now outstanding should be immediately exchanged for others of like denomination to be issued with the words "promise to pay" stricken from their face, and an aditional amount issued to reclaim our arid lands, to subsidize an American merchant marine, build an American navy, to erect public buildings, and for such other purposes as will promote the general welfare until their volume in circulation shall amount to at least $50 per capita of the entire population; that nearly all known signs now point to a greater financial panic in the near future than this country or the world ever before saw; that the time has come when all sectional prejudice between the people of the north and south should end. The convention appointed a national committee, of whom the western members are: Illinois, J. S. Whitcomb; Indiana, T. J. Sharp; Iowa, E. M. Farnsworth; Michigan, Ben Calvin. George O. Jones was elected president of the committee and T. J. Sharp and William Richards secretaries.

A CHRISTIAN SCIENCE FAILURE.

Illustration of the Fact That the Lord Is Not Practicing Medicine.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Martha Olsen, a Norwegian aged 22 years, died Thursday night of typhoid fever under such circumstances that the attending physician would not grant a certificate of death, and an investigation of the case has resulted in the arrest of Carl Olsen—not a relative—with whose family the girl was stopping at the time of her death. Miss Olsen, who came to this country three years ago, was a believer in Christian Science, and through the meetings of followers of that faith became acquainted with Carl Olsen and his family, who were also strong believers.

The Girl's Vain Faith.

Tuesday last she became ill, but maintained that the Lord would cure her. Neighbors, however, insisted on the attendance of a physician, and Dr. A. W. Ford was summoned. He left a prescription to suit the case, and was astounded when he called again Thursday night to find that it had not been filled. The girl was dead, as the doctor claims, from neglect in not having the prescription filled. The man Olsen puts forth his belief in the faith cure as an excuse for himself, and the girl's strong feeling in that direction.

REPULSED BY FORT M'HENRY.

An Immense Crowd Witnessed the Sham Naval Engagement at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 14.—Thursday the British were defeated by land in the sham battle of North Point at Pimlico and again Friday night the sea forces of old England were repulsed and Baltimore is safe. The bombardment was witnessed by 200,000 people lining the banks and on boats. The fort was commanded by Col. L. L. Livingston, United States army. The fighting force was the fort garrison, consisting of four batteries. The night was dark and threatening. At a distance the British naval force, represented by the warships Ossipee, Capt. Kellogg; Passaic, Lieutenant Commander Gilpatrick; Yantic, Commander Rockwell, and the flag ship Pensacola, Capt. Yates, acting admiral, were in line of battle. The procession of tug boats and steamers, illuminated by colored lights, carrying 40,000 people, moved past the fort and warships and saluted with rockets, and then each returned to its allotted position. At 8:20 the flag ship, having placed the fort by search-lights commenced firing her great guns, and then the bombardment was carried on to completion.

GIVEN THE INCREASE.

Plate Glass Manufacturers Accede to the Raise Demanded by Employes.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 14.—At a conference of workmen and a committee of manufacturers which lasted from Friday afternoon until early Saturday morning, the strike of the western window plate glass workers was practically settled. After offering a number of compromises, the manufacturers finally conceded the 5 per cent. advance demanded by the employes. Saturday the matter was presented to the general meeting of manufacturers, and if the committees action is ratified a general resumption will take place. Sixty-one factories in the west, employing about 5,000 men and boys, are affected by the settlement.

A Prospective Bridegroom Suicides.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Thomas Cullinan and Miss Kittie Newman were to have been married on Wednesday at St. Bridget's church in the First ward. The bride, bridesmaid, priest and spectators were all on hand promptly but the bridegroom that they waited for never came and the wedding was put off. Cullinan and his sweetheart spent Tuesday evening together, and when he went home he left instructions to be called early. Since then he had not been seen until fishermen found his body in the lake Saturday morning. It is supposed to be a case of suicide, but no reason is known. Cullinan had a house furnished and seemed to be looking forwards with pleasure to his wedding. Miss Newman is prostrated with grief.

Dug Up a Ghastly Collection.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 14.—Friday afternoon while workmen were excavating for the foundation of a new building, a box containing half a dozen skulls and a number of human bones was exhumed a short distance below the surface. Inquiry developed the fact that while digging a cistern at the same place about forty-five years ago several skeletons were unearthed and reburied. Tradition has it that the bones belong to the crew of an English vessel who died of an epidemic and were buried here about the time of the Revolutionary war.

Went on Another Man's Paper.

LYDONVILLE, Vt., Sept. 14.—J. T. Cunningham, a farmer, has filed a petition in insolvency, placing his liabilities at $25,000. The indebtedness was incurred as security for his brother, Ira W. Cunningham.

THE LAST DAYS OF SAUL.

LESSON XII, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, SEPT. 22.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xxxi, 1-13—Commit Verses 4, 6—Golden Text, Ps. xxxiv, 16—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

(Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of R. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.)

When David again had Saul in his power, after the time recorded in the last lesson, and Abishai wanted to slay him, David refused again to touch the Lord's anointed, and said: "The Lord shall smite him, or his day shall come to die, or he shall descend into battle and perish." The last of these predictions is fulfilled in the lesson of today. The events between the last lesson and this are: The death of Samuel; the death of Nabal, upon whom David was restrained from taking vengeance; David marries Abigail and Ahinoam; he spares Saul a second time; he goes to the Philistines and lives at Ziklag; Saul again disobeys God by consulting the witch of Endor; David's town of Ziklag is smitten during his absence with his six hundred, and women, children and flocks all carried captive, but David pursues and recovers all.

1. "Now the Philistines fought against Israel and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines." This was the battle to which David and his men had started, when they were sent back by the lords of the Philistines only to find Ziklag desolate and burned with fire; God again hindered David from having anything to do with the death of Saul.

2. "The Philistines slew Jonathan, and Abinadab, and Melchishua, Saul's sons." It makes one's heart ache to read this, especially concerning Jonathan, the loving, the brave, the noble. How David lamented for him is recorded in the next chapter, and we do not wonder at the depth of his lamentations over one whose soul was knit with his own, but we do wonder when we read that it was a lamentation over Saul as well as Jonathan. (II Sam. i, 17.) The secret of it is that David saw not the man Saul, his enemy, but he saw the king Saul, the anointed of the Lord.

3. "The battle went sore against Saul, and the archers hit him." He was not any longer in merciful hands, but in the hands of those who knew no mercy. Long suffering and mercy had followed him many years; he had been spared many a time and warned often; but "he that being often reproved, hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy;" and now mercy is past for him and judgment has reached him.

4. "Therefore Saul took a sword and fell upon it." Saul being sore wounded asked his armor bearer to slay him, but notice the reason, "lest these uncircumcised come and thrust me through and abuse me." What a fear he has of being dishonored by these uncircumcised, what a keen sense of honor, but it is the old story as when he pleaded with Samuel, "Honor me now before the elders of my people and before Israel" (chap. xv, 30).

5. "His armor bearer * * * fell likewise upon his sword and died with him." This looks heroic and like a spirit of devotion to his master, but had he been devoted to God instead of to Saul, or more devoted to God than to Saul, he would not have done so. No man who fears God will take his own life, and any one who believes God concerning the awful future of the ungodly as revealed in Scripture could not think of rushing madly into it.

6. "So Saul died, and his three sons, and his armor bearer, and all his men, that same day together." What then? The words of the Lord Jesus, in Luke xvi, and other words of the Spirit plainly recorded in Scripture, teach us that if we believe God and are redeemed by the precious blood of His dear Son, "to die is gain," "to depart and be with Christ is far better," and when the spirit leaves the body, our conscious personal life continues, and the angels guide or carry us to perfect bliss in His presence. But if we die in our sins and disobedient it is equally plain that the portion of such, while also personally conscious, is darkness, torment, gnashing of teeth and fearful looking for of judgment.

7. "Israel * * * forsook the cities and fled, and the Philistines came and dwelt in them." Here is not only the defeat and slaughter of the Lord's people Israel, but their possessions, which they ought to have kept and enjoyed, are possessed by their enemies. This is sad, indeed, and the only reason is that the people of God had turned their backs upon Him.

8. "The Philistines came to strip the slain." The defiers of God cannot do enough to show their hatred of Him and His professed followers. It is the devil who possesses them and who is called truly a destroyer.

9. "They cut off his head and stripped off his armor, and sent * * * to publish it * * * among the people." Thus what Saul feared came upon him, and these uncircumcised Philistines abused his body. But worst of all it was published abroad among these idolatrous defiers of the Living and True God. When one who bears the name of Jesus is in any way overcome by the world, the flesh, or the devil, that Holy Name is blasphemed and thus dishonored by the sins thus committed, and not only are such Christians (if they are Christians) laughed at and despised by the world, but the precious name they bear, instead of being exalted, is despised also on their account. Our great business in this world is to magnify that beautiful name by which we are called, and to shew forth the praises of Him who hath called us from darkness into His marvelous light, not seeking our will or our glory, but, denying self, follow Jesus and go about doing good.

10. "They put his armor in the house of Ashtaroth; and they fastened his body to the wall of Bethshan." What a victory for the idolaters, but it will not continue. Blessed be God that all the victories of His enemies are only for a little time, but the victory of His dear Son is for eternity. This is probably the same armor with which Saul armed David that day when he was about to go forth against Goliath; David put it off, for he had not proved it, and Saul might as well have had it off, for it did him no good. There is an armor which will never get into any idolater's hands; it is the shield of faith and sword of the Spirit, and helmet of salvation. (Eph. vi.) May we each wear it and use it constantly. Let us put on the whole armor of God, for it is an evil day and many are falling. Never for a moment in our own strength, but strong in the Lord and in the power of His might.

11. "The inhabitants of Jabesh Gilead heard." Thank God for the faithful in all ages who will not tolerate an insult to His name or His people if they can prevent it. He has always had them, has them today, and will have them, a little flock until His body is completed, and then shall the whole earth begin to be filled with them. Elijah thought that in his day he was the only one, but God had 7,000 besides. Today they are in all the earth, a few here and there in all the churches, but oh for more zeal and faithfulness even among them, more real devotion to Jesus.

12. "All the valiant men arose and went all night." We are not told how many were valiant men, but if it was with them as with the men of Gideon, they were but few; and yet God can do more with 300 like Gideon's band than with 3,000, or 30,000, or 300,000 who are half hearted or fearful or afraid.

AN HISTORIC CITY.

THE PLEASANTEST PLACE TO VISIT IN SEPTEMBER.

A City Full of Rare Attractions for Strangers—Ten Days of Solid Enjoyment—Preparing for September—A Hundred Thousand Visitors Per Day Fully Provided for.

One of the most delightful cities on the American continent is the city of Detroit. It is one of the old American cities—the oldest city west of the Atlantic seaboard. It is one of the wealthiest of American cities. It is also one of the best planned and best built of American cities. No other city, except Washington, is laid out with such magnificently broad avenues and streets.

DETROIT INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION—CONCERT BUILDING.

Hardly any other city possesses so many architecturally original and beautiful homes and other buildings. Away from its business portion it is a city set in continuous parks and boulevards. Situated upon a vast, slightly rolling plain, with an almost uniform slope toward its river front, giving perfect drainage and an admirable surface for parks and lawns, its wide streets are bordered with grand maples and elms and miles of green grassy lawns, set off by fountains and flower beds. It is the

of Detroit people on their residence streets to have no fences in front of their dwellings. The houses are set well back from the street line, with lawns and flower beds, fountains and statuary or other ornaments in front, leaving the architecture of the handsome buildings and all the beauties of the grounds wide open to the pleasure seeking view of the stroller along the wide tree-shaded sidewalks, or the occupants of carriages in the streets. This makes the homes of Detroit look like rows of pretty buildings set in an immense park.

The great trees along the streets make the sidewalks run through long perspectives of leafy arcades, and on many streets their long branches almost, if not quite, touch together at a lofty height clear across the broad spaces of the streets, giving a delightful, sylvan aspect to the driveways. There are also numerous small parks with fountains, lawns and inviting seats in the shade scattered over the city.

The great charm of Detroit, however, is its noble river. No other city in the world possesses such broad, deep, blue, pure and beautiful. Its narrowest point is about half a mile wide, its broadest several miles. Upon its current floats the largest commerce in the world. Like the people of Venice, in Europe, the inhabitants of Detroit in summer months love to be upon the water. Hence there are innumerable boats, yachts and steamers always in use. At various distances in every direction are places of resort, including Belle Isle park, of 700 acres, with miles of drives and walks, canals and gay boats, to and from which swift ferries continually ply at wonderfully cheap rates. These ferry steamers and excursion boats are large, broad, powerful crafts, and there are enough of them to handle 20,000 or 30,000 people at once. The excursion rates in every direction are always less than a cent a mile, and often less than half a cent per mile.

The best time to visit Detroit is in September, when the heats of summer begin to be tempered by the delicious autumn coolness. From Sept. 17 to Sept. 27, inclusive, the great Detroit International Fair and Exposition, with its list of splendid attractions—its grand Art Gallery of famous paintings, its magnificent horse show, with over 1,000 of the best horses on the continent, its immense concerts every afternoon and evening, its sports, games and processions, its great band tournament, its grand cattle show, its vast building full of machinery and rare and costly displays, its wonderful show of fruits, flowers and vegetables, including the great display of the United States government, its strange show of fishes of all sorts in an immense aquarium, etc.—will be in full operation. Then visitors can fill their days and evenings with

EVER VARYING DELIGHT.

Besides the city, with its theatres and opera houses, there will be hourly excursions by boat and steam and electric railways to pleasure resorts in Michigan and Canada, within a radius of fifty miles, including the famous St. Clair flats, the most famous fishing and gunning resort on the continent. The great concerts at the exposition occur every afternoon and evening. There will also be regattas, base ball, athletic and other sports and games, and races daily at the exposition grounds. The fifteen acres of immense buildings, besides tents and sheds, the graveled walks and thoroughly drained grounds, make them independent of weather. If it should rain, no matter how violently, the cars and boats can transport 75,000 people under shelter, perfectly dry, and the vast exposition buildings can contain 50,000, and show them everything on the programme in comfort and security. There will be no postponement or alteration of programme on account of the weather, and no diminution of attractions under any circumstances, and visitors to the city can securely count upon abundance of enjoyment.

Snake Killed by a Rabbit.

A rabbit is said to have killed a snake at Seneca, Ga., a few days ago. The snake had caught a young rabbit and was trying to swallow it. The old rabbit rushed by the snake and bit it in passing. It then ran by the snake again and bit it, and repeated the operation several times. The reptile finally dropped the rabbit, crawled away a short distance and died.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and lung affections; also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. "CLEOPATRA."

H. Rider Haggard's Latest Novel—A Wonderful Story, and Conceded by Critics to Be His Best—It Will Shortly Be Published in This Paper.

H. Rider Haggard, while one of the youngest of the English novelists, is by no means the least famous. In fact, for striking originality, strength of plot, power and beauty of narration, he stands foremost among the great writers of the day. The extraordinary sale of his works attests in an undisputable way his immense popularity among the reading public wherever the English language is spoken; to say nothing of the fact that they have been translated into nearly all of the foreign languages. There are few people in this country who have not read "She," "Jess," or "King Solomon's Mines," hence the announcement of still another story from Mr. Haggard's pen can not but awaken the liveliest anticipations of pleasure among all lovers of the best serial fiction. "Cleopatra," Mr. Haggard's latest and (the critics say) his best story, and which will shortly be begun in these columns, is, in fact, an historical romance of ancient Egypt. Cleopatra, one of the most famous women of either ancient or modern times, is, of course, the central character of the story, while Antony, scarcely less prominent as an historic figure, is also an important personage in the tale. But it is around Egypt's wondrous Queen, a woman in whom the world has never lost its interest, that Mr. Haggard has woven a romance so fanciful that the never-to-be-forgotten fairy tales of childhood pale before its dazzling splendor, its weird mysteries and its vivid picturing. "She," which did more to win Mr. Haggard name and fame than all his previous works, and which stands almost unsurpassed among the spectacular stories of the day, is not superior to "Cleopatra" in its Oriental gorgeousness; while in many respects the latter is a far superior piece of literary work. But what surprises, as well as delights, the reader of "Cleopatra," is the amount of historic lore it contains, and which must have cost its author years of research and study. Indeed, in the dedication of the work to his mother, who, it seems, is also an Egyptian scholar of much learning, Mr. Haggard hints at the vast amount of labor which he was compelled to perform in gathering the materials for his story. The same attentive labor and research is also continued and carried out in the illustrations by Grieffenhagen, who has made a life study of Egyptian lore, and whose splendidly artistic and classical pictures for this story have been redrawn and adapted for newspaper use by one of the most competent artists in the West.

Briefly stated, "Cleopatra" is supposed to be a translation from three rolls of papyri found in the coffin of a mummy who existed in Cleopatra's days and who was himself the hero of this tale. This mummy, known in life as Harmachis, was held by the native priests of Egypt to be a direct descendant of the ancient Pharaohs, and figured as the leader in a conspiracy to overthrow the hated Queen. Instead of slaying her, as had been plotted, Harmachis falls a victim to her witcheries and for a brief period plays the part of a favored lover. He is, however, soon cast aside, when, being enraged at such treatment, he works out a secret vengeance which results in the ruin of Cleopatra and her favored Antony. This is, of course, but the barest hint at the plot of the story, but enough, we trust, to give those who are familiar with Mr. Haggard's work an idea of the treat in store for them when they come to a perusal of this, his latest and best piece of romantic fiction. As stated before, it will shortly be begun in these columns and given in liberal installments until completed. We bespeak for it a hearty welcome at the hands of our readers and at the same time congratulate them that we have been able to secure this certainly wonderful and charming tale.

WRITING MACHINE CABINET and OFFICE DESK

The advantages of this Type-writer and Office Desk over all other so-called Combination Cabinets, are:

First.—The ease and simplicity with which the desk is changed from a Library or Office Desk to a Type-writer Table. This change is effected by pushing the lid covering the machine back in the rear of cabinet—it being a roller top—removing it entirely from sight, thus overcoming the objectionable board and sounder in front of the operator. The movable top is perfectly flat, is baize covered, and forms a complete writing desk when the machine is not in use. The table on which the machine rests is so evenly balanced by our patent adjustments that it needs but a slight touch to bring the machine in position.

Second.—The advantages of the swinging table are: The table is so balanced near its center on patent maleable iron arms, that when the machine brought in place for use, it does not depend on ropes or hangers at rear of platform for support, but is held rigidly in place by its own weight, making it impossible for the machine to be tumbled down an incline in back of desk by the breaking of a rear support. The machine rests on patent slides which keeps the machine in place, and can be drawn out beyond the desk, well under the operator's hand.

Third.—The construction of the lid closing machine space makes it air tight, and the table having felt around its boarders thoroughly protects the machine from dust.

Fourth.—The foot rest and the construction of the table adjustments makes the desk as rigid as though the top was one solid board, which is a matter of great importance where a solid type-writing table is required. No operator can do good work on a shaky table.

Lastly.—The cabinet is a splendid piece of cabinet work. We manufacture them in Walnut, Antique Oak, Natural Oak, Natural Cherry, Cherry imitation, Mahogany and Ash.

Agents wanted to sell these cabinets, and where we have no agencies established we will sell direct from our works at wholesale prices.

The way to sell clothing is to mark a price in plain figures just as low as the article can be sold for. This advantage to the customer is more than would appear at firs thought. One price means a price marked before the customer comes, at the lowest cost price it ca be sold for, whether you buy or not. Two prices is a price made after the customer comes in. If he i a clever, easy going buyer he pays two profits. If he is a close, hard buyer, he pays as much or mor than we would ask him, and it takes a half day to Jew down that six dollars that in all probabilit they have asked him extra, because they know him to be that kind of a buyer. You are playin another man's game when you buy of a two priced clothier. You always pay him a profit and some times two.

MICHIGAN SIXTY YEARS AGO.

Address of Hon F. A. Dewey, President of the Lenawee County Pioneer Society.

The following is the address of Hon. F. A. Dewey, delivered at the recent pioneer meeting, at Medina.

It is a pleasure sometimes to review, for it brings to mind many cherished and fond remembrances of the rapidly fleeting time of days and years passed by the writer in Michigan. We begin with the beautiful Detroit river, on the banks of which is the handsome city of the straits, said to be occupied first by the French garrison, July 24, 1701, by the pioneer commander, Cadillac. At this city it was a cheerful pleasure nearly 60 years ago to pass two seasons of the ripening time of my younger days, learning the ways of the world. At the Steam Boat hotel, Hon. Benjamin Woodworth was landlord and proprietor, and at this house, it was my good fortune to board and room for over two years. Among the daily boarders were seen some of Indian extraction, and many of the ambitious, cheerful French pedigree: also army officers and many Americans. The house was large and commodious, with room for 200 or more and was in the summer months often full of enterprising travelers. The dining room was set with one long table, which would seat 50 and was bountifully spread with the fertile growth of the country and products of foreign lands. There were several decanters along the center of the table with spirituous liquors. It was a habitual custom for some to take a modest taste of brandy at the table. I am pleased to say it was very seldom any one was intoxicated at the old time hotel. As we look back over the city of former times, we note the change. There were three wind mills and one tread mill propelled by four oxen, for grinding grain. We remember a few citizens of that period and will recall a few names. Oliver Newberry built the steamer Michigan, 400 tons burden, which he launched from the grounds where the Wayne hotel now stands. It was the first steamer of the lakes with cabins and state rooms above the main deck.

Degarmo Jones, Col. Whiting, Maj. Forsyth, Jonathan Kearsby, (who lost a leg at the storming of Fort Erie in 1813) Hon Austin E Wing, Thomas Sheldon, Col. Sibly, and George C. Bates.

Thomas Palmer built the first territorial capitol and was mostly paid with city lots and 10 sections of land near the city of Detroit.

We will say one word about a log building, built for Cadillac, by the French government over 100 years ago, and occupied by Gov. Cass for a number of years previous to 1835, it having escaped the fire of 1805. The monumental building was taken down a few years ago: each corner log was fastened with a an iron gripe. From one of the logs a chair was made and presented to the writer by Mr. Waldron, a member of the antiquarian society.

We remember very well being in the postoffice when John Norville first came in announced his name; Mr James Abbott, p.m., very gracefully asked him if he was from the Grampion hills. His answer was, "I have read in Scott's lessons of the Grampian hills; I am looking for the management of the Detroit postoffice." Mr. Abbott politely said: "The office you can have any day." In a few days he took possession. This was in 1832 or '33, I believe. Mrs. Norville was a much esteemed and educated lady; she had the whole care of the postoffice for a number of years, and very seldom any assistant. We call to mind Zack Chandler, who came to Detroit a stripling from New Hampshire; also that eminent pioneer, C. C. Trowbridge, the able assistant with Gov. Cass, in making Indian treaties; Mr. Schoolcraft, the antiquarian and geologist, with his office decorated on all sides with Indian curiosities; we will not forget Dr. Houghton, the geologist nor Stevens T. Mason, the first state governor.

Now, as we calmly look back over this space of about 60 years, it brings to mind many cherished thoughts. We have seen the forest cleared away, beautiful fields and plantations cultivated with the annual bountiful products of grain, grass and fruits of many varieties; also towns, villages and cities in most every county. And not the least, we see good roads and the iron railway, taking the place of the Indian trail, passing our door with the unexcelled palace cars, carrying the mails and passengers a greater distance in two hours than our former stage coaches with four horses in 24 hours.

As we leave Detroit west by the Chicago road, the first place we note at Dearborn, 10 miles, is the tavern of Conrad Tenykes and the arsenal. Twenty miles and we come to Simons' tavern. He killed his wife, and was hung in Detroit in 1834. Sheldon's tavern was 22 miles. It was called a famous mud hole from here to Detroit when not frozen. Mr. E. D. Lay established a nursery near Ypsilanti in 1833; at Ypsilanti Mr. Whitmore kept the tavern. At Saline, 10 miles further was the residence of Orange M. Risdon, one of the surveyors who assisted in laying out the U. S. military road from Detroit to Chicago, in the year 1825. On to Clinton, 13 miles, was the home of Maj. Kies, in 1829. Four miles south at Tecumseh, was the pleasant home of Daniel Pittman, J. W. Brown, three of the Spaffords, Ezra F. Blood, William Tilton and Jesse Osborn, who were there previous to 1829. In 1824 came Musgrove Evans the first settler of the county, and he was government surveyor on the line of the road from Detroit to Chicago in 1825; also on the military road from Monroe to Cambridge in 1832. These roads were built by the government, costing about $700 a mile, Maj. Sibly being superintendent. Chas. Blackmar was the first settler of Cambridge in the year 1829. In the year 1832 occurred the Black Hawk war and the writer marched and camped in the beautiful wilderness, over 300 miles with the regiment to meet the wild Indians. In 1833 the first house was built at the junction of the turnpikes. In the year 1838 Sylvester Walker bought the junction property and kept a very celebrated hotel. It was the admired and romantic home for thousands of Michigan pioneers. Here many years ago Hon. Daniel Webster dined; the table was sumptuously spread. He made the remark, as there was venison, turkey, and wild honey on the table, "these refreshments are from God's own plantation."

I hope it may not be out of place to say a few words about the great mass meetings of 1840, when the press was bought, debtors intimidated, the poor man promised $2 a day and plenty of work. The whig orators and their singers went from place to place like modern revivalists. It can be truthfully said that more politics to the acre were produced than in any ten years before; but the reform of $2 a day and roast beef, was not realized by the laboring man. Thomas Corwin, the statesman, orator, and prince of stump speakers, a classical scholar and profound reasoner, lacked nothing to carry the crowd. At a mass meeting in Ohio, as Corwin came upon the stand, he bowed. Without saying a word, he took a large wooden knife and with it cut a huge Johnny cake that was on the table before him, in small pieces, then laying the knife down, threw the pieces among the crowd and began his speech thus:

"Fellow citizens, the government at Washington is squandering the public moneys all over the union." He made one of the most brilliant and memorable speeches of his life.

I will note one other meeting held at Cambridge Junction, in a grove near Walker's hotel. It was a beautiful day and there was a large number of horses and carriages, with hundreds of ox teams with log cabins on wheels, and coon skins and hard cider in abundance, and some three or four thousand citizens were in attendance. George Dawson, of Detroit, was the principal speaker. His speech carried the people to a high pitch of enthusiasm. The day before the meeting, there were circulated printed hand bills against Dawson, and while he was making an elegant address, one of these libels was handed him with a request to read it. Looking over the vast crowd he said, "I will read it." Then with a loud voice he began with comments on each sentence. It was charged that the whigs, wanting an editor for the Advertiser, could not find one on earth, so they went to the lowest depths of Hell and there found Dawson. Then in a comical mood he replied, "that is the best evidence and shows but few whigs in the lower regions;" with a scornful gesture he added, "the scum of hell would do for a loco foco editor at any time." In closing this brief outline of facts, we will say that what was the celebrated historic and romantic hotel at the junction years ago, many times painted, repaired and refurnished, is now the quiet, pleasant, agreeable and contented home of a pioneer farmer, 78 years of age; who has eight government deeds of land, bought for 25 cts. an acre. He is now passing down the declining tide and has a kind friendship to all industrious and good citizens.

Deafness Can't be Cured

by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflammed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness, (caused by catarrh,) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE PATRONS OF INDUSTRY.

EDITOR HERALD:—The Tecumseh News of Sept. 12, contains an editorial in which farmers are warned against the Patrons of Industry. The News does not appear to have made any original investigations, but gets its opinions, second hand, from the Michigan Tradesman.

That journal, it seems, characterizes the organization as "one of the most glaring frauds ever perpetrated upon the frequently victimized farming classes." Now, if this be true, the Tradesman ought to give us proof. It may have sources of information unknown to us, but nothing is said to that effect, either by way of quotation or comment, in the News. On the contrary, we are led to believe that a study of the constitution has revealed the fraud.

In the Tradesman's article, facts and figures are so distorted that we cannot but wonder whether its editor is careless or interested in overturowing any combination of farmers. It tells us that the grand association of the Patrons of Industry will not be organized till May, 1892, and will only meet once in four years thereafter, always in May. But, according to the constitution of said Patrons of Industry, said grand association must meet yearly, and in February. It tells us, too, that the grand association is in receipt of a large yearly income, as it proceeds to show by the following figures:

No. lodges in the state,	797
" male members	30 000
" female "	20 000

So much, it says, was asserted at a recent gathering of the clans, and deduces therefrom:

Charter fees 30,000 males,	$60.000
" " 20,000 females,	20,000
Annual dues 30,000 males,	24.000
" " 30.000 females	8,000
Total yearly receipts,	$112.000

This amount, it more than hints, all goes into the private pocket of one Mr. Wadsworth of Port Huron.

Let us examine these figures:

Two dollars each, charter fees for male members; one dollar each, charter fees for female members. This is just double the legal membership fee and forty thousand dollars of the Tradesman's figure fade into thin air. But not one cent of this money goes to the grand association. There goes forty thousand dollars more of the Port Huron gentleman's salary.

The membership fees are all kept at home, where paid, exept a charter fee of three dollars for each subordinate association, which is paid, not to the grand but to the supreme or national association. Besides this, of course, the organizer is paid for his services.

Now as to dues: Instead of eighty cents for males and forty for females, only fifteen cents per member yearly, is paid to the grand association. This would amount to $7,500 instead of $32,000 for the state.

$112,000, $7,500. We will not twit the Tradesmen with a little mistake like that—only $104,500!—because the smaller sum is too much to lose if the whole thing is a sharper's trick.

But it is time the farmers were organized. Every branch of trade is combined against them. They say to us, "we will take your produce at such a figure and you may have our goods for so much." No fixing of prices on the farmers' part, you see. They are spared any such strain upon the mental faculties. Perhaps that is one reason why they are so "frequently victimized." And, if the Patrons of Industry should really prove to be a fraud, may some honest leader be raised up to build an honest organization upon its ruins. A MEMBER "What school shall I attend".

A Good Appetite

Is essential to good health; but at this season it is often lost, owing to the poverty or impurity of the blood, derangement of the digestive organs, and the weakening effect of the changing season. POLITICAL CONVENTIONS.

Prohibitionists, Democrats, and Union Labor Men in Session.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept 5.—The state Prohibition couvention made George Kempton, of Sharon, chairman yesterday, and he delivered a speech reviewing the entire prohibition question at great length. The platform adopted is a radical affirmation of the strongest prohibition principles, and declares the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors inconsistent with good citizenship, sound morality, or Christian love; will have no hand in any license scheme, high or low, and denounces both old parties, uttering a special apathema against the Republicans. The third party is approved of, and a plank put in favoring suffrage not limited to race or sex. Five thousand dollars were subscribed to the campaign fund.

Dr. John Blackmer, of Springfield, was nominated for governor.

Dakota Democratic Nominations.

HURON, D. T., Sept. 6.—The Democratic state convention reassembled at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. P. F. McClure was nominated for governor by acclamation. The remainder of the ticket is as follows: For lieutenant governor, A. W. Pratt; for secretary of state, Otto Peemiller; auditor, J. R. Horton; treasurer, A. D. Hill; attorney general, H. F. Ellons; superintendent of public instruction, George H. McFarland; commissioner of public schools and public lands, Henry S. Volkman, and for supreme judges, S. B. Van Buskirk, C. H. Winson, and D. McLaughlin. For congress, L. Q. Jeffries, and S. M. Booth. The convention then adjourned. The platform indorses Cleveland's tariff views; declares in favor of just and equitable pension laws; favors minority representation; sympathizes with the Irish people, and favors a license law.

Pennsylvania Democrats.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 5.—The Democratic state convention met in this city yesterday and nominated Edwin A. Bigler, of Clearfield county, for state treasurer. The platform begins by reaffirming belief in the tenth amendment to the constitution, declaring that all powers not expressly granted to the general government are held by the states; demands tariff revision, denounces trusts, favors a liberal pension system, but only for those honorably discharged, and generally denounces the Republican administration of the state government and for hypocricy on the prohibition question. A resolution of sympathy with Gladstone and Parnell was also adopted.

Union Labor Nominates a Ticket.

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 5.—The state convention of the Union Labor party was attended by 100 delegates yesterday. The platform reaffirms the principles of the old Greenback party, free trade, more money, and opposition to banks, railroads and trusts. The following state ticket was nominated: Governor, S. B. Downing, of Davis county; lieutenant governor, Ezra Brownell, of Madison; superintendent, Mrs. Homel Belangee of Polk; judge of supreme court, M. H. Jones, of Davis; short term, L. H. Weller, of Chickasaw; railroad commissioner, L. H. Griffith, of Cass. This was the largest convention held by them in many years.

Cold Water Ticket for New York.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 6.—The state Prohibition convention reassembled yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock, and proceeded to the nomination of candidates, with the following result: Secretary of state, Jesse H. Griffin, Steuben county; comptroller, Benjamin L. Rand, Niagara county; attorney general, Coleridge A. Hart, New York county; state engineer and surveyor, Alpheus P. Kenyon, Allegany county. A motion made before the candidates were selected, that the highest nomination of the convention be given to a lady, was voted down.

Ohio Democratic Politics.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 4.—The Democratic state executive committee met here yesterday and organized with Hon. James E Neal, of Hamilton, as chairman, and John A. Sarber, of this city, as treasurer. At 8 o'clock p. m. the various Democratic clubs serenaded Hon. James E. Campbell, the candidate for governor. A ratification meeting was held at the city hall with Hon. Lawrence T. Neal, of Chillicothe, as president, who spoke, and was followed by Mr. Campbell, Hon. Allen W. Thurman, Hon. George L. Converse, Hon. J. A. Norton, and others.

They Want To Be States.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Constitutional conventions are now in session at Cheyenne, Wy. T., and Santa Fe, N. M. Yesterday in the former M. C. Brown, of Albany, was made president, defeating the Republican nominee, Judge Conway. Brown's politics are not given. At Santa Fe the Democrats elected the temporary chairman—Judge Trimble, and J. Francisco Chavez was elected permanent chairman—politics not given. Fifty-three of the seventy-three delegates were present.

The Democrat Elected.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 4.—Telegrams from various points in the Third congressional district indicate the election of Andrew Price, Democrat, by a good majority over H. C. Miner, Republican.

BURIED ALIVE.

Quebec the Scene of a Terrible Catastrophe.

FRIGHTFUL WORK OF A LANDSLIDE.

Twenty-Six Families Overwhelmed by an Avalanche of Rocks and Earth—The Number of Dead Unknown, But May Reach Fifty—Thirteen Corpses Dug Out of the Debris and Sixteen Wounded People Rescued—Six Hundred Feet of the Hill Gives Way and Buries the Victims Twenty-Five Feet Deep.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—The following dispatches were received here early this morning:

QUEBEC, Sept. 19.—About 8 o'clock this evening people living in the neighborhood of the Citadel were startled on hearing a low, rumbling sound, accompanied by a perceptible quiver of the earth. Houses were shaken, dishes rattled and in some cases people even had difficulty in maintaining their footing. Every one rushed into the street, and it was learned that a large portion of Cape Diamond, just below the Citadel, had become detached, and, sliding down the declivity, had buried several residences and their inmates under from fifteen to twenty-five feet of rock, dirt and other wreckage.

At Work on the Debris.

At the foot of the cliff is a narrow street, which occupies all the space between the cape and the river, and this was filled with the debris which had crushed out the lives of at least twenty-five people. The exact number is not yet known, as the enormous mass of earth and stone had up to midnight shown but little diminution, notwithstanding that a large force of men was at work clearing it away in less than half an hour after the horrible disaster took place. It is believed, however, that not less than twenty-five have perished. About half a score of bodies have already been taken out of the ruins, and a number of people terribly crushed, but still alive, have also been rescued.

Several Victims Taken Out.

The streets in the neighborhood of the spot are alive with people, and the chief difficulty the police have to encounter is that of holding back the vast crowds, hundreds of whom have relatives among the dead or dying. Some of the bodies taken out show no evidence of being crushed, and the belief is that in these cases the unfortunate victims of the terrible catastrophe were simply smothered to death. One little girl, the daughter of a fisherman named Vignaux, was found pinned down under a beam unable to move, but absolutely unhurt. She was the sole surviving member of a family of seven, the bodies of all the others having been recovered. In the same building with the Vignaux were three other families, and it is doubtful if any member of either has escaped.

A LATER TELEGRAM.

The Dead Estimated at More Than Fifty—The Wounded.

QUEBEC, Sept. 20.—1 a. m.—Very little progress has been made in recovering bodies owing to the stupendous mass of rock covering the ruins. The body of a woman named Mrs. Berrigan has just been pulled out of the debris. Tons of rock are falling, and it is feared the whole bowlder forming the highest point of Quebec will give way.

Names of Dead Recovered.

Up to 11:30 six bodies had been taken from the ruins, Thomas Farrell and two of his children; also two children named Burke, and one unknown child. Farrell's mother-in-law, Mrs. Allen, and her husband are still in the ruins. About twenty-five person have been removed from the debris very badly injured. Some have broken arms and legs, others are badly crushed and mutilated. It is now estimated that at least fifty persons are yet under the ruins. The fire brigade and police force are on the ground rendering valuable assistance. All the injured were removed to the Marine and Fisheries departments, where medical men and clergymen looked after them.

Crimes of Help from the Debris.

The debris covers the road in a solid mass for over 600 feet in length and from 15 to 25 in height. The night is intensely dark and the electric lights were rendered useless by the landslide. Cries of "Help," "Help," are heard from beneath the debris, but none can be given.

An Ill-Fated Locality.

In May, 1841, a similar landslide occurred which destroyed several buildings and killed thirty-two people. From present indications it is feared the loss of life by to-night's landslide will be equally as great. In 1852 another slide caused the death of several persons about half a mile from the scene of the present disaster.

Thirteen Corpses Recovered.

LATER.—Thirteen dead and sixteen badly injured have been taken out so far. It will take several days to recover all. The damage will exceed $100,000. The Royal school with a large force of cavalry are coming to aid in rescuing the injured. Six hundred men are now at work. The blood and dust make a sickening spectacle.

A Survivor's Story.

STILL LATER.—Twenty-six families occupied the houses which were destroyed. The story given by a survivor is that he was standing in his door when the landslide occurred, and that as soon as he saw the huge bowlders and masses of rock bounding down the steep incline he rushed up the street only in time to escape being crushed to death. The houses struck were all three or four stories high, and gave way before the avalanche like pasteboard. Some of them caught fire. This added to the terror and general confusion, and for awhile it appeared as if those who escaped death by the weight of stone and timbers would be cremated. The timely arrival of the fire brigade soon dispelled this fear, and the way was clear for the eager bystanders to begin their work of rescuing those imbedded in the ruins.

Twenty-six Dead Bodies.

Up to Friday evening twenty-six bodies had been taken from the vast pile of wreckage. The number of seriously wounded is eighteen, but a great many others have been more or less injured. The dead so far are as follows: Timothy Berrigan, Miss Allan, Charles Allan and wife, James Black (10 years), William Black, Alice Bradley (4 years), Margaret Bradley (1 year), Mrs. James Bradley, Mrs. Stephen Burke and her two children, Mrs. Bracken (80 years), Michael Deehy, Thomas Farrell, Lawrence Farrell, Agnes Farrell, Stelia Farrell, Esther Mary Fitzgerald (4 years), Joe Fitzgerald (1 year), Nora Kenedy (13 years), Mrs. McKinnon, Miss Lane, R. Leahy and wife, Mrs. Ready.

A heartrending spectacle was witnessed in the front room of the station, where, stretched out side by side, lay the bodies of six children, ranging from 2 to 10 years of age. Some wore on their features as calm and peaceful an expression as if safely sleeping in their beds, while others had their faces contorted in agonized looks. Many women called to see them, and none left the room without sobbing.

QUEBEC, Sept. 23.—The funeral of the victims of the recent terrible landslide took place yesterday. Ship laborers, about 700 strong, headed by President Mahoney, led the procession. Then followed the police force bearing costly flowers presented by the city council. Then came fifteen hearses containing the bodies of twenty-one of the victims. The funeral service took place at St Patrick's church. After the services the procession proceeded to Wolfe's cemetery, where the twenty-one bodies were deposited in vaults prior to final interment.

Some 300 men were actively working at the debris last night, and some corpses are expected to be found. So far thirty-two bodies have been recovered.

THE ODD FELLOWS' PARADE.

Twenty Thousand in Line—An Accident to Grand Sire Underwood.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 19.—The grand parade of the I. O. O. F. and Patriarchs Militant yesterday afternoon was two and a half hours in passing, and the number of men in line exceeded 20,000, being divided into three divisions with a large military array, among whom were the Montgomery, Ala., Greys; the Loyal Legion (200) Louisville, and Toledo Cadets. It was the grandest demonstration in numbers and eclat this order ever had in America.

An Accident to the Grand Sire.

The only event to mar the day occurred about noon, when Grand Sire John C. Underwood met with a very painful accident, and only escaped death by a miracle. He and his staff were riding along the street, when the general's horse slipped and fell. He fell under his horse, and while in this position another horse ridden by a member of his staff struck him about the head with its feet. At first it was supposed his injuries were fatal, but though severely hurt he persisted in taking part in the parade and last night was apparently all right.

Festivities at Night.

Last night a military reception was given the general in the senate chamber, after which the ceremonies of "Decoration of Chivalry" took place at City hall, followed by a grand ball in honor of Grand Sire Underwood and the Sovereign Grand lodge.

The Daughters of Rebekah.

The Daughters of Rebekah yesterday perfected a national permanent organization. The following officers were chosen: President, Mrs. M. E. Rea, of Missouri; vice president, Louisa B. Hull, of Indiana; secretary, Julia A. Burroughs, of Massachusetts; treasurer, Mrs. C. A. Reed, of Kentucky; warden, Mrs. M. L. Fifer, of Montana; conductor, Nellie Anton, of Ohio; guardians, Miss Ernie Page, Washington City, and Mrs. Elizabeth Mery, of Michigan.

The Odd Fellows Adjourn.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 21.—The Sovereign grand lodge of the I. O. O. F. completed its session yesterday. Topeka, Kan., was selected as the place of meeting on the second Monday in September, 1890, by a vote of 88 to 68 for St. Louis. Past Grand Sire Nicholson made an address, in which he said the Odd Fellows had sent $62,314.69 to Johnstown. The Daughters Rebekah convention closed to meet at Topeka, Kan., at the same time as the grand lodge.

Four Jurors Out of 500 Men.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—The fourth week of the Cronin trial closed Saturday with only four jurors in the box. Thus far 495 men have been excused for cause.

Leon Abbett has written a letter making formal acceptance of the Democratic nomination for governor of New Jersey.

That Tired Feeling

That extreme tired feeling which is so distressing and often so unaccountable in the spring months, is entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which tones the whole body, purifies the blood, cures scrofula and all humors, cures dyspepsia, creates an appetite, rouses the torpid liver, braces up the nerves, and clears the mind. We solicit a comparison of Hood's Sarsaparilla with any other blood purifier in the market for purity, economy, strength, and medicinal merit.

Tired all the Time

"I had no appetite or strength, and felt tired all the time. I attributed my condition to my long illness. I had tried several kinds of medicine without benefit. But as soon as I had taken half a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, my appetite was restored, and my stomach felt better. I have now taken nearly three bottles, and I never was so well." MRS. JESSIE F. DOLBEARE, Pascoag, R. I.

Mrs. C. W. Marriott, Lowell, Mass., was completely cured of sick headache, which she had 16 years, by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Everybody needs and should take a good spring medicine, for two reasons:

1st, The body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season.

2d, The impurities which have accumulated in the blood should be expelled, and the system given tone and strength, before the prostrating effects of warm weather are felt.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best spring medicine. A single trial will convince you of its superiority. Take it before it is too late.

The Best Spring Medicine

"I take Hood's Sarsaparilla for a spring medicine, and I find it just the thing. It tones my system and makes me feel like a different man. My wife takes it for dyspepsia, and she derives great benefit from it. She says it is the best medicine she ever took." F. C. TURNER, Hook & Ladder No. 1, Boston, Mass.

"Last spring I was troubled with boils, caused by my blood being out of order. Two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me. I can recommend it to all troubled with affections of the blood." J. SCHOCH, Peoria, Ill.

"A new theory has been started with regard to the use of soap on the face. Women who for years have been careful of their complexions would never, under any circumstances, wash the face in soap, as it was said to roughen and coarsen the skin. Now, that Ivory Soap has been invented, this idea is exploded, and a well-known physician in the metropolitan profession recommends his women patients to use it freely every day, lathering the skin well. He states that none but the most beneficial results will be effected by this method of improving the skin.

He holds—with considerable plausibility—that the pores of the face become as much clogged by grease and dirt as the hands or any other portion of the body. And if soap is considered a necessary purifier in the bath, its needs must be felt equally on the face. By an abundant and regular lathering the facial pores, he claims, are kept open, clean, free from the clogging matter that produces unsightly blackheads, acne, pimples, and a pure, healthy, fresh and brighter complexion is the resultant. Not mincing matters, he says that the trouble with most women who have sallow, pasty skins is, that from year's end to year's end they never have a really clean face."

—Brooklyn Eagle.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

A Real Scientific Job of Safe-Cracking.

FORTY THOUSAND DOLLARS STOLEN

Unknown Thieves Get into a Safe at Hurley, Wis., and Get Away with Its Contents—They Find the Combination While the Cashier Is Absent and Leave No Clew Behind Them—The Whole Job Completed in an Hour and a Half.

ASHLAND, Wis., Sept. 23.—The most cleverly planned, daring, and successful bank robbery in the criminal annals of this state was executed at Hurley at midnight Friday when the Iron Exchange bank was entered by robbers and nearly $40,000 in cash, left there for the night by the United States Express company, was taken. Periodically the Ashland and Germania Mining company pays off its employes, numbering over 1,000, who work in the iron mines near Hurley, and for this purpose $41,700 was shipped from the Ashland National bank to Hurley Friday night. The treasure was shipped in a dozen sacks, and upon its arrival in Hurley, a little after 9 o'clock, it was removed to the Iron Exchange bank in a wheelbarrow. The time-lock of the safe inside the vault had been set and the cash could not be put inside of it. The company's agent consented to have the money placed in the vault outside the safe for the night. It was not considered a deposit, and the agent was given no receipt.

They Knew the Combination.

Cashier Reynolds remained in the bank until shortly after 10 o'clock, when he left the building and went down-town with a friend. It was between this time and 11:25, when the cashier returned to retire for the night in the room which he occupies in the bank, that the robbery was accomplished. At least two men performed the work, it is thought. The marauders entered through a transom over the rear door, as there was no other way for them to get in without the fact becoming known. The vault door was opened without a scratch being made upon it, and the inexplicable feature of it was that it was done by some one who knew the combination. Cashier Reynolds, however, states that no one but himself and his assistant, Leonard Perrin, knew the important secret.

The Amount of the "Swag."

Of the $41,700 the sum of $39,895 was taken by the burglars. The remaining $1,805 was in small silver change and too bulky to carry away. The cashier's theory is that the greatest portion of the money was "planted" at a short distance from the bank, as no progress could be made by the possessors of it because of its weight. Nearly $14,000 of the money taken was in gold pieces of $5, $10, and $20 denominations, and the balance was in bank notes, scarcely any of them being larger than twenties and most of them ones, twoes, and fives. The robbers did not leave the most minute clew to their identity. No one saw them enter or leave the bank. They must have been possessed of wonderful coolness and confidence. They evidently took the bags containing the "swag" into Cashier Reynold's sleeping room, cut them open to ascertain which contained gold and which silver, and then went their way.

Cashier Reynolds, when seen Saturday night, said that no one but himself and Assistant Cashier Perrin had ever obtained the combination of the vault door. Agent Alexander, of the United States Express company, was not very much concerned, and said it was something that was liable to happen any time. The company, Alexander thought, would not place any blame upon him. There is likely to be a question growing out of the robbery as to who will suffer the loss, the bank or the express company. As the latter's agent had no receipt for the funds it can not be seen how they can hold the Iron Exchange bank for the amount.

The Cashier Has an Alibi.

Nobody connected with the bank is suspected, but it is impossible to conjecture how the combination of the vault was learned. Cashier Reynolds after leaving the bank went to the theater with George H. Hooper. He returned to the bank in company with Mr. Lombard, and then the robbery was discovered. They stood on the corner talking, when Mr. Reynolds, happening to look up, noticed through the bank window that the vault was partly open. Alarmed at the sight, he entered the bank and made a hasty examination. He found that the two doors of the vault had been opened and all the money, excepting about $3,000 in silver, abstracted.

ACCIDENT AT CHATTANOOGA.

A Dozen Illinois and Indiana People Hurt on Mission Ridge.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 21.—A car on the electric railroad, while going up Mission ridge yesterday morning, slipped on the side of the hill, the track being covered with dew. The car was heavily loaded and the passengers, at the bidding of the conductor, jumped off. The parties injured were all visitors in attendance at the reunion of Wilder's brigade.

List of the Wounded People.

The following is a list of the injured: Mrs. Mary Adams, injured internally, probably fatal; Mrs. M. J. Garrison, badly injured; Capt. Owen Wiley, badly injured internally; William Munford, head badly cut; Mrs. A. C. Addison, seriously bruised; L. F. Miller, face hurt; Wash Sanford, slightly injured—all the above from Casey, Ills.; Mrs. D. B. Massey, shoulder dislocated and ankle sprained; Samuel A. Reaves, knee and shoulder sprained—both of Princeton, Ind.; J. H. Clark, ankle sprained, and Mrs. J. H. Clark, wife of above, shoulder and ankle sprained—both of Owensville, Ind.; G. W. Parker, Bunker Hill, Ills., and W. P. Applegate, Hazel Dell, Ills., slightly hurt.

The injured were all brought to the city, and the officials of the road are doing all in in their power to relieve them. The track was reported in good condition Thursday night, and the accident occurred on the first trip yesterday morning. The railroad company is exonerated from all blame by the passengers on the cars who escaped injury.

Iowa Democrats.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Sept. 19.—The Democratic state convention held here yesterday nominated the following ticket: Governor, Horace Boies, of Blackhawk county; lieutenant governor, S. L. Bestow; supreme judge, William Brannan; superintendent of public instruction, Thomas Irish; railway commissioner, David Morgan.

Express Car Robbed of $10,000.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 21.—The Pacific express car was robbed Thursday night of $10,000 between Echo and Belton, a branch of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway. Among the packages of money was one containing $2,500, sent by the Merchants' National bank of Forth Worth to the Belton National bank.

NO SERIOUS DISORDERS.

One Riot Reported in Which Boulangists Suffered—The Returns.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—The election yesterday passed off tranquilly in Paris, only a few minor disturbances being reported between early morning and nightfall. Reports from the provinces also indicate that no serious trouble has occurred in the country districts. There was a riot in the city of Avignon, where a crowd broke into the Boulanger committee rooms, burned the voting papers, and set fire to the building. Thence the mob proceeded to the Boulangist club, breaking in the doors, wrecking the furniture and driving out the members of the club.

The Vote in Paris.

In the first division of the department of the Seine Guyst (Republican) has 4,403 votes; Turquet (Boulangist), 3,688; Despatys (Conservative), 2,103; Minot (Republican), [illegible]; Petit (Labor) 286. There will be a re ballot, none of the candidates having received the requisite majority of votes.

In St. George, Andrieux (Boulangist) has 5,089; Berger (Republican), 2,957; Straus (Republican) 2,861. A re-ballot is necessary. In the Pantheon district Naquet (Boulangist) has 4,586; Bourneville (Republican), 2,770. No candidate has a majority. In the Faubourg St. Honore district Passy (Republican) has 3,955; Martin (Boulangist), 3,546; Serve (Conservative), 3,511. A re-ballot is necessary. The foregoing are Parisian districts.

Returns from the Provinces.

Returns from the provinces are coming in slowly. M. Thevenet, minister of justice, is elected in the second division of Lyons. Re-ballots will be required, and also at Bordeaux. In the first division of Havre, Siegfried (Republican) has defeated Marchand, the Boulangist candidate.

The Boulangists gain two seats by the election of Count Greffulte, at Melun, and M. Millevoye, at Amiens, the latter defeating Minister of Foreign Affairs Sobiet. M. Rouvie, minister of finance, is elected for the Grasse division of the Alpes Maritimes, and M. Meline, president of the chamber of deputies, for the Remiremont division of the Vosges.

Later News from Paris.

Only five candidates in Paris are known definitely to have been elected, namely: M. Brisson (Republican), MM. Boulanger and LaGuerre (Revisionists), Farcy and St. Martin (Boulangist).

General Results.

2 a. m.—The returns up to this hour show the election of eighty-nine Republicans and fifty-eight anti-Republicans, with ninety-three re-ballots. Returns from the Montmartre district indicate that a re-ballot will be necessary. It was thought at first that Gen. Boulanger was elected there.

Ferry Defeated.

4 a. m.—M. Ferry has been defeated in the Vosges district by M. Picot, a Revisionist. M. Leon Say is elected in Pau, and Casimir-Perier, a Republican, in Nogent-Sur-Seine. M. Paul de Roulede (Boulangist) is elected in Angouleme. Re-ballots are necessary for M. Clemenceau and M. Constans.

The latest totals are: Republicans 158, anti-Republicans 89, re-ballots 145. At midnight the boulevards were crowded. There were incessant cries of "a bas Ferry."

Ten provincial priests have been suspended for preaching against the government.

A NIGHT OF TERROR.

Fearful Experience on Board Ship on Lake Erie.

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—Seven hundred panic-stricken passengers on the steamer City of Detroit passed through a period of peril Thursday night which they will never forget. Men and women ran back and forth in terror as the water poured through openings in the ship and rose with fearful rapidity, and all tied on life-preservers in anticipation of a desperate battle for life in the angry waters. When the boat left Cleveland for this port Thursday evening there was but little sign of the terrible storm raging over the lake.

Attack of the Mad Waters.

No sooner had the boat passed the breakwater than she was struck on the port side by a heavy wave that fairly lifted the great craft out of water. A moment later one of the windows on the port side of the main deck was battered in by the angry waters, and the paddlebox bulkheads had begun to spring and a small stream oozed in around them. The passengers by this time were very much frightened, and the more timid took down life-preservers and put them on. The news of the bulkhead springing soon reached the saloon deck, and when the bulkhead gave way with a crash a few minutes later, a scene of terror followed.

The Decks Flooded.

The water was forced into the boat with every motion of the paddles, and rose rapidly in the after saloon on the main deck. The officers' apartments and the ladies' saloon was quickly flooded. Very soon after this the starboard paddlebox gave way, and the height of the water increased materially. Although holes were cut in the gunwales to let the stream run out, it was impossible to stay on the main deck. The water rose until it was fully six and a half feet deep and swept back into the after cabin in a solid wall.

The Passengers Frenzied.

During this terrible situation the passengers were clustered in the saloon panic-stricken. One man rushed up and down the cabin shouting at the top of his voice: "We are lost; the boat is sinking." This made the passengers even more terrified, and the officers of the boat were finally compelled to confine the excited man. The male passengers seemed to be more frightened than the women, but many of the latter lay about in swoons on the cabin floor.

The Captain's Comments.

Capt. D. H. McLaughlin, who was in command of the boat, shows plainly the effects of his trip. He said: "The boat's crew behaved splendidly. The force of the waves drove in the bulkheads on both sides and caused the water to rise in the after part of the vessel. The storm was terrific and the waves higher than I ever saw before."

The marks on the paint of the lower cabin show that the water at times was over a man's head. Great holes were knocked in the side of the boat to let the water run out. Two days, however, will suffice to remove all traces of the terrible storm which placed 700 lives in peril.

Fire at Clinton, Iowa.

CLINTON, Ia., Sept. 19.—At 4 o'clock yesterday morning fire broke out in the blacksmith shop of McDowell & Co.'s carriage factory, and soon all was in ashes. The buildings were frame and the loss on them will probably be covered by insurance of $6,000. The stock consumed was valued at $30,000 with but $6,500 insurance. Two other buildings were burned with $1,500 loss and $800 insurance.

Half a Million in Property Burned.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Several of the buildings of the Leonard & Ellis oil refineries at Shady Side, N. J., were burned last night, with a large quantity of refined oil. The loss may reach $500,000.

LONG LIFE.

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought untill we recive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered, is simered down into a concentrated form and put up in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names and guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them.

They do not know, of course, unless they have courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why dont you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but one dollar for a very large bottle. Try it at once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggists may not have it, but he will order it for you. OUR CELERY INDUSTRY.

AN AFTERNOON AMONG THE CELERY PLANTATIONS ABOUT TECUMSEH.

What We Saw on the Trip—The Modus Operandi of Raising this Vegetable—A Few Items of General Interest.

Last Monday was a beautiful September day, and as business was not particularly rushing that afternoon, we decided to utilize it to carry out a resolve made some time ago, and take a tour of observation among the Te- [illegible] we pressed into the service one of Garlinghouse Bros'. best steppers and set out in a southwesterly direction.

Our first halt was at the Tecumseh Celery Company's farm, where we found Ed. Hollister up to his ears in business. Their farm contains 86 acres and they have good buildings erected and all the necessary conveniences for rushing the business during the shipping season. They engage quite extensively in raising other crops as well as celery, having 20 acres of cabbage now growing. Twenty-five acres are seeded down, upon which they raised 500 bushels of oats and rye this season. Thirty acres are in celery. A part of the crop has already been shipped and the rest of it is coming along in fine shape. The building in which the packing and washing is done is well adapted to its purpose. In the front end is a business office, the middle room is used for packing and the rear room for washing. A steam engine and boiler furnish the power to pump the water and wash the celery. Their washing apparatus consists of a horizontal sprinkler made of gas pipe, which does the work very thoroughly and expeditiously. The machine is one of their own invention. There is not another machine like it in the country. The firm have adopted a new plan this year in making their sales. The entire crop is shipped to two wholesale firms, one in New York city and one in Kansas City. This plan is a great saving of time and trouble in making settlements. They did a good business last year but expect to double their sales this season.

We then proceeded to Dr. Stewart's place, which is the next farm west. The Doctor is the pioneer in the celery business and his establishment has been kept up and enlarged from year to year, so that his arrangements are now very complete. He has every facility for raising and shipping a large crop. He has 34 acres in celery this year, leading all the other growers in the number of acres cultivated. His packing house and office is situated in a beautiful grove, about one acre in size, located near the center of the farm. It is cool in sultry weather and sheltered from the winds in cold weather. The wash room is supplied with water from a large elevated tank which is kept filled by a wind mill. The Doctor has just completed a system of irrigation which will be of immense advantage to him in a dry season. One of the most difficult things connected with celery raising is this matter of water supply. The soil must be marshy, but well drained. But the crop needs much water, and if the marsh is drained too much, it necessitates artificial watering, which is very expensive. At the north end of his marsh is a natural spring, which he has dug out and transformed into a mammoth well. Over this well a water elevator is constructed by means of which a constant stream of water is lifted into a ditch that runs the entire length of the farm. A wind mill and horse power are attached to this elevator, so it can be kept in constant use. This ditch being filled with a stream of living water, feeds the soil on each side and saturates it with water for a distance of 30 or 40 rods on each side of the ditch. This system has been running for a few weeks and works admirably thus far. It looks as though the Doctor had solved the problem of an adequate water supply. He has several large storage sheds in which the crop is stored for winter shipment. In fact, all the farms are supplied with these storage sheds His shipments are made to various cities both east and west. He furnishes some of the big hotels in New York city with their regular supply, and deals with firms in Scranton, Nashville, Chattanooga, Kansas City and many other large towns. His shipments this season will be largely in excess of last year.

The next place visited was that of C. H. Ives, which adjoins Dr. Stewart's on the west. His farm has only 20 acres that can be utilized for celery He has seven acres in celery this year and seven acres in cabbage. He ships his crop almost entirely to Cleveland and Indianapolis, and about one-half his crop has already been marketed. He has got nicely started this year and expects to branch out more extensively next season.

We then turned eastward and stopped at Hanford & Southworth's place. They have six acres of celery and three of cabbage, and this is only their second season in the business. The crop is on Geo. Hanford's farm, but Mr. Southworth has the full management and direction of the celery raising, and he is becoming an expert in that line. The quality of his celery is not excelled by that of any other grower. He is now experimenting with a new bleaching process on a few rows, putting each root in a cylinder of heavy paper. This is something new and time will tell whether it is an improvement on the old process. They have a very convenient house for packing and washing and a fine storage house built on a side hill on the edge of the marsh. Their shipments are made mostly to New York city. They expect to double [illegible]

Ed. Russell has six acres of celery on his farm and he is turning out a very fine quality this fall. About one-fourth of his crop has already been marketed. His patch is located on the extreme north end of the marsh, and he has about ten acres which can be utilized for celery growing. He sells at various points, both east and west.

About a mile north and two miles west of Ed. Russell's is Joe Russell's farm of 100 acres. On this place is a marsh about 20 acres in extent which proves to be fine soil for growing celery. About 15 acres have been planted this season, the celery business being run by the firm of Russell & Palmer. They have one acre in tomatoes which has yielded a fine crop this year. A natural spring is located at the north end of the marsh which feeds an open ditch running its entire length, which keeps the soil of the marsh in a proper condition of moisture. They are raising a superior article of celery this year. They have good conveniences for washing and packing, and two sheds for storage. Their shipments are confined almost entirely to the state of Ohio, Columbus, Toledo, Finlay, Tiffin, Mansfield, and nearly all the towns of any size in the western part of the state. All their available land will be planted to celery next season.

On the east side of the river and just south of the brick yard, Geo. Hollister has a little place of five acres which he has used for small fruit and garden truck. On the place is a marsh which he always considered worthless. Last year he broke it up and put in some celery there, and this year he has planted the whole plat to celery. A living stream runs along one side of the marsh which keeps the soil in prime condition. George lays no claim to the ownership of a celery plantation, but he is a practical gardener, and is turning out a prime article on his patch. His sales are mostly in Tecumseh and towns near by.

We got home safe and sound about dark, with a supply of celery sufficient to last the family until next Christmas.

Is a good healthy, pure skin. Few are aware of the short time it takes for a disordered liver to cause blotches on the face, and a dark greasy skin. OBITUARY.

Died, at her home, near Tecumseh, Mich., on Friday, Sept. 20, 1889, Mrs. Katie Tallman, aged 73.

Mrs. Tallman's name before her marriage was Matie Ostram Conklin. She was born at Owasco, Cayuga Co., New York, December 11, 1815. On the 24th day of April she was married to John L. Tallman. In the spring of 1838 she became a resident, with her husband, of Livingston, Co., N. Y. whence they came October 1st, 1851, to Tecumseh, Michigan. In January 1852 they took possession of the farm where Mrs. Tallman lived with her children until the time of her death. Mr. Tallman died August 28, 1875.

The religious life of Mrs. Tallman dates back to her residence at Owasco where she united with the Reformed (Dutch) church at the age of fourteen. In January 1852 both Mr. and Mrs. Tallman united with the Presbyterian church of Tecumseh by letter, of which church he was made an elder in 1856. All who have been associated with Mrs. Tallman since she became a member of this organization will bear willing testimony to her unblemished character, and her consistent christian deportment. She loved to be in her place at church and have her family with her. Her pastors found in her a warm supporter of their work and her house was a second home for them. Her many friends loved and trusted her and they had good reason to do so, for she was always loyal to them. Many were her acts of thoughtful kindness in their behalf, to be remembered and cherished now that the doer of them has been called away. Her last sickness was only about a week, when she crossed without a struggle into the realm of the invisible.

In the closing hours her faith was strong and she had entire freedom from the fear of death. Six children, three sons and three daughters survive their mother. To them all, the name of mother will be a tender and a sacred one. W. H. B.

Died, in Tecumseh, September 22, 1889, Mrs. Mahala Lovell Yawger, age 67 years, 5 months, 19 days.

She was born in Seneca county, New York, April 3, 1822. She was one of seven who were left orphans, she being only 6 years old and she is the first of that band of seven to cross the river of death. She united with the Presbyterian church at Springport, N. Y. at the age 14 years. She was married to Adrian V. Yawger, February 19th, 1846. They came to Tecumseh in November 1847, when she united with the Presbyterian church of this place. May 2, 1862 she, together with her husband, was received into the fellowship of the Baptist church of Tecumseh, being baptized by Rev. James McLeod, then pastor of the church. Both became at once, and continued for many years to be, efficient and trusted workers. In 1863 Brother Yawger fell, in the midst of his usefulness, lamented by his brethren, who felt they could not spare him from their ranks. Thus bereft, Mrs. Yawger was left with five children, one boy and four girls, the oldest not 17 years old. She cheerfully and bravely undertook their care, and by her industry she kept a home for them until they were able to care for themselves, and now God has said to her, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter into thy rest." Three of her children were with her in her dying hours, of whom two daughters have been her constant companions and her comfort during her declining years, ministering tenderly to her needs during a long and lingering sickness. A son and daughter are absent in California. These all, with other hearts that mourn, have the cordial sympathy of many friends, who cherish the memory of the deceased Mrs. Yawger has always maintained an exemplary christian character, was always ready to lend a helping hand in all church work, was always steadfast and faithful to duty, decided in her convictions, and kindly in her spirit. Especially was she fitted to be at the bedside of the sick, where she was often found. "The memory of the just is blessed."

Halsey Lewis, whose death occured at his residence on section 2, in the township of Adrian, on September 17, was born in Tompkins county, N. Y., on May 9th, 1811.

He was married to Mary E. Shurts on May 11, 1848. To them were born twelve children, of whom nine are now living. His widow, and four sons and two daughters, remaining unmarried, reside on the old homestad occupied by them during all their happy married life of forty-one years.

One son, Winfield, died three years since, leaving four children. The married daughters reside in this vicinity, having in their families five children. Total surviving children and grand children, eighteen. He passed peacefully away at 8 o'clock in the morning, surrounded by weeping friends. Perfectly conscious to the last moment he expressed perfect willingness to depart, and the most perfect faith in his Redeemer, in whose arms he sank peacefully to sleep to awake in eternal glory. So departs a good and useful man.

His funeral services occurred at the family residence on September 19th, conducted by Rev. Mr. Patchen.

After a sickness of about two weeks Mrs. Burt Fox departed this life Tuesday forenoon, September 10, malarial fever being the mortal disease.

She was a great sufferer during the last few days of her illness. Loving friends did all in their power for her comfort, and hoped for her recovery. But the years of her life, only twenty-eight, were almost ended. The deceased was a daughter of Joseph Spaulding, of Franklin. She was married March 21st, 1888, by Rev. T. G. Potter.

Mrs. Fox was a bright, intelligent woman and one who following the generous impulses of a sympathetic heart, made many friends who will remember Etta and sadly miss her and who can sympathize with the relatives in their sorrow. The funeral services were held at the house which has been her home during her brief married life, on Wednesday afternoon, September 11, Rev. Williams of Clinton Congregational church, officiating.

The floral tributes were beautiful and appropriate. The large attendance of young people and the deep solemnity of the occasion showed the esteem which the entire community held for the deceased. The remains were conveyed to Clinton for burial.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

If any friend of license or tax wishes to make arrangements for the discussion of that method against prohibition, let him make it known to the committee and he will be accommodated.

Macon Grange Hall is excellently arranged with all the accommodations for a basket dinner and supper. So bring your families, and your neighbor's families, with your baskets and stay all day and attend the evening session also.

Parties attending the institute over the Wabash should buy tickets to Britton, and those going over the C. J. & M. should buy tickets to Ridgeway, at which points they will be met by stages and carried to and from the meeting free, by notifying the president, Mr. J. W. Baker, at Tecumseh, Mich., not later than Monday, October 7th, at which station they will stop. Good music will be furnished by the Macon and Ridgeway choirs, and efforts are being made to secure a fine glee club. You will regret it if you don't go. Remember these are county institutes and the co-operation of the Prohibitionists of the county, and especially of the townships near the meeting, is urgently urged.

The committee especially urges careful preparation on all topics. It is important that our best points are presented. These institutes are meeting with much popular favor, those held have been gratifying successes, and it is the desire of your committee that each succeeding one be made better than the other.

HYMENIAL.

We clip the following notice from the Battle Creek Journal of the 19th inst. Mrs. W. M. Ross, the mother of the bride was present on the occasion. The bride's numerous friends here in her old home will extend their hearty congratulations.

Last evening at the residence of T. W. Adams, No. 27 Adams street, occurred the ceremony which united in the bands of wedlock, Mr. Frank A. Buechner and Miss Mary E. Ross, of this city. The ceremony occurred at 8 o'clock, in the presence of some fifty friends of the contracting parties and was performed by Eld. Woodruff, of Benton Harbor, a brother-in-law of the groom. Following the ceremony a fine wedding repast was served, and the evening was passed in an exceedingly social manner by all.

The young couple were the recipients of a large number of valuable and useful souvenirs from friends, among which were a handsome easy chair from the members of the hose company, of which Mr. Buechner has long been a member, and a silver tea set from his shopmates at the Art Album works. Mr. and Mrs. Buechner commence housekeeping at once, having purchased and fitted a home on Corwin street.

ANOTHER PIONEER HEARD FROM.

While clearing out an old table drawer the other day we found a letter written some three years ago to the late Judge Stacy by E. J. Ferris, one of our earliest settlers. We wrote at once to ascertain whether Mr. Ferris was still in the land of the living and here is his reply verbatim:

PAINESVILLE, Lake Co. O. Sep. 20.

EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—Yours of the 23d. inst. received. The winter of 1826 7 the writer was pedagogue in your city. Recollects Joseph W. Brown, hotel keeper, Musgrove Evans, owner of mills, flour and saw, on the river, Caleb N, Ormsby, M. D., Nelson, Spafford, Ketcham, Low, and other patrons of the school. One or two sons of Mr. Spafford and a young daughter pupils. One, daughter of Mr. S. was married to a Mr. Bissel a the time the writer was in the school, or so on after. Another daughter was the young wife of a merchant in the town, whose name I am unable to call up out of the debris of, or in my cranium. The first county election of Lenawee was held in my school house. The writer was chose one of the clerks of the election. The fee for said service by the statue of Michigan was 75cts., but as there was no funds in the treasury of Lenawee Co. the clerks received simply the honor of the office for compensation. A little less than office seekers are generally satisfied with. But was not out of pocket as much as some of that class, only fifty cents for dinner.

Doctor C. N. Ormsby married the daughter of the most noted man in Adrian. His name is forgotten, but his untiring efforts to get the county seat removed from Tecumseh to Adrian are remembered. The county seat is now at the latter place I believe. He afterwards, with his son-in-law, C. N O. moved to Ann Arbor. One of my pupils I have felt quite interested in knowing his history, or what he finally amounted to, Artemidorus Tuller by name. Was about 12 years of age, large size and had never before attended school. This large boy standing by my knee to learn the alphabet, excited a smile on the face of each small fellow, which being noticed by Artie, he came to the teacher every few minutes with his book inquiring the name of some letter in the alphabet. In a very short time he mastered the alphabet, and before school closed in the spring, was ahead and out of sight of the little chaps whose mirthfulness had been manifested at the commencement. Please inquire whether there is a patron or scholar, of that school in Lenawee Co. who recollects the "school master" of that time. It is sixty-two years since he left Tecumseh, and most of the people of that city who were there in 1827 are now "taking the sleep the that knows no waking."

John G. Saxe the Poet's description of himself may bring to mind the appearance of the tall "school master," if they have forgotten it.

I'm a man you will find less famous for beauty than strength,
And for aught I could ever discover of rather superfluous length.
'Tis seldom you meet such a Titan in human abodes,
And when I stalk over the streets I'm a perfect colossus of roads. E. J. FERRIS.

Neighboring lodges will be invited to participate.

Lucius Lilley received a letter last week from H. L. Hayward of Longmont, Col., in which the latter indulged in some rather emphatic language for a minister. It seems that Raynor Lilley and wife, while taking a trip through Colorado, made brief stop at Longmont, and Mr. Hayward missed seeing them through the neglect of a telegraph messenger to deliver a dispatch promptly. Mr. Hayward would rather miss a dozen dinners than to miss seeing an old Tecumseh acquaintance.

The Odd Fellows of Dundee recently set out to make some improvement in the appearance of their lodge rooms, and while in the work concluded to make the work complete. With the use of paint, paper, new floor coverings, &c., a complete change of appearance has been wrought, and is scarcely recognized by members as being the same rooms. It is now one of the slickest lodge rooms to be found in this portion of the State. The lodge too, is in a very prosperous and flourishing condition, and its membership is having a healthy growth.—Dundee Reporter.

A similar invitation is extended to those who have not been in the habit of attending any of our churches to be present.

The first Tuesday in October is the one appointed for the annual election of officers for the Tecumseh Library Association, and as it is three years since we have been able to get enough of the stockholders together to have a valid election according to the constitution, it is earnestly requested that said stock holders will all bear this in mind and be present at the meeting at the Library Rooms next Tuesday evening, Oct. 1st. at half past seven o'clock, for the election of officers and transaction of all necessary business.
A. P. LEE, Secretary.

EASTERN STAR INSTALLATION.

The installation of officers of Tecumseh Chapter, Order Eastern Star, was held at Masonic hall on Thursday evening of last week. The exercises were public and were witnessed by a large gathering of Masons and their friends. It was the finest installation that has been held by the chapter thus far. A superior musical programme was presented, most of which was given before the installation services proper. This part of the programme was performed by the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Hosmer, and he recited the formula in a very impressive manner. Refreshments were served in the dining room to about 125 guests, after which an hour or so was pleasantly spent in social enjoyment.

The formal exercises of the evening opened with a cornet solo by Dr. Woodward, which showed that the Doctor's hand and lip have not lost their cunning with the cornet.

Kathleen Mavourneen was the title of a vocal trio by Mrs. Morley and Misses Hall and Barlow. This is a popular vocal selection and it was finely rendered.

An instrumental quartette, entitled "Il Trovatore" followed—Levi Hayden with the flute; Mabel Hayden the mandolin; Roy and May DeWolf, each a guitar. It was a new combination of musical instruments, and carried the audience by storm. It brought forth a hearty encore.

A vocal duet—Sandwich Island song—was given by Misses Barlow and Hall. When the yacht Coronet, with the Bush family on board, stopped at Honolulu, two natives came on board and sang this piece. It is a beautiful melody, and the manner in which the young ladies sang it touched the hearts of their listeners, who responded with a rousing encore.

The formal exercises closed with another fine cornet solo by Dr. Woodward. The musical part of the programme, although brief, was a rich treat to all lovers of music. The assistance rendered by Misses Hall and Barlow, of Ridgeway, was fully appreciated.

The members of Eastern Star have reason to congratulate themselves over the unqualified success of the evening's entertainment.

A GENEROUS OFFER.—The celebrated Dr. Gleason, after a practice of forty years, having during all that time made the cure of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption his special study, has in this time so perfected his treatment as to be able to cure nearly all who suffer from these complaints. Having reached the age of seventy years, he realizes that the time is near at hand when these valuable remedies must be in other hands or become lost to the world. Desiring that his Home Treatment should be within the reach of all, he has placed the prescriptions with the Hall Chemical Company; this company, knowing the wonderful success of the Home Treatment in the cure of all Throat and Lung Troubles, have decided to send the full treatment ON TRIAL to any one who wishes to try it. Dr. Gleason has also written a valuable treatise on these diseases, which is profusely illustrated with finely executed wood-cuts, showing the Head, Throat and Lungs as they are when diseased; it discusses in an able manner the cause and cure of these complaints; it is printed on heavy super-calendered paper and handsomely bound. This book, together with full instructions how to order on trial, will be sent free to all who will write and ask for it. Address

STATE NEWS.

Rev. A. H. Lucas, who formerly talked to a small congregation at Lexington, this state, concluded to go west and grow up with the country. This process may prove a healthy one, even for a clergyman, for Rev. Lucas now preaches to a wealthy Denver congregation and gets big money for it.

Michigan's 600 persons talk to about 60,000 people—when too many of the latter don't take their Sunday naps at home instead of at church.

Driving a horse and buggy and leading another equine behind the rig, was the death of a Grand Rapids man. The lad horse made a sudden jump and yanked out the leader when a street car came sailing along and broke his neck.

[illegible] of triplets that weighed twenty-six and three-quarter pounds—a record that's not easily beaten.

John Lang, a Lenawee county farmer, was set upon by highwaymen and drove like Jehu to effect his escape, albeit the bullets were planted thick all around him, one of which cut off a finger. After the affair was all over Lang found that he had a loaded revolver with him at the time, which he'd forgotten all about during the melee.

Justus H. Rathbone, the founder of the Knights of Pythias order, is lying quite ill at Ionia. His lecture engagements in this state have been canceled.

H. D. Harrigan is the Kalamazoo gentleman who not very gently "laid out" a chap in New York city and didn't go to prison for it, either. But the chap attempted to rob Harrigan, and a jury said that the "laying out" process was justifiable under the circumstances.

Amos James is a Port Huron man who's had the same parrot forty years and, like some folks, it tells the same story it used to relate when first it began business.

The Ann Arbor gentlemen who purchased the site of the old cemetery for $500 with the ghosts thrown in, now blandly smiles when he's offered $5,000, which indicates that he's waiting for the ghostly habitation to rise several notches higher.

The Shiawassee river is perhaps the one place in all the world where one can walk on the water for a distance of three miles without wetting his toes. The 50,000,000 feet of logs that crowd the river's surface accounts for the dry walking in a very damp place, in this instance.

Traverse City was the scene of a most misguided enterprise, not long since. Some chaps of burglarious tendences, after putting in a night of unrequited toil, found that the occupant was an editor with no visible assets. Then they tackled a saloon and made a 5-cent haul and were only comforted by a generous potation of whistle molstener.

James Hatcher, a farmer living near Detroit, was thrown from his buggy by a balky horse and injured in such a way that he died fifteen minutes afterward.

Wm. Hudsart, a big Rapids resident and veteran of the late war, has just been granted a pension at the age of 83 years. Another case of better late than never.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railway company will rebuild the chimneys in all its depots north of Grand Rapids. The era of winter fires is fast approaching, and the company wants its chimneys made safe.

In stooping to pick up an article he'd dropped upon the ground, H. B. Davis, of Fowlerville, lost the sight of his left eye by striking it against a thistle.

An Ithaca parson has been whiling away his leisure hours devising an automatic feeder for poultry that's said to work like a charm. It's operated by "biddy" scratching in a pile of litter which makes the machine "give down" in regulation style.

John O'Brien, late a Bunker Hill resident, is dead at the age of 50 years, but was bright and active almost to the day of his death—a comfortable way to be transferred to the far hereafter.

Visiting placing is fast getting to be a dangerous pastime. A Cass City chap perished in a blizzard therein, for a bolt of lightning laid him out when he struck "The Devil's Dream."

That fine specimen of the imported mastiff—Clement—that stands 35½ inches in his stocking feet and weighs 200 pounds, is now owned by Lansing parties. He represents more money than was ever paid for any other dog in this state, and is said to be the finest specimen of the mastiff in America.

Dysentery is "calling home" many Stockbridge citizens, while typhoid fever continues to prevail in the same location at Negaunee. A strange coincidence is the fact that neither town has a health officer, though this would generally be regarded as a healthy omen.

"Uncle" Cyrus Lovell, the man who built the first frame house in Kalamazoo, was the first prosecuting attorney of Kalamazoo county and served in the Black Hawk war; member of the constitutional convention of 1850, elected to the Legislature twice and served one term as speaker of the house of representatives, now lives at Ionia at the age of 80 years an honored and respected citizen.

Hay fever victims havn't found that relief that the northern summer resorts call previous seasons have afforded. But no noticeable decline in the cost of a northern journey has been discovered on that account.

Novi folks expect to slip about [illegible] barrels of apples this fall for something to chew on during the long winter evenings.

George Beecher, the Calhoun county chap convicted of a criminal assault on a young girl, was sent to retirement at Jackson for a period of twelve years.

Whoever is of the opinion that woman loves but one fact is respectfully referred to the lady bookkeeper who secured a fine lot of orders for a book at $3.75 per copy at Birmingham, which identically the same work could be bought at a local book store for $2.

The Berkey & Gay furniture factory at Grand Rapids is a seven story building that's ornamented with a high tower. This tower is furnished with an elevator designed to carry the employes to its top in case of fire, from which point they can sail away in parachutes and thus by avoid a cremating experience.

In her unique methods of doing things Traverse City takes the cake. A tombstone man recently completed an addition to his establishment and celebrated it with a dance, which was followed by a moonlight stroll of the participants amid an outside collection of cemetery furniture.

An inmate of the Kalamazoo asylum has just been awarded back pensions of $13,000, with a monthly allowance that will amount to about $1,000 more. Should the man live twenty years without regaining his reason, there will be quite a wad of stuff for somebody to inherit.

A Detroit resident claims the ownership of a [illegible] flower the rag carpet along with old maid Columbus, but it's been several years since the original owner took a sail in it.

During the past summer a Sherman saloon-keeper was semi-annually "busted" by the steady disappearance of his wet goods after the close of business hours. A watch was set on the place and the leakage traced to a very thirsty railway laborer in the neighborhood. But the drinker sniffed trouble from afar and walked—more'n 500 miles before Sheriff Sturtevant overhauled him.

A Dansville man and his wife went a cooning not long since, cut the poor woman was compelled to return alone. The husband fell from a tall tree and was fatally hurt.

Olivet college is more prosperous than ever before, which means a largely increased attendance at that seat of learning.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Burst, a Hudson couple, have had a married experience of 66 years with no prospect in sight of resorting to the divorce mill.

The Saginaw Iron Mining company is a recently organized East Saginaw enterprise with a capital stock of $200,000. They'll operate in the upper peninsula, however, where material in the line of their proposed venture is more numerous than in the land of salt, lumber and sawdust.

J. T. Phillips was once a Michigan drummer who hailed from Detroit, and as a fellow who could gather in a lively trade was hard to beat. Just now he's hustling out in Montana for a seat in the new legislature.

An Eaton county citizen, who has seen 69 sage summers, is of the opinion that he'd like to wed a Toledo belle, who's had two years more of earthly experience than himself. But thus far he has been foiled by not being able to obtain the necessary license.

It looks somewhat as though the Michigan Central intended to build a belt line at Bay City one of these days, as they've secured the necessary earth for that purpose.

The street car line from Grand Rapids to Reed's lake, which has been hung up for some time by an injunction, will likely be completed now, as the injunction has been vanished by the circuit court.

Strangled with His Own Blood.

ESCANABA, Mich., Sept. 23.—Dolph Gaboury, for many years a locomotive engineer on the Chicago and Northwestern railway, was sparring in sport with a friend Saturday night. The friend received a blow on the nose, which caused that organ to bleed excessively. A doctor was sent for, who ordered the man to lie on his back. The blood flowed back into his throat, causing death from strangulation. Gaboury and the doctor have been held under $3,000 bonds to answer to the charge of manslaughter.

Wants a Slice of Cleveland, Ohio.

JACKSON, Mich., Sept. 19.—Attorney Michael Kinney, of this city, states that he has been retained by a young Jackson lady, a daughter of an original heir to fifty acres of land in the heart of the city of Cleveland, Ohio. When her grandfather died in 1838 the property in question, then located in the township of Middleborough, was left to the children. Mr. Kinney goes to Cleveland next week to look after the case. He refused to give the name of the young lady, but states that she has the proper papers.

An Alderman's Lack of Nerve.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 20.—The grand jury for Wayne county, in session to investigate the charges of boodleism, called Alderman Utes before them yesterday to testify. They asked him what he knew about June appointments, in which there are charges of crookedness, and the alderman promptly fainted away, and was resuscitated only after half an hour's work. His lack of nerve has created a sensation among the rest of the alleged boodlers.

Says He Stole No Money.

EAST SAGINAW, Mich., Sept. 18.—Charles M. Rice, who was dismissed from the service of the Saginaw, Tuscola and Huron Railroad company for the alleged defalcation of $8,000, denies emphatically having the money. He says he will make a statement which will fully exculpate him and establish his innocence.

Frightful Fall of a Hungarian.

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Sept. 19.—Shortly after noon Wednesday a Hungarian pumpman named Krack was caught by the descending cage in the main shaft of the Ludington mine and hurled from the seventh level to the twelfth, a distance of 400 feet. His body was picked up lifeless and terribly mangled.

A NEW NEGRO MOVEMENT.

They Organize a Strike in Alabama and Refuse to Work for the Whites.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 21.—A dispatch from Montevillo, a town near the scene of the recent race troubles in Bibb county, says the negroes have resolved to do no more work for white people. The negro women are in the movement, and white families are unable to obtain cooks or women to do their laundry work. The negroes refuse to work on the farms and many farmers will be unable to gather their crops unless they can obtain white laborers. The only reason given by the negroes for their action is that they are tired of working for white people.

Of Interest to Bicyclists.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 21.—The Indiana supreme court has decided that bicyclists can not be merely liable for damages resulting from horses becoming frightened at their wheels, if such runaways occur when the bicycles are riding upon the highway and are doing nothing which shows a lack of regard for the rights of others. In a previous decision it was held, however, that bicyclists are liable for damages resulting from collisions with persons on sidewalks, on which they have no right.

Bob Younger Buried.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 21.—The remains of Bob Younger, who died in prison at Stillwater, Minn., were brought here Thursday night by Riva Younger and conveyed Thursday to Lee's Summit, Mo., where Mrs. Bell Hall, a sister of the deceased, lived. The funeral was conducted by Rev. A. B. Francisco, of the Presbyterian church. The interment took place in the cemetery where the mother of the Younger boys is buried.

Will Escape the Yellow Fever.

WASHINGTON CITY, Sept. 21.—Health Officer Porter, of Florida, who has recently been here, and Surgeon General Hamilton agree in the belief that Florida and probably the entire southern coast will escape a yellow fever epidemic this season. Extraordinary precautions have been taken by the Florida authorities and with excellent results.

A Nail Association Will Reorganize.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 21.—The Western Nail association which was in existence for many years, but disbanded two years ago, will likely be reorganized. The nail trade is improving and prices are stiffening. This is partially due to the fact that prices of raw material have taken a big jump upward.

Another Eccentric Passes Away.

BOSTON, Sept. 21.—Mr. T. Mackenzie Axe, known to most New Englanders as "the telescope man" of Boston common, died here Friday. He was a native of York, Pa. He lived alone and an examination of his effects will be made by the authorities.

Their Business Booming.

Probably no one thing has caused such a general revival of trade at C. A. Wright & Co's Drug Store as their giving away to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Their trade is simply enormous in this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

FIFTH POINT

You should read THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS because it's a family newspaper. This is an age when everybody reads, and the paper you bring into your family should have something of value for all. The special interests of women are not overlooked in THE DAILY NEWS. And then you don't want to bring questionable reading matter into your family. You don't want to put indecent or immoral reading into the hands of your children. You will never make a mistake on this score if you take home THE DAILY NEWS. The newspapers are the great educators of this nation. The strength of the nation lies in the purity of its firesides.

Remember—Its circulation is 220,000 a day—over a million a week—and it costs by mail 25 cts. a month, four months $1.00,—one cent a day.

REVIEW OF THE QUARTER.

LESSON XIII, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, SEPT. 29.

The Story of the Life of Samuel, the Choice of Saul, the Anointing of David, the Young Shepherd, and the Final End of Saul.

The lessons that have been considered during the quarter just brought to a close have covered one of the most important eras of the history of the chosen people of God.

Lesson I had to do especially with the calling of Samuel by the Most High. Samuel was the son of Elkanah and his wife Hannah, to whom he had been given by the Lord in answer to Hannah's prayer. And according to the vow of his mother the life of Samuel was devoted to the service of God. He was placed in the hands of Eli, the priest, as soon as he had been weaned, and when the sons of Eli had scandalized the people and offended the Lord with their wickedness, he was selected to be Eli's successor.

Now "the word of the Lord was precious in those days." There had been "no open vision" before that vouchsafed to Samuel for a long time. Perhaps herein lies one of the most valuable lessons of the quarter—a lesson for mothers. If you would raise up your sons to be mighty men before the Lord, devote them to God's service from the first.

In Lesson II was told the sorrowful death of Eli and the humiliating defeat of Israel—a defeat that can be clearly traced to disobedience of God's command. Israel had at this time fallen away somewhat from the worship of the one God. But when a war arose between Israel and the Philistines, Israel called upon Jehovah for help. But how! The sacred ark of the covenant was taken from Shiloh, where its place was in the Holy of Holies, to the field of battle. But the command of the Most High had been violated; God did not fight with the Israelites and they were defeated, for the Philistines were desperate and fought with a fury that carried all before them. And it is now as it was then—if you desire the Lord to help you in the constant contest with the world you must obey Him.

In Lesson III we were told of the repentance of Israel and the rescue of His people, after twenty years' punishment, out of the hands of the Philistines by the Lord of Hosts. "And the hand of the Lord was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel." In Lesson IV is recorded the action of the Israelites in demanding a king. Samuel had grown old and his sons had been made judges of the people. These sons had done even as had the sons of Eli before them; "they turned aside after lucre, and took bribes and perverted justice." But this was no just excuse for the Israelites in their demand for a king. God had appointed the method of government for His people, and there is no doubt but He, in His own good time and in His own way, would have corrected the abuses the people suffered and punished those by whom the abuses came. But nothing would satisfy the Israelites short of a king, and so—as we are told in Lesson V—they were given one in the person of Saul.

Saul had been sent to find some domestic animals that were lost; he failed, and at last sought out Samuel, the man of God. Samuel had been warned of the coming of Saul, and had been told of God that Saul should be the king whom the Israelites desired. Saul was a "goodly young man," tall and strong—a king in appearance—just what the Israelites desired. God was about to try His people—to give them an opportunity to learn that His ways were best. But even when Saul had been shown to the people as he whom the Lord would have to be their king, they rejected him, and deridingly asked: "Shall Saul reign over us?" But Saul delivered them out of the hand of the Ammonites, and then they were convinced. In Lesson VI we studied the last address of Samuel, that wonderful speech of the prophet in which he reviewed before the people the history of their nation, and set out to them the everlasting doctrine that true prosperity and unalloyed happiness only come to those who serve God sincerely.

In Lesson VII we learned how the Lord finally rejected Saul because of the disobedience of the latter. God had told him to spare not the Amelekites or their cattle or goods, but Saul had saved Agag, the king, alive, and had kept alive the "best of the sheep and of the oxen and of the fatlings and the lambs and all that was good." These he had preserved for the use of himself, and God told Samuel that this was displeasing to Him. "Behold," said the prophet, "to obey is better than to sacrifice." Saul, rebuked by the man of God, became repentant. But it was too late.

In Lesson VIII we are told of the anointing of David as the chosen of the Lord. When Samuel saw Eliab, a son of Jesse, who was tall and strong and of regal bearing, he said in his heart that here was the future king, but God said not so. "The Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh upon the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart." Oh, blessed assurance, that is and will be ever kept in remembrance by them that love God!

David, the shepherd boy; David, the youngest; David, whom Jesse had not thought worthy to be brought before the prophet—he was the chosen one. Truly, God's ways are not the ways of men.

In Lesson IX is told the story of the killing of Goliath by this youngest son and shepherd, David, who went out before the two armies to meet the most mighty man of the Philistines.

Nothing in all the Old Testament is in its way more affecting than the story of David and Jonathan, which was the subject of Lesson X. Saul had become jealous of David, for had not the women sung:

Saul hath slain his thousands!
And David hath slain his ten thousands!

Saul swore to be the death of David, but the bond of brotherly affection between David and Jonathan saved the shepherd boy. In Lesson XI is told the story of David's great heartedness when he had Saul in his power. David's magnanimity was prompted by a two fold motive. He would not smite a sleeping man. He was too truly brave to do so cowardly an act. Besides, Saul was still the Lord's anointed.

And in Lesson XII is told the story of the last days of Saul. The king had wept the tears of the crocodile when, as told in the previous lesson, he affected to be reconciled to David, and he had continued his pursuit of the shepherd boy. But now Saul was to receive his punishment. War was raging between the Philistines and the Israelites, and it went not well with the latter. Saul saw that defeat, bloody, ignominious defeat, stared him in the face, and he feared to meet it. To run away would be to court additional ignominy. And besides he would inevitably be captured in the end and be put to death with indignities. So he died the death of the coward—he killed himself. His sons were dead before him, and his death was but the culmination of the defeat that had for the time come upon Israel.

How great is the lesson taught in this terribly sad ending of the career of the most goodly man of all Israel, the man chosen of God to be king over His people!

AN HISTORIC CITY.

THE PLEASANTEST PLACE TO VISIT IN SEPTEMBER.

A City Full of Rare Attractions for Strangers—Ten Days of Solid Enjoyment—Preparing for September—A Hundred Thousand Visitors Per Day Fully Provided for.

One of the most delightful cities on the American continent is the city of Detroit. It is one of the old American cities—the oldest city west of the Atlantic seaboard. It is one of the wealthiest of American cities. It is also one of the best planned and best built of American cities. No other city, except Washington, is laid out with such magnificently broad avenues and streets.

DETROIT INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION—CONCERT BUILDING.

Hardly any other city possesses so many architecturally original and beautiful homes and other buildings. Away from its business portion it is a city set in continuous parks and boulevards. Situated upon a vast, slightly rolling plain, with an almost uniform slope toward its river front, giving perfect drainage and an admirable surface for parks and lawns, its wide streets are bordered with grand maples and elms and miles of green grassy lawns, set off by fountains and flower beds. It is the

of Detroit people on their residence streets to have no fences in front of their dwellings. The houses are set well back from the street line, with lawns, and flower beds, fountains and statuary or other ornaments in front, leaving the architecture of the handsome buildings and all the beauties of the grounds wide open to the pleasure seeking view of the stroller along the wide tree-shaded sidewalks, or the occupants of carriages in the streets. This makes the homes of Detroit look like rows of pretty buildings set in an immense park.

The great trees along the streets make the sidewalks run through long perspectives of leafy arcades, and on many streets their long branches almost, if not quite, touch together at a lofty height clear across the broad spaces of the streets, giving a delightful, sylvan aspect to the driveways. There are also numerous small parks with fountains, lawns and inviting seats in the shade scattered over the city.

The great charm of Detroit, however, is its noble river. No other city in the world possesses such broad, deep, blue, pure and beautiful. Its narrowest point is about half a mile wide, its broadest several miles. Upon its current floats the largest commerce in the world. Like the people of Venice, in Europe, the inhabitants of Detroit in summer months love to be upon the water. Hence there are innumerable boats, yachts and steamers always in use. At various distances in every direction are places of resort, including Belle Isle park, of 700 acres, with miles of drives and walks, canals and gay boats, to and from which swift ferries continually ply at wonderfully cheap rates. These ferry steamers and excursion boats are large, broad, powerful crafts, and there are enough of them to handle 20,000 or 30,000 people at once. The excursion rates in every direction are always less than a cent a mile, and often less than half a cent per mile.

The best time to visit Detroit is in September, when the heats of summer begin to be tempered by the delicious autumn coolness. From Sept. 17 to Sept. 27, inclusive, the great Detroit International Fair and Exposition, with its list of splendid attractions—its grand Art Gallery of famous paintings, its magnificent horse show, with over 1,000 of the best horses on the continent, its immense concerts every afternoon and evening, its sports, games and processions, its great band tournament, its grand cattle show, its vast building full of machinery and rare and costly displays, its wonderful show of fruits, flowers and vegetables, including the great display of the United States government, its strange show of fishes of all sorts in an immense aquarium, etc.—will be in full operation. Then visitors can fill their days and evenings with

EVER VARYING DELIGHT.

Besides the city, with its theatres and opera houses, there will be hourly excursions by boat and steam and electric railways to pleasure resorts in Michigan and Canada, within a radius of fifty miles, including the famous St. Clair flats, the most famous fishing and gunning resort on the continent. The great concerts at the exposition occur every afternoon and evening. There will also be regattas, base ball, athletic and other sports and games, and races daily at the exposition grounds. The fifteen acres of immense buildings, besides tents and sheds, the graveled walks and thoroughly drained grounds, make them independent of weather. If it should rain, no matter how violently, the cars and boats can transport 75,000 people under shelter, perfectly dry, and the vast exposition buildings can contain 50,000, and show them everything on the programme in comfort and security. There will be no postponement or alteration of programme on account of the weather, and no diminution of attractions under any circumstances, and visitors to the city can securely count upon abundance of enjoyment.

Snake Killed by a Rabbit.

A rabbit is said to have killed a snake at Seneca, Ga., a few days ago. The snake had caught a young rabbit and was trying to swallow it. The old rabbit rushed by the snake and bit it in passing. It then ran by the snake again and bit it, and repeated the operation several times. The reptile finally dropped the rabbit, crawled away a short distance and died.

"CLEOPATRA."

H. Rider Haggard's Latest Novel—A Wonderful Story, and Conceded by Critics to Be His Best—It Will Shortly Be Published in This Paper.

H. Rider Haggard, while one of the youngest of the English novelists, is by no means the least famous. In fact, for striking originality, strength of plot, power and beauty of narration, he stands foremost among the great writers of the day. The extraordinary sale of his works attests in an undisputable way his immense popularity among the reading public wherever the English language is spoken; to say nothing of the fact that they have been translated into nearly all of the foreign languages. There are few people in this country who have not read "She," "Jess," or "King Solomon's Mines," hence the announcement of still another story from Mr. Haggard's pen can not but awaken the liveliest anticipations of pleasure among all lovers of the best serial fiction. "Cleopatra," Mr. Haggard's latest and (the critics say) his best story, and which will shortly be begun in these columns, is, in fact, an historical romance of ancient Egypt. Cleopatra, one of the most famous women of either ancient or modern times, is, of course, the central character of the story, while Antony, scarcely less prominent as an historic figure, is also an important personage in the tale. But it is around Egypt's wondrous Queen, a woman in whom the world has never lost its interest, that Mr. Haggard has woven a romance so fanciful that the never-to-be-forgotten fairy tales of childhood pale before its dazzling splendor, its weird mysteries and its vivid picturing. "She," which did more to win Mr. Haggard name and fame than all his previous works, and which stands almost unsurpassed among the spectacular stories of the day, is not superior to "Cleopatra" in its Oriental gorgeousness; while in many respects the latter is a far superior piece of literary work. But what surprises, as well as delights, the reader of "Cleopatra," is the amount of historic lore it contains, and which must have cost its author years of research and study. Indeed, in the dedication of the work to his mother, who, it seems, is also an Egyptian scholar of much learning, Mr. Haggard hints at the vast amount of labor which he was compelled to perform in gathering the materials for his story. The same attentive labor and research is also continued and carried out in the illustrations by Grieffenhagen, who has made a life study of Egyptian lore, and whose splendidly artistic and classical pictures for this story have been redrawn and adapted for newspaper use by one of the most competent artists in the West.

Briefly stated, "Cleopatra" is supposed to be a translation from three rolls of papyri found in the coffin of a mummy who existed in Cleopatra's days and who was himself the hero of this tale. This mummy, known in life as Harmachis, was held by the native priests of Egypt to be a direct descendant of the ancient Pharaohs, and figured as the leader in a conspiracy to overthrow the hated Queen. Instead of slaying her, as had been plotted, Harmachis falls a victim to her witcheries and for a brief period plays the part of a favored lover. He is, however, soon cast aside, when, being enraged at such treatment, he works out a secret vengeance which results in the ruin of Cleopatra and her favored Antony. This is, of course, but the barest hint at the plot of the story, but enough, we trust, to give those who are familiar with Mr. Haggard's work an idea of the treat in store for them when they come to a perusal of this, his latest and best piece of romantic fiction. As stated before, it will shortly be begun in these columns and given in liberal installments until completed. We bespeak for it a hearty welcome at the hands of our readers and at the same time congratulate them that we have been able to secure this certainly wonderful and charming tale.

and OFFICE DESK

For Remington, Hammond and Crandall Type Writer.

The advantages of this Type-writer and Office Desk over all other so-called Combination Cabinets, are:

First.—The ease and simplicity with which the desk is changed from a Library or Office Desk to a Type-writer Table. This change is effected by pushing the lid covering the machine back in the rear of cabinet—it being a roller top—removing it entirely from sight, thus overcoming the objectionable board and sounder in front of the operator. The movable top is perfectly flat, is baize covered, and forms a complete writing desk when the machine is not in use. The table on which the machine rests is so evenly balanced by our patent adjustments that it needs but a slight touch to bring the machine in position.

Second.—The advantages of the swinging table are: The table is so balanced near its center on patent maleable iron arms, that when the machine brought in place for use, it does not depend on ropes or hangers at rear of platform for support, but is held rigidly in place by its own weight, making it impossible for the machine to be tumbled down an incline in back of desk by the breaking of a rear support. The machine rests on patent slides which keeps the machine in place, and can be drawn out beyond the desk, well under the operator's hand.

Third.—The construction of the lid closing machine space makes it air tight, and the table having felt around its boarders thoroughly protects the machine from dust.

Fourth.—The foot rest and the construction of the table adjustments makes the desk as ridged as though the top was one solid board, which is a matter of great importance where a solid type-writing table is required. No operator can do good work on a shaky table.

Lastly.—The cabinet is a splendid piece of cabinet work. We manufacture them in Walnut, Antique Oak, Natural Oak, Natural Cherry, Cherry imitation, Mahogany and Ash.

Agents wanted to sell these cabinets, and where we have no agencies established we will sell direct from our works at wholesale prices.

WHEN YOU COME TO

THE -:- FAIR

See WOOD, CRANE & WOOD, One Price Cloth'rs

AT ADRIAN.

The way to sell clothing is to mark a price in plain figures just as low as the article can be sold for. This advantage to the customer is more than would appear at first thought. One price means a price marked before the customer comes, at the lowest possible price it can be sold for, whether you buy or not. Two prices is a price made after the customer comes in. If he is a clever, easy going buyer he pays two profits. If he is a close, hard buyer, he pays as much or more than we would ask him, and it takes a half day to Jew down that six dollars that in all probability they have asked him extra, because they know him to be that kind of a buyer. You are playing another man's game when you buy of a two priced clothier. You always pay him a profit and sometimes two.

THE LENAWEE CLUB PICNIC.

CHICAGO, Sep. 22, 1889.

EDITOR OF HERALD.—Wednesday the 18th of September was one of the most disagreeable days I ever saw at this time of the year. The dawn ushered in a cold, blustery day, that made one dream of beautiful Florence with its thirty degrees of variation in temperature in the whole year. "Oh, dear!" sighed the members of the Lenawee Club, "If to-morrow should be like to-day what would become of the much talked of re-union and picnic?" But "to-morrow" was a great improvment and the sun shone in a cloudless sky. Before noon, though, the wind arose and made us doubt that many would turn out to meet the club in Jackson Park.

At about one o'clock I reached the corner of Madison and State and found a little group of people waiting for a Hyde Park car. Shortly we were whirling Southward and after a ride of eight miles we reached the entrance to Jackson Park. We made tracks for the pavillion at once, where we found awaiting us, Miss Olie Seifert-Wilson, Mrs. Franc Hall and Mrs. Chas. Slayton and daughter, (formerly of Hudson,) and Mr. and Mrs. Beckler, (from Britton's.) We found the wind very uncomfortable, and begun to wish we had voted for a different weather clerk last fall. The members of the club and their friends soon began to arrive in good numbers and by the good will of a policeman we found a nice, cosy place in a grove where we were sheltered from the wind and warmed by the sun.

The gentlemen soon dragged tables together and then the ladies busied themselves in getting the repast in shape for the attack which was soon to be made. After the lay-out was ready the company collected in little groups and visited, or wandered around getting acquainted over again, and a little after four the president of the club had to begin hustling to get them around the tables. Particular efforts were made to see that our friend Scove, who had made his appearance some time before this, was well placed and kept supplied with the best the larder afforded. A jollier little crowd never collected in Jackson Park, and all were pleased with the success of the picnic, although so many were kept away by the dread of a cold day in the park. As it was, there were just fifty on hand.

Mr. D. H. Spencer, at one time a popular photographer in Adrian, was on hand with his camera, and after the repast was over made a group of the club. The pictures will be shown at the next meeting of the club. Mrs. Andrew Pearson brought the old horse over to the park and all who wished were treated to a ride around the beautiful drives. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott drove over to the picnic and were treated to a run-a-way on the return home, but no damage was done.

Before separating for the night it was voted that the club would attend the exposition on Thursday evening, Oct. 3rd. The place of meeting will be at the fountain, time 6:30. At 8 o'clock the grand rounds will be commenced, the art gallery getting the most attention. The next regular meeting of the club will be held at the Grand Pacific hotel on Tuesday evening, Oct. 8th.

Miss Olie Seifert-Wilson left last night for an extended visit in New York City. May she have a jolly time and return safely to her many friends here.

The fire at the exposition building a week ago has materially affected the attendance from the country, but needlessly, as the damage was fully repaired before last Wednesday night. The collection of pictures is the best and the largest for several seasons and they are well worth a long trip to see. The Libby Prison museum is now open to the public and bids fair to be one of the greatest attractions of this great city. I intend to visit the Prison soon and will write you about it.

"CLEOPATRA."

H. Rider Haggard's Latest Novel—A Wonderful Story, and Conceded by Critics to Be His Best—It Will Shortly Be Published in This Paper.

H. Rider Haggard, while one of the youngest of the English novelists, is by no means the least famous. In fact, for striking originality, strength of plot, power and beauty of narration, he stands foremost among the great writers of the day. The extraordinary sale of his works attests in an undisputable way his immense popularity among the reading public wherever the English language is spoken; to say nothing of the fact that they have been translated into nearly all of the foreign languages. There are few people in this country who have not read "She," "Jess," or "King Solomon's Mines," hence the announcement of still another story from Mr. Haggard's pen can not but awaken the liveliest anticipations of pleasure among all lovers of the best serial fiction. "Cleopatra," Mr. Haggard's latest and (the critics say) his best story, and which will shortly be begun in these columns, is, in fact, an historical romance of ancient Egypt. Cleopatra, one of the most famous women of either ancient or modern times, is, of course, the central character of the story, while Antony, scarcely less prominent as an historic figure, is also an important personage in the tale. But it is around Egypt's wondrous Queen, a woman in whom the world has never lost its interest, that Mr. Haggard has woven a romance so fanciful that the never-to-be-forgotten fairy tales of childhood pale before its dazzling splendor, its weird mysteries and its vivid picturing. "She," which did more to win Mr. Haggard name and fame than all his previous works, and which stands almost unsurpassed among the spectacular stories of the day, is not superior to "Cleopatra" in its Oriental gorgeousness; while in many respects the latter is a far superior piece of literary work. But what surprises, as well as delights, the reader of "Cleopatra," is the amount of historic lore it contains, and which must have cost its author years of research and study. Indeed, in the dedication of the work to his mother, who, it seems, is also an Egyptian scholar of much learning, Mr. Haggard hints at the vast amount of labor which he was compelled to perform in gathering the materials for his story. The same attentive labor and research is also continued and carried out in the illustrations by Grieffenhagen, who has made a life study of Egyptian lore, and whose splendidly artistic and classical pictures for this story have been redrawn and adapted for newspaper use by one of the most competent artists in the West.

Briefly stated, "Cleopatra" is supposed to be a translation from three rolls of papyri found in the coffin of a mummy who existed in Cleopatra's days and who was himself the hero of this tale. This mummy, known in life as Harmachis, was held by the native priests of Egypt to be a direct descendant of the ancient Pharaohs, and figured as the leader in a conspiracy to overthrow the hated Queen. Instead of slaying her, as had been plotted, Harmachis falls a victim to her witcheries and for a brief period plays the part of a favored lover. He is, however, soon cast aside, when, being enraged at such treatment, he works out a secret vengeance which results in the ruin of Cleopatra and her favored Antony. This is, of course, but the barest hint at the plot of the story, but enough, we trust, to give those who are familiar with Mr. Haggard's work an idea of the treat in store for them when they come to a perusal of this, his latest and best piece of romantic fiction. As stated before, it will shortly be begun in these columns and given in liberal installments until completed. We bespeak for it a hearty welcome at the hands of our readers and at the same time congratulate them that we have been able to secure this certainly wonderful and charming tale.

The Detroit Tribune is 60 years old, and is today a better newspaper than at any previous time in its history. Its publishers aim to make its weekly edition a distinctively Michigan newspaper. It consists of 12 pages, containing 84 columns of just the reading matter that Michigan people desire, and in no department is it wanting in interest and excellence. The publishers make the most liberal premium offer that has yet come to our notice. For $2 they send the Weekly Tribune one year and Dickens' complete works, (15 vols., paper) or Scott's complete works, (12 vols., paper) or for $3 the Tribune one year and both sets of books. The books are delivered to subscribers free of all express charges or postage. Thus for one dollar added to the price of the Tribune its subscribers get a full set of Dickens' or Scott's handsomely printed on good paper. The Tribune with this remarkable premium will be clubbed with the HERALD for $3.

by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflammed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness, (caused by catarrh,) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

CATARRH.

Catarrhal Deafness, Hay Fever—A New Home Treatment.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membranes of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic researches, however, has proven this to be a fact, and result is that a simple remedy has been formulated, whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are permanently cured in from one to the applications made at home by the patient once in two weeks. N. B.—For catarrhal discharges peculiar to females (whites) this remedy is a specific. A pamphlet of this new treatment is sent on receipt of ten cents by A. H. Dixon & Son, 303 west King street, Toronto, Canada. [Scientific American.

Sufferers from catarrhal troubles should read the above carefully.

A GENEROUS OFFER.—The celebrated Dr. Gleason, after a practice of forty years, having during all that time made the cure of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption his special study, has in this time so perfected his treatment as to be able to cure nearly all who suffer from these complaints. Having reached the age of seventy years, he realizes that the time is near at hand when these valuable remedies must be in other hands or become lost to the world. Desiring that his Home Treatment should be within the reach of all, he has placed the prescriptions with the Hall Chemical Company; this company, knowing the wonderful success of the Home Treatment in the cure of all Throat and Lung Troubles, have decided to send the full treatment ON TRIAL to any one who wishes to try it. Dr. Gleason has also written a valuable treatise on these diseases, which is profusely illustrated with finely executed wood-cuts, showing the Head, Throat and Lungs as they are when diseased; it discusses in an able manner the cause and cure of these complaints; it is printed on heavy super-calendered paper and handsomely bound. Mr. H. called to the man to stop whipping his horse and he would let him by, but he paid no attention. The deceased was a native of Ridgeway, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman VanValkenburg, and leaves a husband and two children bereft of a companion and a mother, while sisters and brothers bury a sister. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. James Wright from the Christian church, Britton, on Wednesday, Sept. 25th, 1889, at 10 A. M., and her remains were intered in Ridgeway cemetery. TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, OCT. 3.

The big show at Detroit beat them all. Michigan has reason to be proud of her metropolis

The farmers' club season opened last evening with a good meeting at Abner Wilson's by the Tecumseh and Franklin club.

Our club rates for October are published in another column. Our new serial story begins this week. Take advantage of them at once and begin now.

The people of Michigan can congratulate themselves on the fact that they have no state election on their hands this fall.

The campaign in Virginia is waxing red hot and the result in that state will be of national significance. President Harrison's new southern policy is on trial there.

The Detroit newspapers have been in clover during the past two weeks. Between the big show and the indictments against the boodlers, there has been no dearth of news.

This will be a memorable year. It began with an eclipse and will end with one. The Samoan disaster was the greatest of its kind. Then came the Johnston horror, and the burning of Seattle, and now comes the awful landslide at Quebec.

The contest for the world's fair in 1892 is waxing warm. While New York is quarreling over a site, Chicago is taking subscriptions for a guarantee fund. St. Louis also is waking up. Washington seems to be "laying on her oars," but will probably get in her work when Congress meets.

The President is having a pretty tough time, hunting up a pension commissioner. No man of ability and common sense cares to sacrifice himself. The new commissioner must run the office on a Tanner platform, and if he does run it on that basis he will wreck the administration. Take it all round, it is a very interesting muddle.

If Michigan Republicans lose so large a plum as a Justiceship of the Supreme Court of the United States because they find it impossible to dwell together in unity, they will probably regret that the lions and lambs of the various party factions have not been whipped into decorously lying down together. The great trouble is that there is no one with authority enough to wield the whip, and this fact causes the more mature members of the party to sigh for the old days when, if Zachariah Chandler took snuff in Washington, the shores of Michigan echoed with Republican sneezes.—Detroit Free Press.

Mahogany doesn't grow in this country and there is no sign or rumor of a syndicate to undertake its cultivation, yet an ad valorem duty of 35 per cent is decreed by the present peculiar methods in vogue at the treasury department at Washington. The decision is made upon the grounds that the mahogany imported from the West Indies, being sawed into heavy planks for convenience in handling, thus becomes a "manufactured article," subject to duty. If it were imported in the tree, roots, branches and all, it might come in free with satinwood, ebony, rosewood and the like. The makers of fine furniture are furious over the manifest straining of the letter of the law, but are mildly reminded that it was a good time to enter their protest before election.—Toleno Bee.

Who would have supposed ten years ago, that Gen. Mahone would become the Republican leader of Virginia, its candidate for governor and the supreme dispenser of the patronage of a Republican national administration? The man who wore his Confederate military hat and cockade on all occasions after the war, as public symbols of his undying devotion to the lost cause, stripped them off only when he had to become Republican because he was kicked out of both the Democracy and the Virginia railroads to save them from utter wreck, is now the so-called Republican leader and candidate for governor. In point of fact, there is no Republicanism in the state; it is only Mahoneism. Well, the whirligig of politics makes strange political fellowship. Mahone and Mosby are Republican leaders, and thats the end on't.—Philadelphia Times.

SOUTHERN DEVELOPMENT.

The New Orleans Times-Democrat prints its yearly review of the progress of the southern states for the business ending September 1, and the showing is very satisfactory. Summarized, it estimates the real wealth of the southern states at $8,647,890,028 which represents an addition of $2,922,890,028 in ten years. During this time the debt of the southern states has been reduced 34,489,167. While the revenues have increased 60 per cent, the rate of taxation has been reduced from 4.60 to 4.23 mills on the dollar. From tables of statistics the Baltimore Sun makes [illegible] as follows:

Railroad mileage has grown in the nine years from 17,808 to 36,686 miles, with 2,447 more under construction. Cotton mills have increased from 142, with 542,148 spindles, to 330, with 1,859,626 spindles. Cottonseed mills show a still larger development, the increase having been from 45 in 1880 to 214 in 1889. The value of the oil produced in 1880 was $7,690,921; To-day it is $17,669,710.. The statistics of the iron production of the south suggest a like movement. The admission is, in fact, now general that the north cannot produce iron as cheaply as the south, with its exceptional advantages, and that the future home of the great iron industry of the country is in Dixie. The product of pig iron in 1880 was 212,722 tons; this year it is 1,245,595 tons—figures that signify a great deal. Related to the production of iron is the production of coal, which is now 12,376,500 tons per annum against 1,963,574 tons in 1880. The value of the annual product of minerals of all kinds was $3,347 445 in 1880; in 1889 it is $29,476,432, an increase of 780 per cent. The lumber product has more than doubled in value, and the same maybe said of the fruit product. Live stock has increased in annual value from $391 312,254 to $551.528,731. Agricultural products show a growth in annual value from $611,679,048 to $868,989,523. The total addition to the agricultural, industrial and mineral wealth of the south last year was $1,631,513,686 as against 1,089,365,654 in 1880, showing a large increase of productive capacity. Along with this increase of profits there has been a gratifying increase of expenditure for schools. In 1880 the outlay for public schools was $6,145,706; in 1889 it is $13,905,304, an increase of 27.8 per cent. In every item of the list the percentage of growth has been in advance of the growth of population. In 1830 the population was 14,639,714; in 1889 it is estimated to be 19,304,123, an increase of 32.2 per cent.

In this splendid showing the whole country will rejoice. When one section of a country is prosperous the whole country is benefited. The advancement of the iron industry in the south is destined to be a great national issue, and the sure foundation upon which rests southern industrial development, will force this government to enlarge the privilege of general commercial intercourse. Home market talk is becoming silly. America wants markets everywhere, and the great south and the great north will be rivals in trade, and fraters in good will. No other sectionalism will be allowed.

SUMMARY OF SIX MONTHS.

Reviewing the developments of the first six months of President Harrison's administration, the New York Evening Post presents the following count:

First, there is Tanner and his course in the pension bureau. That is by common consent a national scandal of such serious proportions that leading newspapers of the president's party are calling for Tanner's removal as the only thing which can save the administration from disgrace and the national treasury from possible bankruptcy. Second, there is the choice by the president of "Tom" Platt, "Matt" Quay and Mahone, of Virginia, as the men to whom he prefers to hand over the patronage of the government to be used by them in building up a political machine. Third, there is an increase of over $7,000,000 in the public debt during the last third of the six months, though for the corresponding period in every one of President Cleveland's four years there was an average decrease of about $10,000,000. Fourth, in removals from office without cause the president has surpassed all previous records, and has so completely broken not only the pledge of his party's platform, but his own personal pledges as well, that there is a formidable movement in the republican party for the unconditional repeal of the civil-service law. The net result of the six months' work is a lower moral tone in politics than the country has shown since 1872.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON D.C. Sept 27.

Corporal Tanner's just published letter to "Private" Dalzell, of Ohio, reflecting upon his removal from the Commissionership of Pensions kills what little chance he had of retaining even the pretended friendship of the administration. The letter is marked "confidential," and there is a postscript asking the Private not to say anything about it, but that will hardly save Mr. Tanner, who ought to know Dalzell thoroughly. It was while Mr. Tanner was in office that Dalzell published his letter informing all old solders that they were entitled to certain additional bounty, to which the law gives no title whatever. That letter created an enormous amount of trouble to the Treasury department and the Pension office alike, and was deemed at the time to be little less than a deliberate sensational lie, or else Dalzell must have been crazy when he wrote it. Dalzell is a blatherskite and Mr. Tanner should have known it. Yet he wrote a confidential letter to him, reflecting upon the administration.

If the letter, as published, is correct, it shows how little Mr. Tanner understands the actual workings of the Pension Bureau. He writes to Dalzell this, among other things: "My second order was, thereafter in the settlement of a pension claim the word of a private, if he was a man of good character and standing, should amount to as much in the settlement of a claim as the word of a man who has worn shoulder straps." Though the testimony of a commissioned officer was for years demanded, where it could be supplied, the testimony of a reputable private has not for the last ten years, been regarded as of less weight than that of a reputable commissioned officer and there never was a time when the uncorroborated testimony of one commissioned officer would establish the origin of a disability in service. Owing to the defective and bungling English in one of of the Pension Bureau's official circulars it would seem as if the testimony of an officer was of more value than that of a private, but Corporal Tanner should know better.

In fact Mr. Tanner misunderstands the nature of his own order. His order was to the effect that the evidence of one comrade, "taken in connection with the testimony of the claimant himself, if reputable," should be sufficient in any case, thus throwing the granting of a pension practically upon the unsupported testimony of one man, for it would be bad law as well bad equity to hold that the claimants statement could be regarded as evidence. The rule that two disinterested witnesses are required to establish a fact as to any claim against the government permits the departmental practice and Mr. Tanner's childish effort to make the claimant himself such as a "witness" was well met by Secretary Noble's reversal. In supposing that the uncorroborated testimony of one commissioned officer was enough to establish origin in pension claims, Mr. Tanner betrays only a small portion of his delightful and extensive ignorance.

The offcial announcement from Deer Park of Ex-Congressman Warner's unqualified refusal of the Commissionership of Pensions leaves that vexed question as far from settlement as ever and there is no prospect that the President will settle the matter until his return to Washington, which he does well, by the way, to make as early as possible, if he is not callous to the criticism of his unreasonably long absence from the seat of government. In the meantime the Commissionership is an unsolved problem.

The Republican congressmen who happen to be in the city are regaining hope with the President's announcement that he will return to Washington to morrow, probably. For several weeks there has been bitter complaint on the part of the visiting congressmen at the alleged unnecessary delay of departmental officials in the settlement of local officers. At the Postoffice department everyone seems afraid to move in the absence of Assistant Post-master General Clarkson and in other departments the officals will not put forward hand or foot save at the order of the President. The Republican politicians of all classes are clamorous for the immediate turning over of all offices held by Democrats, and in states like Ohio the danger threatens in no uncertain tones, for the people will hold their representatives in Congress personally responsible. These representatives in their turn, rush on to Washington and do their best and meet defeat.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter of a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEER, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

BEWARE!

I KNOW of soaps quite fair to see,
Take care!
They can both white and spurious be,
Beware! Beware!
Trust them not,
They are fooling thee!

They claim to be the purest made,
Take care!
They are of an inferior grade,
Beware! Beware!
Trust them not,
Buy the IVORY!

If they are recommended you,
Take care!
The grocer speaks not always true,
Beware! Beware!
Like as not
He is fooling thee!

Some counterfeits are white as snow,
Take care!
Almost like Ivory Soap they show,
Beware! Beware!
Trust them not,
They are fooling thee!

Hold on to that and shun the rest,
Take care!
It is the cheapest and the best;
Of frauds beware!
Trust them not,
Trust pure IVORY.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

FOUL AND FIENDISH

Death No Atonement for This Devilish Crime.

THE DEEPEST DEPTH OF ATROCITY

Perpetrated on a Beautiful and Unprotected Girl—The Last Enormity of the Woman-Killing Monstrosity—The Victim Chloroformed by a Rejected Suitor, Violated and Then Carbolic Acid Forced Down Her Throat and She Left Dying—Hunting the Monster.

SABETHA, Kan., Sept. 30.—Miss Eva Purty, the 20-year-old daughter of a wealthy farmer living near Sabetha, was engaged to marry the son of a neighbor. Last Monday she received an anonymous note, in which her life was threatened unless she renounced the man of her choice and bestowed her affections upon the writer, whose identity was plainly revealed as one of her rejected suitors. The girl showed the letter to her father, but when he went to find the young man who wrote it that worthy had left the county.

Dragged from Her Home.

At 11 o'clock yesterday morning, when Miss Purty was at home alone in the farmhouse, her parents having gone to church, a masked man was seen by a neighbor's child to enter the house in a manner so stealthy as to arouse suspicion. The fact was reported, and Farmer Purty was summoned from church. On arriving home he found the kitchen in a state of great disorder, as though a fierce struggle had taken place there, and the room was full of the strong odor of chloroform. Across the yard to a cornfield was a trail showing that a person had been dragged bodily from the house, and just hidden in the ripening corn lay the unconscious body of Eva Purty.

An Unspeakable Crime.

Her person had been violated and an attempt to murder her had been made by forcing a quantity of carbolic acid down her throat. The flesh of the face and neck is terribly burned and swollen, while the inside of the mouth and throat are fearfully eaten by the drug. The girl was carried to the house and every effort was made to restore her, but late last night physicians declared she cannot recover. A score of men are scouring the country in search of the miscreant who committed the fiendish assault.

ANOTHER JEALOUS DASTARD.

A Young Woman Shot by a Cowardly Hound Who Escapes.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 30.—John Frieze, aged 22 years, has been paying court for several months to Miss Georgie Stone, 19 years of age, who lives in the northern suburbs of Baltimore, and it was understood that they were engaged. Yesterday afternoon Frieze met Miss Stone walking on the Falls road with Robert Moore. The jealous Frieze upbraided the girl and told her if she did not cut Moore's acquaintance he would cut hers.

"Then consider all at an end between us," retorted the girl.

"Yes, and consider that as an end to you," said Frieze, as he quickly drew a pistol and fired.

He fired three shots. The first struck her in the eye; the second in the abdomen; the third missed the mark. Frieze then fled and has not yet been captured. Miss Stone is lying at her home in a critical condition.

THE DISASTER AT PALATINE.

Only Four Persons Killed—Sad End to a Honeymoon—The Wounded.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Friday night's reports of the accident to the St. Louis express near Palatine bridge were much exaggerated. It turns out that only four persons were killed. The wreck might have deprived a couple of railways—the C., C., C. and I., and the Michigan Central—of their respective presidents, as both, H. B. Ledyard, of the latter, and M. E. Ingalls, of the former, were in their private cars which were part of the train. Mr. Ledyard's car was damaged, but he escaped unhurt, as did Mr. Ingalls. Mrs. Ingalls, who was with her husband, was not so fortunate, being slightly hurt.

Following are the names of those killed, and who were dug out of the wreck after some very hard work: Rev. Prentice Duve, Dayton, O., aged about 60 years; Sadie Boyd, Westport, N. Y., maid to Mrs. W. H. Manning, aged about 24; William H. Manning a real estate dealer, of Marquette, Mich., and Charles Franklin, porter on Pullman car, aged 28.

The wounded were: Mrs. W. H. Manning, Westport, injured about the head; Miss Tate, Fredonia, back hurt and face cut; Engineer Horth, Albany, both legs broken and otherwise injured; R. A. Fowler, a lumber dealer, New York, concussion of the spine and otherwise seriously injured; William H. McElroy, H. J. Lewis, and W. H. England, New York, injured slightly.

The Saddest Feature of the Disaster.

The most pathetic feature of the accident was the killing of W. H. Manning. Mr. Manning a few weeks ago came east to Westport, N. Y., where he married Miss Julia Davis, a wealthy and beautiful young lady. They had passed a few weeks of their honeymoon in the east and had started for their new home, where an elegantly furnished house awaited them. He was thought not to be fatally hurt when first rescued from the wreck and was encouraged to think that he would pull through, but died soon after being removed to Hotel Wagner at Canajoharie. His wife is a beautiful little woman and was very brave. She declared that she was all right when the rescuers reached her, and told them to look to her husband. Mr. Manning was a relative of the late Secretary Manning.

A Deficiency in Cotton.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 28.—An inventory of the stock of cotton here shows a deficiency of 69,000 bales as compared with the estimated stock. Of this decrease 30,000 bales are American, 23,000 Egyptian and 16,000 other kinds. The cotton corner is largely strengthened by this condition of the visible supply. It is reported that the principal cotton operators here have arranged to send the bulk of the cotton tendered them to Havre and thus starve the Liverpool market.

Failure at Peoria, Ills.

PEORIA, Ills., Sept. 26.—The clothing and furnishing goods house of Sol Bennett Bros. & Co. was closed yesterday by the sheriff. The firm was a heavy dealer in clothing and also manufactured extensively, particularly overalls. Judgments and suits have been entered against the firm to the amount of $82,000.

Ives' Jury Disagrees.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The jury in the Ives case came into court yesterday morning and reported that they could not agree. The stood nine for guilty, two for not guilty and one on the fence. Ives will have a new trial.

GENEROUSLY PAID MINERS.

A Voluminous Address to Governor Fifer from W. L. Scott.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Sept. 28.—W. L. Scott, the president of the Spring Valley Coal company, has prepared a voluminous address to Governor Fifer in which he shows that the company which he represents is a much maligned corporation, and that instead of paying its employes pauper wages it has paid them princely salaries, the average earnings of the men being $582.79 per annum. Mr. Scott's address opens with a long description of how the Spring Valley Coal company was organized. He then dwells on the fact that the railroads discriminated against his company, making the cost of bringing its coal to market much greater than that of other companies.

Claims the Miners Were Well Paid.

He then, by the use of many figures, shows how generously the miners were paid. The Braidwood miners received 80 cents per ton for coal and 15 cents for clearing away forty-two inches of stone to make a sufficiently large passage to work in, while the Spring Valley men were paid 90 cents for mining a ton of coal and clearing away fifteen inches of stone. If the pay for clearing away the refuse was at the same rate in both mines the Spring Valley men would have received but 85.71 cents for their labor. He then shows that the cost of mining coal at Spring Valley was 25.84 cents greater than at Braidwood. The miners at Braidwood now receive 72½ cents per ton, and at the same rate for actual work done the Spring Valley men would receive 68.14 cents, while the company offers to pay them 75 cents.

Will Stand on Their Rights.

Mr. Scott then shows how the company's store lost instead of made money, and winds up with the following statement: "We now propose to stand on our legal, moral and equitable rights. No amount of personal misrepresentation and abuse, emanating from a gang of professional agitators at Spring Valley and circulated throughout the country by a partisan press, can drive us or influence us to resume work at Spring Valley upon any other basis for mining than at a relative price to that paid by other mines in your state where the conditions are similar, unless we choose to do so voluntarily."

TERRIBLE FURNACE ACCIDENT.

Five Men Burned, Two Fatally, by an Outburst of Molten Iron.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept 27.—Furnace "C" of the Edgar Thompson Steel works, at Braddock, was not working satisfactorily yesterday, and at 7 o'clock last evening Capt. W. R. Jones, manager of the steel works, together with six of his men, went to work to remedy the trouble. It was discovered that a hard crust of cinder had formed inside of the furnace. An orifice, fifteen inches in diameter, was made through the side of the furnace stack—which is eighty feet high and twenty in diameter. Through this hole a heavy iron bar was used to break the cinder crust.

A River of Molten Metal.

In an instant the crust gave way, and a perfect river of molten iron and cinder gushed through the aperture, literally covering Capt. Jones and his workmen in a sea of flame, and hurling them in all directions. Capt. Jones was picked up from the sand pit, fully forty feet from the stack. The others were lifted about the same distance, in other directions. A Hungarian, who was in the party, has not yet been found.

The Frightful Results.

The fatally burned are: Mike Quinn, foreman; Harry Connell, probably fatally burned; Patrick Burns, seriously burned; John Nee, seriously burned; Capt. Jones is terribly burned and his physicians are apprehensive, but hopeful. The scenes immediately following the accident are almost beyond description, the immense stack house being fairly overflown with the seething liquid fire.

A Boiler Explosion Kills Four Men.

BERLIN, Pa., Sept. 25.—The boiler in Fritz Bro's. saw-mill, near here, burst yesterday, killing John Fritz, Edward Fritz, Oliver Ross and David Baker, all young men of this vicinity. Two men named Brant were badly hurt, but may recover.

Hon. John T. Nixon Dead.

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 28.—Hon. John T. Nixon, judge of the United States district court for New Jersey, died here Saturday. His body will be conveyed to his late home in Trenton, where the funeral services will be held on Tuesday next. The burial will be at Bridgeton, N. J. Judge Nixon was born at Fairton, N. J., on Aug. 31, 1820. He was graduated from Princeton college in 1841, and became a student of law. He was elected to the New Jersey legislature in 1849 and 1850, and in the latter year was speaker of the assembly. In 1858 he was an Independent candidate for congress in the First congressional district of New Jersey, and was elected by a very large vote. He was re-elected as a Republican in 1860. In 1870 he was appointed by President Grant to the judgeship which he held till his death.

Another Chicago Embezzler.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Henry F. Clifford, the bookkeeper for Gibson, Parish & Co., who discovered a discrepancy of $30,000 in the cash of the firm just before its failure, and who disappeared from his home Sept. 18, is wanted for alleged embezzlement of the firm's money. A reward of $500 has been offered for the arrest of the fugitive. Clifford, it is claimed, robbed his employers systematically for a long time. It was not until the examination of the books after the failure that it was discovered that he was an embezzler. The amount of his peculations, so far as discovered, is $20,000, with the probability that the sum will amount to double that figure.

Death of a Famous Scout.

KEARNEY, Neb., Sept. 28.—E. G. Bartlett, better known in pioneer days as "Wild Curly," died here Friday. In 1848 Curly walked from Wisconsin to Omaha and joined Fremont's expedition across the continent. Later he joined the regular army and became a famous scout, and was one of the survivors of the Mountain Meadow massacre. His death was caused by cancer of the tongue.

Will Go into the Courts.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Charley Bastian, who during the absence of Williamson played shortstop for the Chicago club Friday received the notification of his release. He is highly indignant at the treatment he has received this season, and after consulting a lawyer decided to begin suit for the full amount of his salary since his engagement with the Chicago club.

A Failure in Lumber.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Robert Larkin, lumber dealer at Twenty-second street and Union place, made a voluntary assignment Friday for the benefit of his creditors to Nathaniel M. Jones. He schedules assets amounting to $65,300 and liabilities to $37,700. Most of the creditors are out-of-town parties.

Is Consumption Incurable?

Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, am now on my third bottle and able to oversee the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

LONG LIFE.

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought untill we recive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered in America, was in a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names and guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them.

They do not know, of course, unless they have courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why dont you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but one dollar for a very large bottle. Try it at once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggists may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine—of health.

DR. ERASMUS' MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such, that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

DETROIT'S BIG SHOW.

THE FINEST EXHIBITION EVER HELD IN THE STATE—ECLIPSES ALL OTHER CITY EXPOSITIONS.

A Brief Account of the Principle Exhibits and Attractions as Seen by a Representative of the Herald—Immense Crowds and Fair Weather.

To attempt to give a full and detailed account of the Detroit exposition in a brief newspaper article is impossible, and we must content ourselves with only a general outline—a [illegible] show. The metropolis of Michigan has at last awakened from her lethargic sleep and furnished an exhibition that the state may well be proud of. We might remark right here that Detroit is growing—is experiencing a good healthy growth. New dwellings are in process of construction on every hand, from the modest two story frame house to the elegant stone mansions on the avenue. Factories and mills have covered the many goose pastures which were to be seen along the railroads going into the city five years ago. Then there is the river with its panorama of boats sweeping by every minute, and the number has increased in the last few years. Beautiful Belle Isle has been connected with the city by a bridge, and when the boulevard is finished Detroit may well put on metropolitan airs.

The exposition grounds, located about five miles out Fort st, on the edge of the river, are reached by street car, boat or railroad, and the immense crowds are easily handled in a very short time. The most pleasant and popular is the river route, and a dozen steamers were crowded each trip. The grounds comprise about 70 acres at the mouth of the river Rouge, many acres of it being made ground, as it was formerly a marsh. The work of filling in and erecting the immense buildings was all done during the past spring and summer, and the transformation has been marvellous. Two miniature lakes lie in front of the main building near the river, in one of which was a merry-go-round, consisting of a number of boats propelled by sails. The main building is said to be the largest permanent exposition building in the country. Besides this there are five large live stock buildings 300 feet square, a large handsome art gallery, and several other buildings for the accomodation of officers, and small exhibitors' booths without number. A fine view of the city and surrounding country is had from the balconies around the main building, and the front balcony was a favorite place for the crowd to congregate to hear the afternoon concerts by Cappa's famous band. The exposition might be called a small city in itself. Besides an express, telegraph and telephone office, there were on the grounds a fire department, a hospital, a gospel tent where evangelist Wills held forth, a police station and justice court. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John B. Whelan was on duty during the ten days to help dispose of the drunks pickpockets, etc. The W. C. T. U. also had a tent and reading room.

Fears were entertained at first that it would be impossible to secure exhibits to fill the great space which the buildings enclosed, but the chief difficulty which the management encountered was their inability to find room for the overflowing entries in all departments. Every department was crowded and persons coming there with the expectation of seeing everything in a day, went away with a very confused idea of the whole show. We spent two days on the grounds to good advantage, and had an idea we could find something to look at on the third that we had not seen.

A balloon ascension and parachute dro, was an outside feature that attracted much attention, and also an exhibition by Dobbins' life saving crew on the lake. Side shows were in abundance on the grounds and everything imaginable were in them. The palace of illusions probably drew the largest crowd of any of them. The entertainment was certainly unique. The exhibition given by Prof. Woodward and his trained seals was witnessed by hundreds of people at each performance. They were in the department with the poultry. In the same building an "automatic harbor" was an object of much interest, and comprised a tank of water on which were several boats. A railroad train ran across a miniature bridge, a locomotive was turning around on a turntable, a pile driver was in motion, and with several other machines moved automatically together.

The stock exhibit was complete in every department, and was the finest display ever shown in the state. Among the principal exhibitors in the horse show were Savage & Farnum, John A. Logan, Jr., and Minister Palmer. All kinds of horses were there—the great big percheron, and the little shetland, the Cleveland bay and the sleek French coach horses. The cattle and swine show was as complete and delighted the eye of the farmer. Geese, and every kind of chicken that anybody ever heard of were there. Walt. Osborn showed several pens of his pure bred Poland China swine, and captured some premiums.

The sights in the main building were calculated to draw the largest crowd, and the crowd was generally there. Mabley & Co. occupied a prominent place on the first floor. The booths were three in number, built castle style with plate glass sides and corner pinnacles. "Liberty enlightening the world" was on one corner of the largest booth. She held a torch in one hand and a book in the other. The booths were filled with an elegant assortment of the goods which they handle. Berry Bros., varnish men, had an odd booth. Its walls were made of small chunks of varnish gum cemented together and coated over with a cement made by the firm. The gum comes from New Zealand and was in its pure state. The booth is said to have cost $10,000. The Northern Pacific Railroad Co. occupied a pretty booth at the east end of the main floor, and showed a fine display of grains, fruits and timber products along their great line in the northwest. The Michigan Fish Commission had an acquarium on the ground floor, and their display of the different varieties of fish drew an admiring crowd continually. A splendid display of fruits and vegetables was made by the Michigan State Horticulture society on the second floor. The fruit display comprised 8500 plates, about 2000 being apples, 500 pears, 300 peaches, 400 plums, 100 grapes, and 200 small fruits With a few exceptions the fruits were wholly of Michigan production. The Lenawee county society had a splendid collection of general fruit, and took first prize. The collection above comprised 103 varieties of apples, 40 of pears, 38 of grapes, 6 of peaches, 4 of plums, and one of persimmons.

Vail & Crane treated the crowd to crackers and showed an immense revolving cracker tower. They also had a model of a cracker machine on exhibition which turns out 2000 a minute at the factory.

In the north gallery about 50 cigar makers attracted much attention. They each wore white caps and were engaged in rolling cigars. At one end of the space a machine was in operation also rolling cigars, and the one machine run by two persons, rolled as many cigars in a day as the 50 men, although of an inferior quality. Another interesting exhibit was Pingree & Smith's shoe factory in machinery hall. About 50 hands were employed making both hand and machine made shoes. It showed the process used in the manufacture of shoes and the machinery employed is the best and latest known to modern ingenuity. The machines for cutting button holes and sewing on buttons does wonderfully rapid work, and the Goodyear stitching machine turns out shoes which none but an expert can tell from hand sewed The machine for nailing on heal seats of shoes was run by an employee 75 years old, who at the factory can turn out 1500 pairs a day. The main driving engine was an object of interest. It registered 300 horse power. It is a massive and heavy piece of machinery, but small for the great power it produces, which is due to its admirable construction. The great fly wheel makes 175 revolutions a minute. The display made by a tobacco firm in the center aisle was conspicuous and artistic. The articles were made almost entirely of tobacco and cigarettes, and the greatest originality was evinced in their design and arrangement. Two prominent objects were an old mill and an Egyptian pyramid made entirely of cigarettes. At one end of the display was an old Virginia farm, and at the other a representation of a factory. A 12 pound howitzer guarded the exhibit. The new phonograph was there and everybody stopped to test it. The lightning chromo artist was there also and painted a picture in from three to five minutes, and kept a crowd around him continually. There was music in the air from morning till night. Pianos of all kinds were on exhibition, and also several large church pipe organs. One piano played continually being run by electricity. A Buffalo soap company had a very showy exhibit. On a platform were two cannons, one on each front corner. In the rear were two large pieces of statuary, and in the center a small fountain of soapsuds. The whole being made of white soap, and looked as solid as marble. Several little girls interested the crowd by blowing soap bubbles.

A $30,000 diamond dazzled the eyes of a majority of the people. It was in a fine jewelry display, and everybody wanted to take a look at it. It was about the size of a small hickory nut. Over 500 umbrellas filled one booth and no two were like.

The floral exhibit was one of great dimensions, and kept company with the array of fruits. Each of the two towers of the department and a large space adjoining one of them was filled with large palms, ferns, agaves and other foliage plants. In cut flowers the famous house of James Vick, of Rochester, N. Y. made an admirable exhibit. The Michigan Agriculture college made an excellent exhibit of the work done and vegetables grown, and will probably result in a practical benefit to that institution. Shipman's "koal kabin" was a unique piece of work. The booth was made entirely of coal and looked very pretty. Visitors were welcome to go inside and listen to the music.

Immediately over the main entrance was the exhibit of Wright, Kay & Co. In the background of their display was a number of English hall clocks, whose cases were handsome and very attractive. These clocks were a novelty in their way, and received much attention. The manufacturer of these clocks especially designed them for use in churches, public buildings and theaters. Harrington's tubular bells are placed within them, and they are consequently an economical and perfect substitute for bells for all purposes. It was the sweet sounding chimes from these clocks that we heard just after entering the building. Wright, Kay & Co. have demonstrated to their friends that it is not a difficult matter to display imported novelties, and the fine exhibit they are making is certainly deserving of mention. For the fall trade and the holidays they have selected a magnificent stock of goods; in fact the assortment to be shown will far eclipse any previous efforts, and their friends and patrons not residing in Detroit will find it to their advantage to call at the store, 140 Woodard Ave., while in the city.

There was one exhibit in the gallery of the main building which probably did not receive the attention that it really merited. We refer to the display of blank books, stationery, etc., by the Richmond & Backus company. It is not an easy matter to make an attractive and popular display of such goods, and yet what is more popular or universally used than these same things. At the office and factory, at home and abroad, wherever civilized man is found, there we find in common use these necessaries of social and business life. We might also add that here also were found articles of the Richmond & Backus manufacture, for some lines of their goods especially have a very widely extended sale.

The buildings and grounds were lighted by electricity at night and the effect was beautiful. Each of the towers on the main building was furnished with a cluster of lights and the grounds were also plentifully supplied with them, making the scene a brilliant one. The average attendance for the ten days was about 35000, making the show a success financially as well as otherwise.

NOTES FROM THE NORMAL.

At 7:40 o'clock a. m., a bell rings, which is the choir assembly bell. This is the signal for the members of the choir to meet for practice. The choir is composed of students who have had not less than ten weeks of vocal music and it consists of over one hundred members.

From 7:40 until 8:15 they are drilled by Prof. Pease. At 8:00 o'clock another bell rings which is a warning bell for the remainder of the students. Then at 8:10 o'clock a bell commences to ring and rings until 8:15. Those who are not in their seats at the close of the ringing of this bell are marked tardy, and must report the cause—the young ladies to Miss King and the young gentlemen to Mr. Sell—before assembly call next morning.

At 8:20 o'clock the chapel gong is sounded and the students march two and two to the chapel hall.

Fully ten minutes are occupied before the last of the long string of students have reached their seats in the hall. The choir, keeping time to the sway of Prof. Pease's scepter and accompanied by a large pipe organ, then sing a hymn. This is followed by responsive reading by the whole school, each student being supplied with a sheet of paper on which is printed the scripture lesson of the morning. Prayer is then offered by one of the professors, which ends in the Lord's prayer, in which upwards of seven hundred voices unite.

Many visitors are always in attendance at chapel exercises and they are an imposing beginning to the day's work.

Following the exercises, Prof. Sill generally occupies some time in making announcements giving directions with respect to the different departments, or a word of caution in regard to the rules of the school.

On chapel being dismissed the students march to their class rooms and recitations are in progress from then until one o'clock p. m. Those only who are engaged in the training department have to attend the afternoon session.

Salvation Oil, the greatest cure on earth for pain, has made a most brilliant debut. Price, 25 cts.

THE OLD HOUSE MADE NEW.

The improvements and repairs on the Presbyterian church having been completed, the edifice was opened for divine services last Sabbath. A large congregation assembled at the morning service to listen to a discourse from the pastor appropriate to the reopening.

The sermon was founded on Psalm 100-4, "Enter into his gates with thanksgiving and into his courts with praise."

After speaking of the importance of the public worship of God and of having a suitable place in which to meet for this worship, he alluded to the liberality manifested by those who 25 years ago, erected the goodly house of worship in which they were then met. He spoke of the thorough transformation which had just taken place in the audience room, making it more tasteful amd inviting than ever it was before. Beginning with the fine organ so generously presented by a single person, there had followed, a new roof, the tasteful ornamentation of the walls and ceiling, the repolishing of the seats, the thorough cleaning of carpets and floor. He spoke also of the lecture room as reaping benefit from the spirit of improvement which had been awakened; it having been recarpeted through the generosity of a friend. Great credit was given to the board of trustees for their faithful and able superintendence of the work from its inception to its close. The thought was insisted upon and emphasized that the improvements of the material sanctuary were in order to the successful rearing of the spiritual temple, of which the visible building might be considered the scaffolding.

The benefits which might be expected from a regular and serious attendance on the services of the sanctuary were spoken of; the help they furnished to all who were truly desirous of living a right and useful life. He stated that church-going and listening to sermons and exhortations were not enough. Such things were a poor dependence for acceptance with God and future blessedness. The great thing was the right heart and the right spirit to give value to what we did. And for this right heart and spirit we must look unto God, who alone could give them unto us. He said they were anxious to gather in those who had no church home and who were willing to come and hear the Gospel.

The preacher disclaimed utterly any zeal for his own denomination in extending a warm welcome to all to come and worship in the renovated sanctuary. The invitation was prompted by a desire to be helpful to all in the endeavor to live a christian life. The sermon closed with thanks to the congregation of that church for their liberality and their helpfulness in promoting the true ends for which churches are organized and church edifices are erected and public services held.

A liberal collection was taken up to defray the expense of a new furnace under the lecture room. The other usual Sunday services during the day were all resumed and were well attended. The total cost of the repairs made, exclusive of the organ, will aggregate $1,700.

SOMETHING NEW.

Mrs. H. S. Russell, of Hudson, is stopping a few days at Mrs. Fred Gamble's, on Ottawa street, where she is prepared to give instruction in Mme. Kellogg's French system of cutting and fitting. Mrs. Russell claims this system to be as good as any one now in use, as it requires no re-basting or re-fitting. Mrs. Russell has several acquaintances in Tecumseh who will gladly recommend her and render her all the assistance possible in organizing a class.

She has had considerable experience in cutting patterns for ladies and children's clothing and with marked success. The ladies of Tecumseh wishing any patterns cut had better call before her class is organized, as her time then will be fully occupied.

THE LIBRARY ASSOCIATION.

The regular annual meeting of the Tecumseh Library association was held at the library rooms, last Tuesday evening. The attendance, though not large, was respectable, and the business appertaining to the meeting was speedily dispatched.

President McKinnon called the gathering to order and the secretary, Mrs. Lee, read the proceedings of the last annual meeting which were, on motion, approved.

The treasurer submitted his annual report, giving the receipts and disbursements in detail during the past year and showing a balance now on hand of $72 29. Three directors were then chosen by ballot, for a term of three years, viz: Miss Clara Hayden, P. S. McKinnon, O. P. Bills.

The meeting then proceeded to elect officers, with the following result:

President—P. S. McKinnon.
Vice President—Mrs. Wm. Hayden.
Secretary—Mrs. A. P. Lee.
Treasurer—O. P. Bills.
Collector—Mrs. Fred Rosacrans.

The price of tickets for drawing books was fixed the same as heretofore—$1.00 per year for share-holders, and $1.50 for outsiders. The selection of a librarian was left to the Board of Directors.

The Odd Fellows are preparing quite an elaborate program for their memorial services on October 20th.

One of the finest residences in Tecumseh can be bought at a bargain, if taken before January 1st, next. For full particulars, call at this office.

Fred Gray, of Detroit, an old Tecumseh boy, was in town yesterday afternoon. He is now "holding cases" on the Free Press and has the honor of being chairman of the chapel.

John Britton will soon handle the mail at the Britton postoffice. Well, if a Republican is to hold the office, we don't know a better man than genial John Britton. He will find it a difficult job though to beat Labe Babcock.

The following Knights Templar from Tecumseh expect to start for the great encampment at Washington next Saturday: J. H. Smith, C. A. Wright, Minor and Frank Davidson, J. J. Orr, Will Osborn, Dr. O. Q. Jones, Samuel Underwood and John Britton.

Representative men of all classes buy Ridpath's Cyclopedia of Universal History. It contains a whole idea of the great events of the world from Egypt (6,000 years ago) till Grant's burial. Examine it when asked. No person can more profitably spend fiftee minutes than by examining this standard work. Agent now in town.

Al. Heesen has just procured a new jeweler's bench and full kit of tools and machinery. The entire outfit is a very complete one and cost about $1,000. It was bought in Chicago. Under the instruction of Adamson Bros., Al. is making fine progress in his trade and is already turning out some good jobs of repairing.

"Constipation." Do you know the meaning of this word from experience? Do you know the results that come from it? Do you think liver and stomach is the cause of it? If you do, just get another interpretation of it next Monday from Dr. Bennett at the Lilley House, then see what you think of it. Guess you will change your mind.

Have You Astigmatism?

Hang this diagram on the wall, stand twelve feet back, shade one eye and then the other, so as to view the radiating lines with each eye separately.

If you find some of the lines are blurred, while others are clear and black, you have astigmatism, which sometimes causes pain in and over the eyes, in the back of the neck, and sometimes in the small of the back, but spectacles may be made that will relieve it.

Again, if you find some of the lines are more perfect with one eye than the other, your eyes are mismated, and should be fitted to hatmonize one with the other.

Remember that Edmondson & Cox, two of the most practical opticians in the United States, will stop with Adamson Bros., from Monday, Oct 7, to Saturday night, Oct. 19.

ALL UNITED UNDER DAVID

LESSON I, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, OCT. 6.

Text of the Lesson, II Sam. v. 1-12—Commit Verses 1-3—Golden Text, Psalms cxxxiii, 1—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

(Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.)

1. "Then came all the tribes of Israel to David unto Hebron." After the death of Saul and his sons, as recorded in the last lesson, the way seemed open for David to take the throne, to which he had been anointed years before, and for which he had so patiently waited, not taking matters into his own hands and ridding himself of his enemy as he might have done on several occasions, but calmly waiting God's own time and way.

2. "When Saul was king over us, thou wast he that leddest out and broughtest in Israel." They remembered how David, and not Saul, slew Goliath and delivered them from the Philistines, and how David afterwards led forth so successfully the armies of Israel (I Sam. xviii); but the wonder is that they did not think of this sooner.

"And the Lord said to thee, Thou shalt feed my people Israel, and thou shalt be a captain over Israel." Why, then, not carry out the Lord's wishes long ere this? Let the questions come home. We know that the rightful king of all this earth is Jesus, heir of all things; that He shall be king over all the earth; that to Him all kings shall fall down, and all nations serve Him (Heb. i, 2; Zech. xiv, 9); we know also that Zion cannot be rebuilt till the fullness of the Gentiles be come in, and the Lord appear in His glory (Rom. xi, 25; Ps. cii, 16); and we know that the will of the Lord is that the Gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, that thus the end may come (Matt. xxiv, 14); knowing these things, why does not every church, and every individual believer, rise up and do something to hasten the time when Jesus shall be king over all the earth, by striving to their utmost to preach the Gospel to every creature? You answer.

3. "They anointed David king over Israel." So the Lord had decreed, and so it finally came to pass, for every purpose of the Lord shall be performed. David does not upbraid them because of their delay, nor complain of their past treatment, but meekly makes a league with them before the Lord. He sees God, and not men, and is still.

4. "David was thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years." Then all his rejection, humiliation and sufferings came to him as a young man; so it was also with Jesus our Saviour and coming King. Young men and women are apt to think it hard to have to suffer and be humiliated; let them remember David and Jesus, and that it is written, "It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth."

5. "In Hebron * * * seven years and six months; and in Jerusalem * * * thirty-three years." It is very profitable in Bible study to associate places with the events which occurred there. Hebron, a city of Judah, some twenty miles south of Jerusalem, will ever be a delightful place to the Bible student, not only because of David's two anointings and his seven years' reign, but also because of its earlier associations with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, Joshua and Caleb; there lies, still sacredly guarded, the dust of the patriarchs, and from the cave of Machpelah shall yet come forth their glorified bodies. Jerusalem, of all cities that have ever been or ever will be, stands first; there our Lord was crucified, there His precious blood flowed forth, in Pilate's hall, in Gethsemane and on Calvary, there He was buried and there He rose from the dead; from thence He ascended to the right hand of God, and thither He shall return in power and glory to rebuild Zion, make Jerusalem His throne, and consequently the capital of the whole earth. (Ps. cii, 16; Jer. iii, 17, 18.)

6. "And the king and his men went to Jerusalem with the Jebusites." The old name of Jerusalem was Jebus; it was a great stronghold, and we read that neither the children of Judah nor Benjamin could drive out the inhabitants, but they were allowed to dwell there with Israel. (I Chron. xi, 4, 5; Josh. xv, 63; Judges i, 21.) This was a standing disgrace to Israel during all their history since Joshua led them into the land up to this time; and now, when David determines to wipe out this disgrace, he is told by these defiers of God and His people that the blind and the lame are able to hold the fort against him.

7-9. "Nevertheless, David took the stronghold of Zion; * * * so David dwelt in the fort and called it the City of David." He who in the name of the God of Israel slew Goliath went forth in the same great name against these enemies of God and proved the faithfulness of Him who had said, "There shall no man be able to stand before thee." (Deut. vii, 24.) The Jebusites had never before had to contend with one who so relied upon the God of Israel, and therefore they knew not His power, and treated Him and His professed people with contempt. There are in our churches of today, and in the hearts of many who are called Christians, both preachers and hearers, strong corners which are held by the enemy, and which ought to be possessed by the Spirit for the glory of God; but the enemy has so long been permitted to hold undisputed possession that he laughs at any attempt to dislodge him, and so believers and churches are overcome instead of being overcomers.

10. "And David went on and grew great, and the Lord God of hosts was with Him." Going and growing are the two words in the margin; thus should every believer daily advance, growing in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ (II Pet. iii, 18), our motto being "still upward, still upward, still upward!" remembering that every winding about makes an enlarging, and there is always One in the midst (Ezek. xlii, 7), or this of Paul: "This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." (Phil. iii, 13, 14.) Thus shall our daily life be a going and growing, but we shall never get to it till, like David, we realize that "The Lord God of hosts is with us," and firmly believing this, seek with the whole heart a more intimate acquaintance with Him, and thus cultivate a more implicit reliance upon Him.

11. "And Hiram king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and cedar trees, and carpenters, and masons, and they built David an house." Here is a Gentile king and his people, coming cheerfully to the king of Israel to do him honor; thus shall it be, as the prophets everywhere tell us, when the kingdom shall have been restored to Israel.

12. "David perceived that the Lord had established him king over Israel, and that He had exalted his kingdom for His people Israel's sake." Notice in this verse two things: First, that the Lord had done it all; it was not David's patience or wisdom or might, but the Lord alone that did it all; and, second, that it was done for His people Israel's sake.

TWOMBLEY WAS DRUNK.

The Rock Island Engineer Who Caused the Washington Heights Disaster.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—The coroner's jury investigating the Washington Heights accident, concluded its work Saturday by holding Twombley, the engineer and La Cloche, the fireman, of the freight engine, responsible for the accident. The crowning feature of the investigation was the confession of Fireman La Cloche, made after the verdict was brought in and in which he admitted that his testimony, in which he swore Twombley was sober, was false, and that Twombley was drunk the night of the accident.

The Engineer's Bad Habits.

Division Superintendent Chamberlain testified that he had nothing to do with discharging or employing engineers, he could only recommend. He had taken Twombley off his engine at least three times for being drunk. The last time was almost a year ago, after which Twombley was discharged. He was re-employed by his father, the master mechanic. So far as Mr. Chamberlain knew, Twombley was the only engineer discharged for drunkenness who was reinstated. He did not know why the exception was made in Twombley's case.

Twombley's Father Testifies.

Master Mechanic Twombley, father of the engineer, said he had discharged his son on his own responsibility, for drinking, and had reinstated him at the request of Mr. Kimball, assistant to the president of the road, and upon assurances that he had quit drinking, which came from his fellow-engineers. The jury's verdict, besides placing the actual blame on Twombley and La Cloche, censures the conductor for not controlling the train, and the railway for not exercising due diligence in demanding proper service by the employers.

NOMINATED BRACKETT.

Bay State Republicans Give the Teetotallers a Defiance.

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—The Republicans held the most numerously attended state convention here yesterday that ever assembled, there being 1,428 delegates present. Ex-Governor Robinson was made permanent chairman and a platform adopted, the features of which are planks opposing further silver coinage and advocating the elimination of patronage from politics; favoring an equitable revision of the tariff on protection lines; demanding a national election law which will secure a fair vote in the south of all electors, and declaring that on the liquor question the party will take no backward step.

The Leaders Chosen.

Candidates for governor were next considered, and the first ballot was as follows: J. Q. A. Brackett, 745; W. W. Crapo, 674; John D. Long, 1; E. J. Capen, 9; W. H. H. Hoar, 1. Brackett was declared nominated, and it was made unanimous. Mr. Brackett addressed the convention amid great applause. The other officers nominated are: For lieutenant governor, W. H. Haile; for treasurer, Hon. George Marden, of Lowell (renominated); secretary of state, Henry B. Pierce, of Abington; for auditor, Charles R. Ladd (renominated); for attorney general, Andrew J. Waterman. After speeches by Senator Hoar and Henry Cabot Lodge the convention adjourned sine die.

SHE BEAT HER WAY

Travels of a Fifteen-Year-Old Scotch Girl.

FROM HOME TO NEW YORK GRATIS.

A Lesson in "Getting Around" Without Money for the Most Accomplished Tramp to Profit by—The Young Traveler Goes Where She Pleases and No One Says Her Nay—Across the Atlantic First-Class.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Maggie Stewart is a girl not yet 15 years old, about whom there is a wonderful story to tell. She has traveled from Scotland to this city without paying a cent for fare, and the account of her wanderings, so far as anybody can find out, is a story of absolute facts. Maggie is a Scotch lass. Her eyes are bright and blue, and she always has a smile upon her lips. She is just about the right height for a 15-year-old girl. Maggie's father and mother lived at Ellenburgh, a little town near Glasgow, Scotland. The Scotch girl didn't like work, and one day last July ran away. She walked out of Ellenburgh, and picked up wagon-rides to Glasgow.

Beats Her Way on the Train.

She went to a railroad station and walked out to where a train of cars was standing and made her way into a first class compartment. As a lady was coming right behind her the guards thought it was all right. After she had traveled as long as she cared to she got out and found herself in the town of Greenock. This place didn't suit her any more than Ellensburgh or Glasgow. She went down to the wharves and by and by found herself in Belfast, Ireland. From there she crossed to Fleetwood, a place of some 5,000 inhabitants on Morecambe bay, England; from there to Manchester, and from there back to Fleetwood. Then she got a sail to the Isle of Man, stayed there just a few hours, and then left for Liverpool, which she reached in due time.

Takes an Ocean Trip Gratis.

While wandering about the city the girl found herself down at a wharf from which emigrants were being taken on board an ocean liner. Twenty or thirty men and women were passing down the gangway to the boat, and Maggie joined them and went aboard, nobody asking her any questions. After a little while the tug left the dock and steamed off to the City of New York, and the runaway was lifted up the side of the vessel with all the care bestowed upon people who had bought their passage over. Maggie kept close to a lady with a kind face, and made friends with her and accepted an invitation from the lady to take a bunk in her state-room that she had spare.

Her Arrival in New York.

The girl made herself perfectly at home, ate at the table with the rest of the folks, and everybody, even the purser and the steward and all their assistants, thought she was the child of somebody on board, and so everything went along all right. When the steamer landed here no one paid any particular attention to the little girl, and she came down the gang plank without being bothered with any questions about her ticket, and without any custom house inspector asking to look at her baggage. The wanderer walked about the streets fearless and light hearted. One day she called at an intelligence office in Twenty-third street and asked for work, but finally found herself in the hands of Mr. Gerry's society, where she now is, having told her story to one of the officers.

MADE MAN AND WIFE.

Marriage of Emmons Blaine and Miss Anita McCormick.

RICHFIELD SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 27.—This usually quiet place presented a scene of great activity yesterday. From early morn the villagers and the visitors within the village confines were astir, the occasion being the Blaine-McCormick wedding, which was the greatest and most fashionable event this generally fashionable summer resort has ever witnessed. The preparations for the marriage ceremony at the church and for the wedding breakfast at Clayton Lodge were completed at an early hour.

The Bride and Groom.

The high contracting parties to this interesting event bear names well known all over the country. The bride, Miss Anita McCormick, has been a reigning society belle in Chicago. She is a tall, slender brunette, exceedingly bright and remarkably elegant and attractive. She is said to very much resemble her father, the inventor of the reaper which made his wealth for him and the founder of the great industry under his name at Chicago. She has a charming disposition, is graceful, gracious and self-possessed, and has of late borne the chief burden of entertainment in the home. She is a new dresser and very fond of driving. Miss McCormick is said to have a fortune of $3,000,000.

The lucky groom, as everybody knows, is the son of Secretary of State James G. Blaine. He is not a politician, but a railroad man, and resides in Baltimore at present, though he formerly lived in Chicago, where he met and wooed and won his fair bride. The groom is 31 and the bride is 23.

GOT AWAY WITH TEN THOUSAND.

Polish Societies Robbed by Their Late General Secretary.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Ignatz N. Morgenstern, until last week general secretary of the Polish National alliance of North America, has left the city and taken with him all the funds of the order. Morgenstern was also the secretary of the Polish National Building and Loan association, and the financial manager of the "Zgoda," an influential Polish weekly paper, and acted as an agent for real estate owners and as a passage and transportation agent. It is believed that he has embezzled from the building association, the newspaper and the real estate owners and passage agent. The amount of money he has taken away is estimated at $10,000.

A Famous Soldier Gone to Rest.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 30.—Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis, U. S. A., died at his home in this city Saturday. He was graduated from West Point in 1846 along with George B. McClellan, "Stonewall" Jackson, Stoneman, Pickett, and many other famous generals. Gen. Sturgis engaged in some of the most important battles of the war of the rebellion and fought Indians for forty years in the northwest, retiring from active command three years ago.

Mississippi Republicans.

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 26.—The Republican state convention yesterday nominated Gen. James R. Chalmers for governor; W. C. Mathison, (colored) for secretary of state, and James D. Lynch, (white) for lieutenant governor. The convention was largely attended and much enthusiasm prevailed.

INTRODUCTION.

IN THE recesses of the desolate Libyan Mountains that lie behind the temple and city of Abydos, supposed burying-place of the Holy Osiris, a tomb was recently discovered, among the contents of which were the papyrus rolls on which this history is written. The tomb itself is spacious, but otherwise remarkable only for the depth of the shaft, which descends vertically from the rock-hewn cave, that once served as a mortuary chapel to the friends and relatives of the departed, to the coffin chamber beneath. This shaft is no less than eighty-nine feet in depth. The chamber at its foot was found to contain three coffins only, though it is large enough for many more. Two of these, which in all probability inclosed the bodies of the high priest, Amenemhat, and of his wife, father and mother of Harmachis, the hero of this history, the shameless Arabs who discovered them there and then broke up.

The Arabs broke the bodies up. With unhallowed hands they tore the Holy Amenemhat, and the frame of her who had, as it is written, been filled with the spirit of the Hathors, tore them limb from limb, searching for treasure amid their bones—perhaps, as is their custom, selling the very bones for a few piastres to the last ignorant tourist who came their way, seeking what he might destroy. For in Egypt the unhappy, the living find their bread in the tombs of the great men who were before them.

But, as it chanced some little while afterward, one who is known to this writer, and a doctor by profession, passed up the Nile to Abydos, and became acquainted with the men who had done this thing. They revealed to him the secret of the place, telling him that one coffin yet remained entombed. It seemed to be the coffin of a poor person, they said, and therefore, being pressed for time, they had left it unviolated. Moved by curiosity to explore the recesses of a tomb as yet unprofaned by tourists, my friend bribed the Arabs to reveal its secret to him. What ensued I will give in his own words, exactly as he wrote it to me:

I slept that night near the Temple of Seti, and started before daybreak on the following morning. With me were a cross-eyed rascal called Ali—Ali Baba I named him—the man from whom I got the ring which I am sending you, and a small but choice assortment of his fellow-thieves. Within an hour after sunrise we reached the valley where the tomb is. It is a desolate place, into which the sun pours his scorching heat all the long day through, till the huge brown bowlders which are strewn about become so hot that one can scarcely bear to touch them, and the sand scorches the feet. We rode on donkeys, for it was already too hot to walk some way up the valley—where a vulture floating far in the blue overhead was the only other visitor—till we came to an enormous bowlder polished by centuries of the action of sun and sand. Here Ali halted, saying the tomb was under the stone. Accordingly we dismounted, and, leaving the donkeys in charge of a fellah boy, went up to the rock. Beneath it was a small hole, barely large enough for a man to creep through; it had been dug by jackals, for the doorway and some part of the cave were entirely silted up, and it was by means of this jackal hole that the tomb had been discovered. Ali crept in on his hands and knees, and I followed to find myself in a place cold after the hot outside air, and, in contrast with the light, filled with a dazzling darkness. We lit our candles, and, the select body of thieves having arrived, I made an examination. We were in a cave the size of a large room and hollowed by hand, the further part of the cave being almost free from drift dust. On the walls are religious paintings of the usual Ptolemaic character, and among them one of a majestic old man with a long white beard, who is seated in a carved chair holding a wand in his hand. Before him is passing a procession of priests bearing sacred images. In the far corner of the tomb on the right hand from the door is the shaft of the mummy pit, a square-mouthed well cut in the black rock. We had brought a beam of thornwood, and this was now laid across the pit and a rope made fast to it. Then Ali—who, to do him justice, is a courageous thief—took hold of the rope, and, putting some candles into the breast of his robe, placed his bare feet against the smooth sides of the well and began to descend with great rapidity. Very soon he had vanished into the blackness, and the agitation of the cord alone told us that any thing was going on below. At last the rope ceased shaking, and a faint shout came rumbling up the well, announcing Ali's safe arrival. Then, far below, a tiny star of light appeared. He had lit the candle, thereby disturbing hundreds of bats, that flitted up in an endless stream and as silently as spirits. The rope was hauled up again, and now it was my turn; but as I declined to trust my neck to the hand-over-hand method of descent, the end of the cord was made fast round my middle, and I was lowered bodily into those sacred depths. Nor was it a pleasant journey, for if the master of the situation above had made any mistake I should have been dashed to pieces. Also, the bats continually flew into my face and clung to my hair, and I have a great dislike of bats. At last, after some minutes of jerking and dangling, I found myself standing in a narrow passage by the side of the worthy Ali covered with bats and perspiration, and with the skin rubbed off my knees and knuckles. Then another man came down, hand over hand, like a sailor, and, as the rest were told to stop above, we were ready to go on. Ali went first with his candle—of course we each had a candle—leading the way down a long passage about five feet high. At length the passage widened out, and we were in the tomb chamber, I think the hottest and most silent place I ever entered. It was simply stifling. This tomb chamber is a square room cut in the rock and totally devoid of paintings or sculpture. I held up the candles and looked around. About the place were strewn the coffin lids and the mummied remains of the two bodies that the Arabs had previously violated. The paintings on the former were, I noticed, of great beauty, though, having no knowledge of hieroglyphics, I could not decipher them. Beads and spicy wrappings lay around the remains, which, I saw, were those of a man and a woman. The head had been broken off the body of the man. I took it up and looked at it. It had been closely shaved after death, I should say, from the general indications—and the features were disfigured with gold leaf. But, notwithstanding this, and the shrinkage of the flesh, I think the face was one of the most imposing and beautiful that I ever saw. It was that of a very old man, and his dead countenance still wore so calm and solemn, indeed so awful a look, that I grew quite superstitious (though, as you know, I am pretty well accustomed to dead people), and put the head down in a hurry. There were still some wrappings left upon the face of the second body, and I did not remove them; but she must have been a fine, large woman in her day.

"There is the other mummy," said Ali, pointing to a large and solid case that had the appearance of having been carelessly thrown down in a corner, for it was lying on its side.

I went up to it to examine it. It was well made, but of perfectly plain cedar wood—not an inscription, not a solitary god on it.

"Never see one like him before," said Ali. "Bury great hurry, he no 'mafish,' no 'fineesh.' Throw him down there on side."

I looked at the plain case till at last my interest was thoroughly aroused. I had been so shocked by the sight of the scattered dust of the departed that I had made up my mind not to touch the remaining coffin—but now my curiosity overcame me, and we set to work.

Ali had brought a mallet and a cold chisel with him, and having set the coffin straight he began upon it with all the zeal of an experienced tomb-breaker. And then he pointed out another thing. Most mummy cases are fastened by four little tongues of wood, two on either side, which are fixed in the upper half, and passing into mortises cut to receive them in the thickness of the lower half, are there held fast by pegs of hard wood. But this mummy case had eight such tongues. Evidently it had been thought well to secure it firmly. At last, with great difficulty, we raised the massive lid, which was nearly three inches thick, and there, covered over with a deep layer of loose spices (a very unusual thing), was the body.

All looked at it with open eyes—and no wonder. For this mummy was not as other mummies are. Mummies in general lie upon their backs, as stiff and calm as though they were cut from wood; but this mummy lay upon its side, and, the wrappings notwithstanding, its knees were slightly bent. More than that, indeed, the gold mask, which, after the fashion of the Ptolemaic period, had been set upon the face, had worked down, and was literally pounded up beneath the hooded head.

It was impossible, seeing these things, to avoid the conclusion that the mummy before us had moved with violence since it was put in the coffin.

"Him very funny mummy. Him not 'mafish' when him go in there," said Ali.

"Nonsense!" I said. "Who ever heard of a live mummy?"

We lifted the body out of the coffin, nearly choking ourselves with mummy dust in the process, and there beneath it, half hidden among the spices, we made our first find. It was a roll of papyrus, carelessly fastened and wrapped in a piece of mummy cloth, having, to all appearance, been thrown into the coffin at the moment of closing.

All eyed the papyrus greedily, but I seized it and put it in my pocket, for it was agreed that I was to have all that might be discovered. Then we began to unwrap the body. It was covered with very broad, strong bandages, thickly wound and roughly tied, sometimes by means of simple knots, the whole work bearing the appearance of having been executed in great haste and with difficulty. Just over the head was a large lump. Presently the bandages covering it were off, and there, on the face, lay a second roll of papyrus. I put down my hand to lift it, but it would not come away. It appeared to be fixed to the stout, seamless shroud which was drawn over the whole body and tied beneath the feet, as a farmer ties sacks. This shroud, which was also thickly waxed, was in one piece, being made to fit the form like a garment. I took a candle and examined the roll, and then I saw why it was fast. The spices had congealed and glued it to the sack-like shroud. It was impossible to get it away without tearing the outer sheets of papyrus.

At last, however, I wrenched it loose and put it with the other in my pocket.

Then in silence we went on with our dreadful task. With much care we ripped loose the sack-like garment, and at last the body of a man lay before us. Between his knees was a third roll of papyrus. I secured it, and then held down the lights and looked at him. Being a doctor, one glance at his face was enough to tell me how he had died.

This body was not much dried up. Evidently it had not passed seventy days in natron, and therefore the expression and likeness were better preserved than is usual. Without entering into particulars, I will only say that I hope I shall never see such another look as that which was frozen on this dead man's face. Even the Arabs recoiled from it in horror and began to mutter prayers.

For the rest, the usual opening on the left side, through which the embalmers did their work, was absent; the finely cut features were those of a person of middle age, although the hair was already gray, and the frame that of a powerful man, the shoulders being of an extraordinary width. I had not time to examine very closely, however, for within a few seconds from its uncovering the unembalmed body, now that it was exposed to the action of the air, began to crumble. In five or six minutes there was literally nothing left of it but a wisp of hair, the skull, and a few of the larger bones. I noticed that one of the tibiæ, I forgot if it was the right or the left, had been fractured and very badly set. It must have been quite an inch shorter than the other.

Well, there was nothing more to find, and now that the excitement was over, what between the heat, the exertion and the smell of mummy dust and spices, I felt more dead than alive.

I am tired of writing, and the ship rolls. This letter, of course, goes overland, and I am coming by "long sea," but I hope to be in London within ten days after you get it. Then I will tell you of my pleasing experiences in the course of the ascent from the tomb chamber, and of how that prince of rascals, Ali Baba, and his thieves tried to frighten me into handing over the papyri, and how I worsted them. Then, too, we will get the rolls deciphered. I expect that they only contain the usual thing, copies of the Book of the Dead, but there may be something else in them. Needless to say, I did not narrate this little adventure in Egypt, or I should have had the Boulac Museum people on my track. Good-bye—'Mafish Fineesh," as Ali Baba always said.

In due course my friend, the writer of the letter from which I have quoted, arrived in London, and on the very next day we paid a visit to an acquaintance well versed in hieroglyphics and demotic writing. With what anxiety we watched him skillfully dampening and unfolding one of the rolls and peering through his gold-rimmed glasses at the mysterious characters may well be imagined.

"Hum!" he said, "whatever it is, this is not a copy of the 'Book of the Dead.' By George, what's this? Cle—Cleo—Cleopatra! Why, my dear sirs, as I am a living man, this is the history of somebody who lived in the days of Cleopatra! Well, there's six months work before me here—six months, at the very least!" And in that joyful prospect he fairly lost control of himself, and skipped about the room, shaking hands with us at intervals, and saying: "I'll translate—I'll translate it if it kills me, and we will publish it; and, by the living Osiris, it will drive every Egyptologist in Europe mad with envy! Oh, what a find! what a most glorious find!"

And O you whose eyes shall fall upon these pages, see, they have been translated, and they have been printed, and here they lie before you—an undiscovered land wherein you are free to travel!

Harmachis speaks to you from his forgotten tomb. The walls of Time fall down, and as at the lightning's leap a picture from the past starts suddenly on your view, framed in the gathered darkness of the ages.

He shows you those two Egypts that the silent pyramids looked down upon long centuries ago—the Egypt of the Greek, the Roman, and the Ptolemy, and that other outworn Egypt of the hierophant, hoary with years, heavy with the legends of antiquity and the memory of long-lost honors.

He tells you how the smoldering loyalty of Khem (Egypt) burnt up before it died, and how fiercely the old Time-consecrated Faith struggled against the conquering tide of Change, that, drawn ever by the mystery of Mind, rose like the Nile at flood, and drowned the ancient gods of Egypt.

Here, in his pages, you shall learn the glory of Isis the Many-shaped, the Executor of Decrees. Here you shall make acquaintance with the shade of Cleopatra, that "Thing of Flame" whose passion-breathing beauty shaped the destiny of empires. Here you shall read how the soul of Charmion was slain of the sword her vengeance smithied.

Here Harmachis, the doomed Egyptian, being about to die, salutes you who follow on the path he trod. In the story of his broken years he shows to you what may in its own degree be the story of your own. Crying aloud from that dim Amenti where to-day he wears out his long atoning time, in the history of his fall, he tells the fate of him who, however sorely tried, forgets his God, his honor, and his country.

CHAPTER I.

OF THE BIRTH OF HARMACHIS; THE PROPHECY OF THE HATHORS; AND THE SLAYING OF THE INNOCENT CHILD.

BY OSIRIS who sleeps at Abouthis, I write the truth. I, Harmachis, hereditary priest of the Temple, reared by the divine Sethi, aforetime a Pharaoh of Egypt, and now justified in Osiris and ruling in Amenti. I, Harmachis, by right divine and by true descent of blood King of the Double Crown and Pharaoh of the Upper and Lower Land. I, Harmachis, who cast aside the opening flower of our hope, who turned him from the glorious path, who forgot the voice of God in hearkening to the voice of woman. I, Harmachis, the fallen, in whom are gathered up all woes as waters are gathered in a desert well, who have tasted of every shame, why by betrayal have betrayed, who, in losing the glory that is here have lost of the glory that is there, who am utterly undone—I write, and, by Him who sleeps at Abouthis, I write the truth.

O Egypt! Egypt! dear land of Khem, whose black soil nourished up my mortal part—land that I have betrayed—O ye Gods! Osiris!—Isis!—Horus!—ye Gods of Egypt whom I have betrayed!—O ye temples whose pylons strike the sky; ye temples whose faith I have betrayed! O Royal blood of the Pharaohs of Eld, that yet runs within these withered veins—whose virtue I have betrayed!—O Right divine of Kings betrayed by me!—O Invisible Essence of all Good! and O Fate, whose balance rested on my hand—hear me; and, to the last day of utter doom, bear me witness that I write the truth.

What, then, is a man? He is a feather, but a feather blown by the wind. He is a fire, but a fire born of the fuel. He is a spirit, but a spirit having wings wherewith to sail to either destiny. He may choose the good, and on him doth rest the evil that he does. He is the helm unto the boat of Fate; he is the shadow that goes before the sword; he is the dream that presages the truth. There is no Chance; for man in his hour doth direct the Chance, and, as with a stylus, doth map upon the tablet of the world the thing that he brought about. So hath the Invisible decreed, and so for ever to ever shall it be. And woe to him who faileth!

* * * * * * *

Even as I write, beyond the fertile fields, the Nile is running red as though with blood. Bright before me beats the light upon the far Arabian hills, and bright it falls upon the piles of Abouthis. At Abouthis, within the temples, still do the priests make orison, but me they know no more; still the sacrifice is offered, and the stony roofs echo down the prayers of those who pray. Still from here, from this lone cell within my prison tower, I, the Word of Shame, watch thy fluttering banners, O Abouthis, flaunting from thy pylon walls and hear the chants as the long procession winds from sanctuary to sanctuary.

O Abouthis, lost Abouthis! my heart goes out toward thee! For the day comes when the desert sands shall fill thy holy places! Thy gods are doomed, O Abouthis! New faiths shall make a mock of all thy holies, and centurion shall call unto centurion across thy fortress walls. I weep—I weep tears of blood; for mine is the weakness that brought about these evils and mine forever is their shame.

WHEN YOU COME TO

THE -:- FAIR

See WOOD, CRANE & WOOD, One Price Cloth'rs

AT ADRIAN.

The way to sell clothing is to mark a price in plain figures just as low as the article can be sold for. This advantage to the customer is more than would appear at first thought. One price means a price marked before the customer comes, at the lowest possible price it can be sold for, whether you buy or not. Two prices is a price made after the customer comes in. If he is a clever, easy going buyer he pays two profits. If he is a close, hard buyer, he pays as much or more than we would ask him, and it takes a half day to Jew down that six dollars that in all probability they have asked him extra, because they know him to be that kind of a buyer. You are playing another man's game when you buy of a two priced clothier. You always pay him a profit and sometimes two.

NEWS OF THE STATE

Oscoda folks aren't dead, albeit the funeral of one of her citizens was attended by a woman, as chief mourner, who'd married again without getting a divorce from the one who was being mourned. And she was assisted in the mourning act by husband No. 2. Verily, some funny things do happen here below.

The Menominee Boom company has yanked out 450,000,000 feet of logs this season, but will have to hustle if they get the remaining 250,000,000 feet within reach of the circular saws before snow flies.

Present indications point to an attendance of 2,000 pupils at the state university next term which sort o' looks as if that institution was likely to survive the professorship wrangles that have pervaded it during the past year and a half.

Annie Berger, Jackson's lady cornetist, is edifying the music-loving people who attend the Convent Garden theatre, London.

McBains has got the pinch on a new clothes-pin factory. A bonus helped 'em do it.

Dodge is a clean little lumbering town in Clare county, where intoxicating booze and feminines of doubtful character are not allowed an abiding place. Is the millenium really at hand?

Just fifty-two years ago John Applegate settled in St. Clair county, and by dint of industry and economy amassed a handsome competence. In an evil hour, however, he deeded his property to his son, and now, at the age of 83, is a candidate for the poorhouse. An effort will be made to restore the old gentleman's wealth.

When a man is being tried for murder at Port Huron he's given the run of the town, but the jury that tries him is carefully guarded both day and night. Who wouldn't be a juryman!

Whoever comes across a couple of tramps with their pockets loaded down with brand new jack-knives, may be interested in knowing that the sheriff of Jackson county will pay a handsome premium for their return to his portion of the vineyard.

A Homer man is the owner of a frisky team which, during a couple of recent runaways, killed one of his children and seriously injured three others. Now he proposes a horse trade as a means of promoting family longevity.

Mrs. Catherine Clement, a resident of Branch county for more than half a century, is dead at the age of 99 years.

While Adam Schuman was cleaning a loaded revolver at his home near East Saginaw, a cartridge was accidentally exploded, instantly killing his wife.

Mrs. Moffat, the Port Huron lady who began the agitation for the display of the national colors from the school houses of the state, has the satisfaction of knowing that the scheme is likely to be a go.

A Benton Harbor chap was induced to pull off the shirt he wore right under the glare of an electric light on a public street, on a recent evening. He didn't enjoy the operation, but as the garment belonged to another party, it was either a case of surrender or a trip to the bastile.

Jackson's Water Gas company will engage in the manufacture of water gas heating and cooking stoves. It has twenty-seven patents for a starter.

Nobody has yet gathered in the $10,000 reward offered by the Calumet and Hecla company for information that would lead to the arrest and conviction of the chap who fired its mine in November of last year. The only person who's knowing the transaction evidently isn't anxious to talk about the matter.

A Clarendon couple have just celebrated their fifty-seventh marriage anniversary and a notable fact in connection therewith is that death has not yet claimed any of their seventeen descendants.

Michigan institutions of learning seem to be in an unusually prosperous condition. Hope college at Holland has gone into blast with the largest attendance in its history.

S. C. Coffinberry, a well-known Constantine citizen, died at his home in that village at the age of 80 years. He was the oldest attorney, in point of residence, in southwestern Michigan, and was prominent in Masonic circles, having served as grand master of the grand lodge of the state, and high priest of the grand chapter.

Clarence W. Hammond, a former East Saginaw citizen, is now cashier of Buffalo's new People's bank. Buffalo is hard by the Canadian line, but Hammond is O. K. and that's the reason he was assigned to the important position he now occupies.

The Olin family, of Galesburg and many other towns, held their annual reunion at that place last week. There was a goodly sized family in attendance—about 700 in all—and a royal good time they had. One day was spent in an outing at Gull lake, the next night they had a big dance and on Sunday an overflow meeting was held at a local church. Tisn't everybody that can show up a family of such proportions.

The prediction made in some quarters that upper peninsula railways were chasing rainbows in the effort to secure through business, proves to have been poor prophecy. The Soo short line's receipts for the past eight months were more'n ten times greater than for the corrsponding period for 1880.

Solomon Felch, an Iron Mountain man, had a little difference with his hired man about a question of wages, whereupon the latter had recourse to the shot gun argument and Solomon has been gathered to his fathers. The murderer has been jailed.

The Union National bank begins business at Muskegon with $100,000 capital.

Mrs C. King, a Sodus lady, laid her pocketbook on the green earth to rest, and a calf came along and devoured the wallet and the $18 it contained. Then Bossy was killed and the cash recovered.

Professor J. C. Jones and Alice Van Hoosen, an Oakland county couple, went all the way to London, England, to form a matrimonial partnership. Romantic, you know.

An ex-justice of the peace who's habitation is in Kent county, has been assessed the sum of 6 cents for amusing himself with a dose of assault and battery. But the ex-official swears by the great horn spoon that he'll not fork over unless compelled to do so by the highest court in the land.

A Methodist minister in the Big Rapids district was rewarded with $5 in cash and $40 worth of old clothes and garden truck for his services the past year. It was either a case of poor preaching or 'mighty close congregation, we know not which.

Bay City Poles are on the verge of investing $40,000 on a brand new temple of worship.

Manistique has a citizen named Puippeny, but if any one should beat that that was the size of his pile, they'd surely get left.

The Soo seems to have some streets that are a good deal in the same condition as the "hen that wouldn't set," and so has invested in a fourteen-ton roller to make 'em stay down.

Jackson has fifty-six passenger trains daily except Sunday, and still she occasionally gets left.

J. Sager, a Kalamazoo laundryman, bethought himself of a speedy method of cleaning a refractory chimney and so fired it with a charge of powder. The chimney draws now but Sager will likely go it blind for the rest of his natural life.

A Soo man had a feline curiosity with three jaws. But the folks couldn't sleep with the tripple geared yawler in the neighborhood, and so the cat—died.

Washtenaw's circuit court has a big job on hand—108 cases—and right at the season of the year when the country fair is in session.

A Jackson business man is occasionally seized with an uncontrollable desire for alcoholic stimulants and to avoid a tearing toot, goes to the police station and has himself locked up until the demon desire skips away. The power of hereditary appetite can only be appreciated by those who have experienced it.

Ocean county must be hard up for want of jury timber. Anyway, they recently drew a man who was supposed to be inhabiting a less wintry clime, that is not located on any of the school maps.

A Lansing man avers that he hasn't shaved for the past twenty-two years and yet is smooth faced. He just pulls out the hairs with a pair o' tweezers and claims its fun. Maybe 'tis—but there's some pleasures we're perfectly willing to forego.

The Cohassett lumber mill at Muskegon is to be moved to Ashland. The plant represents a capital of $100,000 and has a capacity of 200,000 per day.

MURDERER WRIGHT'S CASE.

The Trial to Be Held at the January Term of Court.

FRANKFORT, Mich., Sept. 28.—The case of Charles T. Wright, the slayer of Thurber and Marshall, was called at special session of court Thursday morning at Benzonia before Judge Aldrich. Wright's attorneys made an appeal to the court for change of venue, presenting affidavits from leading citizens of Benzie county that it would be impossible to get a fair trial; that the whole section was antagonistic to him. The case was taken under advisement. Later on Wright's attorneys asked that the trial be held at the next regular term of court, which convenes in January.

Taken to Traverse City Jail.

Judge Aldrich granted the latter request, and Wright returned to Traverse City jail, forty miles distant. Sheriff Case left with his prisoner via overland route, accompanied by a heavy armed guard of deputies. Thursday night a fierce gale prevailed, telegraph wires being blown down, and the storm drove the vigilantes out of the woods and the party reached Traverse City jail in safety. H. L. Wright, the wealthy lumberman, of Merrill, Wis., sat beside his manacled brother during the journey, and was determined to protect him to the bitter end in case of the expected attempt of lynching.

Holzhay Did Not Escape.

BESSEMER, Mich., Sept. 28.—Great excitement was caused here by the discovery that Reimund Holzhay, the Wisconsin stage-robber, had been furnished tools with which to effect his escape from jail. Two small steel saws were found in his cell, but by whom brought there is not known. It seems to be clear that Holzhay has a confederate on the outside who is trying to save him. The report was circulated at first that the notorious highwayman had escaped, but this is not the fact. Holzhay has been transferred to another cell and is closely watched.

Death of Detroit's Postmaster.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 28.—Alexander W. Copeland, postmaster of Detroit, died at the residence of his son-in-law at 5:30 Saturday morning. He had been in poor health for the past eighteen months and had not been able to attend regularly to his official duties. His death is attributed to a combination of stomach troubles.

WHAT A FORTUNE

Is a good healthy, pure skin. Few are aware of the short time it takes for a disordered liver to cause blotches on the face, and a dark greasy skin. One bottle of BEGG'S BLOOD PURIFIER and BLOOD MAKER will restore this organ to its natural and healthy state, and cleanse the blood of all impurities. It is meeting with wonderful success. THE INCURABLE CURED.

A Remarkable Statement from a Well-known Citizen of South California

Cancer is hereditary in my family, an aunt on each side having died from this dreadful disease. In each instance the cancer was located in identically the same position that mine first made its appearance—just below the left eye and extending down the left cheek bone and nose. I was attended by the best physicians, but the case continued to grow worse under their treatment, and no hope of a cure could be given by them; they said: "I had better have my affairs for this life and the next arranged, for the cancer was liable to strike a vital organ at any moment, and at once bleed me to death. About this time, 1886, I met with Mr. Shirley, living near Due West, whose cancer was being rapidly cured by using Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) I then gave up the doctors and all medicines I had heretofore been using, and commenced taking S. S. S., and after using the third bottle, I discovered that the scab had fallen off, and that those sharp darting pains, so characteristic of the cancer, had ceased, and the discharge was very profuse. In a few days it began to heal rapidly, and soon dried up. By the time I had exhausted the fifth bottle there was nothing left but the scar where the cancer had been, and I was a well man. The cure effected in my case is considered by my neighbors a most remarkable one, and clearly demonstrates the fact that S. S. S. DOES CURE CANCER. Swift's Specific is a boon to suffering humanity, and all I ask is, that those afflicted with cancer give it a trial, and like myself will be convicted of its virtues."

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membranes of the nose and eustachian tubes. TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, OCT. 10

The high-tariff robbers should be ashamed to tax the miner's empty dinner pail.

Prince Russell settled in the wrong territory. He will not go to the U. S. senate from Montana this year.

The St. Louis Republic proposes to out-Tanner Tanner by giving every man a pension who got strained while jumping bounties during the war.

The New England iron manufacturers do not want to go out of business to oblige Pennsylvania. But even the iron men are prospering down in free trade Alabama

The new public printer at Washington, in his eagerness to bounce Democratic printers, sent a notice of dismissal to one man who had been dead several days.

Tanner and Dalzell—Damon and Pythias—are now engaged in the pastime of writing private letters to each other, which by some mysterious agency find their way into print.

The New York Herald says that Mr. Harrison paid rather a high price for the soldier vote last autumn. No, Mr. Harrison offered the price, but the tax payers have had to foot the bill.

President Harrison is now in a quandary whether his greatest mistake was the appointment of Tanner or his removal. Meantime the pension commissionership goes a begging and the muddle thickens.

In the fall elections, the Democratic prospects are excellent as regards New York, New Jersey and Virginia, although in the latter state the result is somewhat doubtful. The Republicans will likely take their own in Ohio.

It is said that the success of prohibition in North Dakota is due to the assistance of the Democrats, who voted for it, and they also elected three out of the six new circuit judges in that state.

The commendations of Democrats to President Harrison should be that of the Widow Bedott to Elder Crane, "Continer, Elder, continer." There is not another man in the United States who is doing as good work for the Democratic party as the grandson.—Grand Rapids Democrat.

The elections in the new states came off last week. The Republicans carried the two Dakotas and Washington, while the Democrats captured Montana. If Russell Harrison could have spread himself over the other three territories as well as Montana, the Democrats might have captured the whole grist.

Private Dalzell avows that he deliberately gave away Tanner's letter, thereby simultaneously giving it to his dear friend under the fifth rib with much neatness and dispatch. This will lead to a strife of tongues between the Corporal and the Private. With the task of muzzling both those mouths on hand the Administration is entitled to the pity of even the most ardent Democrat.—N. Y. Star.

This congress will teach us Americans a valuable lesson—that the tariff on raw materials must be so far reduced that our manufacturers can compete successfully in the South American market, and that our infamous navigation laws should be so amended that we can transport our goods at as cheap a rate as foreign nations.—N. Y. Herald.

The refusal of Mr. H. C. Minor to make a contest for the seat in Congress which Mr. Andrew Price was elected to fill by the voters of the third Louisiana district, on the 3d, inst., is creditable to his sense of fairness and his self-respect. It is true that Mr. Price was elected by a majority of from 7000 to 8000 votes, but so strong is the confidence of defeated Republican candidates of the next House, that there are contests pending in cases where the Democratic majorities are even larger than that of Mr. Price. In congratulating Mr. Minor upon his decision, the New Orleans Picayune takes occasion to say that the Northern ex-Republican immigrants in the western part of the third district are among the most reliable Democrats in Louisiana.

Salvation Oil, the greatest cure on earth for pain, has made a most brilliant debut. Price, 25 cts.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Philadelphia Record: There is consteration in the camp of the pig-iron gentry over the earnest petition of manufacturers of iron in New England praying for free ores, coal and coke, and for a 24 per cent. ad valorem duty on pig iron, scrap iron and steel. Therefore from behind the breastworks of the Iron and Steel Association pops up Mr. Secretary Swank, musket in hand, ready to defend to the last gasp the sacred tariff on pig iron and its components. Like other enthusiasts, however, Mr. Swank overdoes his protesting, and overthrows his economic arguments by incautious citations of industrial facts. What Secretary Swank appears most to desire is that the New England iron manufacturers should go out of the business, leaving a wider monopoly for the pig iron lords of Pittsburgh and the West But, with exquisite impertinence, he does not hesitate to threaten the New Englanders with the direst evils of free trade if they should insist upon having cheaper ores and coal. Reduce the duties on pig iron, cries Swank, and down will come the duties on everything made from it. If we are ever to have free trade in this country we will have plenty of it; and New England will get its full share. We hope so.

Philadelphia Telegraph: Gen. Alger shows his statesmanlike appreciation of public questions when, referring to the Tanner business, he cooly declares that this whole matter is nothing that concerns anybody except the officials interested. This is a queer way, indeed, to refer to the question of the management of a bureau under which $80,000,000 a year is disbursed. If the people of the United States have no right to take any interest in the conduct of such a department of the Government, they must be very reckless in their disregard of how the public funds are disposed of. Gen. Alger's remark shows the size of the mistake some people made a year ago when they were misled into mentioning him in connection with the Presidency itself. He shows that he is several sizes smaller even than Tanner.

Philadelphia Times: Some surprise has been expressed that two such reputable Republicans as Congressmen Reed and McKinley should have agreed to become bobs to the Mahone kite in Virginia, and try to save the Readjuster from the defeat he well deserves. The explanation seems to be that the desperation of Mahone's case has appealed to the sympathies of the two brainy statesmen. They do not love Mahone or Mahoneism, but in view of the wholesale desertion of the Virginia boss by the respectable Republicans, white and black, of his own State, and the crushing defeat that awaits him unless some one comes to his rescue, they have concluded to regard him as the under dog in the fight and to try and get him out of the scrape as little damaged as possible.

New York Times: The Tanner business will not have been wholly without useful fruit if it produces a popular reaction against turning the Government chiefly into a fountain of pension pap, using the entire machinery of trade, tariff and finance to keep up the supply. The people of the United States have paid out for pensions—and nearly all since the beginning of the civil war the sum in round numbers of $1,000,000,000. It is now and for some time has been, paying over $80,000,000 a year, a rate which if kept up and inceased as it has been lately increasing will carry the total of pension expenditures during the next dozen years, or by the close of the present century, well along toward $2,000,000,000.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The people of Central and South America are not fools. They are not going to shut out the cheap goods of Europe by a high tariff in order to admit our dear goods free. Protectionists boast of our home market, where they are enabled to sell goods at prices abnormally dear by reason of restrictive legislation. Production, however, has outstripped the absorbing capacity of the home market, and a wider field for commerce is demanded. Sooner or later our people will realize that they must elect to be content with the home market, or relieve the latter of the artificial restrictions which disable our manufacturers from competition in foreign fields. Something may possibly be done by reciprocity treaties of limited scope, but, to have the commanding position in foreign markets to which we are entitled, the ax must be laid at the root of the trouble.

For Hay Fever.

"Give Ely's Cream Balm a trial. This justly celebrated remedy for the cure of catarrh, hay fever, cold in the head, &c., can be obtained of any reputable druggist, and may be relied upon as a safe and pleasant remedy for the above complaint and will give immediate relief. It is not a liquid, snuff or powder, has no offensive odor and can be used at any time with good results, as thousands can testify, among them some of the attaches of this office." Spirit of the Times.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D.C. Oct. 4th.

The election of Mr. Blaine to the presidency of the Three America's Congress is warmly endorsed by President Harrison and the selection appears to please the foreign visitors, for if there is one man in the United States with whose career they are familiar that man is James G. Blaine. There was a carefully laid plan to secure the position for William Henry Trescott, of South Carolina, though why any clique should ask the selection of a man of whose existence the great majority of his fellow countrymen are blissfully ignorant, is beyond conception. And yet this is always so. No sooner is a famous man named for an honor than all his enemies in his own party combine on some new Moses. The new Moses may have peacefully slept out a particularly long life keeping the flies off of himself in country courts but still his selection is insisted upon and his astonishing ability sworn to by a thousand good liars. Thus Mr. Trescott, of Bald Knob, S. C., was insisted upon as a candidate against James G. Blaine.

Hon. Henry G. Davis, who is one of the United States representatives in the Congress, says that he believes some valuable work will be accomplished. The majority of the visitors express an earnest disposition to promote better commercial relations with the United States. Many say that a large proportion of their trade that now goes to Europe should go to the United States. A few of the delegates on the other hand, while cordial and friendly, are reticent as to the commercial opportunities. Mr. Davis adds that he is confident that United States interests will be substantially benefitted. All of the United States delegates will not make the excursion to the various industrial centers but it is proposed to have at least four or five of our representatives always with the party.

An awkward thing happened on the first day the headquarters of the Three America's Congress was opened this week in the pleasant, roomy old mansion that has been turned over for that purpose. Mr. Estee of California, and a number of others of our delegates were on hand to receive the guests, when it was discovered that not one in the party could speak Spanish and only one or two could speak French. The colored messenger was called into the conference and it was ascertained that he could speak a little deviled Spanish, so for a long hour before Mr. Romero, the Mexican minister arrived, the colored messenger was the sole means of communication between the delegates.

Handsome, courtly Judge Estee is one of the leading spirits of the Congress, and, despite his amazing faculty for saying the wrong thing and at the wrong time, he is well liked by the visitors The day of the reception, he made one of his customary mistakes. He alluded several times to a resemblance he thought was most striking, between Mr. Romero, the Mexican minister, and Mr. Pachero, who used to be in Congress from California. The resemblance he confidently assured the party was both physical and mental and extended to the tricks of manner. Now, Mr. Romero has spent nearly as much time in the United States as in Mexico, and he used to know Mr. Pachero, toward whom he bears much personal ill feeling. Mr. Pachero was notorious as one of the most incompetent and unimportant men who ever sat in Congress and his election was disgrace to the election system in California. Mr. Romero knew all this a great deal better than forgetful Judge Estee, who if he had limited himself to the commonplace and indefinite compliments of the day, would have better retained Mr. Romero's regard.

The train which to-day left the Sixth St Station in this city is unique in the history of railroading. The excursion is one of the most important that has ever been made. It will last forty two days, and every provision for the amusement and comfort of the guests has been provided. The menu, the service and the baths are of a first class character and this hotel on wheels will rival the finest caravansary in the land. The impression upon the visitors cannot be over estimated. They will see fertile fields, wide stretches of the finest grazing lands in the world, smiling villages and the most tremendous manufacturing centers that the world has ever known. They will see wealth and prosperity under a form of government that many of them have been taught to distrust. They will learn the paramount commercial importance of this country. Such a party, met together for mutual benefit in peaceful Congress, is a triumph of modern civilization.

The result of this competition has been that Major Joseph Kirkland, of Chicago, has taken the first prize of $1600. His story is entitled, "The Captain of Company K." Mr. Kirkland is the author of "Zura, the Meanest Man in Spring County," "the McVeys," and other stories. The second prize goes to Omaha, Neb., and is taken by Mrs. Eliza W. Peattie. Her story is entitled "The Judge." The third prize of $500 was awarded to Elbridge S. Brooks, of Boston. The story is entitled, "The Son of Issichar." The first chapters of The Judge appeared in the weekly Free Press of Sept. 26. Everybody should read this great prize story. We will take four months subscriptions for the Free Press in connection with the HERALD for 50c.

ELECTION RETURNS.

How the Votes Were Cast in the New States.

RETURNS FROM THE TWO DAKOTAS.

The Southern State Chooses Pierre for the Capital—Massachusetts Democrats Nominate Russell for Governor—Civil Service Reformers Express Themselves on the President's Policy on That Issue—Anti-Mahone Virginians Meet.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Oct. 3.—Returns from Tuesday's elections are yet meager, and exceedingly slow in coming to the front. It was estimated last night that less than half the precincts of the state had been heard from. As to the result nothing is definitely known, excepting that the Republicans have made a clean sweep of the state, and that Prohibition is carried by 5,000. The capital question causes the wildest excitement, and there is no interest whatever in anything else. Sioux Falls, Huron and Pierre each have about 10,000 votes, and each claims the location, but the result last night was as deeply in the dark as it was forty-eight hours before. The vote will be very close, and it is believed it will require the official count to settle the question.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 3.—A dispatch from Blunt to The Pioneer Press says that already the rush of boomers to Pierre has begun. The west-bound train for Pierre passed Blunt Wednesday night loaded with Pierre settlers. Farm property in that vicinity has already taken a jump of 100 per cent. The Sioux Falls Daily Express shows the following condtiion of affairs in the capital contest at 11 p. m. Wednesday night: Pierre, 13,924; Huron, 11,776; Sioux Falls, 11,410. The success of Pierre is generally conceded.

Montana Very Close.

LIVINGSTON, Mont., Oct. 3.—The present indications point to the election of Carter (Rep.), for congress by a majority of less than 500. Power and Toole are running very close, with chances slightly in favor of Power. It is impossible to make reliable estimates as to which party has carried the legislative ticket, as it is very close, and the result will not be known for some hours.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 5.—There was no material change in the legislative situation yesterday. The Republicans claim three and the Democrats seven on joint ballot in the legislature. Toole's election is admitted by the Republicans so far as the returns go, but they claim that full returns will elect Power. The contest for control of the legislature promises to be bitter.

North Dakota.

FARGO, N. D., Oct. 3.—Returns from the state election are unprecedentedly slow in reaching the state committee headquarters, although enough came in yesterday that a more intelligent estimate of the counties can be made than was possible Tuesday night. The Republican majority in the state will not exceed 7,000 and the sprinkling of Democrats in the first legislature will be far greater than has ever before been the case with representatives from the northern section. Seventeen counties return a net majority of 1,358 against prohibition. These embrace counties having the heaviest vote, so that it is a safe assertion that the state will not go over 1,200 against the prohibition clause. The capital question is yet unsettled.

The Washington Election.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 5.—Incomplete returns from all counties in Washington, save Douglass, Okanogan, San Juan, Skagit, Snohomish and Stevens give the Republican candidate for congress 7,627 majority. The whole Republican state ticket is elected by majorities not far from these figures. Gains for the Republican ticket are reported from every section of the state, and it is not at all unlikely that the total vote will show over 8,000 majority.

MASSACHUSETTS DEMOCRACY.

William E. Russell Nominated for Governor—Proceedings in Brief.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 3.—Hon. P. A. Collins was made temporary chairman of the Democratic state convention, which met here yesterday at 11:30 a. m., and upon permanent organization Nathan Matthews, Jr., of Boston, took the chair and addressed the convention at length, severely criticising the Republican party and Gen. Harrison's administration. At the conclusion of Mathew's speech Hon. William E Russell, of Cambridge, was unanimously nominated for governor, and the other nominations were referred to a committee.

The Declaration of Principles.

The platform adopted, after affirming the national platform of 1888 and calling for free raw materials, favors closer commercial relations with Canada; condemns fraud in elections, but opposes the national election law scheme; declares the present national administration narrowly partisan and low in standard of public duty, having betrayed civil service reform and perverted the pension office into a machine for influencing votes; condemns the ruling giving pensions to dishonorably discharged soldiers; favors shorter hours for woman and child labor, and pledges the party to maintain the public schools.

Balance of the Ticket.

The nominating committee reported the following names for the remainder of the state ticket, and they were confirmed: For lieutenant governor, John W. Corcoran, of Clinton; secretary of state, William M. Osgood, of Boston; treasurer and receiver general, E. B. Munn, of Holyoke; auditor, D. T. Trefery, of Marblehead; attorney general, Elisha B. Maynard, of Springfield.

Mr. Russell, named for governor, and Mr. Corcoran for lieutenant governor, made brief speeches, which were heartily applauded, and after appointing a state committee and attending to other routine business the convention adjourned sine die.

CIILI SERVICE REFORMERS.

They Adopt Resolutions Criticising Republican Performances.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—At yesterday morning's session of the National Civil Service Reform league George William Curtis was re-elected president. Resolutions were adopted criticising the manner in which the civil service pledges of the Republican party have been fulfilled and the practice followed by the president of placing the appointments at the disposal of partisan leaders, thus enabling them to debauch constituencies and control elections. An equally flagrant violation of pledges, the resolutions say, is the removal of thousands of public officers, especially in the postal service, for mere partisan reasons, and especially of men trained by years of faithful service and universally recognized to be peculiarly fitted for their several positions, and whose only fault was their unwillingness to seek the favor of influential politicians by subordinating to their interests those of the country. The repeal of the "four years law" is urged, as is also the widest publicity of the details of removals.

Virginia Anti-Mahoneites.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 3.—The Anti-Mahoneite conference yesterday declared that Mahone made it impossible for the Norfolk ticket to be elected; that he had deceived the Republican national committee by false pretenses; that he had driven from the councils of the party the ablest men in it, and that he has forfeited the right to the confidence of the people of Virginia. The conference recommended no particular course to be pursued by the voters on election day except that each shall use his individual judgment.

FORTY LIVES LOST.

Frightful Disaster on the Mississippi—Lists of Dead and Wounded.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 4.—The steamer Corona, of the Ouachita Consolidated line, which left this city Wednesday evening for the Ouachita river, exploded her boilers at False River, nearly opposite Port Hudson, about noon yesterday, causing the loss of the steamer and about forty lives. The Anchor line steamer, City of St. Louis, happened near by, and her crew saved many lives.

Names of the Lost.

The following is a list of the lost so far as known: Crew—J. W. Blanks, captain; J. V. Jordan, first clerk; Charles C. Elles, second clerk; Swimp Hanna, third clerk; Fred Denkle and Fred Vermon, barkeepers; Pat Ryan, steward; Dick Curtis, fireman; Tom Shook, engineer; Henry Doyle and James Swipe, porters; —— Tate, barber; Henry Davis, deck hand; Tom Cook, sailor; Billy Young, second mate; Sam Steel, a boy from Texas; both captains of the deck watch, and eight roustabouts.

The Wounded Victims.

Passengers:—Dr. Atwell, a chiropodist, and four negro musicians traveling with him; —— Scott, of Smithland, La.; Mrs. Davis, of Stockman, Tex.; Mr. Koench; Mrs. Huff, of Opelousas; Mrs. Kaufman's nurse and eldest child.

The following are wounded: Capt. B. G. Cornwall, slightly; —— Baughman, residing on Black river, hurt in side, not dangerous; Mr. Comstock, of Donaldsonville, slightly; J. J. Mooridge, of Columbia, La., slightly; Wayne, a little son of Henry Black, slightly hurt about the face; Charles A. Peace, of New Orleans, scalded. None of the wounded are expected to die. Pilot Rollings is badly scalded on the hands. Capt. T. C. Sweeny is slightly hurt by flying timbers.

The Boat Torn to Pieces.

Mrs. E. W. Robertson is slightly hurt. She says that when the Corona arrived opposite False River landing, sixteen miles below Bayou Sara, one of her boilers exploded, tearing the boat to pieces, when she sank in deep water in a few seconds. Mrs. Robertson was wedged in the ladies' cabin with some of the debris lying across her lower limbs, but was suddenly released and found herself floating in the river. She sank twice, but luckily was picked up and escaped with only a few painful bruises.

A Passenger's Statement.

Hon. L. F. Mason, secretary of state, who was a passenger on the Corona, states that he was in the cabin talking to Mrs. Robertson about 10 o'clock yesterday morning when the explosion occurred. He escaped with life-preservers and assisted in saving Mrs. Robertson and another lady. There was very little time for preparation for escape, as the boat went down like lead a few seconds after the explosion occurred. As the steamer City of St. Louis came down she was hailed and took on board all the passengers and crew who were not lost in the river. No one was able to gave any explanation as to the cause of the sudden disaster.

Not Due to High Pressure.

The Picayune Baton Rouge special says: "Capt. T. C. Sweeny, one of the owners of the line, who assumed command on the death of Capt. Blanks, says the explosion was not due to a too high pressure of steam. He just had occasion to examine the gauge, and is positive there was not a pressure of more than 150 pounds. The boat had a moderate cargo. She was in mid-stream, just below the landing at Arbroth, and had just whistled to pass the City of St. Louis, fortunately coming down at the time. The explosion had a downward tendency, and blew out the bottom of the boat, causing her to sink immediately. The cabin was torn in two, the rear portion floating down the stream and bearing a number of the saved. Capt. Sweeny happened to be forward, and started at once to put out the flames, which began to burn in several places. He says the boat would undoubtedly have burned had she not gone down immediately. None of the books, papers, or other valuables were recovered.

PRAIRIE FIRES IN IOWA.

Heavy Loss of Hay and Wheat—A Farmer's Wife Suffocated.

SPIRIT LAKE, Ia., Oct. 7.—The prairie fire that raged for two days in the eastern part of Dickinson county, extended over a great part of Emmet county, running to the Des Moines river. Hay was very scarce this summer in Dickinson county, and now the farmers in the eastern part of the county are in great distress. What little there was is burned. In Emmet county it is estimated that 20,000 tons of hay and 50,000 bushels of grain were destroyed. While fighting the fire Saturday night Mrs. A. N. Garde, wife of a farmer residing in the north end of the county, inhaled so much smoke and flame that she cannot recover. The fire was finally checked by the railroad tracks and the changing of the wind from south to north.

Havoc to Farm Property.

FORT DODGE, Ia., Oct. 7.—The annual autumn prairie fires have commenced in northern Iowa. An immense conflagration to the north of this city did great damage before it was gotten under control Saturday afternoon. Several hundred acres of corn fields and thousands of tons of hay were destroyed. Two special trains left here to protect railroad property from destruction. The dry season has contributed to make such fires more than usually disastrous.

SUPERIOR, Wis., Oct. 7.—Forest fires are raging along the line of the South Shore road. A heavy wind is blowing and a large amount of farming property is being destroyed.

Death of Ex-Governor Martin.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 3.—Ex-Governor John A. Martin died yesterday morning at Atchison from a complication of diseases, aged 50 years. He is the first ex-governor of this state to pass away, the other eight being still in good health. Governor Martin was a native of Pennsylvania, and had resided in Kansas thirty-two years. He was for several years a member of the national Republican central committee, and at the time of his death was vice president of the National Soldiers' home as well as editor and proprietor of The Atchison Daily Champion.

Held Up by Two Women.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The novelty of seeing two women arraigned for highway robbery was one of the features of the proceedings in the Tombs police court Friday. Early Thursday morning Samuel Whittier, a molder by trade, was passing through Battery park. Without any ceremony the women gave him peremptory orders to go along with them. Whittier refused, whereupon the amazons seized him by the hands, knocked him down, and took 50 cents in small change from his pockets. The molder, who comes from Jersey City, lustily cried "police." The women were arrested and at once disgorged the proceeds of the robbery. They gave their pedigrees as Mary Fitzsimons, 56 years, and Mary Ann Beals, 35 years. They were held in $2,000 bail each.

An Alabama Item.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 28.—Friday morning Deputy Sheriff E. King Vann attempted to arrest a negro name John Steele, who was charged with an attempt to murder Ella Curry. Steele fired a load of buckshot into Vann killing him instantly. The affair created great excitement and Sheriff Smith, with several deputies and a posse of about ten citizens immediately set out with bloodhounds to track the murderer. The dogs soon struck the trail and the negro was run up a tree in a dense swamp two miles back of Elyton late in the afternoon. When the officers approached he threw his gun away, jumped from the tree and made a break in effort to escape. He was riddled with bullets and died immediately.

Remarkable Nerve.

The early history of America is full of instances of men having great nerve. But we are rapidly becoming the most nervous people on earth. The recent increase of insanity, epileptic fits, headache, backache, neuralgia, sleeplessness, nervousness, dyspepsia, fluttering of the heart, etc, points to an early decay of the race, unless this tendency is checked. Nothing will cure these diseases like Dr. Miles' Nervine, warranted to contain neither opium nor morphine. Sample bottles free at Baker & Hall's Drug Store. Don't fail to try it.

LONG LIFE.

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we recive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease preventer that has yet been discovered, is simered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names and guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them.

They do not know, of course, unless they have courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why dont you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but one dollar for a very large bottle. Try it at once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggists may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine—of health.

Free from alcohol and opium; composed of expensive herbs and roots, with a fine, delicate flavoring.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

HOW CAN WE SECURE A GOOD CATCH OF CLOVER.

Paper Read Before the Franklin and Tecumseh Farmer's Club by Abner Wilson.

"He who causes two blades of grass to grow where one grew before is a benefactor of his race." And not only is he a benefactor of the race of human beings but all the animal kingdom join in his praise. The question, How can we best secure a good catch of Clover, is claiming the attention of more farmers to-day than how to raise a large crop of wheat. Some of you may think the writer may be somewhat disqualified from speaking on this subject, having plowed two stubble fields, one in 1887 and one in 1888, on account of failure in seeding, but experience is the best of teachers and perhaps I can point out my mistakes as well as my ultimate success. Some 3 or 4 years ago I made up my mind that timothy was not the thing on my land, and consequently have sowed but very little of it since. I have been seeding all ground sowed to wheat the past four years, but two years of severe drouth killed the young clover after it was 4 to 6 inches high. I will give my mode of seeding on my fields which are nearly free from stone and quite sandy. In the spring of 1887 I seeded my west front field, sowing six quarts of clover seed to the acre. About April 1st. I dragged these over with a smoothing harrow and rolled them down. The west front field was corn stubble and the other was stubble plowed early. On the corn stubble I hitched the harrow on behind the roller and it did good work. The seed all came up thick and nice and grew until about four inches high, when along about haying and harvest the drougth commenced, and by the time I cut my wheat the ground was one mat of dead clover, leaves and stems, but I lived in hopes that the roots were alive but I was doomed to disappointment. I am safe in saying that in the front field, which was a beautiful stand, not 500 plants remained alive. The back field was some better and I could see clover in patches and about Aug. 1st. not wishing to plow it up, went over it with half clover and half timothy, 4 quarts to the acre with wheat drill letting the hoes dig in the ground. Some of the clover and most of the timothy came up, and this year I cut fair hay from it. The other field I plowed up in the fall. Planted to cabbage last year, 15 acres, and had a very good crop. Last spring I made up my mind I would try seeding without any other crop, but a good many shook their heads. Some advised me to sow oats, and others barley, to shade the crop, but having experimented in a small way with clover seed alone, I went at it. I cultivated with small teeth on Planet cultivator, going twice in each row of cabbage stumps. I then sowed 7 quarts clover and 1 quart of timothy to the acre, with wheelbarrow seeder and dragged with smoothing harrow and rolled down. Finished up April 12th, and for six weeks no rain fell, but the seed was in the ground from 1 to 2 inches and came up just beautiful, and it did me good to walk over a field once more with grass so thick you could not step without treading on it. You all know how the wet weather came, and all the weeds whose seed had laid dormant for two years, and my clover-field, to look at, was one of the worst patch of weeds you ever saw. But about Aug. 1st., with a new Wood mower, I cut the field over, setting the knives so as to cut 4 or 5 inches high, and got 17 loads of fair sheep hay. Since then the young second-growth has stood about still, owing to the droughth, but the plants are all alive and bid fair to get good top to stand the winter. I have not, nor shall I turn any stock on this field, and hope to cut 2½ or 3 tons to the acre next year as well as get a crop of clover seed. Circumstances alter cases, and all land cannot be treated alike, but for heavy land I would advise sowing early. Have your seed all ready and when the ground cracks, or honey-combs, get up long before breakfast and all hands sow clover, and the freezing and thawing will cover it. No fear of hurting by freezing; clover and timothy are hardy plants. In conclusion let me say, be sure and sow enough seed, 6 quarts of clover and 4 quarts of timothy are none too much for heavy land, and for sand 8 quarts of clover and 2 quarts of timothy. Be sure the seeds are covered either by freezing and thawing, beating rains, or by dragging and rolling. Keep all stock off entirely. If it is necessary mow after harvest to kill the weeds and let this lie on ground for a mulch, then we will have a field of clover so thick that the ground will be shaded all the time, allowing the nitrogen in the air to be entrapped and held for future plant food and so thick the May-beetle cannot get down to lay her eggs, and our neighbors will say that man has good luck getting clover seed to catch.

ANOTHER FINE RESIDENCE.

Another first-class family residence has been added to the many fine homes of which Tecumseh can boast. We refer to the new house of Wm. C. Heck located at the corner of Chicago and VanBuren streets. The old house was first erected by John Patchen over fifty years ago and has remained substantially the same until last spring. Mr. Heck then began a general tearing down and remodeling, and the changes made have been so many that the present edifice is practically a new building. It is now fully finished and the family are well settled. We had the pleasure of looking through the house yesterday and found it to be a very complete and convenient family dwelling. The lower floor contains a parlor, family room, sitting room, dining room, bath room, pantry and kitchen. The second floor contains three large bed rooms. The lower rooms, except the kitchen, are finished in hard wood in the natural color, and the walls are all covered with wall and ceiling decorations. Three of the rooms have large bay windows, and most of the windows are provided with inside blinds. The principal rooms are separated with folding doors, and the sitting room is provided with an open grate. In fact, the entire lower floor looks more like a city mansion than a modest village residence. Two of the chambers are finished in pine, and one of them has the casings and wood work taken from the old parlor, thus retaining the old style of inside finish which was fashionable fifty years ago. But in the arrangement of the interior, convenience and utility have been consulted as well as looks. A large water tank has been constructed in the garret which is fed from the roof, and the same tank can be filled from the cistern by means of a rotary pump in the basement. Pipes lead from this tank to the bath room and kitchen, by which a supply of soft water is ready at hand. A large water heater is attached to the cook stove which supplies both bath room and kitchen with hot water. Over the cook stove is a register through the ceiling, from which a large tin flue leads into the chimney. All the steam and vapors rising from the cook stove are thus carried into the chimney. The basement contains two rooms, one of which is the furnace room and the other is used for a kitchen cellar. The latter has a cement floor and plastered walls. The cistern for rain water contains over one hundred barrels. The furnace is a Dowagiac heater, using coal or wood for fuel, and hot air flues lead into every room on both floors. The exterior of the house is relieved with projections and bay windows, and painted in different shades of color. In exterior appearance it is one of the most beautiful houses on the street. The yard has been carefully graded and seeded and the foundation laid for a magnificent lawn. A connection from the water tank in the garret, upon which a rubber hose can be attached, furnishes a way to water the lawn as often as necessary.

The job was let to A. J. VanWinkle, who had charge of all the work. Temple, McClure & Co. furnished the lumber.

Mr. Heck is very nicely situated. He has a good business, a fine home and a charming family. If he does not enjoy life now it will be his own fault.

A NEW LAW.

Every Case of Typhoid Fever Should Be Reported to the Health Officer.

Typhoid fever is a disease which the State Board of Health has declared to be "dangerous to the public," and as such it comes under the law requiring physicians to report to the health officials. Any physicians who shall neglect to immediately give such notice "shall forfeit for each such offense a sum not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars." After October 1st any householder who shall refuse or willfully neglect immediately to give such notice shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and is liable to a fine of one hundred dollars, or in default of payment thereof may be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding ninety days.

It seems important that the people generally shall understand this new law which applies to Scarlet fever, Diphtheria, Small-pox, and all such dangerous diseases as well as to Typhoid fever, but at this time of the year Typhoid fever is usually most prevalent, and it is especially dangerous in times of drouth, therefore the safety of the people may now be greatly promoted by having every case of Typhoid fever reported to the Health officers who is by law (Section 1, Act 137, Laws of 1883) required to promptly attend to the restriction of every such disease. A new law which takes effect October 1st, makes it a misdemeanor punishable by fine or imprisonment for the health officers knowingly to violate that section of law, or for any person knowingly to violate the orders of the health officers made in accordance with that section. But the actual penalties which are incurred by the violation of these laws are the death penalties to many of our people, about one thousand being lost in this state in each year from Typhoid fever. The saving of a large proportion of these lives is the real reason for the effort, in which it is hoped all our people will join, for the restriction of Typhoid fever, and other dangerous diseases.

From a circular issued by the State Board of Health on the prevention of Typhoid fever we take these extracts.

Boil the drinking water.—immediately on the appearance of Typhoid fever a careful examination should be made of the surroundings of the house, and particularly of the source of the water used, to determine, if possible, whether it has been contaminated by leachings from privies or other sources of filth. If the sick person has been at home, and not away where the disease might be contracted, it will be safest that water from the same source as that used by the sick person immediately before having been taken sick should not be used for drinking or culinary purposes unless it is boiled. It is believed that thorough boiling will destroy the germs or poison of the disease. Ordinary filtering will not do so.

Experience seems to prove that, with certain precautions, attendants upon those sick with Typhoid fever are not in danger of contracting this disease directly from the patient. Water chemically impure does not necessarily cause the disease; but drinking-water contaminated with the fecal discharges of a Typhoid fever patient is believed to be the most common source or vehicle of Typhoid fever. While the possibility of its originating in other ways is not denied, the frequent outbreaks of this disease which are traceable directly and unmistakably to a contaminated water-supply, seems to point to this as the chief source of danger. The disease has also been traced to milk diluted with infected pump-water, and apparently in some cases to emanations from sewers and cesspools. It seems to prevail most in times of drought, in the fall of the year, especially after a period of high temperature, and when the water in wells is low and its contaminations most concentrated.

DEATH OF CHARLES BIDWELL.

Information was received here today of the death in New York city, this morning, of Charles Bidwell, formerly a well-known citizen of Adrian.

Mr. Bidwell came to this place in 1845, from Livingstone county, New York, and was for many years a prominent merchant and respected citizen here.

He has been connected for some time past with Town Topics, a weekly society paper of New York city, owned and edited by Mr. E. D. Mann. While employed in the office, some time since he was taken sick with a chill, and taken to his residence. Mr. W. H. Waldby, when in New York, on Sunday, September 29, saw Mr. Bidwell, and his doctor then expressed hopes of his rapid recovery, an expectation that was not realized.

Mrs. Bidwell will arrive here with the remains on the Lake Shore train, from the east, on Wednesday morning.

The above is taken from the Adrian Times of Monday. The deceased was one of the earliest settlers of Adrian and for many years one of her most prominent business men. He was a brother of B. J. Bidwell of Tecumseh.

We want some wood and we want it now.

A DAY IN DETROIT.

Business called us to Detroit a few days ago and we put in a full day to good advantage making a few business and personal calls. The city was in holiday attire, for the big fair had just closed and the decorations on the buildings had not yet been removed. Every one was feeling happy over the success of the Exposition, and visitors seemed to catch the prevailing enthusiasm.

After transacting the business which called us there, we set out to find some Tecumseh acquaintances.

Sam James and Alf were both at their old quarters on Jefferson Ave in Bunt's fur and hat store. Fall trade in their line is opening up briskly.

One block up street is Burnham's wholesale dry goods house, where Mr. F. C. Stoepel is located. We had a brief chat with him and found him well pleased with the fall outlook for trade.

John F. Murray is still in the insurance business and has a pleasant home on Bagley Ave, but a few steps from Grand Circus park. His office is at his residence. Mr. Murray is on the road a portion of the time but we fortunately found him at home.

Bert Tribou is located Griswold St. and has lately been promoted; that is, he has secured a better position than formerly. He is Secretary of the Western Coal Dealers Association, an office of much responsibility and good pay.

Capt Jas C. Wheeler is still holding down a chair in the U. S. Collectors office and is likely to remain. Administrations come and go but Jim stays right there. He has held the place so long that no collector can afford to dispense with his services.

Jud DePuy is located at 26 West Congress St, and now holds the State Agency of the Caligraph type writer. This machine is coming into more general use every day. We believe Jud has struck a good thing and will work up a fine business.

Gus Slayton's office is at 155 Griswold St in the basement story. He has commodious rooms and the latch string hangs out to his old Tecumseh friends.

We intended to make several other calls, but train time arrived and we had to make tracks for the Wabash depot.

THE PALMER, N. Y., THEATER COMPANY.

It is the desire and aim of this Co. to present to the amusement loving public a company of capable artists in a repertoire of several of the late successes, making an extra feature of the mounting of said plays, placing them on the stage in a style never before attempted by a Repertoire Company, and a credit to any theater in New York or Chicago. They pay a heavy royalty for the plays they produce, and it is the only Company having the exclusive right to present them in the territory they appear in. "Escaped from the Law," "The Black Spider," "Hoop of Gold" and "A Brave Woman" are all strong, successful plays, replete with sensational scenic effects, and require acting of a high order.

They carry a car load of mechanical effects: Furniture, four distinct sets; Properties, Calcium Lights, Statues, Draperies, Portieres, Grass Mats, etc.; and will guarantee there is not a Company traveling carries a like amount. They appear at the Opera House three nights, commencing this evening.

HIGH SCHOOL HAPPENINGS.

Misses Julia Wood, Mamie Crowell, Maggie Spafford and Edith Vedder are on the sick list.

Last Monday morning Edith Pilbeam read an essay on "sleep walking, and on Wednesday morning Viva Howell read one entitled "steps." They were both worth listening to.

The election of the officers for the High School Lyceum will take place Friday morning with the eleventh and twelfth grades.

The pupils in the Union building are soon to present the Tecumseh Schools with an American Flag which will be erected on the Central Building. The purpose of the flag being to foster patriotism and to promote love for the flag and country over which it floats. R. F. H.

In the big Grand Haven fire the M. E. church of that city was destroyed. The church appeals to the denomination throughout the state for aid in raising funds to rebuild. Remittances will be received and acknowledged by the presiding elder of that district, Dr. J. I. Buell, of Grand Rapids; Rev. C. A. Varnum or I. B. Lum, of Grand Haven.

The premium money awarded at the Lenawee Agricultural Society fair foots up to $1,420.85 this year which is about $200 less than was paid last year. This amount does not include some premiums that are under protest. All in all the society are just about even, or in other words they made the improvements which cost about $1,000, and are nothing in debt.

A quiet wedding took place at the residence of George Griswold north of the village last evening. The contracting parties were Miss Kittie Griswold and Mr. J. W. Crane, of Burr Oak. Only a small number of near relatives witnessed the ceremony. Mr. Crane is a former resident of this village and a young man of high standing in the community. He is now the junior member of the firm of Crane & Son, in the creamery business at Burr Oak. A large number of the bride's friends will greatly miss her from her accustomed place, but will wish her happiness in her new home.

As the time expired the 5th of Oct. for which tickets drawing books for the year from the Tecumseh Library were given, the directors would be grateful if subscribers would renew them at once. Our citizens have always responded generously when called upon for help and owing to their liberal support we have in this short time collected a library to be proud of, but to keep up the interest we must have new books occasionally, and there are also current expenses which must be met; therefore, if not only those who already have tickets would kindly obtain new ones promptly, but if those of our citizens who have not yet drawn books would purchase tickets it would be a great help and encouragement to the Board of Directors.

A crowded house welcomed the McGibeny family in their concert last Saturday evening. To say they were good is drawing it mild. It is a wonderful family and they are all musicians from the head down to young Master Leo. The children in their Kindergarten songs receive as much applause as the young gentlemen and ladies in their more difficult selections. Mr. Hugh's violin and Miss Viola's cornet playing were especially good. Miss Allie's musical reading was amusing and interesting.

The length of time which Miss J. A. Hough has been in the millinery business here in Tecumseh enables her to select a stock of goods with special reference to the wants and tastes of the ladies of this community. To accommodate all who may wish to examine and make selections from the full stock, she will have a grand opening day on Tuesday next, Oct 15th, at her millinery rooms on Chicago street, and she would be pleased to see her friends on that day.

The largest crowd that has been at Bills' race track this season was there to see the races last Saturday. The horses which were expected to trot failed to put in an appearance, probably on account of the many fairs held in this section of the state during the past week. The weather was also on a rampage, and the cold raw wind undoubtedly kept some away. Only one race was trotted—the match race between Williamson's Egg Boy and Exelby's Black Billy, and that was the one that drew the crowd. It seemed to be an off day for Egg Boy. He must have thought the cold snap had chilled the hens through and there were no eggs to buy, as Billy left him in the rear in three straight heats with very little trouble. Egg Boy got a good start in the second heat and had a chance to win it, but broke and lost. The disappointed ones thought the race was won before the horses started. Nevertheless Billy is quite a speedy colt and shows promise of being a trotter. Egg Boy did not appear to do as well as he did three weeks ago, but might improve with another trial. The judges were Fred Teachout, Alden Rundell and Charley Adams. C. D. Bills drove Black Billy and Chas. Snell drove Egg Boy.

The discussions will cover all branches of the rapidly growing work of the Association. Delegates will be welcome from towns in which are no Associations, provided they bring credentials signed by some local clergyman.

We clip the following from the Gilroy Advance. The shooting affray in which he was engaged was a very unfortunate affair, but his friends will be glad to know that Mr. Emlay was acting in self-defense.

Oliver Emlay, who in self defense killed a train conductor in Mexico, is awaiting trial in Matamoras where he has the freedom of the city, but is not premitted to roam beyond its limits. From information it appears that Emlay was brutally assaulted and beaten by train Conductor Moran and believing his life in danger drew a pistol and fired with fatal effect. The railroad authorities approve the act and its able counsel will be employed in the case if necessary, but it is probable that the case will and with the examination and Oliver will be exonerated.

Seven writers—clerymen, college professors and public men, some of them specialists of acknowledged standing—have associated themselves to discuss special questions of social interest and import, and to prepare papers to be afterwards given to the public from time to time in the pages of The Century. The writers include the Rev. Professor Shields of Princeton, Bishop Potter of New York, the Rev. Dr. T. T. Munger of New Haven, the Hon. Seth Low of Brooklyn, and Professor Ely of the Johns Hopkins University. For each paper the author will be responsible, but he will have had the benefit of the criticism of the other members of the group before giving it final form. The opening paper will be printed in the November Century.

Have You Astigmatism?

Hang this diagram on the wall, stand twelve feet back, shade one eye and then the other, so as to view the radiating lines with each eye separately.

If you find some of the lines are blurred, while others are clear and black, you have astigmatism, which sometimes causes pain in and over the eyes, in the back of the neck, and sometimes in the small of the back, but spectacles may be made that will relieve it.

Again, if you find some of the lines are more perfect with one eye than the other, your eyes are mismated, and should be fitted to harmonize one with the other.

Remember that Edmondson & Cox, two of the most practical opticians in the United States, will stop with Adamson Bros., from Monday, Oct. 7, to Saturday night, Oct. 19.

THE ARK TAKEN TO ZION.

LESSON II, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, OCT. 13.

Text of the Lesson, II Sam. vi, 1-12—Commit Verses 11, 12—Golden Text, Psalms lxxxvii, 2—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

David being now king over all Israel, and having taken the stronghold of the Jebusites, which up to this time had been a continued disgrace in their midst, he at once thinks of the Ark of God, pitches a tent for it in Jerusalem (v. 17) and proceeds to bring it thither.

1. "Again, David gathered together all the chosen men of Israel, thirty thousand." The previous chapter tells in its closing verses of the gathering of Israel to defeat their enemies the Philistines, and how David, on two different occasions and by different methods, successfully overcame them, being guided by the Lord in answer to prayer (chap. v, 19-23); but this is a gathering not to overcome enemies, but to rejoice in the Lord; and it was held after due consultation with the captains of thousands and hundreds and every leader. (I Chr. xiii, 1-5.)

2. "And David arose, and went with all the people * * * to bring up from thence the Ark of God." The margin of this verse, and also I Chr. xiii, 6, says that they went to Baalah, that is, to Kirjath-jearim; the ark had been here in the house of Abinadab since the time when the Philistines sent it home in a new cart drawn by two milk cows, leaving their calves shut up at home. It had been with the Philistines seven months, the Tabernacle being at Shiloh, from whence the ark had been taken. (I Sam. iv, 7.) "Which is called by the Name, even the Name of the Lord of Hosts that sitteth upon the cherubim." (R. V.) Here is the most intimate association of the Ark with the name of Jehovah; it is a wondrous type of the Lord Jesus Christ as the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth (Rom. x, 4); as our mercy seat or propitiation for sins (compare Heb. ix, 5, and Rom. iii, 25, R. V. margin), and as one with His church, the light and glory of earth in the days of the New Jerusalem. The wood and gold are suggestive of the humanity and divinity of Christ; the mercy seat is explained by the passages already given; the tables of testimony, safely kept in the Ark, speak of Him who came to fulfill all righteousness, and of whom it is written: "I delight to do Thy will, O my God; yea, Thy law is within my heart" (Ps. xl, 8), while the thought that the cherubim represent the church, His body, is sufficiently established by the fact that they were beaten out of the same pieces of gold which formed the mercy seat (Ex. xxv, 19, margin). That Israel saw all this significance in the Ark we do not pretend to say, nor do we think it. It may be that their principal thought was simply that this holy vessel was a symbol of the presence of their God, the Lord of Hosts who dwelleth between the cherubim (I Sam. iv, 4; II Sam. vi, 2; II Ki. xix, 15; I Chr. xiii, 6; Ps. lxxx, 1; xciv. 1; Isa. xxxvii, 16). But surely it is time that the church of Christ with all her light should know more than she seems to about this, the most wonderful and significant vessel of all Scripture.

3. "And they set the Ark of God upon a new cart." David failed to inquire of the Lord in this matter, else we should not have had this sad record. He knew better, for hear him: "Then David said, none ought to carry the ark of God but the Levites, for them hath the Lord chosen to carry the ark of God, and to minister unto him forever (I Chr. xv, 2).

4, 5. "Ahis went before the Ark; and David and all the house of Israel played before the Lord on all manner of instruments." It was a grand display and in a good cause, and the man who would dare to find fault, simply because the Ark was in a cart drawn by oxen instead of being on the shoulders of the Levites, would deserve to be called narrow minded and a croaker; nevertheless he would stand in the minority with God, and be a blessed man even though against the king.

6. "Uzzah put forth his hand to the Ark of God, and took hold of it; for the oxen stumbled." (Margin and R. V.) The worst stumble was on the part of David when he employed this method, but that was not so manifest nor did it seem to endanger the safety of the Ark as much as this stumble of the oxen. The danger of a wrong step does not always appear at first, and the sin is often made manifest only through failure on the part of those not directly responsible.

7. "The anger of the Lord was kindled against Uzzah, and God smote him there for his error." Uzzah signifies strength, and strength is a good thing, but the work of the Lord is not dependent upon the strength of men; His strength is made perfect in our weakness, and His work is accomplished not by the might or power of man but by the Spirit of the Lord of Hosts.

8. "And David was displeased." It is a sad affair when the servant of the Lord, be he king or peasant, becomes displeased with his Master. It shows how disobedience always leads to other sins and strikes at the very root of fellowship with God. A God of Love can do no wrong, can by no means make a mistake, and the only right thing for His children to do is to walk with Him in cheerful submission. David had no one to blame but himself; had he done right this would not have happened; and now that chastening has come, he should have been displeased with himself, and have said, with Eli: "It is the Lord: let Him do what seemeth Him good."

9. "And David was afraid of the Lord that day." Another result of his sin, which prayer and obedience would have saved him from. "There is no fear in love; perfect love casteth out fear; fear hath torment."

10, 11. "The Lord blessed Obed-edom, and all his household." David refused at that time to have anything more to do with the Ark, and so it was carried into the house of Obed-edom, where it remained three months. A three months' blessing for Obed-edom and a three months' loss to David, for the inference is that David did not return to the Lord with all his heart during this period, but continued out of fellowship with God. How many Christians are losing the privilege and blessedness of fellowship with God and a happy walk with Him in the joys of His salvation, because they refuse to accept meekly some chastening which He has lovingly sent them for their good, or because they are disobedient and will not humbly confess their sin and turn from it. How many blessed households there are, on the other hand, where Jesus is welcomed and honored as Saviour and friend and cheerfully submitted to as King over all.

12. "So David went and brought up the Ark of God from the house of Obed-edom into the city of David with gladness." He hears of the blessing that has come to the house of Obed-edom, and now does what he should have done three months before. He confesses his sin, saying to the Levites, as he called upon them to bear the Ark: "Because ye did it not at the first the Lord our God made a breach upon us, for that we sought Him not after the due order." But now the Levites having sanctified themselves, bare the Ark of God upon their shoulders, with the staves thereon, as Moses commanded.

GOTHAM FLIES THE PENNANT.

Giants Win the Closely Contested League Fight—Other Base Ball News.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—At the close of the League base ball playing Friday night last the situation was such that it was about an even chance whether New York or Boston should fly the League pennant. Saturday's playing, however, settled the question, and New York flies the pennant. The struggle was a close one, probably the closest in the history of the League, and it may be said that the Giants won on their merits. When the League season closed last year, and Chicago had to give up the trophy, it was for the reason that while Anson's club had proved itself better than either of the leaders, when pitted against them, it had lost so many games by some sort of "hoodoo" to the "tailenders" that its victories over the aforesaid leading clubs had been neutralized. But this year the winning club has had no such luck. It not only beat the most expert of its opponents, but the "hoodoo" was absent when it played with the weaker clubs.

Another feature of this year's playing is the lead the New York and Boston clubs had over the others. While the two leaders ended the season so close together that the last day's playing was necessary to decide the championship, Chicago, the third in the race, was 140 points behind Boston. The fight for third place was as exciting as that for first, Chicago and Philadelphia closing within 13 points of each other, and the race requiring the last two or three days' playing to decide. Pittsburg finished fifth, and Cleveland, whose playing was so phenomenal in the early part of the season—they were eighth at one time in June—bringing up in the eighth place.

The standing of the clubs at the close of the season is given below:

National League.	Played	Won.	Lost.	P.c.
New York	126	83	43	.659
Boston	128	83	45	.648
Chicago	132	67	65	.508
Philadelphia	127	63	64	.496
Pittsburg	132	61	71	.462
Cleveland	133	61	72	.459
Indianapolis	134	59	75	.441
Washington	125	41	84	.328

The scores made on the last day of League playing—Saturday—were as follows: At Cleveland—Cleveland 3, New York 5; at Pittsburg—Pittsburg 6, Boston 1; at Chicago Chicago 3, Philadelphia 2; at Indianapolis—Indianapolis 15, Washington 6—eight innings, darkness. American association, Saturday: At Baltimore—Columbus 10, Baltimore 11—six innings, darkness; at Cincinnati—Cincinnati 8, Louisville 1; at St. Louis—St Louis 7, Kansas City 2; at Brooklyn—Brooklyn 2, Athletic 10—eight innings, darkness. Sunday: At St. Louis—St. Louis 9, Kansas City 4; at Brooklyn—Brooklyn 9, Athletic 0—six innings, rain.

DISASTROUS CONFLAGRATION.

Grand Haven, Mich., Visited by a Dire Calamity.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Oct. 2.—About 12:30 yesterday morning fire was discovered in the rear of Mrs. N. Stayton's store, on Washington street. Four hours later the blaze had burned itself out, after destroying from $750,000 to $800,000 worth of property, represented Monday night by four of the principal business blocks in the city. The disastrous conflagration started in some unknown manner, and had it been seen in time could easily have been extinguished. Nearly every one in town was asleep, however, and before the fire department had reached the spot the fire had obtained a firm hold on the entire store. From there it soon extended to Henry Baar's drug store and to Irie Mull's meat market. The flames shot so high as to reach the cornice of the Cutler house on the east side of Mull's store. The roof was a mansard, and soon became ignited at the lower portion.

The Work of Four Hours.

In four hours from the time the fire was first discovered about forty buildings on four of the principal blocks of the city were burned to the ground, and nothing remained but a few bare walls and chimneys. The Cutler house had long been the pride of western Michigan. It was erected in 1872 by D. Cutler, at a cost of $250,000. It was a handsome structure of four stories. The insurance on the hotel and furniture was only $80,000. The residence of Mr. Cutler was built in 1887 at a cost of about $40,000. It was furnished in a costly manner and contained a well selected library, a very extensive collection of pictures and bric-a-brac, the accumulation of years of travel by the various members of the family. The greater portion of this valuable collection was destroyed.

An Appeal to the Public.

The city council held a special meeting yesterday morning, presided over by Mayor Kirby, and adopted resolutions setting forth that 500 people had been burned out of house and home at a cost of nearly $1,000,000. It is pointed out that these sufferers are among those least able to bear the loss, and that immediate aid is therefore needed. The mayor was directed to issue an appeal to the public, which he did shortly after. The appeal is chiefly for money to aid in rebuilding burned homes. His honor will receive contributions.

THE CHARIVARI MUST GO.

The Iowa Supreme Court Declares It a Barbarous Institution.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 5.—The Iowa supreme court yesterday reversed the decision of the lower court in the murder case of the state vs. Royal Adams. Adams was indicted for murder in the first degree for the accidental shooting of a person named Daring, a member of a charivari party, convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to the penitentiary for seven years and six months. In reviewing the case the court says:

"The party assembled on the night when the tragic affair took place is called a charivari. Its objects are about as barbarous as the pronunciation of its name. What ever toleration it once had has long since passed away. Even when in vogue it was often attended by violence and bloodshed. If it ever was allowable to direct a jury that such an assemblage, with all its tumult and confusion, was not a great provocation to those annoyed and insulted, that time has passed away."

The Case of Fred Munchrath.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 5.—In the case of the state vs. Fred Munchrath, indicted jointly with John Arensdorf for the murder of Rev. George C. Haddock and convicted of manslaughter, the supreme court has affirmed the decision of the lower court. A chief point, relied upon by the defense, was that the challenge of several jurors for cause was overruled, the cause alleged being the admitted formation of an opinion as to the guilt of the defendant from reading full newspaper reports of the trial of Arensdorf, with the qualification that such opinion would at once be modified by the introduction of new evidence. The court holds in its opinion, rendered by Justice Robinson, that it is the duty of the court and not of the juror to determine whether or not his opinion disqualifies him to act as a juror.

Ex-Governor John A. Martin, of Kansas, died at Atchison, that state, Wednesday.

SECOND BALLOTS.

The French Elections Again Go Against Boulanger.

THE GENERAL'S CAUSE HOPELESS.

Republicans Decisively Victorious—Portions of Italy Desolated by a Hurricane—Many Lives Lost—Parnell Lays Down the Law to the Tenants' League—An Orangeman Gives Balfour Something to Think About—Bismarck on the European Situation.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—The second ballots progressed very quietly everywhere yesterday. The followers of Boulanger appear to have deserted his standard quite generally, and it is intimated that quite two-thirds of the 186 seats contested for the second time have gone to the Republicans. Even the hitherto staunch Boulangist Laguerre no longer uses the name of his former chief in describing his political faith, but call himself a revisionist. In this course he is followed by many of the general's former supporters.

Republicans Victorious.

In the First Seine district, M. Guyot, minister of public works, is elected, and in the Eleventh M. Floquet, the ex-premier. M. Laisant, the Boulangist, is elected in the Eighteenth. In Bordeaux two Boulangists have been returned. In this city 122 Republicans and forty-eight anti-Republicans are elected.

The latest returns received at an early hour this morning give the results in 183 districts. Of these the Republicans have been successful in 108 and the Boulangists or other opponents of the Republicans in forty-five.

RAVAGED BY A HURRICANE.

Terrible Havoc Caused in Italy—Many People Killed.

ROME, Oct. 7.—The province of Cagliari has been ravaged by a terrible storm in which 240 houses were destroyed. Sixteen persons were killed and hundreds were injured. The town of Cagliari suffered severely.

ROME, Oct. 7.—A terrible hurricane swept the entire length of the island of Sardinia, Saturday, leveling many villages and doing incalculable damage to property. Hundreds of people were buried in the ruins of their own homes and thirty are known to have lost their lives.

Parnell on the Tenants' League.

DUBLIN, Oct. 7.—Parnell has written a letter to Thomas Sexton in which he asks that gentleman to present his (Parnell's) views to the coming convention of the Tenants' league to be held at Tipperary. In this letter Parnell, after explaining that his health is such that he will be unable to attend, advises that the scope of the new movement be strictly confined to defensive action. The league should aim to protect tenants against combinations and conspiracies on the part of landlords, should assert the right of freedom of speech by affording protection to such as may be prosecuted on charges of "inciting," and should take steps to secure to tenants the same facilities for combining for innocent and justifiable purpose as are secured to Englishmen by the trades union enactment.

Significant Speech of Bismarck.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—The Berlin correspondent of The Journal Des Debats asserts that Prince Bismarck, in receiving the president of the Wood-workers congress, said: "The foreign situation is so peaceful that you may set to work without the slightest fear. It was not always so. Not long ago England still hesitated whether to act as a mad bull or as a fat ox chewing cud. To-day her resolution is taken, and I can assure you that the maintenance of peace is certain."

An Orange Warning to Balfour.

BELFAST, Oct. 7.—Dr. Kane, grand master of the Orange men of the district of Belfast, in a published card, warns Balfour that he will alienate the Orangemen if he proposes any further endowment of Roman Catholic institutions in Ireland. "The government ought rather," continued Dr. Kane, "confer its privileges and emoluments upon every Orange hall in Ireland, as a sign of gratitude to the 150,000 Orangemen pledged to maintain the union."

The Lord Mayor-Elect's Difficulty.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—London's lord mayor-elect, Mr. Isaacs, is brought face to face with what seems an insurmountable difficulty. Nov. 9 is the date for the Lord mayor's show, and this year it falls on Saturday. Isaacs, who is a devout Jew, cannot lawfully either ride or walk in the procession, and as a lord mayor's show without a lord mayor would be something of an innovation the outcome is watched with considerable interest.

Suicide of a Conservative M. P.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Sir William Tendall Robinson, member of the house of commons for Brighton, committed suicide at his home in Brighton yesterday by cutting his throat with a razor. Sir William had shown symptoms of derangement for some time and the act is supposed to have been committed while he was insane. He was elected to the house of commons as a Conservative.

Want Soldiers to Displace Strikers.

BERLIN, Oct. 7.—The harbor laborers at Flensburg have gone on a strike. Many vessels remain unloaded, and the chamber of commerce has asked the commander of the local garrison to send soldiers to do the work of the strikers.

Preparing for a Strike at Amsterdam.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 7.—The dock laborers at a meeting Friday night formed a union for mutual protection. When the organization is on a strong financial basis and in good working order a strike will be inaugurated.

Must Send Over Here for Meat.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—A disease which has prevailed among cattle in Germany for some time past is spreading with great rapidity, necessitating the reliance of the German market upon America for meat supplies.

Another Big Canal Scheme.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—An Italian engineer named Bocca proposes to construct a canal across the kingdom of Italy connecting the Adriatic and Tyrrhenian seas. He estimates the cost of the work at $125,000,000.

Ireland's New Lord Lieutenant.

DUBLIN, Oct. 7.—The earl of Zetland, the new lord lieutenant of Ireland, took the oath of office at Dublin castle Saturday.

Celebrated His 90th Birthday.

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—The Nestor of the New England Southern conference of the Methodist denominations, the Rev. Dr. Frederick Upham, of Fairhaven, celebrated Friday his 90th birthday, after a service of nearly seventy years in the ministry, sixty-three years having been in effective relation with this conference.

SEVENTH POINT

You should read THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS because you can afford it. Price doesn't stand in the way. It's really the cheapest thing on earth. One cent means practically nothing—until you spend it. Then you may make it mean a great deal, according as you invest it. A thing is cheap if it costs little, and is worth much. THE DAILY NEWS is like a telegraph from the whole world to your brain. To keep it in constant working order costs you but one cent a day. That's why it's cheap—because it renders a great service for an insignificant price.

Remember—Its circulation is 220,000 a day—over a million a week—and it costs by mail 25 cts. a month, four months $1.00,—one cent a day.

CLEOPATRA.

Being an Account of the Fall and Vengeance of Harmachis, the Royal Egyptian,

AS SET FORTH BY HIS OWN HAND.

By H. Rider Haggard,
Author of "King Solomon's Mines," "She," "Allan Quatermain," Etc., Etc., Etc.

Illustrated by NICHOLL, after CATON WOODVILLE and GREIFFENHAGEN.

Behold it is written hereafter:

Here in Abouthis was I born, I, Harmachis, and my father, the justified in Osiris, was High Priest of the Temple of Sethi. And on that same day of my birth was born also Cleopatra, the Queen of Egypt. In those fields I passed my youth watching the baser people at their labors, and going in and out at will among the great courts of the temples. Of my mother I knew naught, for she died when I yet hung at the breast. But ere she died, so the old wife, Atoua, told to me, she took from a coffer of ivory ah uræus of pure gold and laid it on my brow. And those who saw her do this thing believed that she was distraught of the divinity, and that in her madness she foreshadowed that the day of the Macedonian Lagidæ was ended—for Ptolemy Auletes (the Piper) then wore the double crown—and that Egypt's scepter should once again pass to the hand of one of Egypt's true and royal race. But when my father, the High Priest Amenemhat, who even then was full of years, for I was his only child and the child of his age (she who was his wife before my mother having been, for what crime I know not, cursed by Sekhet with the curse of barrenness); I say when my father came in and saw what the dying woman had done, he lifted up his hand toward the vault of heaven and adored the Invisible, because of the sign that had been sent. And even as he adored, behold! the Hathors filled my dying mother with the Spirit of Prophecy, and she rose in strength from the couch and thrice prostrated herself before the cradle where I lay asleep, the Royal asp upon my brow, and cried aloud:

"Hail to thee, fruit of my womb! Hail to thee, Royal child! Hail to thee, Pharaoh that shalt be! Hail to thee, God that shalt purge the land, Divine seed of Nekt-neb, the Osirian. Keep thou pure, and thou shalt rule and deliver Egypt and not be broken. But if in the hour of trial thou dost fail, then may the curse of all the Gods of Egypt rest upon thee, and the curse of thy Royal forefathers, the justified, who ruled the land before thee, even from the age of Horus; then in life mayest thou be wretched, and after death may Osiris refuse thee, and the judges of Amenti give judgment against thee, and Set and Sekhet torment thee, even until such time as thy sin is purged, and the Gods of Egypt, called by strange names, once more are worshiped in the temples of Egypt, and the staff of the Oppressor is broken, and the footsteps of the foreigner are swept clean, and the thing is accomplished as thou in thy weakness shalt cause it to be done."

And when she had spoken thus, the Spirit of Prophecy went out of her, and she fell dead across the cradle where I slept, so that I awoke with a cry.

But my father, Amenemhat, the High Priest, tremoled, and was very fearful both because of the words which had been said by the Spirit of the Hathors through the mouth of my mother, and because what had been uttered was treason against Ptolemy. For he knew that if the matter should come to the ears of Ptolemy, Pharaoh would send his guards to destroy the life of the child of whom such things were prophesied. Therefore, my father shut the doors, and caused all those who were there to swear upon the holy symbol of his office, and by the name of the Divine Three, and by the soul of her who lay dead upon the stones beside them, that naught of what they had seen and heard should pass their lips.

But among the company was the old wife, Atoua, who had been the nurse of my mother, and loved her well; and in those days, though I know not how it hath been in the past, nor how it shall be in the future, there is no oath that can bind a woman's tongue. And so it came about that by and by, when the matter had become homely in her mind, and her fear had fallen from her, she spoke of the prophecy to her daughter, who nursed me at the breast now that my mother was dead. This she did as they walked together in the desert carrying food to the husband of the daughter, who was a sculptor, and shaped the pictures of the holy gods in the tombs that are fashioned in the rock—telling the daughter, my nurse, how great should be her care and love toward the child that one day should be Pharaoh and drive the Ptolemies from Egypt. But the daughter, my nurse, was so filled with wonder at what she heard that she could not keep the tale locked within her breast, and in the night she awoke her husband, and, in turn, whispered of it to him, and thereby compassed her own destruction, and the destruction of her child, my foster-brother. For the man told his friend, and the friend was a spy of Ptolemy's, and thus the tale came to Pharaoh's ears. Now, Pharaoh was much troubled thereat, for though when he was full of wine he would make a mock of the Gods of the Egyptians, and swear that the Roman Senate was the only God to whom he bowed the knee, yet in his heart was he terribly afraid, as I have learned from one who was his physician; for when he was alone at night he would scream and cry aloud to the great Serapis, who, indeed, is no true God, and to other Gods, fearing lest he should be murdered and his soul handed over to the tormentors. Also, when he felt his throne tremble under him, he would send large presents to the temples, and ask a message from the oracles, and more especially from the oracle that is at Philæ. Therefore, when it came to his ears that the wife of the High Priest of the great and ancient temple of Abouthis had, ere she died, been filled with the Spirit of Prophecy, and prophesied that her son would be Pharaoh, he was much afraid, and summoning some trusty guards—who, being Greeks, feared not to do sacrilege—he dispatched them by boat up the Nile with orders to come to Abouthis and cut off the head of the child of the High Priest and bring it to him in a basket.

But, as it chanced, the boat wherein the guards came was of deep draught, and the time of their coming being at the lowest ebb of the river, it struck and remained fast upon a bank of mud that is opposite the mouth of the road that runs across to the plains of Abouthis, and as the north wind was blowing very fiercely it was like to sink. Thereon the guards of Pharaoh called out to the common people, who labored at lifting water along the banks of the river, to come with boats and take them off; but seeing that they were Greeks of Alexandria, the people would not, for the Egyptians love not the Greeks. Then they cried out that they were on Pharaoh's business, and still the people would not, asking what was the business. Whereon a eunuch among them, who had made himself drunken in his fear, told them that they came to slay the child of Amenemhat, the High Priest, of whom it was prophesied that he should be Pharaoh and sweep the Greeks from Egypt. And then the people feared to stand longer in doubt, but brought boats, not knowing what might be meant by the man's words. But, one there was among them—a farmer and an overseer of canals—who was a kinsman of my mother's and had been present when she prophesied; and he turned and ran swiftly for three parts of an hour, till he came to where I lay in the house that is without the north wall of the great temple. Now, as it chanced, my father was away in that part of the Place of Tombs which is to the left of the large fortress, and Pharaoh's guards, mounted on asses, were hard upon us. Then the messenger cried to the old wife, Atoua, whose tongue had brought about the evil, and told how the soldiers drew near to slay me. And they looked at each other, not knowing what to do; for, had they hid me, the guards would not have stayed their search till I was found. And the man, gazing through the doorway, saw a little child at play.

"Woman," he said, "whose is that child?"

"It is my grandchild," she answered, "the foster brother of the Prince Harmachis; the child to whose mother we owe this evil case."

"Woman," he said, "thou knowest thy duty; do it!" and he again pointed at the child. "I command thee, by the Holy Name!"

And she trembled exceedingly, because the child was of her own blood; but, nevertheless, she took the boy and washed him and set on him a robe of silk and laid him on my cradle. And me she took and smeared with mud to make my fair skin darker, and took my garment from me, and set me to play in the dirt of the yard, which I did right gladly.

Then the man hid himself, and presently the soldiers rode up and asked of the old wife if this were the dwelling of the High Priest Amenemhat? She told them yea, and bade them enter, and offered them honey and milk, for they were athirst.

Thereafter the eunuch that was with them asked if that were the son of Amenemhat who lay in the cradle, and she said: "Yea—yea," and began to tell the guards how he would be great, for it had been prophesied of him that he should one day rule them all.

Thereon the Greek guards laughed, and one of them, seizing the child, smote off its head with a sword; and the eunuch drew forth the signet of Pharaoh as warrant for the deed and showed it to the old wife, Atoua, bidding her tell the High Priest that his son should be a King without a head.

And as they went one of their number saw me playing in the dirt and called out that there was more breeding in yonder brat than in the Prince Harmachis; and for a moment they wavered, thinking to slay me also, but in the end they passed on, bearing the head of my foster-brother, for they loved not to murder little children.

But, after awhile, the mother of the dead child returned from the market place, and when she found what had been done she and her husband would have slain Atoua, the old wife, her mother, and given me up to the soldiers of Pharaoh; but my father came in likewise and learned the truth, and he caused the man and his wife to be seized by night and hid away in the dark places of the Temple, so that none saw them more.

But I would to-day it had been the will of the Gods that I had been slain of the soldiers and not the innocent child.

And thereafter it was given out that the High Priest Amenemhat had taken me to be as a son to him in the place of that of Harmachis who was slain of Pharaoh.

CHAPTER II.

OF THE DISOBEDIENCE OF HARMACHIS; OF THE SLAYING OF THE LION; AND OF THE SPEECH OF THE OLD WIFE, ATOUA.

AND after these things Ptolemy the Piper troubled us no more, nor did he again send his soldiers to Abouthis to seek for him of whom it was prophesied that he should be Pharaoh. For the head of the child, my foster-brother, was brought to him by the eunuch as he sat in his palace of marble at Alexandria, flushed with Cyprian wine, and played upon the flute before his women. And at his bidding the eunuch lifted up the head by the hair for him to look on. Then he laughed and smote it on the cheek with his sandal, and bade one of the girls crown Pharaoh with flowers. And he bowed the knee, and mocked the head of the innocent child. But the girl, who was sharp of tongue—for all of this I heard in after years—said to him "that he did well to bow the knee, for this child was indeed Pharaoh, the greatest of Pharaohs, and his name was the Osiris and his throne was Death."

At this saying Auletes was much troubled, and shook and trembled, for, being a wicked man, he greatly feared the entering into Amenti. So he caused the girl to be slain, because of the evil omen of her saying, crying that he would send her to worship that Pharaoh whom she had named. And the other women he sent away, and played no more upon the flute till he was once again drunk on the morrow. But the Alexandrians made a song thereon, which is still sung about the streets. And this is the beginning thereof:

Ptolemy the Piper played
Over dead and dying;
Piped and played he well.
Sure that flute of his was made
Of the dank reed sighing
O'er the streams of hell.

There beneath the shadows gray,
With the sisters three,
Shall he pipe for many a day.
May the Frog his butler be!
And his wine the water of that country—
Ptolemy the Piper!

After this the years passed on, nor did I, being very little, know any thing of the great things that came to pass in Egypt; nor is it my purpose here to set them out. For I, Harmachis, will speak only of those things with which I have been concerned.

And as the time went on my father and the teachers instructed me in the ancient learning of our people and in such matters appertaining to the gods as it is meet that children should know. So I grew strong and comely, for my hair was black as the hair of the divine Nout, and my eyes were blue as the blue lotus, and my skin was as the alabaster within the sanctuaries. For now that these glories have passed from me I may speak of them without shame. Strong I was also. There was no youth of my years in Abouthis who could stand against me to wrestle with me, nor could any throw so far with the sling or spear. And much I yearned to hunt the lion; but he whom I called my father forbade me to hunt, telling me that my life was of too great worth to be so lightly hazarded. But when I bowed myself before him and prayed he would make his meaning clear to me, the old man frowned and answered that the gods made all things clear in their own season. For my part, however, I went away wroth, for there was a youth in Abouthis who with others had slain a lion that fell upon his father's herds, and, being envious of my strength and beauty, he set it about that I was cowardly at heart, in that when I went out to hunt I slew naught but jackals and gazelles. Now, this was when I had reached my seventeenth year and was a man grown.

It chanced, therefore, that as I went sore at heart from the presence of the High Priest, my father, I met this youth, who called to me and mocked me, bidding me know the country people had told him that a great lion was down among the rushes by the banks of the canal which runs past the Temple, lying at a distance of thirty stadia from Abouthis. And, still mocking me, he asked me if I would come and help him slay this lion, or would I go and sit among the old women and bid them comb my side lock. This bitter word so angered me that I was near to falling on him; but in place thereof, forgetting my father's saying, I answered that if he would come along I would go with him and seek this lion, and he should learn if I were indeed a coward. And at first he would not, for, as men know, it is our custom to hunt the lion in companies; so it was my hour to mock. Thereon he went and fetched his bow and arrows and a sharp knife. And I brought forth my heavy spear, which had a shaft of thornwood, and at the end thereof a pomegranate in silver, to hold the hand from slipping; and together, in silence, we went side by side to where the lion lay. When we came to the place it was near sundown, and there, upon the mud of the canal bank, we found the lion's slot, which ran into a thick clump of reeds.

"Now, thou boaster," I said, "wilt thou lead the way into yonder reeds, or shall I?" And I made as though I would lead the way.

"Nay, nay," he answered, "be not so mad! The brute will spring upon thee and rend thee. See! I will shoot among the reeds! Perchance, if he sleeps, it will arouse him." And he drew his bow at a venture.

And how it chanced I know not, but the arrow struck the sleeping lion, and, like a flash of light from the belly of a cloud, he bounded from the shelter of the reeds, and stood before us with bristling mane and yellow eyes, the arrow quivering in his flank. He roared aloud in fury, and the earth shook.

"Shoot with the bow," I cried, "shoot swiftly ere he spring!"

But the courage had left the breast of the boaster. His jaw dropped down and his fingers unloosed their hold so that the bow fell from them. Then with a loud cry he turned and fled behind me, leaving the lion in my path. But while I stood waiting my doom—for though I was sore afraid I would not fly—the lion crouched himself, and, turning not aside, with one great bound swept over me, touching me not. He lit, and again he bounded full on the boaster's back, striking him such a blow with his great paw that his head was crushed as an egg thrown against a stone. He fell down dead, and the lion stood and roared over him. Then I was mad with horror, and, scarce knowing what I did, I grasped my spear, and with a shout I charged. As I charged the lion lifted himself up on his hinder legs to greet me, so that his head stood up above me. He smote at me with his paw, but with all my strength I drove the broad spear into his throat, and, shrinking from the agony of the steel, his blow fell short and did no more than rip the skin. Back he fell, the great spear far in his throat. Then rising, he roared in pain and leapt twice the height of a man straight into the air, smiting at the spear with his fore paws. Twice he leaped thus, horrible to see, and twice he fell upon his back. Then his strength spent itself with his rushing blood, and, groaning like a bull, he died; and I, being but a lad, stood and trembled with fear, now that all cause of fear had passed.

TWICE HE LEAPED THUS, HORRIBLE TO SEE.

But as I stood and gazed at the dead body of him who had taunted me, and at the carcass of the lion, a woman, even the same old wife, Atoua, who, though I knew it not as yet, had offered up her flesh and blood that I might be saved alive, came running toward me. For she had been gathering simples, wherein she had great skill, by the water's edge, not knowing that there was a lion nigh (and, indeed, the lions for the most part are not found in the tilled land, but rather in the desert and the Libyan Mountains), and from a distance had seen that which I have set down. Now, when she came near she knew me for Harmachis, and, bending herself she made obeisance to me, and saluted me, calling me Royal, and worthy of all honor, and beloved and chosen of the Holy Three, ay, and even by the name of the Pharaoh! the Deliverer!

But I, thinking that terror had made her sick of mind, asked of her what she would speak.

"Is it a great thing," I asked, "that I should slay a lion? Is it a matter worthy of such talk as thine? There live, and have lived, men who have slain many lions. Did not the Divine Tahutimes the Osirian slay with his own hand more than two hundred lions? Is it not written on the tablet that is between the paws of the living Koremku (the Sphinx) that is set beyond Memfi, nigh to the seven pyramids, that he slew lions aforetime? And have not others done likewise? Why, then, speakest thou thus, O foolish woman?"

All of which I said because, having now slain the lion, I was minded, after the manner of youth, to hold it as a thing of no account. But she ceased not to make obeisance and to call me by names that are too high even to be written.

Touched Off a Gigantic Blast.

EASTON, Pa., Sept. 28.—One of the largest blasts ever made in the Lehigh valley was fired at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Glendon Iron company quarry about two miles from Easton. Several tunnels, large enough for a man to crawl in and deposit powder, were made, work on which occupied several months. Two car-loads of dynamite powder were used and touched off by electricity by a professor of Lafayette college. A low, rumbling noise followed, and down came thousands of ton of rock, without causing an accident or damaging the many buildings in the adjoining country section.

ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA.

Importance of the American Supplement.

The Ninth Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica has just been completed, fourteen years after the date of the preface of its first volume, January 1, 1865. Its twenty-four volumes contain a marvelous condensation of the world's knowledge in all departments. Its principal articles are exhaustive treatises on their respective subjects. So far as science, philosophy, art, and general history are concerned, the Encyclopaedia Britannica is, beyond question, the most complete and valuable work of its kind in any language. It is not surprising, therefore, that this work has obtained wide recognition in the United States. The publishers of the Edinburg edition have openly stated that four-fifths of their subscribers are Americans, yet out of the hundreds of writers who have contributed to the treasure-house of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, less than fifty have been Americans, and most of these have written but a single article. It is not surprising, therefore, that the statements of American history and biography, the accounts of the natural history, resources, material, social, and intellectual development of this giant Republic of the New World should be, in most cases, utterly inadequate. The whole work required carefull study by American scholars and men of affairs, for the purpose of detecting such omissions as no British editor could appreciate, and of supplying such additional articles as would fit the work for the actual every-day needs of intelligent Americans of every class.

The editors of the AMERICAN SUPPLEMENT have directed their attention chiefly to matters of vital interest to American readers. They have carefully avoided any repetition of what is comprised in the original work, but have sought to present what is essential to adapt the work to this country.

In another respect, of special importance to all readers, the Britannica was felt to need careful enlargement. That work has faithfully adhered to the singular rule that no biographies should be inserted of men, who happen to be living when the volume is prepared. Hence the great work now completed has not merely passed by great men still living, but has failed to notice, except in the most incidental way, Generals Grant and Sheridan, Presidents Garfield and Arthur, Garibaldi, Gambetta, Gortschakoff and Lord Beaconsfield. It is silent about Bismarck and Gladstone, Blaine and Parnell. The editors of the "SUPPLEMENT," pursuing a different method, and anticipating the popular demand for knowledge of all these generals, statesmen, scientists, poets, and historians, have supplied interesting articles full of accurate information in regard to their lives and achievements. In natural science, the Britannica seems often to attempt to anticipate the future, but in literature and biography it confines itself strictly to the past. The "SUPPLEMENT," by careful statement of facts in these departments, goes far toward giving a life-like picture of the social political, scientific, and literary world of to-day. The Britannica by its name and character belongs essentially to the Old World, the "SUPPLEMENT" treats fully of the New in addition to the Old. Together they exhibit in its entirety the whole sphere of human activity, and constitute an Intellectual Cosmos.—From the American Bookseller, June 1, 1889.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-distruction. We know of no remedy for dyspepsia more successful than Hood's Sarsaparilla. It acts gently, yet surely and efficiently, tones the stomach and other organs, removes the faint feeling, creates a good appetite cures headache, and refreshes the burdened mind. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial. It will do you good.

BASE BALL.

Jackson of the State League and New York of the National Victorious.

At last the suspense is over. Both the State League and the National have been so nearly neck and neck as to make the final games intensely interesting.

Jackson and Saginaw have fought hard for the pennant, and Grand Rapids has been no mean competitor. In fact, it has been a see-saw between the two latter for some time. At last it be came evident that Grand Rapids was destined to be third, while the battle lay between Jackson and Saginaw. Friday closed the season, with two games in the lead, and a per cent. of 620 and 612 respectively.

The league has not been a paying affair this season, but it is thought that if one could be formed with about nine clubs in it that money could be made, or at least enough to clear expenses.

In the National League hard work has been done of late, and it was only during the latter part of the game, Saturday, between Boston and Pittsburg, that the former began to weaken, when they saw the pennant gradually creeping away from them, as New York began to take the lead in their game with Cleveland. The per centage stands New York 659; Boston 638; with Chicago some distance in the rear for third place.

Complete and Permanent.

In the early part of last year I had a violent attack of rheumatism, from which I was confined to my bed for over three months, and at times was unable to turn my-elf in bed, or even raise the cover. A nurse had to be in constant attendance day and night. I was so feeble that what little nourishment I took had to be given me with a spoon. I was in constant agony, and sleep was entirely out of the question except when I was under the influence of opiates.

After calling in the best local physicians, and trying all other medicines without receiving any benefit, I was induced by friends to try Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) I discontinued all other medicines and took a course of S. S. S—thirteen small bottles—which effected a complete and permanent cure. L. C. Basset, El Dorado, Kansas.

OLD WORLD WAGE WORKERS.

So much has been said concerning the "pauper labor of Europe" by the people who did not know what they were talking or writing about, that the letters of the American workingmen who were sent by the Evening News to the Paris exposition, telling what they actually saw and heard in England, France, Scotland, Belgium and Germany, is interesting reading. These letters are now appearing regularly in the Evening News, and 20 or more other largely circulated papers throughout the country. Those that have thus far appeared were written by Mrs. L. M. Barry, Joseph Thorpe and Frederick D. Wheeler respectively. The first was on the condition of workingmen, the second on locomotive engineering, and the third related to ship building. Others will rapidly follow, until the entire 45 delegates have been heard from. The general public, and especially workingmen, should read them all.

CATARRH.

Catarrhal Deafness, Hay Fever—A New Home Treatment.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membranes of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic researches, however, has proven this to be a fact, and result is that a simple remedy has been formulated, whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are permanently cured in from one to the applications made at home by the patient once in two weeks. N. B.—For catarrhal discharges peculiar to females (whites) this remedy is a specific. A pamphlet of this new treatment is sent on receipt of ten cents by A. H. Dixon & Son, 303 west King street, Toronto, Canada. [Scientific American.

Sufferers from catarrhal troubles should read the above carefully.

THE DEADLY DYNAMITE.

Explosion of a Cartridge in the Red Jacket Shaft Kills Four Men.

HOUGHTON, Mich., Oct. 4.—A terrible explosion occurred in the Red Jacket perpendicular shaft of the Calumet and Hecla mine at noon yesterday. Twenty-six miners were working at the bottom of the shaft, over 1,000 feet below the surface. The blasts of dynamite were fired as usual Wednesday night, but one charge failed to explode. At noon yesterday a miner accidentally struck the dynamite cartridge with his pick, and an explosion followed. The men were huddled together, and it is remarkable that any escaped death. Two—Alfred Erickson and Otto Flinck—were killed outright. Nelson Bloom and Capt. John Cameron were injured, and seven others were hurt, some of them very seriously.

Killed at the Point of Rescue.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Oct. 5.—Four miners were buried by a fall of rock from the roof of C shaft, in the Lake Angeline mine, at noon yesterday. Two were badly hurt, but were rescued, and the other two were nearly saved when a second fall of rock occurred. Neither can be gotten out alive. One is a Swede and the other a Manxman.

Two Vessels Wrecked in the Lake.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Oct. 7.—A Hancock, Mich., special says: The steamer Bessemer and Consort Schuykill, of Cleveland, were wrecked at the mouth of the Lake Superior ship canal Friday night. The crew of nineteen men was saved with difficulty by the life-saving crew. Loss on vessels and cargoes $80,000 to $100,000.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-iritaing. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches snuffs powders or syringes because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandonded as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who had for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict testify to radical cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm

He leaves a widow who has the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community. The funeral was held at the Ridgeway church on Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. L. M. Belden and Miss Margaret A. Knight were married at New Castle, Ohio, Oct. 12th, 1864. Twenty-five years have rolled around and they resolved to celebrate the occasion by sending cards of invitation to those who were present at the wedding, and to old friends in the various places where their married life has been spent. They did not invite their present congregation for their house would not accommodate them all, and they wished to make no distinctions. Only a few of the young people were invited in and were surprised to find that it was a Silver wedding anniversary.

Many letters of congratulation and of good wishes were received, and many substantial tokens of kind regard were sent. An uncle of Mr. Belden, from Ohio, 83 years old was present, and when the bride and groom of 25 years experience came into the room, he welcomed them with pleasant words of greeting, and words of counsel. The letters and congratulations all expressed the hope that another twenty-five years of wedded life might be passed here, to be the foretaste of an eternal union hereafter.

Quite a number of our citizens attended the Prohibition Institute held at the Grange Hall, Macon, on Thursday of last week, and report a very interesting and pleasant time. The choir assisted in the musical part of the program. Miss Belle Barlow's vocal solo, "If I were a Voice," received a hearty encore. The entire program was very successfully carried out.

Our citizens were somewhat shocked on Sunday evening to hear that Mr. Geo. Boss was dead and that his death was caused by being struck by a Wabash engine. The old gentleman had been to see his daughter, Mrs. Warren Holdredge, and had started for home, and as his mind was somewhat affected, and being hard of hearing, it is difficult to know whether he realized the danger or not. Those who saw him say that when within a few rods of the crossing he began running and reached the track in time to be struck by the engine and thrown nearly 100 feet, having his neck broken, one shoulder and hip badly mangled. Mr. Boss was born at Watertown, N. Y., and came to Michigan in 1858. He worked at blacksmithing in this village for a number of years, until his health failed. About five years ago he moved to Holloway to be near his daughter. The funeral services were held here Tuesday afternoon. Rev. J. A. Lowry officiating. The remains were consigned to the tomb in the family lot of the village cemetery.

Malaria.

Literally means bad air. Poisonous germs arising from low, marshy land, or from decaying vegetable matter, are breathed into the lungs, taken up by the blood, and unless the vital fluid is purified by the use of a good medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, the unfortunate victim is soon overpowered. Even in the more advanced cases, where the terrible fever prevails, this successful medicine has affected remarkable cures. Those who are exposed to malarial or other poisons should keep the blood pure by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, OCT. 17

Notwithstanding the admission of four new states, New York will still hold the balance of power in presidential elections.

Tanner took the right course to get his views before the public in full. He wrote a letter to Private Dalzell and marked it confidential.

The Republicans are becoming frightened about Massachusetts. The leaven of tariff reform is brewing right lively down in the old Bay state.

The corner stone of the N. Y. World building was laid last Thursday with much pomp and ceremony. Mr. Depew and Gov. Hill were the orators of the occasion.

New York can have the big show in 1892, if she will put up the money. But if the government must furnish a big appropriation, the show will probably be held at Washington.

It is now said that cider caused the defeat of prohibition in Connecticut. The nutmeg farmers would like to weed out beer saloons, but they do not propose to give up their apple jack.

The nomination of Gen. Chalmers as the Republican candidate for governor of Mississippi has proved to be too heavy a load to carry, and he has withdrawn. The "hero of Fort Pillow" is probably out of politics for good.

The absconding New York banker who left seven cents in the bank vaults is regarded with contempt by the last Ohio cashier, who left a one cent postage stamp as a reminder of his official connection with the bank.

Corporal Tanner and Private Dalzell will never try to raise another man "from the dunghill to the throne of power." It is always best, when a man is doing reasonably well in the fertilizing business, to permit him to remain where he is.

The New York Times has taken to asking questions. Here is the latest: Is there a man in the United States who thinks the present attorney general is a fit person for a seat on the supreme court bench? Yes, just one, Attorney General Miller.

The new liquor law is full of holes. One clause, which was passed, has been left out of the law, and another which was rejected, has been inserted in the act as published. Some people will wonder whether all this tomfoolery was merely an accident.

Senator Manderson has returned his rerated pension certificate, declining to accept it. But it is quite singular that it should have taken the honorable Senator three or four months to decide on the proper course to pursue. Has he heard something drop lately?

The political revolution in Indianapolis is very significant. The Democrats elected a mayor by 1200 majority, reversing a Republican majority of 700 at the last election. The mayor-elect is the first Democratic mayor since 1874. In no state has the civil service law been more shamelessly betrayed and violated than in Indiana, and the people are expressing their views on the subject at the first opportunity.

General Chalmers has stepped down and out as a candidate for the governorship of Mississippi, but General Mahone appears to be too firmly seated on the back of the Grand Old Party in Virginia to be flung aside. The Old Lady arches her back, and there is a good deal of bucking and kicking but the little General keeps his place and will probably ride the race to a finish. The worst of the matter is that the Virginia reprobate is the more dangerous reprobate of the two. —Philadelphia Record.

The governmnet expenditures increased $10,508,000 for the quarter ending Sept. 30, under Tanner's reign. The Philadelphia Times, with this showing for a basis calculates that four years of Tanner at the same rate would have made our pension expenditures equal to the war cost of the three great powers of western Europe. Tanner wasn't beheaded any too soon but the declaration that the Tanner policy is not to be changed is something of a discourager. If his "policy" was all right, and he was honest and trustworthy, as President Harrison has averred, what was the motive for his taking off?

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

The Democrats of North Dakota inserted in their platform the following plank:

Resolved, That we are in favor of the absolute repeal of all customs duties on lumber, salt, binding twine, and raw materials entering into the manufacture of farm machinery and household utensils, and on all necessaries of life; that while our farmers and laborers are compelled to compete with the pauper labor of Europe and the natives of India, in the growing and sale of the products of the soil, they shall not be compelled to purchase in the artificial market of high protection.

We submit this proposition to the farmers of the country with the suggestion that they think a great deal about it. The more they think about it the more Democratic votes will be cast in November, 1892.

We submit a few other things to them to help them think about this.

Mr. H. W. Brown, president of the Standard Manufacturing Company, of Boston, said to the Tariff Commission:

"If pig iron is brought in here free, it would help the Western people in getting cheaper mowing machines and cheaper wire fences.

A few years ago Mr. B. D. Buford, president of the Buford Plow Company, of Rock Island, Ill., published a statement of the effect of the tariff on his business, in which he said:

"There is not one article that we make, or one interest of ours in the world that is in the least degree benefited by the tariff. On the contrary, almost every thing that we buy is enhanced in value by the present tariff, and, of course, our customers in turn have to pay more for what they buy of us. * * * Every consumer has to pay the enhanced cost simply as a bonus for something called protection." There was presented to the Tariff Commission the statement of Lucius Wells, formerly with Deere & Co., of Moline, Ill., who made 97,000 plows in 1881, to the effect that the selling price of every agricultural implement was enhanced from 15 to 25 per cent. by the tariff with no compensating benefit.

Mr. Buford was engaged in exporting agricultural implements to English colonies, but of course found it rather difficult to compete with manufacturers who used untaxed materials.

Mr. A. B. Farquhar, a large manufacturer of agricultural implements at York, Pa., and an exporter to South America, made a very radical low tariff address before a local Democratic society last May, portions of which we lately printed.

The Mr. Harter who made a very effective reform speech last month before the Ohio Democratic convention, over which he presided, which we printed September 14, is a member of the great Aultman agricultural implement manufacturing concern.

We thank General Harrison for advising people to listen to men of markets rather than men of maxims. We turn with relief from the maxims of Republican politicians to the conclusions of practical manufacturers.

These men are trying to reduce their prices in order to extend their sales in this country and abroad.

Farmers and brethren, think on these things.

We hear a good deal about the importance of increasing our exports to South America. Now, agricultural implements we make so much better than any other people do that we already export a good deal of them to Europe, South America, and Australia, but, of course, as Messrs. Buford and Farquhar say, from their own experience, the competition with manufacturers who get cheap materials is pretty sharp. In the year 1888 we exported to the Argentine Republic $877,519 worth of agricultural implements. Our exports of agricultural implements to other countries south of us were as follows: Mexico, $25,365; Brazil, $20,454; Uruguay, $66,788; Chili $65,891, and to European countries as follows: France, $235,731; Germany, $198,609; Great Britain and Ireland, $404,243; British possessions in Africa, $161,442; British possessions in Australia, $239,439; Russia, $93,914.

About the most sensible thing we could do to benefit our farmers, who have to sell wheat in competition with the peasants of Russia and India, and for the benefit of our export trade, would be to take the duties off the raw materials of agricultural implements, and so enable the manufacturers to reduce their prices. —National Democrat.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipt in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper. W. A. Noyes, 149 Powers block, Rochester, N. Y.

A KENTUCKY FARMER SPEAKS.

Bowling Green, Sept. 30.—Seeing in your paper an article from ex-speaker Carlisle, which reflects the sentiment and principles of the organization of which I have the honor to be State President, I am induced to believe that you will give me space for a short communication. Our organization in Kentucky, since the Wheel and Alliance have combined, numbers nearly 40,000, composed of the farmers, mechanics, manufacturers of Kentucky. Our national organization, known as the Farmers' and Laborers' Union of America, numbers 3,000,000. This organization is a consolidation of the Wheel and Alliance Union and the Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association. One of our objects is to combat special legislation, of which Mr. Carlisle so ably spoke.

The farmers, stock-raisers and laborers of America see in the last twenty years that we have produced more wealth than any nation on earth; where is it to-day? In the hands of the money power represented by trusts, trade syndicates and monopolies.

How is it possible in this Government for such companies to form? Only by special legislation. How long would they live if they were not specially protected by our Government? No longer than vegetation would live without moisture.

We say in our Constitution, "Equal rights to all; special privileges to none." How in the name of Heaven is it that the farmers who have fed and clothed the world can not price the least thing we produce on our farms? Are we not giving the whole credit to our Government? Are we not sending the wheels of commerce to every nation on earth? Are we not the bulwark of the nation?

What deplorable condition are the farmers of this country in. The question has been asked some numbers of times by the farmers: what crop can I raise next year that will yield me a good return for my labor?" My answer is, I don't know. Wheat, 60 to 70 cents a bushel; cattle, 1 to 3 cents; tobacco, 1 to 4 cents. We can't produce these crops at such prices.

We are told it is overproduction. I emphatically deny it. Statistics show that last year we produced about four hundred and eighteen million bushels of wheat. I say supply and demand do not govern prices; if it did, why do we have the bulls and bears and dealers in futures? How was it in Chicago a year ago, when wheat went in a day from 90 cents a bushel to $1.50? It is self-evident that prices are governed by combines. Phil Armour holds the meat market in his hands. Seven men control all the dark tobacco in America. How is it possible for such men to gain such power? I answer through the financial system of this government, which was conceived by the devil and brought forth in iniquity. To-day we are living under an English financial system, and it will sooner or later make a slave of every American laborer. Who controls the finance of this Government to-day? The bankers, and by controling the finance of the Government they control the labor of the Government. Give me the control of the finance of any government, and I will defy any power in it. The finances of a government is to it what our hearts and blood are to our life. I would like some time in the near future to show how this system was fastened on us, and how it is to-day robbing us of our labor. We have organized to have these iniquitous systems moved off us, and we intend to do it, let it cost what it may.

Respectfully,

S. B. ERWIN.

CATARRH.

Catarrhal Deafness, Hay Fever—A New Home Treatment.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membranes of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic researches, however, has proven this to be a fact, and result is that a simple remedy has been formulated, whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are permanently cured in from one to the applications made at home by the patient once in two weeks. N. B.—For catarrhal discharges peculiar to females (whites) this remedy is a specific. A pamphlet of this new treatment is sent on receipt of ten cents by A. H. Dixon & Son, 303 west King street, Toronto, Canada. [Scientific American.

Sufferers from catarrhal troubles should read the above carefully.

With Minister Ryan a protectionist urging free trade with Mexico; with that eminent protectionist Congressman Butterworth advocating free trade with Canada; with the equally eminent protectionists of Massachusetts, from Gov. Ames down making "free trade" attacks upon the tariff—what on earth is to become of the "protective principle" and its "infant industries"?—Boston Post.

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

TO THE EDITOR—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and post office address. Respectfully,

T. A. SLOCUM, M. C., 181 Pearl st., New York.

OUR LATEST CLUB OFFER.

We have completed arrangements with both the Detroit Tribune and the Detroit Free Press by which we can furnish the weekly editions of those papers at the lowest rates ever offered for a trial trip of four months.

HERALD and Free Press, 4 mos.,	$ .50
HERALD and Tribune, 4 mos.,	.50

This offer will be held open only till Nov. 1st next. It is seldom that people have an opportunity of obtaining so much first-class reading matter for so little money. Now is the time to subscribe.

The Detroit Tribune is 66 years old, and is today a better newspaper than at any previous time in its history. Its publishers aim to make its weekly edition a distinctively Michigan newspaper. It consists of 12 pages, containing 84 columns of just the reading matter that Michigan people desire, and in no department is it wanting in interest and excellence. The publishers make the most liberal premium offer that has yet come to our notice. For $2 they send the Weekly Tribune one year and Dickens' complete works, (15 vols., paper) or Scott's complete works, (12 vols., paper) or for $3 the Tribune one year and both sets of books. The books are delivered to subscribers free of all express charges or postage. Thus for one dollar added to the price of the Tribune its subscribers get a full set of Dickens' or Scott's handsomely printed on good paper. The Tribune with this remarkable premium will be clubbed with the HERALD for $3, or the Tribune and HERALD will be sent without premium on a trial trip of four months for 50c.

Some time ago the Detroit Free Press offered $3,000 in prizes to the three best serial stories sent in before July 1st. The result of this competition has been that Major Joseph Kirkland, of Chicago, has taken the first prize of $1600. His story is entitled, "The Captain of Company K." Mr. Kirkland is the author of "Zura, the Meanest Man in Spring County," "the McVeys," and other stories. The second prize goes to Omaha, Neb., and is taken by Mrs. Eliza W. Peattie. Her story is entitled "The Judge." The third prize of $500 was awarded to Elbridge S. Brooks, of Boston. The story is entitled, "The Son of Issichar." The first chapters of The Judge appeared in the weekly Free Press of Sept. 26. Everybody should read this great prize story. We will take four months subscriptions for the Free Press in connection with the HERALD for 50c.

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines.

Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom.

Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's.

Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered."

Peculiar in its "good name at home,"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers.

Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly.

Do not be induced to buy other preparations, but be sure to get the Peculiar Medicine,

"I HEARD A VOICE, IT SAID, "COME AND SEE."

"When he was within twenty yards I stopped to take aim at the brute by the ankle from behind. I tied his legs from under him, making him fall forward on his hands. I then laid at the lion, who barred his teeth, the bewildered man gradually putting one hand before the other to see he knew what he was at. At length it occurred to him that he was free, and hurled he knew not forward over his head with such force that when they struck the ground his body rose and he decorated a convenient tree. We carried him two lengths ahead of us into the very jaws of the lion, if the latter had stayed."—

NEWS OF THE WEEK

A Lansing man avers that he hasn't shaved for the past twenty-two years and yet is smooth faced. He just pulls out the hairs with a pair o' tweezers and claims its fun. Maybe 'tis—but there's some pleasures we're perfectly willing to forego.

The Cohassett lumber mill at Muskegon is to be moved to Ashland. The plant represents a capital of $100,000 and has a capacity of 200,000 per day.

Vicksburg have a sanitary convention along in the early December days, when a long list of sanitary subjects will be duly tackled.

A $20,000 fire used up a business block at Pentwater, involving about twenty persons and firms. Insurance light.

A Saginaw citizen named Quick, after spending thirty years at mill work without an accident, placed to much confidence and his right hand on a buzzing circular saw. The saw is still in good trim, and Quick's hand was also trimmed quickly.

J. H. Myers, a Horton gentleman, figures as the great guesser of this noble commonwealth. Not long since, he cast his eagle eye over a flock of 450 sheep and came within half a pound of their aggregate weight. If Myers can make as accurate a forecast of the Chicago board of trade for just one week, he can find a paying job at this office.

A lot of West Branch people have the assurance of a local lawyer—and a lawyer's assurance is conclusive, you know—that they are not only heirs apparent to a $250,000 estate in York state, but that they are going to get the property right away. So, there!

Mrs. Mary R. Leving is a Sunfield lady who has seen 99 summers, reads the finest print without the aid of glasses, sews and knits as easily as she did half a century ago, has an excellent memory, and can walk three or four miles as spry as many a girl of sweet 16. There's not many as well preserved specimens of old age, nowadays.

Pentwater's conflagration is now thought to have been the work of incendiaries, as an attempt was made to burn the village of Shelby a night or two later.

The International Barbers' union will have a shaving time of it at their annual meeting in Detroit, Dec. 3, but 'tis hoped that a hair pull won't be indulged in.

Clare county has tried her hand at a local fair for six successive years, but each attempt has been unceremoniously dumped in the soup.

There's many an absent-minded individual in this world, but the Lansing chap who loaned his best girl his diamond ring and afterward thought it had been stolen, is entitled to the chromo. He actually offered a reward for the return of the ring and the supposed thief, giving a minute description of the finger ornament, which would have caused the girl's arrest had it been discovered by the police officers.

Judge Severens becomes a Grand Rapids resident, having sold his Kalamazoo home.

A St. Clair county citizen recently discovered a tree of the red cedar variety, twenty-two below the surface. As no such timber grows in that vicinity the query naturally arises, who planted it there?

Judd Crouch, of Jackson murder notoriety, had eight horses run down and killed by a Fort Wayne freight on the night of the 26th. Loss, $1,200; no insurance.

It is now thought that the failure of Weimester & Co.'s bank, at Howell, will involve an amount of not less than $100,000, which may be covered by the firm's assets.

The 220,000 acres of unearned railway grant land in the upper peninsula have been surrendered to the federal government by Governor Luce. The interested railway corporations protest, as a matter of course.

James Connor, a North Shade resident, will conclude life's journey with a lone hand, he having fed t'other one to a remorseless clover huller.

After having been confined in the solitary for a month, R. Irving Latimer begged to be put at work again on the Webster contract at the Jackson prison, assuring the warden that he would attend strictly to his duties hereafter. And so Irving is again a blacksmith's helper.

The fire that roasted ten stalls and four head of fat cattle at the Ovid fair was not down on the programme, but was none the less torrid on that account.

More'n 1,000 of Lansing's children of school age fail to show up at her temples of learning, despite what the state law has to say on the subject.

Six kittens, a half dozen puppies, and a like number of white mice were born into the family of a Bay City citizen on the same day, and now he has invested in a lottery ticket, just for luck.

A Matherton man arose very early on a recent morning, started the kitchen fire and then repaired to the field for a breakfast of potatoes. But he returned just in time to save his wife and children from the burning dwelling. The potatoes and the folks alone escaped cooking.

M. V. Meredith has resigned his $3,000 job as East Saginaw's postmaster, having been offered a more lucrative job as superintendent of the Saginaw, Tuscola and Huron railway, and then it's pleasanter not to be living in the shadow of civil service reform.

Some fifteen or twenty wealthy Grand Rapids residents propose to charter a railway coach, and roll down into old Mexico for winter's sojourn in the land of the Montezumas.

A party of Bay City youngsters organized a charivari expedition and had heaps o' fun; but the $7 fine that was socked to each one o' 'em wasn't so extremely funny—to the fellows who had it to pay.

The Leavitt Minstrel company cracked some funny jokes at Port Huron's police during its recent performance in that city, but the police had their inning later in the evening, when they pulled seven of the performers from a disorderly house and lugged 'em off to the bastile for better behavior.

A Mullet Lake man paid for a $30 C. O. D. package only to find a bundle of old papers, and now proposes to have his money back or poke up the express company with the long end of a law suit.

Three St. Joseph county lads are boarding at the bastile because they persisted in peppering passing railway trains with potatoes. Just as though passengers ever had an appetite for anything to eat.

A Bay City ghost has become so habituated to nocturnal trips for the apparent purpose of peeking into people's houses, that it's liable to run against some fellow's fist and hurt itself one o' these dark nights, unless it reforms.

Just 150 going-to-be-doctors are catching on at the Detroit Medical college, which reminds us of the 4-year-old who, to show his natural bent for the profession, exclaimed—"See me kill a toad now!"

Professor Ed Hogan is advertised for balloon ascensions and parachute drops with about as great regularity as he used to be before that last fatal drop into the damp Atlantic some weeks ago. Verily, a man's works do fall.

President Ledyard and other officials of the Michigan Central railway company had a narrow escaped from a horrible death in the recent accident at Palatine bridge, the extra strength of his private coach alone saving the party from being mangled and roasted. Here's a hint that would be well to observe in the building of all railway coaches.

A Bay City woman gave one of her neighbors a solid chastisement, believing her to be a witch that had caused the serious illness of the chastiser's children. But a local court discovered no evidences of witchery and so assessed the assailant the sum of $30 for her little episode.

Holland has a new iron bridge across the Black river at a cost of $4,000.

Rev. Herman Burns, a Dexter parson, becomes pastor of Hillsdale's First Baptist church, but it took the third call to fetch him.

August F. Weller, the first man to engage in merchandizing in the city of Lansing, died recently at West Branch.

Letters for nearly 500 people were uncalled for at Grand Rapids in September. How many of 'em were dunning epistles is not stated.

'Tis announced that Governor Luce will soon hie himself away to the Pacific coast on a tour of inspection and while there will attend the San Francisco meeting of the national grange.

HOUSE FIRED AND FOUR CREMATED

Mother and Three Boys Present a Sickening Sight After the Flames Complete Their Task—Fever Pestilence at Johnstown—Mad Dogs Bite Two Children—The Deadly "Live" Wire Once More—Serious Railway Accidents.

BRADFORD, Pa., Oct. 12.—At Davis' Switch, a small village thirteen miles from this place, the dwelling of Patrick Daily was burned and his wife and three sons, aged 13, 11 and 9, respectively, were roasted in the flames. At 6 o'clock Thursday night, while the family were at supper, the father stepped to the cook-stove to turn off part of the gas. He unintentionally shut the throttle tight, and on turning it on again the house was filled with gas. An explosion followed, and in an instant the entire house was in flames. The three boys and the mother fell prostrate on the floor, overcome by the heat and flames. Mr. Daily rushed out of the house to call assistance, but all efforts to save the unfortunate inmates were futile. The house was entirely consumed in a few moments.

Condition of the Corpses.

The charred and blackened bodies of the four victims presented a sickening sight. Mrs. Daily's limbs were burned from her body and her intestines exposed to view. Her flesh was cooked to the bone. The three sons were not so horribly burned as the mother, but their blackened bodies could not be identified until placed side by side. The gas pressure was very strong, the gas pipe running direct from a neighboring oil well to the cooking stove. Mr. Daily is severely, but not fatally, burned about the head and face, and is almost crazed with grief.

THE TYPHOID AT JOHNSTOWN.

Two Hundred People Ill with Fevers—Pestilence Follows Flood.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 11.—Pestilence has followed the flood in the Conemaugh valley, and the horrors of typhoid fever now confront the stricken people. As near as can be estimated 200 persons are sick with the terrible disease and kindred fevers, while about twenty deaths are traceable to its cause during the past month. The cause of the spread of the disease is due, according to the statement of Dr. Matthews, local member of the state board of health, to the debilitated condition of the residents of the valley, and the poor shelter afforded by the temporary structures that are inhabited.

"Live" Wire and Dead Lineman.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—John Weeks, a Western Union telegraph lineman, was killed yesterday by coming in contact with a "live" electric light wire. When the body was taken to the station it was found that the right thumb had been almost burnt off and the palm of the hand was roasted to the bone. The left cheek, from the bottom of the ear to the corner of the mouth, was burnt to the jaw-bone, and the wire which had come in contact with the throat had burned its way clear back to the vertebrae. The sole of the right foot was also burned.

Serious Wreck on the Vandalia.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 12.—Passengers on the Vandalia line report a serious wreck this side of Terre Haute at an early hour yesterday morning. The train went through an open switch and the engine and two cars were wrecked. Engineer Edward Miller was thrown under the cab and injured internally, from the effects of which he may not recover. The fireman saved himself by jumping. Several valuable horses, en route from the races at Terre Haute to the tracks at Lexington, Ky., were fatally injured.

Three Freight Trains in a Pile.

MANSFIELD, O., Oct. 12.—A collision between two freight trains on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at Fredericktown yesterday afternoon caused a bad wreck. Twenty cars and two engines were thrown from the track. Another freight dashed into the rear of the first south-bound train before a flagman could be sent back, making three trains in all that were wrecked. All the train men jumped, and some of them are reported seriously injured. The loss is estimated at about $20,000.

Children Bitten by Mad Dogs.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 12.—A Leader special from Lima says: Two children were bitten by mad dogs yesterday afternoon. Both dogs were captured by the police and killed. Frank Bagart, a boy of 8 years, was the first victim, and he is now suffering intensely. The other was a 2-year-old child of John Lindeman. It was not badly hurt.

Killed by an Infuriated Bull.

CARLISLE, Pa., Oct. 12.—An infuriated bull yesterday gored to death the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. Rodebaugh, living near this city, and severely injured another child.

Robbed of 10 Cents and a Knife.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, Oct. 11.—Lawrence Herrill, the young son of a farmer living near this city, was Thursday convicted of highway robbery, the act consisting in compelling August B. Brandmier, the son of a neighboring farmer, to give up 10 cents and a pocket knife which he had just purchased from Herrill for 5 cents. The case has attracted a great deal of attention in this section by reason of the trivial value of the property taken and the high standing of the parties. The defense was insanity, and similar acts were shown to have been perpetrated by the accused. The penalty for the crime is not less than two nor more than ten years in the penitentiary. Notice was given of a motion for a new trial. The costs in the case already amount to several hundred dollars.

LONG LIFE.

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought untill we recive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease preventer that has yet been discovered, is situated down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names and guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them.

They do not know, of course, unless they have courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why dont you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but one dollar for a very large bottle. Try it at once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggists may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine—of health.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

PATRONS OF INDUSTRY AGAIN.

The Tecumseh News, in reply to a former communication on this subject avers that it is "unable to see any reason for changing its opinion." Bless us! Did the editor think any one expected to convert him? No such miracle was attempted, but that article was written solely to correct the false impressions conveyed by the News. Still, it did not seem unreasonable to suppose that, when the truth was fairly set before him, the editor would own his figures, if not his deductions, wrong. It seems to be his policy, however, to ignore any such little mistake and, doubtless, some of his readers are still looking with indignant or envious gaze on that magnificent income of "self-styled grand sec'y Mr. Wadsworth." By the way, Mr. W. is not grand secretary, at all. That place in this state is filled by one Peter Scott. But the association has also a supreme secretary. That Mr. Wadsworth holds the latter office does not strengthen the position of the Michigan Tradesman or its Tecumseh disciple, but only shows that they were talking of what they did not understand.

The News has other objections. It disapproves of the impracticable scheme which proposes that Patrons buy of the dealer who will sell to them most cheaply. That merchant, it says, "must either deceive by fictitious price lists, or go to the wall." But all sales made under these contracts must be cash sales, and, as there is thus no loss from non-paying customers, it seems as though the merchant might keep his head above water, and still be honest.

But the Patrons are not only going to ruin the merchant who is cursed with their patronage, they are going to drive all the rest out of business and the villages will be ruined and then the farmers will suffer (the News apparently thinks that all Patrons are farmers) and no one but themselves will be to blame. Dear, dear! What a lugubrious picture. If it be really a true one, and our prosperity depends on keeping a good many other people in affluence, why then, let us pay still higher prices than the present ones, and so, incidentally, benefit ourselves the more. As for the movement being in the nature of a trust, we do not admit it. We are organized to protect ourselves from the trusts that are everywhere about us, squeezing out our very life's blood.

"If boycotts are unjust," perhaps western farmers were wrong, last harvest in the course they took in relation to the binding twine trust. Surely it was very wicked for them to combine as they did and stick together till they forced the price of twine down nearly to an honest figure. They had no business to stack their grain unbound, but should have gone meekly into the villages and paid for the twine just what the trust demanded.

Before closing, our critic feeds farmers a little taffy and then graciously allows them to combine for certain purposes, such as "mutual improvement." Doubtless he thinks "improvement" is needed. "Protection against imposture," too, but, until they are "improved" enough to be able to judge who are impostors, we suppose they will need some disinterested journal to watch over them.

The fifty thousand men and women of Michigan who have joined the Patrons of Industry are not all dupes of one man. They are capable of carrying on their own associations, and, if an officer proves untrustworthy, can remove him and elect another. They have been patted on the back and told to keep quiet long enough. They are not children to be reminded that some one else knows best. They propose now to take a hand in managing their own affairs.

A MEMBER.

EXPLOSION AT BEARDSELL'S LANDING.

About 6 o'clock this morning, Engineer W. A. Bentley, who has charge of the steam boilers in the laundry house at Beardsell's landing, Devil's lake, started his fires, and, after raising the steam to about forty pounds, left them to take care of themselves, with a slow fire and plenty of water. He wandered off to the front of the hotel, and was engaged in conversation with Mr. Beardsell, when they were nearly thrown off their feet by a terrific explosion.

The explosion had taken place at the laundry boiler house, which embraced the engine room, tank, and three steam pumps.

The laundry building formerly was situated a short distance from the hotel, else a greater damage and possibly some loss of life would have resulted.

As it was, the building itself was blown to atoms, together with some smaller out buildings for the use of gues's of the hotel. In the laundry a arge number of cots had been stored, and the force of the explosion landed them in the limbs of the adjoining trees in every conceivable shape.

Mr. Beardsell states that his loss will reach fully $1,000. He states that the cause of the explosion remains a mystery, as the engineer is a competent one, and the condition of the boilers was considered first-class.—Adrian Times of Monday.

A SILVER WEDDING.

Tuesday, Oct. 8th, was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. & Mrs. Robert Crosby, and their cozy home in Brownville was filled with guests that evening, to assist the worthy couple in celebrating the event. The company began to arrive at an early hour, and by seven o'clock the house was overflowing with as merry and congenial a company as we have seen in many a day. Mrs. Crosby is a great lover of flowers, as her friends know full well, and her taste in this direction was most happily displayed in the profuseness of floral ornamentations which bedecked the rooms. After a season of social chat and enjoyment, refreshments were served, to which all did ample justice. Near the south bay window stood a table upon which were displayed the gifts which the generous hearts of friends had bestowed to cheer the hearts of host and hostess. Many of these were sent from abroad by old time friends who could not be present in person. SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The 31 annual convention of the Lenawee Co. S. S. Ass'n was held at Weston, Oct. 2. About 80 delegates were present beside a large audience of the people in the vicinity. A sermon and papers on important topics, and an address by M. H. Reynolds, state secretary, and spirited discussions, made the convention interesting and profitable. The following resolutions were adopted:

Since we recognize in the Sunday School one of the greatest agencies of the Christian church for the training of coming generations, and for the hastening of Christ's kingdom upon earth, therefore

Resolved, That it shall be the aim of this Association with the help of Almighty God, to develop and foster an interest in Sunday schools among the people.

Resolved, That we, as teachers and Sunday school workers, irrespective of denominations, will endeavor to perseveringly carry out the suggestions made by the executive committee in their circulars sent to pastors and superintendents, urging the formation of township organizations.

Resolved, That we, as lovers of the Lord Jesus Christ, esteem our duty to be present at every Sunday school session in our vicinity, and we will see to it that all children under our influence shall be urged to attend Sunday school.

Resolved, That the time has fully come when we, as Christian workers, cannot ignore the claims which the cause of temperance has upon us; that we will intelligently and conscientiously, to the best of our ability, train the young minds entrusted to our care, and to this end we recommend systematic gospel temperance teaching, to be followed by opportunity for signing the triple pledge, including alcoholics, narcotics, and profanity.

Resolved, That we, as Sunday Schools, will redeem the pledge of $100 made by our delegates to the State convention, held at Saginaw in December last.

Resolved, That we extend our hearty thanks to the citizens of Weston for their cordial welcome and hospitable entertainment during our stay in their pleasant little town. Respectfully submitted.

DEATH OF HENRY BOWEN, SEN.

The subject of this tribute was born in Cheshire, Mass., August 18, 1807. He was a descendant of Puritan parents and inherited all the elements of firmness and honor that characterized those devoted souls of New England. His father was a man of strict religious principles and his family of six boys and six girls, were brought up under the influence of a christian life. In childhood, his home was near Otsego Lake, Otsego county, New York. There he reached manhood, married, and reared his own family of eight children. There sorrow came, as never before to his heart, and the soul that first stood with him in love and fidelity at the marriage altar, fell asleep by the gates of light and left him with a family to protect and father, the youngest being of tender age. He learned the cooper's trade which he followed for five years, but for financial reasons gave it up, and in 1849 he wended his way to the wilds of Michigan. Here he purchased a farm on section 25, in Franklin, and is known as one of the pioneers. His first purchase consisted of eighty acres of new land which he cleared up and improved, and three years after he added eighty acres more. On these places he cleared up over one hundred acres of heavy timber. In 1851 he visited his childhood's home and married a sister of his first wife, Mrs. Lucinda Stearns, who had been given the care of his younger children. Of her, written testimony is given that to those children she proved a loving, dutiful mother. He paid special attention to the dairy business and to hop culture, both of which under his careful management proved financially successful. In 1872 he retired from farming and purchased a home in the City of Adrian, where he has since resided. In February 1879 he was bereft of his companion, who had been the foster mother of his children, and since her death he has found a home with his step-son—Willard Stearns, Esq., editor of the Adrian Press.

He reared a family of eight children, all by his first wife, six of whom survive him. Levi lives on the old homestead, Franklin; Mrs. Cynthia Conlin resides in Franklin; Ex-Under Sheriff Bowen and Frank W. live in Adrian City; Benoni C. lives in Iowa and Norman M. at Ithaca, Michigan.

The deceased was a man of strong convictions on all subjects, generous and hospitable, of the strictest integrity and the soul of honor in business affairs. Of him it could be literally spoken: "His word was as good as his bond." He was an extensive reader and kept fully posted on all topics of public interest. He was also a diligent bible student, and every year, for forty years prior to his death, he had read the old and new testaments entirely through. In his religious opinions he was an earnest Universalist, and his belief embraced faith and works as well. Although a resident of Adrian for nearly eighteen years, he was during all that time a regular contributor to the Tecumseh church, and while residing in Franklin gave liberally to the erection of the church edifice here.

The funeral obsequies were held last Sunday. A brief service was given at his house in Adrian, at one o'clock. The remains were then conveyed to Tipton, where the final services were held in the Congregational church. An eloquent discourse was preached by Rev. J. M. Getchell, of Tecumseh, and the church choir rendered some beautiful and appropriate music. The ample audience room was nearly filled with former friends and neighbors of the deceased, who came to pay the tribute of homage and respect to an honored pioneer and citizen. The procession then formed on foot and conveyed the casket across the street, where it found its final resting place in the Franklin cemetery.

In his death a noble and upright life has gone out. No, his was a life that never dies. Its kindly influence will continue to be a beacon light to all who follow him. His was an integrity that God admires and honors. His living was a triumph, his death a benediction.

FRANKLIN UNION LITERARY AND LYCEUM.

The East Franklin Union Literary and Lyceum met at the residence of Mrs. A. B. Wisner, Friday evening, Oct. 11. The weather was all that could be desired to make everything lovely, and every member came with a smiling face ready to do their part. The meeting was called to order by the president at 7:30. After the miscellaneous business of the meeting, the following program was rendered.

Recess.

After recess followed the discussion of the question—Resolved, that the railroad should be owned and controlled by the government. Mrs. A. B. Wisner aff. and Hollis Taylor, neg. Decision was in favor of the negative. Mr. B. Hurry, a visitor to the society, made some very appropriate remarks for the welfare of the society.

The society then adjourned to meet again Oct. 25th, at A. D. Hunt's. A lengthy program has been prepared for the occasion.

The question for discussion is, Resolved, that the many mechanical inventions are injurious to the laboring classes. Ed. Spaulding, aff., and G. W. Allen, neg.

"We Point with Pride"

To the "good name at home," won by Hood's Sarsaparilla. In Lowell, Mass., where it is prepared, there is more of Hood's Sarsaparill sold than of all other medicines, and it has given the best of satisfaction since its introduction ten years ago. This could not be if the medicine did not possess merit. If you suffer from impure blood, try Hood's Sarsaparilla and realize its peculiar curative power.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-iritaing. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches snuffs powders or syringes because they are all iritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandonded as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who had for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict testify to radical cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm

Palmer's New York Theatre Co. closed their three nights' engagement here Saturday evening. They played Hoop of Gold, A Brave Woman, and the Silver Bar Mine. The rescue scene in "A Brave Woman" was executed with good effect and was quite realistic. The financial part of the engagement was not the success it ought to have been. In a nut-shell; are there any hopes of a close alliance among American nations under the existing commerial policy of this country? Is there prospect or promise that the existing economic policy will be changed or modified? Prohibition of trade is our tariff theory as promulgated by republican administrations. We will need to revise theories before the other Americas can help us. —Toledo Bee

Sam L. Henry of Tecumseh, owner of Prince Henry, telephoned to Secretary Mills, Saturday afternoon that he was anxious to put up $50 and enter his horse in the matched race between Jesse James and TiptonBoy. He was informed that the matter of receiving entries was not in the Secretary's hands, but was referred to the to the owners of the animals that are bound to trot. Prince Henry will add much to the attraction if Jesse and the Boy's owners will permit him to go in.—Adrian Times.

The Art Amateur for October gives two large colored plates of even more than usual excellence— the full-length figure of a beautifull horse, after a study from life by the famous painter Chelminski, and a highly decorative panel of nasturtiums. China painting receives most liberal attention this month, the designs especially, being numerous and useful. No one thinking of taking an art journal should fail to acquaint himself with the very liberal offer to new subscribers made by the publisher, Montague Marks, 23 Union Square, New York.

The letters of the workingmen who comprised the American expedition to Europe and the Paris expsition, sent there by The Evening News, are now appearing every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday in that paper. They are not particularly elegant in diction, but what is better, they are clear and give the reader a good idea of how the customs and methods of European workingmen and women appear to American eyes. These letters are being published by 20 or more other newspapers of wide circulation, and it would seem that no one interested in economic subjects could afford to miss reading them.

PLOTTERS FOILED.

Villainy's Hand Still Busy in the Cronin Case.

ATTEMPTED BRIBERY OF A JUROR.

A Rather Bungling Effort to Secure a Man Who Would Hang the Jury Instead of the Accused—Two Court Bailiffs in the Scheme, Which Is Betrayed by the Man They Tried to Corrupt—The Tools All in the Toils, But the Master Scoundrel Yet Under Cover.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—The matter that was considered so important as to call for an adjournment of the Cronin murder trial Friday was the most sensational occurrence since the discovery of murder cottage. It was, in short, the discovery of an attempt to secure a juryman who would stand out against conviction under any and all circumstances, and the offer of $5,000 to a veniremen if he would agree to go into the scheme. For this crime the following men were indicted Saturday night, the indictments being produced in court at 10 o'clock by a special grand jury appointed Saturday by Judge Horton, and of which ex-Mayor John A. Roche was the foreman: Alexander L. Hanks, Mark Salomon, Frederick W. Smith, Thomas Kavanaugh, Jeremiah O'Donnell, Joseph Konen.

Identity of the Culprits.

Hanks and Salomon are bailiffs. Hanks has been on the sheriff's pay-roll for a number of years, but Salomon was appointed only a year ago. Neither of them has summoned any jurors in the Cronin case, but both have been engaged in looking after the defendants while in court. Smith is an agent, and a dissolute character hailing from Oshkosh, Wis. Kavanaugh is a steamfitter and prominent Chicago business man. O'Donnell is a gauger in the employ of the U. S. internal revenue. Konen is a fruit dealer.

Story of the Attempted Rascality.

One of the leading assistants to the state's attorney gave to a United Press reporter the following story of the attempted bribery:

"During the Thursday afternoon session a personal friend of the state's attorney came into the court-room, and, calling me aside, said: 'I have something to tell you.' The gentleman is a prominent citizen, and a manufacturer on the west side. He said that the foreman of his establishment, who had been summoned as a venireman, had been offered a bribe to hang the jury. I went with him at once to see the young man in question, who, I should say, bears an exceedingly high reputation for integrity. He consented to tell what he knew, notwithstanding it would be a betrayal of a friend.

An Infamous Proposition.

"He said that he was summoned last Wednesday morning, and shortly after entering the waiting room was accosted by a bailiff whom he had known for years. The bailiff invited him out to have a cigar, and the two went to a neighboring saloon. After a few words the bailiff informed the venireman that if he would agree to vote steadily for an acquittal of the suspects he would be paid $1,000. Continuing, the bailiff said that the deal would be put through by his wife and the wife of the venireman, and in order that the latter might know that the money had been paid, the wife of the venireman would appear in court on a certain day wearing a particular dress. If the money was not paid, she would wear another dress. The venireman repulsed the bailiff, and said he would have nothing to do with his offer. This was in the morning. At the beginning of the afternoon session the venireman was called into the jury box, where he remained until 4:30, when he was excused by the defense for cause.

Desperate Men Bid High.

"He left the room, and when he reached the sidewalk was overtaken by the bailiff, who exclaimed:

"'In God's name where were you this noon? I hunted for you everywhere, and was instructed to offer you $5,000 if you would agree to vote for acquittal, and that if you would not do it for that much, why, —— it, I was told to give you anything, so long as I got you.'

"The venireman said he had been excused, and that ended the talk between them; but upon reaching the manufactory the young man went to his employer and told him everything. His employer came to the court the next afternoon (Thursday) and told me. Friday noon the venireman told us the story, and to pursue it we had court adjourned.

The Guilty Bailiff Accused.

"We immediately sent for the bailiff inculpated, and he, in the presence of the counsel for the state, confessed the whole affair—who his employers were, and everything he had done in their interest since the beginning of the case. * * * As the result of his confession there have been several other confessions, the sum of which discloses the worst conspiracy ever known in this country—a conspiracy which for its ramification, audacity and the large number of men embraced is without an equal. Several arrests have been made, and several more will be, and persons of prominence are among them."

The Exposers of the Plot.

The name of the gentleman who informed the prosecution of the attempted bribery is Page, of the Page Lard Refining company, 44 Erie street, this city. The man upon whom the attempt to bribe was made is George Tschappat, foreman for Mr. Page. Salomon, it appears, was an old friend of Tschappat, and their wives were intimate friends before their marriage. Thomas Kavanaugh is believed to be the head and front of the conspiracy, the other five men being paid tools in his employ. Bailiff Salomon was the one who offered the large bribe to the venireman, although he was only acting as a go-between for Hanks.

Kavanaugh Accuses Forrest.

Among the statements made by Kavanaugh Saturday was one to the effect that Lawyer Forrest, of the defense, was implicated in the villainy. When the matter was reported in court Saturday all the lawyers for the defense repudiated any connection with it, and the prosecution readily disclined any intention to connect them with the crime, and expressed their confidence that they had nothing to do with it. But after Kavanaugh had made his accusation it was reported that the prosecution were induced to withdraw their acquittal, so far as Forrest was concerned.

Forrest's Emphatic Denial.

Attorney Forrest emphatically and flatly contradicts the statement made by Kavanaugh. It was surmised by the lawyer's friends when they read Kavanaugh's statement that the fellow might have given pointers as to who were good men to accept, but no one of them believed for an instant that Mr. Forrest had lent himself to any such conspiracy. Mr. Forrest unequivocally denies that Kavanaugh did even this much. He didn't see him, didn't talk with him, and neither directly nor indirectly, so far as he is able to learn, ever received any intimation or recommendation emanating from Kavanaugh or any of the other conspirators.

Hanks and Smith Are Dumb.

Nothing of importance has developed in the case since Saturday night. Hanks and Smith are both as closed-mouthed as is possible to conceive. They will say nothing except to declare their innocence. Hanks was confronted with Salomon Saturday night, and with the coolest effrontery declared that he did not know him. A member of the special grand jury says there are bigger fish to catch yet, but the evidence before them was too vague to base an indictment upon. They, of course, refused to say who the big fish are.

REV. TALMAGE'S LOSS.

The Famous Brooklyn Tabernacle Laid Low by Fire.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 14.—The famous Brooklyn tabernacle, of which the Rev Dr. T. De Witt Talmage is pastor, has for the second time in its history received its baptism of fire, and for a second time been totally destroyed. The fire was discovered at 2:45 yesterday morning by a policeman. The flames had gained such headway however that the firemen were almost helpless, and turned their attention to saving the adjoining buildings. The church was a fine edifice, and the organ was one of the finest in the country.

The Electric Light Wire's Work.

It was at first supposed that the flames originated in a defective flue, the statement being made that the fire had been started in the furnace Saturday night to heat the building for yesterday morning's services. The sexton, however, denies that there was any fire in the furnace. Workmen had been putting electric light wires in the building all day Saturday, and it is now thought that during a thunder storm in the night lightning surcharged the wires and caused some of the woodwork of the interior to ignite. At a meeting of the trustees of the church yesterday Fire Marshal Lewis, who was present, stated his belief that the fire was caused by an electric light wire.

The Losses and Insurance.

The trustees recalled the fact that the insurance companies had settled their policies immediately in the case of the burning of the Roman Catholic cathedral last spring, and expressed the hope that similar promptness would be shown in this case. The insurance amounts to $129,450, in American and English companies. The building cost $118,000; organ, $20,000; furniture, $26,000; improvements, $87,000; ornamentation, $1,000; carpets, $2,000.

NABBED A TRAIN-ROBBER.

The Trainmen Catche Him in the First Act of His Game.

VINCINNES, Ind., Oct. 14.—A bold attempt to rob the Ohio and Mississippi passenger train, No. 6, due here at 1:20 a. m., was frustrated yesterday morning by the trainmen, between Bridgeport and Lawrenceville, Ills. An unknown man was discovered in the act of pulling the coupling pin from the rear coach. The intention of the robber was to disconnect the last coach from the train, and with four or five accomplices, who were on the top of the car at the time, attempt to rob the passengers at some lonely spot on the road. The robber caught in the act of pulling the pin feigned drunkenness. He, however, was taken through here to Washington and placed in jail. His accomplices, who first boarded the train near Olney, escaped.

Mrs. Logan's Reception.

WASHINGTON CITY, Oct. 11.—Mrs. Logan's reception last night to the sir knights and their ladies at Calumet Place was one of the great events of conclave week, and the occasion and gathering, in point of numbers and brilliancy, exceeded all expectations. Perhaps 10,000 people besieged the mansion from 7 o'clock until near midnight. The reception was held in Memorial hall, the annex to the mansion, erected by Mrs. Logan in memory of her late husband, and in which are preserved the relics of the dead senator, soldier and Knight Templar.

Doings of the Conclave.

WASHINGTON CITY, Oct. 11.—At the session of tne conclave yesterday J. P. S. Gobin, of Pennsylvania, was elected grand master, and Hugh McCurdy, of Michigan, deputy grand master. Denver, Colo., was selected as the place, and the second Tuesday in August, 1892, as the time of the next triennial meeting. There was a contest over location between Cincinnati, Louisville, and Denver on the first ballot, after which Cincinnati was withdrawn, and Denver, on the second ballot, was selected by a good majority. The encampment then adjourned for the day.

Soldiers Monument Unveiled.

JOLIET, Ills., Oct. 10.—The unveiling of the soldiers' monument which has just been completed at a cost of $10,000, was made the occasion Wednesday of a great celebration of old soldiers and sailors. Grand Army posts from several counties together with the National Guard, Sons of Veterans, the Krieger Verein and other civil and military societies joined in the parade. A national salute was fired by the Joliet Light artillery including a salvo in honor of the newly admitted states. The speakers included Judge Parks for the county and Governor Fifer, Gen. Palmer, Gen. Black and Gen. Martin for the old soldiers.

In a Hurry to Get Married.

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa, Oct. 11.—Miss Mamie Knapp, daughter of C. C. Knapp, a banker of this place, eloped Wednesday with J. A. Rawson, an insurance agent from Dubuque. The young couple were engaged, but the girl's father would not consent to her getting married for two years yet. Time passed too slowly for the lovers, so Wednesday they drove to Waterloo, procured a license, were married, and left for parts unknown.

Wind Storm in Southern Illinois.

CAIRO, Ills., Oct. 14.—A terrific wind, rain and electric storm swept over this section of the country Saturday evening. Serious damage was done at Mounds Junction. Several houses were blown down, among them the new depot of the Illinois Central company, a large, substantial frame structure, which was nearly finished. A number of trees were blown across the track, and it took till midnight to clear away the obstruction. No one was hurt.

THANKSGIVING OF DAVID.

LESSON III, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, OCT. 20.

Text of the Lesson, II Sam. vii, 18-29—Commit Verses 28, 29—Golden Text, I Thess. v, 18—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

(Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. A. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.)

18. "Then went King David in, and sat before the Lord." The word "then" takes us back to the first verses of this chapter, where we read that the Lord having given David rest round about from all his enemies, his thoughts turn to the Ark of God dwelling within curtains, while he dwells in a house of cedar, and the prophet Nathan encourages him in his purpose to build an house for the Ark; this leads to a message from the Lord to David, in which he is told that not he but his son shall build the house, and that through this son David's house and kingdom, and throne shall be established (R. V., made sure) for ever. So, with the assurance from God of a wonderful Son and an eternal kingdom, he sits before the Lord and says, "Who am I, O Lord God? and what is my house that Thou hast brought me hitherto?"

19. "Thou hast spoken also of thy servants' house for a great while to come." Not only was David amazed at the past goodness of God to him in taking him from the sheepcote and from following the sheep to be the ruler over God's people Israel (v. viii), but he was overwhelmed by the revelation now made to him of the future glory and stability of his house and kingdom. "And is this the manner of man, O Lord God?" There is no doubt some reference to Solomon in this description of the future glory of the house of David, but there is a more decided reference to the Son of David of Matt. i, 1; xxii, 42; the Son of whom Gabriel said: "The Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David, and He shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of His kingdom there shall be no end" (Luke i, 32, 33).

Our lesson today is undoubtedly concerning that covenant which Isaiah calls "The sure mercies of David;" and which Paul tells us shall be fulfilled only in the resurrection. (Isa. lv, 3; Acts xiii, 34.)

20. "And what can David say more unto thee? for Thou, Lord God, knowest Thy servant." Inasmuch as God knew all about David before ever He began to lead Him out, he felt that there was nothing more for him to say.

21. "For Thy Word's sake, and according to Thine own heart, hast Thou done all these great things to make Thy servant know them." In Ezekiel xxxvi, 22-32, speaking of this very kingdom when Israel shall be restored and cleansed from all their sins, the Lord says that He will do it, not for their sakes, but for His Holy Name's sake. When we remember that one of the precious names of Jesus, Son of David, is "The Word of God" (John I, 1; Rev xix, 13), then we understand that "for Jesus' sake" He will accomplish all things concerning his elect church, and His elect nation Israel, "according to the eternal purpose which He purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord." (Eph. iii, 11.)

22. "Wherefore, Thou art great, O Lord God: for there is none like Thee." "Who is like unto Thee, O Lord, among the gods?" sang Moses after the Egyptians had been overthrown in the Red sea (Ex. xv, 11). "There is none like unto Thee, O Lord; Thou art great, and Thy name is great in might," says Jeremiah as he talks of the True and Living God, king of nations, king of eternity. (Jer. x, 6-10.)

23. "And what one nation in the earth is like Thy people, even like Israel, * * * which Thou redeemedst to Thee from Egypt, from the nations and their gods?" Israel alone of all the nations was thus honored of God, and surely He had a right to expect from them great things in the way of obedience, in return for the great things which He had done for them. The church of Christ, composed of believers gathered out of all nations, has been redeemed by His precious blood that she may make Him a name on this earth; and He has a right to expect from every one thus redeemed a holy life and a whole hearted devotion to Himself in His present great work of preaching the Gospel to every creature.

24. "Thou hast confirmed to thyself thy people Israel, to be a people unto thee forever, and thou Lord art become their God." "I know that whatsover God doeth, it shall be forever" (Eccl. iii, 14). The sun, moon and stars as we look upon them in the heavens are a sign to us that Israel shall never cease to be a nation before God.

25. "And now, O Lord God, * * * do as Thou hast said." David follows up his heartfelt thanksgiving by placing himself entirely in the will of God and at His disposal, like Mary when she said: "Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it unto me according to Thy word." (Luke i, 38.)

26. "And let Thy name be magnified for ever." David seeks not his own glory nor the glory of Israel, but that through him or his house or his people the name of Jehovah may be magnified. In Ps. lxix, 30, he says, "I will magnify Him with thanksgiving," and that is what he is doing in this lesson. Hear him repeatedly saying, "Let the Lord be magnified" (Ps. xxxv, 27; xl, 16; lxx, 4), and calling upon the people to magnify the Lord with him and exalt His name together (Ps xxxiv, 3).

27. "For Thou, O Lord of Hosts, God of Israel, hast revealed to Thy servant, saying, I will build thee a house," and therefore David prayed this prayer. This is the right thing to do with all the revelations which God makes to us in His word concerning His great goodness towards us, and His purposes not yet fulfilled; just receive them gratefully, eat them joyfully and pray for them with expectation.

28. "And now, O Lord God, Thou art that God, and Thy words be true, and Thou hast promised this goodness unto Thy servant." He here acknowledges that he firmly believes that all God's words are true, and he simply pleads His promises. This is what we need today on the part of Christians; to lay hold of God's promises and plead them with the same confidence with which we would present a check at a bank for payment; but as the check will not be paid till we indorse it, so we need not expect a promise to be fulfilled till we indorse it—that is, write our own name on it as if it meant us individually.

29. "Thou, O Lord, hast spoken it; and with Thy blessing let the house of Thy servant be blessed forever." "Satisfied with favor, and full with the blessing of the Lord" (Deut. xxxiii, 23), who can estimate it? "A blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive" (Mal. iii, 10), why should we not have it? Only let us fulfill the conditions of this last one and it will surely come in His time; and as to the blessings of Matt. v, 1—notice the conditions and fulfill them. I wish that space permitted me to notice the titles of God in this lesson; let me just mention them, and may some student seek them out and feed upon them. Jehovah, by itself, twice; Jehovah Elohim, twice; Jehovah Tsebaoth, twice; Adonai Jehovah, six times; Elohim, by itself, six times; the name of God eighteen times in this lesson under five different titles and each full of significance.

CLEOPATRA.

Being an Account of the Fall and Vengeance of Harmachis, the Royal Egyptian.

"O Royal One!" she cried, "wisely did thy mother prophecy. Surely the Holy Spirit, the Knæph, was in her. O thou conceived by a god! See the omen. The lion there—he growls within the Capitol at Rome; and the dead man, he is the Ptolemy—the Macedonian spawn that, like a foreign weed, hath overgrown the land of Nile; with the Macedonian Lagidæ shalt thou go to smite the Lion of Rome. And the Macedonian eagle shall fly, and the lion shall strike him down, and thou shalt strike down the lion, and the land of Khem shall once more be free! free! free! Keep thyself but pure, according to the commandment of the gods, O son of the Royal House! O hope of Khem! be but ware of Woman the Destroyer, and as I have said, so shall it be. Poor am I and wretched; yea, stricken with sorrow. I have sinned in speaking of that which should be hid, and for my sin have I paid in the coin of that which was born of my womb; willingly have I paid for thee. But I have still of the wisdom of our people, nor do the gods, in whose eyes all are equal, turn their countenances from the poor. The Divine Mother (Isis) hath spoken to me—but last night she spake—bidding me come hither to gather herbs, and read to thee the signs that I should see. And as I have said, so shall it come to pass, if thou canst but endure the weight of the great temptation. Come hither, Royal One!" and she led me to the edge of the canal where the water was deep and still and blue. "Now gaze upon that face as the water throws it back. Is not that brow fitted to bear the double crown? Do not those gentle eyes mirror the perfect majesty of kings? Hath not the Ptah, the Creator, fashioned that form to fit the imperial garb, and awe the glance of multitudes looking through thee to God?

"Nay, nay," she went on in another voice—a shrill old wife's voice—"I will—be not so foolish, boy—the scratch of a lion is a venomous thing, a terrible thing; yea, as bad as the bite of an asp—it must be treated, or else it will fester, and all thy days shalt thou dream of lions: ay, and snakes; and, also, it will break out in sores. But I know of it—I know. I am not crazed for nothing. For mark, every thing has its balance—in madness is much wisdom, and in wisdom much madness. La! la! la! Pharaoh himself can't say where that one begins and the other ends. Now, don't stand gazing there, looking as silly as a cat in a crocus-colored robe; but just let me stick these green things on the place, and in six days you'll heal up as white as a three-year child. Never mind the smart of it, lad. By Him who sleeps at Phiæ, or at Abouthis, or at Abydos—as our Divine masters have it now—or wherever he does sleep, which is a thing we shall find out before we want to—by Osiris, I say you'll live to be as clean from scars as a sacrifice to Isis at the new moon, if you'll but let me put it on.

"Is it not so, my good folk?" and she turned to address some people who had, unseen by me, assembled while she prophesied. "I've been speaking a spell over him, just to make a way for the virtue of my medicine—la! la! there's nothing like a spell. If you don't believe it, just come to me the next time your wives are barren; it's better than scraping every pillar in the Temple of Osiris, I warrant. I'll make 'em bear like a twenty-year-old palm. But then, you see, you must know what to say—that's the point—every thing comes to a point at last. La! la!"

Now, when I heard all this, I, Harmachis, put my hand to my head, not knowing if I dreamed. But presently looking up, I saw a gray-haired man among those who were gathered together, who watched us sharply, and afterward I learned that this man was the spy of Ptolemy, yea, the very man who had well-nigh caused me to be slain of Pharaoh when I was in my cradle. And then I understood why Atoua spoke so foolishly.

"Thine are strange spells, old wife," he said. "Thou didst speak of Pharaoh and the double crown and of a form fashioned by Ptah to bear it; is it not so?"

"Yea, yea—part of the spell, thou fool; and what can one swear by better nowadays than by the divine Pharaoh, the Piper, whom and whose music may the gods preserve to charm this happy land? What better than by the double crown he wears, grace to great Alexander of Macedonia? By the way, you know about every thing. Have they got back his chlamys yet, which Mithridates took to Cos? Pompey wore it last, didn't he? In his triumph, too. Just fancy Pompey in the cloak of Alexander—a puppy dog in a lion's skin. And talking of lions, look what this lad hath done—slain a lion with his own spear, and right glad you village folks should be to see it, for it was a very fierce lion. Just see the teeth and claws. His claws! Alack, he's an Osiris now, the body. And to think of it, but half an hour ago he was an every-day mortal like you or me. Well, away with him to the embalmers. Come, aren't you going to take away the body of that poor lad, and the lion, too? There, my boy, you keep those herbs on, and you'll never feel your scratches. I know a thing or two for all I'm crazy, and you, my own grandson! Dear, dear, I'm glad his Holiness the High Priest adopted you when Pharaoh made an end of his son; you look so bonny. I warrant the real Harmachis could not have killed a lion like that. Give me the common blood, say I, it's so lusty."

"You know too much," grumbled the spy, now quite deceived. "Well, he is a brave youth. Here, you men, bear this body back to Abouthis, and some of you stop and help me skin the lion. We'll send the skin to you, young man," he went on; "not that you deserve it. To attack a lion like that was the act of a fool, and a fool deserves what he gets—destruction. Never attack the strong until you are stronger."

But, for my part, I went home wondering.

CHAPTER III.

OF THE REBUKE OF AMENEMHAT; OF THE PRAYER OF HARMACHIS; AND OF THE SIGN GIVEN BY THE HOLY GODS.

FOR awhile as I, Harmachis, went, the juice of the green herbs which the old wife, Atoua, had placed upon my wounds caused me much smart, but presently the pain ceased. And of a truth, I believe that there was virtue in them, for within two days my flesh healed up, so that after a time no marks remained. But I bethought me that I had disobeyed the word of the old High Priest, Amenemhat, who was called my father. For till to-day I knew not that he was in truth my father according to the flesh, having been taught that his own son was slain, as I have written, and that he had been pleased, with the sanction of the Divine ones, to take me as an adopted son and rear me up, that I might in due season fill an office about the temple. Therefore was I sore troubled, for I feared the old man, who was very terrible in his anger, and spake ever with the cold voice of Wisdom. Nevertheless, I determined to go in to him and confess my fault and bear such punishment as he should be pleased to put upon me. So, even with the red spear in my hand and the red wounds on my breast, I passed through the outer court of the great temple and came to the door of the chamber where the High Priest dwelt. It is a great chamber sculptured round about with the images of the solemn gods, and the light of Ra (the sun) came to it in the daytime by an opening cut through the stone of the massy roof. But at night it was lit by a swinging lamp of bronze. I passed in without noise, for the door was not altogether shut, and pushing my way through the heavy curtains that were beyond, I stood with a beating heart within the chamber.

The lamp was lit, for the darkness had fallen, and by its light I saw the old man seated in a chair of ivory and ebony at a table of stone, whereon were spread the mystic writings of the words of Life and Death. But he read no more, for behold! he slept, and his long, white beard rested upon the table like the beard of a dead man. The soft light from the lamp fell on him and on the papyri, and on the gold ring upon his hand, where were graven the symbols of the Invisible One, but all around was shadow. It fell on the shaven head, on the white robe, on the cedar staff of priesthood at his side, and on the ivory of the lion-footed chair; it showed the mighty brow of power, the features cut in kingly mold, the white eyebrows and the dark hollows of the deep-set eyes. I looked and trembled, for there was about him that which was more than the dignity of man. So long had he lived with the gods, and so long kept company with them and with thoughts divine, so deeply was he versed in all those mysteries which we do but faintly discern, here in this upper air, that even now, before his time, he partook of the nature of the Osiris, and was a thing to shake humanity with fear.

I stood and gazed, and as I stood he opened his dark eyes, but looked not on me, nor turned his head; and yet he saw me and spoke.

"Why hast thou been disobedient to me, O my son?" he said. "How came it that thou wentest forth against the lion when I bade thee not?"

"How knowest thou, my father, that I went forth?" I asked in fear.

"How know I? Are there, then, no other ways of knowledge than by the senses? O ignorant child! was not my spirit with thee when the lion sprang upon thy companion? Did I not pray those set about thee to protect thee to make sure thy thrust when thou didst drive the spear into the lion's throat? How came it that thou wentest forth, O my son?"

"The boaster taunted me," I answered, "and I went."

"Yes, I know it; and because of the hot blood of youth, I forgive thee, Harmachis. But now listen unto me, and let my words sink into thy heart like the waters of Sihor into thirsty sand at the rising of Sirius. Listen unto me. The boaster was sent unto thee as a temptation, as a trial of thy strength was he sent, and see! it has not been equal to the burden. Therefore is thy hour put back. Hadst thou been strong in this matter, the path had been made plain to thee even now. But thou hast failed, and therefore is thy hour put back."

"I understand thee, not my father," I answered.

"What was it, then, my son, that the old wife, Atoua, said to thee down by the bank of the canal?"

And thereon I told him all that the old wife had said.

"And thou believest, Harmachis, my son?"

"Nay," I answered; "how should I believe such tales. Surely she is mad. All the people know her for mad."

Then for the first time he looked toward me, who was standing in the shadow.

"My son! my son!" he cried, "thou art wrong. She is not mad. The woman spake the truth; she spake not of herself, but of the voice within her that can not lie. For this Atoua is a prophetess and holy. Now learn thou the destiny that the gods of Egypt have given to thee to fulfill, and woe be unto thee if by any weakness thou dost fail therein! Listen! thou art no stranger adopted into my house and the house of the temple; thou art my very son, saved unto me by this same woman. But, O Harmachis, thou art more than this, for in thee and me alone doth flow the imperial blood of Egypt. Thou and I alone of men alive are descended, without break or flaw, from that Pharaoh Nekt nebf whom Ochus the Persian drove from Egypt. The Persian came and the Persian went, and then after the Persian came the Macedonian, and now for nigh upon three hundred years have the Lagidæ usurped the double crown, defiling the land of Khem and corrupting the worship of his gods. And mark thou this; but now, but two weeks since, is Ptolemy Neus Dionysius, Ptolemy the Piper, who would have slain thee, dead; and but now hath the eunuch Pothinus, that very eunuch who came hither, years ago, to cut thee off, set at naught the will of his master, the dead Auletes, and placed the boy Ptolemy upon the throne. And therefore hath his sister Cleopatra, that fierce and beautiful girl, fled into Syria; and there, if I err not, will she gather her armies and make war upon her brother Ptolemy; for by her father's will was she left joint sovereign with him. And meanwhile—mark thou this, my son—the Roman eagle hangs on high, waiting with ready talons till such time as he may fall upon the fat wether Egypt and rend him. And mark, again, the people of Egypt are weary of the foreign yoke, they hate the memory of the Persians, sick at heart are they of being called 'Men of Macedonia' in the markets of Alexandria. The whole land mutters and murmurs beneath the yoke of the Greek and the shadow of the Roman. Have not they been oppressed? Have not their children been butchered and their gains wrung from them to fill the bottomless greed and lust of the Lagidæ? Have not the temples been forsaken? Ay, have not the divine majesties of the eternal gods been set at naught by these Grecians babblers who have dared to meddle with the immortal truths, and name the Most High by another name (Serapis), confounding the substance of the Invisible? Doth not Egypt cry aloud for freedom? and shall she cry in vain? Nay, nay, for thou, my son, art the appointed way of deliverance. To thee, being sunk in eld, have I decreed my rights. Already is thy name whispered in many a sanctuary, from Abu even unto Athu; already do priests and people swear allegiance, even by the sacred symbols, unto him who shall be declared unto them. Still, the time is not yet; thou art too green a sapling to bear the weight of such a storm. But to-day wast thou tried and found wanting. He who would serve the gods, O Harmachis, must put aside the failings of the flesh. Taunts must not move him, nor any lusts of man. Thine is a high mission, but this must thou learn. An thou learn it not, thou shalt fall therein; and then, my curse be on thee! and the curse of Egypt, and the curse of Egypt's broken gods! For, know thou this, that even the gods, who are immortal, may, in the interwoven scheme of things, lean upon the man who is their instrument, even as a warrior on his sword. And woe be to the sword that snaps in the hour of battle, for it shall be thrown aside to rust! Therefore, make thou thy heart pure and high and strong; for thine is no common lot, and thine no mortal meed. Triumph, and in glory shalt thou go—in glory here and hereafter! Fail, and woe—woe be on thee!"

He paused and bowed his head, and then went on:

"Of these matters shalt thou hear more hereafter. Meanwhile thou hast much to learn. To-morrow will I give thee letters, and thou shalt pass down the Nile, even past white-walled Memphis to On (Heliopolis), and there shalt thou sojourn certain years and learn more of our ancient wisdom beneath the shadow of that sacred pyramid of which thou, too, art the Hereditary High Priest that is to be. And meanwhile will I sit here and watch, for my hour is not yet, and, by the help of the gods, spin the web wherein thou shalt hold the wasp of Macedonia.

"Come hither, my son; come hither and kiss me on the brow, for thou art all my hope, and all the hope of Egypt. Be but true, rise to the giddy height of thy destiny, and thou shalt be glorious here and hereafter; be false, fail, and I will spit upon thee, and thou shalt be accursed, and thy soul shall remain in bondage till that hour when, in the slow flight of time, the evil shall once more grow to good and Egypt shall again be free."

I drew near trembling, and kissed him on the brow. "May all these things come upon me, and more," I said, "if I fail thee, O my father!"

"Nay," he cried, "not me; but rather those whose will I do. And now go, my son, and ponder in thy heart, and in thy secret heart digest my words; and mark what thou shalt see, and gather up the dew of wisdom, and make thee ready for the battle. Fear not for thyself; thou art protected from all ill. No harm may touch thee from without; thyself alone can be thine own enemy. I have said."

Then I went forth with a full heart. The night was very still, and there was none stirring in the temple courts. I hurried through them, and reached the entrance to the pylon that is at the outer gate. And then, seeking solitude, and, as it were, to draw nigh to Heaven, I climbed the pylon's two hundred steps, until at length I reached the massive roof. Here I leaned my breast against the parapet and looked forth. And as I looked the red edge of the full moon floated up over the Arabian hills, and her rays fell upon the pylon where I stood, and the temple walls beyond, and lit up the visages of the carven gods. Then the cold light struck the wide stretch of well-tilled land, now whitening to the harvest, and as the heavenly lamp of Isis (the moon) passed up the sky, slowly did her rays creep down the valley, where Sihor, father of the land of Khem, rolls on toward the sea.

And now the bright beams kissed the water, that smiled an answer back, and now mountain and valley, river, temple, town and plain were flooded with white light, for Mother Isis was arisen, and threw her gleaming robe across the dark bosom of the earth. Beautiful it was, with the beauty of a perfect dream, and solemn as the hour after death. Mightily, indeed, the temples towered up against the face of night. Never had they seemed so grand to me as upon that night, those ancient shrines, before whose eternal walls Time himself shall wither. And mine it was to be to rule this moonlit land; mine to preserve those sacred shrines and cherish the honor of their gods; mine to cast out the Ptolemy and free Egypt from the foreign yoke! In my veins ran the blood of those great Kings who, sleeping in the tombs of the valley of Tapi (Thebes), await the day of resurrection. My spirit swelled within me as I dreamed upon this glorious destiny. I closed my hands, and there, upon the pylon, I prayed as I had never prayed before to the Godhead, who is called by many names and in many forms made manifest.

"O Amen," I prayed, "God of gods, who hast been from the beginning; Lord of Truth, who art, and of whom all are, who givest out thy Godhead and gatherest it up again, in the circle of whom the divine ones move and are, who was from all time the Self-begot, and who shalt be till all time—hearken unto me.

"O Amen—Osiris, the sacrifice by whom we are justified, Lord of the Region of the Winds, the Ruler of the Ages, the Dweller in the West, the Supreme in Amenti, hearken unto me.

"O Isis, Great Mother Goddess, Mother of the Horun—mysterious Mother, Sister, Spouse, hearken unto me. If indeed I be the chosen of gods to carry out the purpose of the gods, let a sign be given unto me, even now, to seal my life to the life above. Stretch out your arms toward me, O ye gods, and uncover the glory of your countenance. Hear! ah, hear me!" And I cast myself upon my knees and lifted up my eyes to Heaven.

A CLOUD GREW UPON THE FACE OF THE MOON.

And as I knelt a cloud grew upon the face of the moon and covered it up, so that the night became dark, and the silence deepened all around—even the dogs far below in the city ceased to howl, and the silence grew and grew till it was heavy as death. I felt my spirits lifted up within me, and my hair rose upon my head. Then of a sudden the mighty pylon seemed to rock beneath me, a great wind beat about my brows, and a voice spoke within my heart:

"Behold a sign! Possess thyself in patience, O Harmachis!"

And even as the voice spoke a cold hand touched my hand and left somewhat within it. Then the cloud rolled from the face of the moon, and the wind passed, and the pylon ceased to tremble, and the night was as the night had been.

And as the light came back I gazed upon that which had been left within my hand. It was a bud of the holy lotus new breaking into bloom, and therefrom came a most sweet scent.

And as I gazed thereon, behold! the lotus passed from out my grasp and vanished, leaving me astonished.

NOTES FROM THE NORMAL.

The first question put to the new student on his arrival at the Normal, is, "What society are you going to join?"

The Normal Lyceum embraces four strong societies, the Adelphic, Olympic, Crescent, and Atheneum. The membership of each society is limited to sixty members, and care is taken to get members who are hard workers, as a strife for superiority is rife among members of the different societies, and the society that can gain the prize in the oratorical contest, or produce the best talent in the Publics, has the best inducements to offer the new student for joining them, and the rehearsal of their victories of the preceeding year is the persuasive power brought to bear upon the new student whom the members of each society would. By every means, show that their society is the society.

The benefit derived from these societies cannot be overestimated. Besides bringing the students into closer social contact than they could otherwise realize in a school of this kind, it opens to them an excellent opportunity for cultivating literary taste, a thing so often neglected in the preparation for life's duties. Each society holds a meeting, Friday night of each week in their respective rooms. Excellent programs, consisting of music, debates, and all kinds of literary productions are the features of these meetings. About every six weeks the four societies unite in giving an entertainment to the public. These entertainments are known as the "Publics," and the first one of the year at which will be played the "Courtship of Miles Standish," occurs Oct. 24th.

In connection with the Lyceum is the "Normal News," a paper edited and published by the students. Its direct management is in the hands of a business manager, editor-in-chief, and five associate editors, one from each society and one from the "Students Christian Association." It appears monthly is a bright, newsy, well edited sheet; and receives the hearty support of the students.

Announcements of the Normal Lecture Course are out. The first entertainment of the course comes off, Oct. 15th. It will be a concert by the Boston Quintet Club, and a fine musical program is expected.

Among the names of those engaged for the lecture course we notice that of Robert J. Burdette, Rev. F. W. Gunsolus, D.D., the noted pulpit orator of Chicago; Leland Powers, the famous impersonator and character artist; Rev. Wallace Radcliffe, D.D., the gifted pastor of the Fort Street Presbyterian Church of Detroit; Mrs. Mary A. Livermore and Miss Frances E. Willard. It is considered the best lecture course ever offered the students and the terms are within the reach of all.

BEGGS' CHERRY COUGH SYRUP.

The Navassa Island Murders.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 5.—A warrant was issued by Judge Bond of the United States circuit court Friday for the arrest of the negroes concerned in the Navassa island murders. The island being out near the West Indies, United States Marshal Dr. Jos. B. Carnes made return to the warrant that he was powerless to make the arrest, whereupon Judge Bond certified to President Harrison the facts of the case, and they will be laid before the president for his action. The island comes under the jurisdiction of the United States in consequence of its discovery in 1856 by Capt. Peter Duncan, who took the proper action whereby the United States extend its protective power over the island by proclamation. The revision statutes of the United States hold that a murder committed on the island is the same as if committed on a vessel on the high seas.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The chairman of the health committee reported that the nuisance on Temple, McClure & Co's property had not been removed as ordered.

REPORTS OF OFFICERS.

The sexton reported five adult and three infant interments for September, and two lots sold. Accompanying his report was treasurer's receipt for $25.00 interment fees and vault rent. Accepted and ordered placed on file.

The street commissioner presented the following report for August and September:—Team work on street 35 days, team work in cemetery 10 days; corporation team 46½ days; hand work on street 78 days; hand work in cemetery 19½ days; street commissioner 40½ days; polls worked 55 days. Report accepted.

PETITIONS AND APPLICATIONS.

A petition of the G. A. R. to erect a flag staff on the G. A. R. lot in the cemetery, was received and on motion rejected.

NEW BUSINESS.

The following bills were received and referred to the finance committee:—Moreland Bros. & Crane, $19.73; Thomas Elliott, $40.40; A. James, $51.75; E. A. Hodges, $13.00; T. R. Kyle, $5.00; Wm. Hayden, $1.68; Henry Mensing, Ed. Prichard, $27.00; Tec. Coal. & Mfg. Co., $15.77. Accompanying Wm. Mr. Prichard accompanied his bill with a proposition to reduct amount due on his cemetery lot.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

The finance committee reported favorably on the above claims except the bill of Henry Mensing, which was referred back without recommendation. Report accepted and orders directed drawn for the several amounts, except claims of Prichard and Mensing.

Boils and Carbuncles Cured.

For years I have been constantly troubled with humors in the blood, which caused the breaking out of boils and carbuncles all over my body, that when bruised would make a lasting, ugly sore. I consulted many eminent physicians and took a great deal of medicine without any perceptible benefit. Nothing helped my but Swift's Specific (S.S.S.) That medicine cured me! I am now enjoying excellent health, and there is not a blemish of any kind on my body. MICHAEL MCHALE, Rulo, Nebraska.

Inherited Scrofula.

Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) cured my little boy of hereditary scrofula, which broke out all over his face. For a year he had suffered, and I had given up all hopes of his recovery, when at length I was induced to use S. S. S. After using a few bottles he was entirely cured. Not a symptom now remains of the disease. This was three years ago.

Mrs. T. L. MATHERS, Matherville, Miss.

A Sexton Speaks.

Mr. John A. Cleary, sexton of Oakwood Cemetry Waco, Texas, says: "Swift's Specific (S.S.S.) is a sure cure for any discription of blood poison! About a year ago I contracted a poisonous blood disease, and tried a number of remedies without avail. I was about to become disheartened, when a friend induced me to try (S. S. S.) After taking a part of one bottle I was a sound man, and no symptoms of the fell disease have ever returned."

HOLLOWAY HASH.

Holloway is a lively little berg considering its size. At present it is quite interested in music. Prof. Clark of Wall Lake, who has sung with Theodore Thomas, is holding an excellent singing school at the Doty school house, the first school starting off with over fifty scholars.

The day school is also prospering finally under the care and tuition of Charles Chase of Raisin. He has not been chased out of possession yet, and according to all accounts is likely to remain master of the situation.

It appears to be Up Hill work for Fred Laberdie when he has courtship under consideration. He will have to drill his team to stay where he ties them, instead of breaking loose and going their own way as soon as he is lost to view, and leaving smashed up vehicles to mark the spot of his retreat, or he will find himself left in more ways than one.

Mr. Kaiser of Adrian, shipped a car load of barley to Detroit from this station last week.

E. G. Wilson & Co., are shipping apples from Holloway. Having sent one lot to Canistota, N. Y., and another to North Collins, they are now filling an order to Tonawanda of the same state.

Mr. Henry Carlton and wife enjoyed a pleasant visit in Ohio.

The sick patient at A. D. Macham's is improving, thanks to Dr. Waldron and a host of attendants; yet he has taken medicine enough and had physicians "enough to kill a horse."

The two Nimrods—A. H. Kelley and L. B. Spencer—are contemplating a visit to the north woods; in short are going on a bear hunting expedition in about ten days. Here's hoping they will be as successful as last year.

It may not be Wright, yet it seems highly proper not to Hold corn on the ridge that belongs elsewhere, especially as it is not green but fully ripe. Although it meets Green corn halfway, that is only changing locations with itself.

Friday afternoon about 2 o'clock, fire broke out in several places on the roof of Hause Brothers' cider mill. Had the mill burned the loss would have been felt by the town and country as well as the enterprising owners.

FRANKLIN FACTS.

The death of aunt Rhoda Stout, one of the pioneers of Franklin occured at her home on Monday.

Mrs. James Allen is no better. The wee mite of a girl has gained but a few ounces in weight since her birth.

Mrs. Julia Knight has returned from her visit to her daughter's near Chesaning.

Mr. Luce's people have moved into their new house.

Mrs. Wm. Witherell is in Tecumseh this week assisting her mother, Mrs. Bronson Knapp, in moving into their new house.

Mr. and Mrs. Rossiter of Oberlin, O. are guests of Mrs. Ed. Wisner. Mr. R. is an artist and a hay fever patient; the combination may not be an agreable one to the gentleman, but from his annual peregrinations to Mackinac—that Mecca of the hay-feverite—he has brought many fine views of the scenery of that interesting island. Some transparencies which he now has with him, are real gems of Art; of these two are especially beautiful; one representing arched rock, the other sugar loaf. Mrs. Wisner has had asthma more or less—generally more—every since her return home, and the improvement is slight.

The meeting of the Tecumseh and Franklin Farmers' Club at William Waldron's was largely attended and the discussion about the Patrons of Industry very interesting and instructive.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, OCT. 24

A new commissioner of pensions has at last been appointed, but the irrepressible Tanner keeps on writing confidential letters just the same.

Boston failed to win the pennant, but she can console herself with the reflection that 96,000 cans of beans were packed this season at the Dighton factory.

The Republican attempt to steal Montana is not likely to succeed. They know how to organize vigilance committees, in cases of emergency, in the new states.

President Harrison, it is said, is thoroughly disgusted at the result of the Indianapolis election. Wait till he hears from New York, New Jersey and Ohio in November.

Monday, Oct. 7th, was the day set by the Adventists for the end of the world. They are greatly disappointed that Providence concluded to disregard their wishes and to run this world a while longer.

The attempt to explain away the result of the Indianapolis election on the plea of a "light vote" is futile. The vote was much larger than at the last city election. The actual Democratic gain was 2,565 votes.

President Harrison is making a determined effort to clean the rats out of the White House. May he accomplish the good work, and then let him turn his attention to cleaning the rats out of the treasury department.

The undertakers of St. Louis offer "sixty per cent. off on coffins." This is a rascally effort to gobble a big slice of Chicago's population. St. Louis is bound to be ahead of Chicago when the next census is taken.

The old saying is a true saying: "The flag follows trade, not trade the flag." We cannot coax trade to our ports in subsidized ships as long as we impose an average fine of 47 per cent. upon imports.—Philadelphia Record.

Is Tanner a bigger man than Noble? Is Noble a bigger man than Tanner? Is Dalzell a bigger man than President Harrison? These are momentous political questions that are shaking the country from center to circumference.

The Tanner-Noble snarl thickens. Secretary Noble published a lengthy letter last week attacking the Corporal and now Tanner issues a card in which he "frees his mind" about the Secretary. Go it, Tanner; go it Noble. The more this miserable business is ventilated, the better it will be for tax payers.

The political fight down in Virginia has disclosed the fact that a red-hot thick-and-thin democrat has actually been appointed by the administration to an important post office in the state. The slip seemed unaccountable until it became known that the appointee has been for several years a liberal customer of Wanamaker's store.

President Elliot, of Harvard University, has come out flat-footed in favor of the Democratic state ticket. We commend his speech, which appears in another column, to the conservative republicans in this vicinity who were humbugged into voting for President Harrison last fall on the plea of reform.

Twenty removals of Presidential postmasters a week, for political reasons alone, is a beautiful record for a President who said in his letter of acceptance that "fitness and not party service should be the essential and discriminating test" in making appointments, and that "only the interests of the public service should suggest removals from office."—N. Y. World.

Secretary Windom is so stupid a blunderer that his mistakes are almost crimes. The other day he made public an anonymous letter stating that a contribution of $5,000 to the Conscience fund of the treasury department during Mr. Manning's time had not been acknowledged, and insinuating that it had been appropriated by the ex Secretary. According to the Secretary's statement now, this is all a mistake, and it was properly credited to that fund. The phrase, "a live ass and a dead lion," describes Mr. Windom and ex-Secretary Manning exactly.—N. Y. Star.

WHY PRESIDENT ELIOT IS A DEMOCRAT.

President Eliot of Harvard College made the following speech at a meeting of the Bay State Club in Boston last Saturday:

"Mr. President and Gentlemen: As President of Harvard College I find myself in a position in this campaign of singular impartiality. The presidents of both the political conventions in this State, the gentlemen who wrote both the platforms for the parties, and the gentlemen who head both the tickets of the parties are graduates of Harvard College. I have heard a good deal about the dire results to Harvard College if its President joins the Democratic party. I am glad to say that the benefactors of Harvard College belong to both parties and every phase of religion. Moreover, the gradates of Harvard College highly respect any man who forms his opinion intelligently, expresses that opinion with moderation, and has the courage of his convictions. Indeed, if I were called upon to indicate those qualities which the graduates of Harvard College generally condemn in public men, I should say they lack candor in dealing with political creeds. These qualities the graduates of Harvard College condemn, whether they observe them in their own comrades or in others.

"But, gentlemen, I will present a case to you of more interest. I am an independent in politics, and I believe what you, as practical politicians, desire to know is, how to convert a few thousand voters from the Republican to the Democratic party, and that is just what has been effected in my own case. I say I am an independent in politics in a sense. In the first place, there may be 2,000,000 Americans who have, or expect to have, public employment, but there are 58,000,000 who know that if they wanted public employment they could not get it. I belong to those 58,000,000. I am independent in another respect. I will remain in a party no longer than it stands for the principles I believe in. Now, the Republican party has a great past. It was formed for the carrying out of a great moral idea, and it did carry it forward to triumph. But it fell from its high estate, and when I found that it no longer stood for the principles I believed in, I felt myself obliged to join the opposite party. I believe that we should all choose between the two great parties of the country, and that the man who hangs between the two, now with one now with another, is politically without convictions. But I think my experience may be a help to you in converting a few thousand Republicans to the Democratic party. Let me tell you what public questions I had in mind when I joined the Democratic party. They are all national issues. In the first place, I believe that in principle I was first a Whig, and then a Republican, and almost a protectionist. I came to believe that the protective policy was a false one. I came to believe that the protective duties, so called, protected capital, but not labor, and that even this protection to capital was undesirable in the long run. Now between the Republican policy, as regards taxes, and the Democratic policy, the issues are sharply divided, and any man who holds to my opinions on those issues must join the Democratic party.

"I believe that the reform of the civil service is of vital interest to this country, and that no government can endure the public shame of a corruption fund derived from the salaries of the servants of the Government. Now, on that issue, what is the record of the Republican party as compared with the record of the Democratic party? Have we not seen the public service degenerating more and more, and in these last series of years worse than all? Have we not seen the Democratic administration of the public service the best we have ever had? No intelligent man will believe in relying upon the professions of a party when its public acts betray them. We must rely upon the public acts of the men in the party. Is there no difference between the administration of Grover Cleveland and of Benjamin Harrison on this issue? And I have another reason to give, which is peculiar to myself. I have not heard it spoken of by any public men, nor have I seen it mentioned in the newspapers. I am a firm believer in the justness and expediency of a pension system. I believe in pensioning, not only the soldiers and sailors who have served their country in the army and navy, but in pensioning all public servants who deserve well of the country, and I hold it to be a hideous wrong inflicted upon the public, that the pension system, instituted for the soldiers and sailors who served their country on the field of battle, has been prostituted to the worst purposes. You cannot tell now whether a pensioner was a brave man or a cowardly deserter. You cannot tell whether he received an honorable wound or contracted catarrh twenty years after the war was ended. You cannot tell whether he is a pauper who has foisted himself upon the nation. It is a crime against the country, and it is a Republican administration that has brought it to this condition. What administration has striven to stem this tide of pauperism that has tended to degrade the service of the country? It was Grover Cleveland's. I would do everything in my power to get a chance again to vote for Grover Cleveland for President of the United States, because he did what he could to restore the pension system to an honorable standing. But these are national issues, and we are asked what they have to do with the State campaign. I think it a very foolish question. It gave an excellent opportunity for such debates as our candidate conducted a year ago, and which he is about to conduct again in the interests of the commonwealth.

"I have one thing to regret as President of Harvard College at the opening of this campaign. It is that a graduate of Harvard College should have declined a public encounter, and I was somewhat astonished at the reason given for this refusal. It was stated that this custom of holding joint debates was a Southern practice and that on this account it must seem to the people of Massachusetts undesirable. It was a practice in the Southern States, it is true, and it was a manly practice. But I should think the Republican managers might have remembered the greatest debate that ever occurred in this country—the debate between Lincoln and Douglas—and I could have wished that the representatives of the Republicans could have considered the example of Abraham Lincoln good enough for them." At the conclusion of President Eliot's remarks the assemblage arose and gave the orator three cheers and a tiger.

BALLOT REFORM IN CONNECTICUT.

The new ballot law in Connecticut, which had its first test on Monday, proved a decided success, but in one instance, at least, it succeeded in a way not anticipated by the Republican Legislature that passed it.

Norwich is a great manufacturing town, and the mill owners have had things their own way there. If a mill hand voted the Democratic ticket he ran the risk of being discharged. It was no uncommon spectacle in days past to see a squad of thirty or forty operatives marshalled to the polls by an overseer, whose business it was to see that the men voted "right," or, in other words the way their employers desired.

The new law provides for substantially the Australian plan of voting, The voters enter a small booth alone, and prepare their ballots. This heads off the bulldozer and the briber alike.

The result is interesting. The town of Norwich went Democratic for the first time since the Republican party was organized. The ticket went thro' by an average majority of 330, some of the candidates winning by 500. This is ballot reform to some purpose, and throws a flood of light on Republican professions of their love for free institutions.—Louisville Courier Journal.

CATARRH.

Catarrhal Deafness, Hay Fever—A New Home Treatment.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membranes of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic researches, however, has proven this to be a fact, and result is that a simple remedy has been formulated, whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are permanently cured in from one to the applications made at home by the patient once in two weeks. N. B.—For catarrhal discharges peculiar to females (whites) this remedy is a specific. A pamphlet of this new treatment is sent on receipt of ten cents by A. H. Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." "I was caught in a python's folds and saw fierce eyes glaring down into mine. If that tremendous coil were tightened around me, I knew that I might at once check my luggage for the undiscovered bourne. In this crisis of my late I saw the great python's tail in close proximity to his mouth. I grasped the snake's tail and pushed a yard or two down his yawning jaws. Serpents seldom bite their prey; they lubricate it and suck it down. With such a long and cold-blooded creature, I calculated that it would take over a half a minute before the sensations of his tail could be conveyed to his head, and render him aware that he was committing suicide."

GIGANTIC COMBINE.

The Barbed Wire Bosses Developing a Trust.

GETTING A TWIST ON THE GRANGER

One Fourth of the Mills Put Up a Job on the Other Three Fourths—Washburn Pledges His Assistance and the Outsiders Are in the Broth—A Powerful Consolidation of Interests If There Is No Mistake—Alleged Details.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—The Herald says that although nothing has been made public concerning it, a meeting of the barbed wire manufacturers is said to have been in session in this city for several days, and one of the most gigantic trusts ever organized in this country is about to be formed, if, indeed, its organization is not already complete. Eleven of the forty-two mills engaged in barbing wire, The Herald says, have entered into a combine and have agreed to sell no wire or wire goods to the thirty-one mills not admitted.

Washburn Gives His Pledge.

Washburn, of the Washburn & Moen company, of Worcester, Mass, who owns all the barbed wire patents that are of any practical value, has pledged himself not to issue to any one outside of the combine any license for the use of his patents. For this pledge the trust has agreed to bear all the expense of defending Washburn's patents in any suits that may be brought to contest his right to them.

Five Rod Mills in the Combine.

The business of the trust has been divided so as to secure the greatest possible production. There are in the United States but five mills that manufacture the rods from which all kinds of wire are drawn. With these five mills Washburn has gone into combination, and has taken into the pool besides all the pullers and drawers of wire and nail manufacturers. Until other bar mills are built—and it requires a vast amount of capital and considerable time to complete one—the mills outside the trust will not be able to continue business.

The Price Already Advanced.

The price of barbed wire has already been advanced $8 a ton, and wire nails have gone up from 35 to 40 cents a keg. On all other kinds of wire there has been a proportionate advance. The farmers will be affected by the organization of this trust more than any one else, barbed or fencing wire being more extensively used than any other kind. It also fills in what little gap was left them by the twine trust, and may be the means of forcing harvesting back to the stage from which twine binders removed it. Thousands of acres will remain unfenced on account of the rise in wire which this trust brings about.

The Mills in Joliet.

It is said that the Ashley Wire company, of Joliet, will have to close as soon as its contract for prison labor runs out. Some of the barbing mills have closed already, and their men are employed by the new syndicate. There will be three mills for barbing wire in Joliet, the Enterprise Manufacturing company, Lambert, Bishop & Co., and the Bakers. There will also be one mill at St. Louis. Some of the mills will be confined to the manufacture of barbed wire, some to merchant wire, others to making wire nails, and so on through the list.

Control of the Patents.

Washburn, Moen & Co., are about the oldest wire manufacturers in the United States. When barbed wire was first introduced Washburn began to secure control of its manufacture by purchasing patents. He bought all the fundamental oness, and owns the greater part of the 100 or more that have followed. The machinery for barbing wire, of which he has control also, is made at great expense. It would be impossible to devise a machine of the kind needed that his patents would not cover. The most valuable patents for barbing are known as the Keely and the Gladden. The Keely patent was purchased by Stiles & Calkins, of this city, and the Gladden by Elwood, from whom it passed to Washburn.

The rods from which wire is drawn can be manufactured in this country, it is claimed, $3 cheaper than in either England or Germany, and besides there is a duty of $13.30 a ton on all wire rods imported into this country.

The Herald states that its information comes from one of the oldest wire manufacturers who was not let into the combination.

FIRE LOSS AT VIRGINIA, ILLS.

A Whole Block Nearly Totally Destroyed, with a Loss of $30,000.

VIRGINIA, Ills., Oct. 18.—The fire which visited this city Wednesday night, and which had everything its own way for about two hours, destroyed the whole block west of the square, which with the exception of eight badly damaged store rooms, is a mass of ruins. The following is a list of the losses: S. H. Petefisk, buildings, $5,000; Matt Yaple, buildings, $4,000; Helper & Co., on stock, $5,000; Gardner & Bush, on stock, $1,000; Hagena, Epler & Co., agricultural implements, $1,000; W. W. Bishop, harness, $1,200; Co-Operative association, dry goods and groceries, $1,000; William Watkins & Son, livery, $2,000; Frank Schultz, residence, etc., $1,000; Dodo Stuot, livery, $1,000; W. P. Brobst, tinner, $2,200; M. Boyer, restaurant, $500; H. H. Crone and W. J. Turner, buildings, $800 each; Magel & Hillez, boots and shoes, $500.

Costly Card-Playing.

The fire started in Mr. Stuot's barn. Several hoodlums have been making this place a resort for card playing and beer drinking unknown to the proprietor, and it is thought that a lighted match or cigar thrown flown by one of them started the blaze, which did damage amounting in all to about $30,000. Nearly all the losers were insured.

The Situation in Montana.

HELENA, Oct. 17.—The count of votes in all the counties is completed, and it is probable that there will be no other contest besides the one in Silver Bow county. As the legislature now stands, counting the Silver Bow delegation as returned by the judges of election, the Democrats have a majority in the legislature on joint ballot of three with one seat a tie. Should the action of the canvassing board in throwing out the Tunnel precinct be upheld by the courts the Republicans will gain four members of the Silver Bow delegation and have a majority on joint ballot of five.

Brutal and Cowardly Murder.

KENOSHA, Wis., Oct. 19.—Eugene L. Sullivan, a young man employed on the farm of George A. Shields, in this county, was brutally murdered yesterday morning, by William Gates, a fellow employe, who feared Sullivan would get his place on the farm. Gates approached his victim from behind while the latter was milking a cow, and with a large butcher-knife cut Sullivan's throat from ear to ear. The murderer was brought to this city for safe keeping.

A Sound Legal Opinion.

E. Bainbridge Munday Esq., County Atty., Clay Co., Tex. says: "Have used Electric Bitters with most happy results. My brother also was very low with Malarial Fever and Jaundice, but was cured by timely use of this medicine. Am satisfied Electric Bitters saved his life."

Mr. D. I. Wilcoxson, of Horse Cave, Ky., adds a like testimony, saying: He positively believes he would have died, had it not been for Electric Bitters.

This great remedy will ward off, as well as cure Malarial Diseases, and for all Kidney, Liver and Stomach Disorders stands unequaled. Price 50c. and $1. at

The Episcopal Convention.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—In the house of deputies of the Episcopal convention yesterday the committee to whom was referred the proposition to divide the dioceses of Michigan and Nebraska, reported unfavorably and were discharged. The house next refused to recede from its rejection of resolution 8 of the prayer book revision, which provides for the recitation of the litany at morning prayer on Sundays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and every day in in Lent. The proposition to give clergymen an appeal outside of their dioceses was rejected—164 to 19. Another proposition for an appellate court in each diocese was under discussion when the convention adjourned to participate in memorial exercises in honor of Bishop Vail.

Republicans Claiming Montana.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 14.—Col. Seligman, chairman of the Republican central committee, claims that the Republicans certainly have the legislature, either by one or three majority. The official returns from Beaver Head county elect James P. Bennett (Rep.) to the lower house, and Henry Blair (Rep.) is awarded a seat from Deer Lodge by a majority of four. Both these seats have heretofore been counted for the Democrats. There are alleged irregularities in Silver Bow county which the Republicans are taking advantage of, and if the decision is as they expect it to be, two more Democrats will lose their seats.

The Episcopal Convention.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The question of revision of the prayer book was again the bone of contention in the Episcopal general convention Saturday. One party favors continuing the revision, while the other wants to stop. A minority report in opposition to further revision was read Saturday, and then a long discussion took place, but no action was taken. Dr. Leonard was consecrated a bishop at St. Thomas church Saturday morning with the impressive ritual of the church, Bishop Williams, the presiding bishop, being the consecrator.

A Deadlock Broken.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 12.—The contest at Wayland for the Republican nomination for senator was ended Friday evening by the selection of John S. Woolson, the present senator. Ten hundred and forty ballots had been taken without result, and then Washington county moved to nominate the candidate of Henry county by acclamation, which was done amid great enthusiasm.

Blood vs. Nerves.

Great mistakes have been made in the world, by supposing many nervous troubles were due to bad blood. Thus headache, fits, dizziness, sleeplessness, etc., are always due to weakness or irritation of the nerves of the brain: dyspepsia, pain, wind, etc. to weakness of the nerves of the stomach: weak lungs is caused by weakness of the parts: billiousness, constipation, etc. to weakness of the nerves of the liver or bowels: pains, irregularity, sterility to derangement of the uterine nerves. For all weakness, Dr. Miles' great nerve and brain food surpasses all other remedies. Trial bottle free at Baker & Hall's Drug Store.

The Indianapolis Election.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 10.—Tuesday's election here resulted in returning fifteen Democrats to the council out of twenty-five, and five members of the board of aldermen of the same party. They also elected the mayor and city clerk, the mayor, Sullivan, by 1,795 majority. There was a very small Prohibition vote. Among the councilmen elected was Sim Coy.

The Woman's Congress at Denver.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 11.—The woman's congress yesterday elected Julia Ward Howe, president; Isabelle Howland, of New York, secretary; Henrietta Wolcott, of Massachusetts, treasurer; Sophia Hoffman, of New York, and Charlotte Pierce, of Pennsylvania, auditors. Vice presidents were chosen from all the states.

Barnum Sails for England.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Among the saloon passengers on the steamship Etruria, which sailed for Liverpool Saturday, were P. T. Barnum, Mrs. Barnum, and their grandson and probable successor to Mr. Barnum, C. Barnum Seeley.

Dropped Dead.

Physiologists estimate that the heart does 5,000,000 pounds of work each day. No wonder people drop dead with worn out hearts. This could be prevented by Dr. Miles' new and great discovery, the New Cure. Always commence when you first begin to get short of breath, have weak, faint or smothering spells, pain or tenderness in side, etc. Sold at Baker & Hall's.

The City of New York Afloat.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The steamship City of New York was floated off at 10:35 Saturday night, and was at her dock yesterday morning. A diver reports no damage to her bottom.

Admiral Porter Much Better.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 14.—Admiral Porter is much better. He was able to eat breakfast with his family Saturday. He proposes to return to Washington Thursday.

LONG LIFE.

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we recive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease preventer that has yet been discovered, is simered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names and guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them.

They do not know, of course, unless they have courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why dont you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but one dollar for a very large bottle. Try it at once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggists may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine—of health.

Free from alcohol and opium; composed of expensive herbs and roots, with a fine, delicate flavoring.

DR. RANSOM'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

FROM THE PACIFIC COAST.

LOS GATOS, Santa Clara Co. Cal., September, 2d. 1889.

It is time I signified how I am and how I like California. This village is beautiful beyond description.

No obstructing hills or fragments of mountains. The plains are beautifully spread out from the foot hills, northward. The land west of the village is set with fruit which has a fair show of the best results. The M. E., Baptist and Presbyterian have churches—the latter the largest and best appointed. Ample schools of good conduct; many grocers, and other stores, including one clothing store. It is said that business is diverted to San Jose, 10 miles distant. The R. R. to Santa Cruz enters the mountains southward by a gulch. They dug way along the hills to "Cosey Nook," also begins its 6 miles upward progress. Its grade is mostly up, up, to a point 600 feet above the "nook," then down by a winding descent to a bottom of about one acre where the house is built on the edge of a precipice about 100 feet high. The climate is healthy and I am bathing luxuriously therein.

Relative to my trip: I left Adrian 10:00 P. M., entered Chicago next morning, 20th of Aug. and left at 5 P. M. Crossed the Father of Waters and his great tributary at night, 21st. of Aug. Came to Denver at 11 A. M. and left at 5 P. M., and soon began the ascent of the Colorado Mountains and Aug. 23d we opened our eyes on their majesty. True to record, they held their heads up to the clouds, or where the clouds will be when they come, but they neither smiled, uncovered, bowed or flourished a hand. We passed a number of miles through a celebrated canyon, walled up, each side perpendicular 50 feet. A special car was provided, minus a roof, that curious passengers might be able to look at the sublimity of these buildings of Him "who spoke and it was done, commanded and it stood forth." The canyon is ended, the little streamlet whose bank had furnished a fair grade has run out and the heights must be overcome by skilled engineering. The track goes on the side of the mountain to the right, then to the left. Three times it crosses to the right, recrossing the same tract of the mountain side, but our starting point far, how far beneath. Reaching the crest we descend in the same gyrating way, finally reaching the great Western plain at 7 A. M. Sept. 24th, we reached Salt Lake City. Stopped a few moments and traded with the children who offered milk in pint cans for 10cts. and a cup of coffee for 5cts. I took the coffee and offered my only change, pennies. The boy refused them, saying "Them don't go here," so I returned the coffee. On to Ogden, arriving Saturday A. M. at 11 o'clock. Reached San Francisco at 10 A. M. Monday. Crossed the bay on a ferryship and rode a mile or two on the Pacific. Took the train for Los Gatos and got there at 5 P. M. Lodged with a friend of W. F's and on Tuesday 27, lodged at "Cosey Nook."

Cosey Nook is a plateau surrounded on all sides, except the west, by a ridge at least 1 mile in circuit and 800 feet high—its shape like a horse shoe. A gulch at the west side drops down 100 feet or more and opens into a succession of gulches to a depth of 500 or 600 feet. This is the open door for summer breezes and winter blasts. It is also the avenue for alternate mists, diffusing moisture on trees and plants and obscuring the light with a dense fog. On Monday from daylight to late P. M one of these Ocean visitants put in its murky gloom. It is a cooler to panting animals, lowering the caloric in humble tenement. As an idle spectator I contemplate these mountain scenes with humility and reverential awe. The origin of these mountains, including the Coloradoes, are wonders past finding out by human science or philosophy. To admit the theory of explosion caused by long pent up internal fires, and that these lofty and irregular piles, rose from the waters, that still spread over the surface, where they now stand is as philosophical as gulping down the fabled "Atlantis." Neither could have been done by finite agency. Both involve the wisdom, the power, the Almightiness of God, "who hung the earth on nothing, and spread the nothing over the empty place."

Our prunes are harvested and sold, except a few gleanings. The prunes are put through a process by dipping in boiling lye, then rinsed in pails of water. They are dried by spreading on shallow boxes made for the purpose. They are then exposed to the sun on an open plat of ground. Having been passed through a coarse sieve called a "grader" and numbered 1, 2 and 3, according to size. Some houses refused to buy after Sept. 28th, being apprehensive of rain, which though not certain before November may possibly come sooner.

The heat of the sun seems a little modified at this time. The stars all shine their best at night, reminding me of Abraham's call while he lived in the "original Palestine," their countless number as a sample of his innumerable descendants. They seem so attentive to our "Cosey Nook." All take a peep while passing over in their "mystic dance." The moon has renewed her circuit, on her mission of borrowed light, to bless the "nations who sit in darkness." The rising sun drops a golden band around the high walls of this little sample "Paradise" enrapturing to behold.

A PROHIBITION INSTITUTE.

Held at Macon Grange Hall Thursday, Oct. 10—A Large and Interesting Gathering.

We condense the following account of the Macon Institute from the report of the Lance. Thursday is our busy day and for that reason we found it impossible to attend the meeting in person.

The meeting opened at 10:30 o'clock a.m., and was called to order by C. E. Mitchell. A welcome song by the Macon choir and prayer by Rev. E. W. Borden followed. John W. Baker, president of the club, bade the visitors a hearty welcome, and Samuel Young, of Ogden, responded.

C. E. Mitchell opened the day's discussion by talking in a very instructive manner of the "Nature and history of political parties." He showed that in a government of this kind a political party was organized to serve a purpose, and during 100 years of this nation's existence there had been five different political parties in power, showing a change about every generation. C. Quick, Capt. A. P. Coddington, and Dr. D. W. Loree, followed with short talks on the subject.

"The Light is Breaking," was sung by Isaiah Hendershot in a manner that brought out liberal applause. A recess was then taken for dinner.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Macon choir opened the afternoon session by singing "Bringing in the Sheaves," Rev. J. A. Lowry led in an able and impressive prayer, and the choir sang 'Fling out the Banner.'

Rev. A. H. Whittaker, who had prepared a paper on "High License vs. Prohibition," was absent, and Rev. H. Churchill read his able paper in an impressive manner. The discussion was engaged in by G. P. Waring, Rev. Yager, Dr. D. W. Loree, Mrs. N. M. Sutton and Benjamin Wilson. On motion with the consent of the author, it was requested to be published in the Voice, the Lance, and the TECUMSEH HERALD.

The Ogden Prohibition quartette rendered a selection in a splendid manner, after which Mrs. Geo. M. Knight won hearty applause by her excellent rendition of "Fritz."

"Can a man vote either old party ticket and not vote for license?" was the topic discussed by Thos. Measures, of Ogden. Rev. Yager and others discussed the question and no one was misinformed as to the proper position of the man who votes an old party ticket.

"Why I am a Prohibitionist?" was answered by Rev. H. Churchill in a most impressive and earnest manner, followed by an excellently rendered recitation, "Am I my Brother's Keeper?" by Mrs. Geo. M. Knight. Another song by the Ogden Prohibition quartette closed the afternoon meeting.

A bountiful supper was then served in the lower hall.

EVENING SESSION.

The meeting in the evening was a rouser. The hall was literally packed and a large number of people had to leave, unable to gain admission. The session was opened with a finely rendered anthem by the Ridgeway choir, followed by an earnest prayer by Mrs. Mary C. Wood, of Tecumseh. Another anthem by the Ridgeway choir brought hearty applause, and a paper on the "Labor Question" was read by D. W. Grandon. Miss Belle Barlow beautifully rendered a solo, entitled "If I were a voice," and was heartily encored.

The questions presented for a question box were passed out among various persons in the audience and the answers brought out short but pointed speeches which were well received and made a good impression. "Why am I a Prohibitionist?" was taken up for general discussion and Wm. Smith, C. Quick, Albert Eaton, G. P. Waring, Mrs. Pennington, Amzi Chase and others gave reasons which were appreciated by the audience, judging by their liberal applause.

After a vote of thanks to those who furnished the music, and to Macon club for its excellent and liberal entertainment, the meeting adjourned.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

Having purchased the furniture and fixtures in Chas Keyser's tonsorial rooms, we have moved our shop to the rooms formerly occupied by him on South Chicago street, where we shall continue to conduct the barber business in all its branches, and also run the bath rooms in connection therewith. I. O. O. F. MEMORIAL DAY.

In obedience to a proclamation of the Grand Master of the Odd Fellows of Michigan, Tecumseh Lodge, No. 14, made arrangements to properly observe the "Memorial Day" of the order. The members of neighboring lodges were invited to participate and in response to this invitation, good delegations were present from both Adrian and Manchester Lodges. Past Grand Master C. W. Hunt, who now resides in Cleveland, Ohio, formerly a member of Adrian Lodge, came all the way from his present home to attend the exercises, and was the guest of his old personal friend, Thos. Cummins, over the Sabbath.

The members of Tecumseh Lodge and the visiting bretheern assembled at the Lodge Room at two o'clock P. M. and shortly before three, clad in appropriate regalia, they marched in a body to the Universalist church, where the services were held. Rev. J. M. Getchell, the pastor, who is himself a member of Tecumseh Lodge, had charge of the exercises.

The program was opened with scripture reading by Rev. W. H. Babbitt, followed by prayer by Rev. Getchell. The opening Ode from the Lodge Ritual was sung by the choir and the brethern present.

Rev. Getchell made brief introductory remarks and S. C. Stacy followed with a short address. His remarks touched upon the character and objects of Memorial Day, closing with a word of greeting and welcome to the members of other Lodges who had honored the occasion with their presence.

Past Grand Master Hunt then gave a very interesting talk, consisting mostly of reminiscences of the former Past Grand Masters of the State Grand Lodge. Although over eighty years of age, his voice was clear and full, and his address commanded the closest attention throughout.

Under the head of Good of the Order, impromptu speeches were then called for. Bro. Channing Whitney of Adrian, responded in a few very entertaining remarks, in which he exemplified the characteristics of a true Odd Fellow. Mr. Whitney has a very easy, happy style of address and his speech, although entirely extempore, made an excellent impression. Bro. D. D. Sinclair of Adrian also spoke a few words for the Good of the Order.

The closing Ode was sung, and then Past Grand Master Hunt stepped upon the choir platform, seated himself at the organ and sang a parting song. It was beautifully rendered and completely melted the hearts of the audience.

The benediction was pronounced, and the bretheren marched back to the Lodge Room. The entire program was a beautiful and impressive one, which possessed interest for outsiders as well as members of the order.

Noble Grand C. E. Williamson and the other officers of Tecumseh Lodge are entitled to much credit for the successful manner in which the exercises were arranged and carried out.

HIGH SCHOOL HAPPENINGS.

The officers elected for the High School Lyceum are as follows:

Pres.—Don Bowen.
Vice Pres.—Viva Howell.
Sec.—Robert Hicks.
Cor. Sec.—Agnes Woodward.

The pupils contributed quite liberally to the flag fund, and we are now preparing for appropriate exercises to be held on the afternoon we hoist the flag.

A few of the pupils who have been absent on account of sickness have returned; but many are yet unable to be with us.

Marvin Hayden returned from a visit to Kansas Wednesday, and is again in school. R. F. H.

TECUMSEH AND FRANKLIN FARMERS' CLUB

At the home of W. J. Waldron, Oct. 16, an interested assembly listened to the discussion of the question, "Would it be advisable for the members of the Farmer's Club to become Patrons of Industry?" It was resolved that it would be well to form a branch of the Patrons in Tecumseh.

The annual election of officers is to be held in two weeks at C. A. Matthew's. Program.

A THRIVING INDUSTRY.

The Tecumseh Rack Co. report business good, and are selling a good many racks this fall. They are talking of starting another factory in the spring, but have not yet determined where to locate it.

This company organized in April, '89, and manufactured and sold 300 of their racks in the first three months in six counties in the southern part of this state. They inform us that they will branch out next season into Ohio and Indiana, and with the start they have expect to do a large business. Mr. Caldwell, the patentee, will have full charge of the manufacture, and will employ a large force of men next season. They are selling state and county rights, and B. J. Garlinghouse will start out next week in the interest of the company for that purpose. Everyone who has used these racks, say they are the most practical rack in use, and deserving of the sale they are having.

OBITUARY.

John Ed. McCollum was born on the 13th day of April, 1841, in the State of New York. At an early age his parents moved to Clinton, in this county, and nearly his whole life thereafter was spent in that village. As he grew to manhood he developed fine business talents, and for several years he was numbered among the leading business men of Clinton. He also held several township offices, the duties of which he performed with promptness and fidelity.

The deceased was one of the brightest pupils at the opening of the Union school in 1860 by Prof. O. C. Williams. He was a thorough student, possessing a retentive memory, and carried off the palm in history. The studious habits acquired in school, shaped, to a great extent, his after life He was always courteous and dignified in his bearing, and made many warm personal friends while at school and in business circles during the active life of manhood.

Four years ago he was the presiding officer at the re-union of the Clinton School Alumni under Dr. Williams, and he is the sixth one present at that reunion who has passed beyond the river since that time. On the 20th of November, 1877, he was united in marriage to Miss Carrie Bell, and their home was in Clinton until March, 1887, when he sold out his clothing business there and moved to Ionia. In August, of the same year he went to Dakota, but misfortune followed him to his western home, as his store was burned, and he lost all his earthly possessions. In March 1888 he returned to Chicago, where his natural business talents soon found him employment, but still fortune frowned upon him. Last spring his mother, who went to pay him a visit, was taken ill and passed away. Mr. McCollum himself was afterward stricken with typhoid fever and passed through a lengthy siege with that dread disease. On the 9th of September last, he came to John Heesen's—his brother in-law—in this village, hoping that the rest and change might fully restore him. For a time he seemed to gain, but dropsy of the heart finally set in, and under this last attack he rapidly failed, until Sunday morning, October 13, when his spirit left its frail tenement of clay and sped its way to a home beyond the river.

The funeral services were held at Mr. Heesen's residence on Tuesday afternoon, October 15th, and were attended by a large concourse of friends from both Tecumseh and Clinton. The remains were conveyed to Clinton, where the interment took place in the village cemetery.

The deceased leaves two sisters and one brother in Dakota. Also a wife, whose home is at present with Mr. John Heesen. The heartfelt sympathy of a host of friends is extended to the widow in this, the greatest affliction of her life.

If John Ed had remained in Clinton how different the present might have been. He sought to better his temporal affairs, and misfortune's fatal footstep seemed to haunt him. Verily, no one knoweth what a few months may bring forth. A man who possessed the talents and tact for a brilliant business career, has been cut down in his prime, but he has gone to a land where sorrow and suffering are unknown.

The prosperity of a town is not guaged by the wealth of its inhabitants, but by the uniformity with which they pull together when any important undertaking is to be accomplished. A man with a thousand dollars at his command and a love for his town in his heart, can do more for the building up and improving it than the millionaire who locks up his capital and snaps his fingers at home progress.—Jackson Citizen.

Garrett Aten, of Macon, has been in poor health for a long time and his mind is somewhat effected. He was about 50 years of age, and has always lived in Macon.

Great foresight was shown by Demorest's Family magazine in publishing, ten years ago, when an International Exhibition was then talked of, a map of the identical site that has now been chosen by the New York Committee for the World's Fair of 1892. In the November number of this famous Magazine just issued this plan is reproduced, handsomely executed, and on extra fine paper. It includes all the buil dings and the laying-out of the grounds, and to make it more comprehensive, a map of New York City is also given. The description that accompanies these designs gives a better idea of the site than anything that has been published Everybody should possess this number, if only for this feature.

Henry Koch is a Bay City citizen who sleepeth with a revolver, cash and valuables quietly snoozing beneath his pillow. But some snoozer of a cuss seems to have caught on to Henry's little scheme, and so fed him and his wife a dose of ether and then quietly lugged off the pillow ornaments.

New York may have the boss ball club but Michigan's state university bids fair to lead the institutions of learning of the effete east. Over 1,700 students have already registered at Ann Arbor and still there's more to follow.

The names of the victims are: George Ruby, machinist, of Jackson; Peter Quinn, conductor, of West Bay City, and John Taublevich, brakeman, of Bay City.

Kill Sixty Men Per Month.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Oct. 12.—August Dahlman, a young man employed at the Ropes gold mine, feel 200 feet down a shaft Friday and was killed instantly. Two Finns, brothers, were killed at the Republic mine Thursday night. It is estimated that the iron and copper mines of the Lake Superior district kill over sixty men a month the year round.

Suffered for His Carelessness.

IRONWOOD, Mich., Oct. 14.—At Watersmeet yesterday morning Engineer Kelly, of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore and Western railroad, carelessly ran his engine into a number of box cars standing on a side track. The engine was thrown completely over, and the engineer and fireman were severely and perhaps fatally scalded by escaping steam.

THE NAMES WERE FORGED.

"A Personal Statement to the Public" by Murat Halstead.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 11.—The Commercial Gazette Friday morning under the caption "A Personal Statement to the Public," prints the following, signed by Murat Halstead: "Upon testimony believed to be conclusive, and my own responsibility, I addressed Mr. James E. Campbell a letter and published it in the editorial columns of The Commercial Gazette stating I had the proof that he had secured a money interest in the ballot-box on behalf of which, as member of the house of representatives, he had introduced a bill, and upon his denial I caused to be engraved and published what purported to be a facsimile of his signature appended to a paper subscribing for three-twentieths of the interest in the ballot-box job. In Thursday's paper I made the announcement that the original documents were in my possession. They consist of Mr. Campbell's bill, the contract numbered 1,000 and the subscription paper to which names are written, beginning with that of Mr. Campbell, as has been represented.

Campbell's Signature Was Fraudulent.

"Testimony was placed before me Thursday night proving that the names, including that of Mr. Campbell, are, with two exceptions, traced from detached signatures, and are substantially forgeries. The exceptions were written without a copy. That there may be no shade of doubt upon my exact meaning, I have to say that Mr. Campbell's signature as it has been used, is fraudulent. The proof of this came to me in conclusive form at a late hour, and it is my duty at once to declare the truth. The papers that seemed to show the business behind the bill, are as published, but the signatures, of which I have given that of the author of the bill, are fabricated.

The Dressed Beef Question.

PEORIA, Ills., Oct. 12.—Peoria is at present enjoying a three-cornered fight on the dressed beef question. A short time ago Armour opened a branch establishment here and commenced to cut the price of steak and other cuts. This was met to some extent by the local dealers, but a third party has now appeared in the field in the shape of the Swift Packing company, and the price has been put at a very low rate. The outcome is being watched for with a great deal of interest, and meanwhile the people are getting the choicest cuts at unheard-of prices. It is probable that the city council will be asked to step in, but the results in other places will be likely to make it cautious how it proceeds.

Lord Wolseley and Jeff Davis Will Attend.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 12.—Governor Lee has a letter from Lord Wolseley saying he will attend the unveiling of the monument to Gen. Robert E. Lee in this city early in December unless something unforeseen prevents. Jefferson Davis will also attend. Lord Wolseley and Mr. Davis will be the lions of the occasion. Some of their admirers hope that their meeting will result in a settlement of their differences, as both are so agreed in their admiration of Lee.

The Standard Oil Company Beaten.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Oct. 12.—The circuit court Saturday sustained the decision rendered recently by Judge Pendleton in common pleas court at Findlay. Suit was brought by the Standard Oil company to prevent a railroad from being built along territory which had been leased by that company for gas and oil purposes, the Standard company claiming to own the entire right except for agricultural purposes. This was denied.

Snatched a Satchel of Valuables.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 12.—Minnie French, the actress, wife of George Hoey, of Evans and Hoey, comedians, now at Pope's, and who herself is the "innocent kid" in "A Parlor Match," had her hand-satchel snatched Friday at 5:30 o'clock by a tough on Olive street, who, with his pal, disappeared in Pool alley. It contained $2,000 worth of diamonds, according to the lady's story, which is generally credited.

Death of an Insurance Man.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 12.—William G. Abbott, secretary of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company, died Saturday morning at his residence in this city. Mr. Abbott was chosen secretary in 1884.

SIN, PARDON AND PEACE.

LESSON IV, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, OCT. 27.

Text of the Lesson, Ps. xxxii, 1-11—Commit Verses 1, 2—Golden Text, Rom. v. 1—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

Our last lesson was concerning the everlasting covenant which God made with David to establish His kingdom forever, and his thanksgiving to God because of this great favor, then follows the record of David's great success in subduing all his enemies on every side, because the Lord was with him and preserved him whithersoever he went; after which we read of his kindness to Mephibosheth, son of Jonathan, son of Saul, and then, in II Sam. xi, 12, is the record of David's awful sin and transgression, because of the iniquity of his heart, with its consequent judgment by God, and on David's part penitence and the receiving of forgiveness. Our lesson today is one of the seven penitential psalms, the others being the 6th, 51st, 38th, 102d, 130th and 143d, this and the 51st are supposed to have been written by David after that dark chapter in his life, and if we should judge by the contents of each we might suppose the latter to have been written first.

1, 2. "Transgression forgiven, * * * sin covered, * * * iniquity not imputed." Transgression signifies the going beyond bounds or doing that which we should not do; sin is coming short of the mark, or leaving undone that which we ought to have done; iniquity signifies anything distorted or perverse, and seems to refer to the natural heart, which is all wrong since the fall and manifests its perverseness in sin and transgression, so that here we have the whole matter of wrong and wrong doing disposed of and forever settled in God's appointed way.
